In connection with the foregoing, a brief explanation may be necessary.

The organization of this Department was found complete and efficient, and the system of recruiting adopted by His Excellency Governor Morgan, was continued with as much success as the absence of all bounties would permit. At that period, there were, within the State, twelve incomplete organizations, numbering two thousand four hundred and eighty-six men; but, from a general apathy in recruiting without bounties, these regiments were consolidated and sent to the field as early as practicable. The time was approaching when the thirty-eight regiments which were raised for two years service under the Act of the Legislature, passed April 16th, 1861, would be discharged; and the condition of the army demanded that immediate steps should be taken to replenish its ranks. The Legislature passed a bounty act, April 17th, 1863, giving to each soldier of the two years regiments, who re-enlisted, the sum of one hundred and fifty dollars ($150,) and to recruits, seventy-five ($75.) The regiments to be discharged, were permitted to return to the State with their arms. The effect was good among young men, who, heretofore, had been ignorant of the homage due to veterans, and who, during their absence, had been spectators to the perils and toils which they had endured.

The following is a list of the regiments discharged:

*3d Artillery.

These troops had performed valuable services. Entering into the contest at an early period, they were subjected to many hardships in camp, and to exposure in the field. They honored their State, by conspicuous gallantry, and themselves, by a consistent discharge of duty as men and as citizens. The records of this office show that the aggregate strength of these regiments, upon taking the field, was thirty thousand seven hundred and one men. From all the information that can be obtained, the number mustered out of the service at the period mentioned, did not exceed eleven thousand men. Many of these have re-enlisted, forming, in some instances, half of a regiment, thus giving to the other portion the benefit of their experience, creating in a short time an efficient and well organized body of troops.

The 168th regiment New York State Volunteers, or the 19th regiment National Guard of the State of New York, commanded by Colonel William R. Brown, was mustered into the service of the United States for nine months, at Newburgh, on the 11th day of February, 1863, and discharged on the 31st day of October, 1863.

The 176th regiment, Colonel Charles C. Nott, was mustered into the service of the United States in the city of New York, for nine months, on the 10th day of January, 1863, and discharged on the 16th day of November, 1863.

The 177th regiment, New York State Volunteers, or the 10th regiment, National Guard of the State of New York, commanded by Colonel Ira W. Ainsworth, was mustered into the service of the United States at Albany, N. Y., for nine months service, on the 21st day of November, 1862, and mustered out of the service on the 10th day of September, 1863.

These regiments were immediately put into active service, and sustained themselves with distinguished gallantry and endurance. The 177th regiment took an active and conspicuous part in the siege and reduction of Port Hudson, and were highly complimented for their intrepidity and devotion to duty.

Authorizations have been granted to raise regiments throughout the State, and every facility and support given to recruiting officers in order to hasten troops to the field. The list appended to this report numbered four (4), explains to what extent these efforts were successful. Twenty-five thousand three hundred and twenty-four men have been organized for the field since January 1st, 1863. Seven thousand two hundred and six commissions have been issued within this period to the officers, non-commissioned officers and privates belonging to the volunteer service of the State, and now under the orders of the General Government.

In these promotions your Excellency's instructions have been closely observed. If, in any instance they were departed from, it was owing to the want of accurate information. The professional rights of all grades have been regarded, non-commissioned officers, as well as privates, have been commissioned upon the recommendation of their superior officers.

There are now in the State three regiments of artillery, eight regiments of cavalry, and twenty-five independent companies of infantry in process of formation. These organizations receive the bounties of the General Government, as well as those of the State. With the exception of the foregoing, recruiting in the State has been under the direction of the Provost Marshal General, Colonel James B. Fry, since the 22nd of September last. The determination is, to recruit exclusively for regiments in the field. The special authority just conferred by the War Department, to raise independent companies of infantry to be attached to old regiments, will, no doubt, be successful. Measures now in progress, and your Excellency's recent call upon the Supervisors of the several towns of the State, will, in a short time, fill the quota required by the proclamation of the President of October 17th, 1863. This, however, will depend much upon the permanency of the method of recruiting. It requires time, as well as industry, patience, and forbearance to perfect an efficient and acceptable method of replenishing the ranks of the army. All classes of citizens are to be taught the necessity of a well digested and permanent system in accomplishing so important a result. This must necessarily and unavoidably subject individuals to inconvenience and expense; but, when once permanently adopted, and placed in a good working condition, under capable officers, business and pecuniary interests will be so arranged, as to meet the emergencies incident to the state of the country. A harmonious action is indispensable between the authorities of the National and State governments, as well as among superintendents of the recruiting service, provost marshals, and their subordinates. The duties appertaining to these offices are important, and the details can be enforced in a temperate and in an acceptable manner. Every citizen should feel, that in the great contest in which we are engaged, stringent rules and regulations are indispensable to success; and that in sending troops to the field, his pecuniary interests and the security of his home are involved.

The following statement will give the number of troops organized in the State during the year 1863.

The quota of the State under the call of the General Government of August 9th 1862, for 300,000 drafted men, or volunteers for nine months service in lieu thereof, was 59,705.

In allowing credits to States for volunteers furnished, the War Department, in a communication dated Washington, May 13th, 1863, informed this department, that one three years man would be equal to four nine months men.

The surplus of three years men remaining after filling all former requisitions was.....	27,064 three years men over all the calls of the General Government, up to June 11, 1863, the date at which the account of the State with the General Government was made up by the War Department. The War Department admitted a surplus of 4,651 to have been furnished by the State of New York, which was deducted, pro rata, from the quotas assigned to the several congressional districts under the draft.

It will be seen that the surplus as shown by the foregoing statement, exceeds that made by the War Department 10,814. This discrepancy between the two accounts is now in process of examination and adjustment by the War Department at Washington.

The regiments of the National Guard of the State, called out for short service, amounting to 29,893 men, are not included in the above statement. [See Appendix.]

While the volunteer forces have received every attention, the militia of the State has not been disregarded. Though yet but in a partially organized condition, as much has been done as the limited appropriations would permit. With an insufficient supply of arms and accoutrements, and without the means to purchase uniforms to the extent required, it is impossible to create a military spirit, or maintain efficient organizations. By the act of the legislature, passed April 15, 1863, two hundred thousand dollars were appropriated to pay the expenses incident to the State militia. An act was passed April 24th, 1863, appropriating five hundred thousand dollars for the purchase of arms and accoutrements.

The report of the Commissary General hereto appended (A) will show the number of arms and accoutrements purchased and issued during the year.

The militia law of the State, passed April 23d, 1862, is practicable, well arranged, and stringent in its injunctions, and if adhered to, the entire militia force might be brought to a high state of perfection.

No military organization can be created, nor can it be efficiently maintained, without severe penalties, and these, enforced with promptness, justice, and firmness. The act referred to, section 13, page 7, enjoins a yearly parade of the reserved militia of the first and second classes. Section 14, page 8, imposes a fine of one dollar upon those who are absent. Section 15, page 8, requires the county treasurer to pay this fine into the treasury of the State. The act of the Legislature, chapter 425, passed May 5, 1863, discharged all offenders from the penalties as stated. The enrollment of the militia under chapter 477, Laws of 1862, section 4, on file in this Department, dated March 2d, 1863, shows that there were two hundred and eighty-five thousand, five hundred and eighty (285,580) men in the State subject to military duty. Of this number, ten thousand, two hundred and thirty-nine (10,239) appeared at the annual parade, as required by law, (section 13) on the first Monday of September, 1862; thus leaving two hundred and seventy-five thousand, seven hundred and thirty-nine (275,739) delinquents, liable each, to the fine of one dollar. This sum, if it had been collected under the requirements of section 14, would have placed in the treasury of the State, two hundred and seventy-five thousand, seven hundred and thirty-nine dollars ($275,739,) for the support of the militia; a sum larger than the annual appropriation for that purpose. With such leniency, no military organization can exist, nor can the citizens of the State receive that protection due to them in their political and civil rights. The whole force, as at present organized, numbers thirty-one thousand, five hundred (31,500) men. These are distributed in eight divisions, thirty-two brigades and eighty-five regiments. One batallion attached to the fifth brigade, and one battery to the twenty-fourth brigade. The number of new organizations completed during the past year is twenty, (20) amounting to seven thousand and thirteen (7,013) men. The old organizations number twenty-four thousand, four hundred and eighty-seven (24,487) men. Arms and equipments have been issued as follows:

- 5 six-pounder brass cannon.
- 2 twenty-pounder Parrot iron cannon.
- 5 ten-pounder Parrot iron cannon.
- 8,209 Springfield rifled muskets.
- 4,536 Enfield rifled muskets.
- 10,438 gun slings.
- 9,988 cartridge boxes and plates.
- 9,988 cartridge box belts and plates.
- 9,988 cap pouches and picks.
- 9,988 waist belts and plates.
- 9,988 bayonet scabbards and frogs.
- 1,265 cavalry sabres.
- 504 non-commissioned officers' swords.
- 48 sets wheel harness for one horse.
- 96 sets lead harness for one horse.
- 767 carbines.
- 719 revolvers.
- 455 artillery sabres.

These issues have been the means of increasing the number of companies and regiments. The certainty of obtaining good arms and accoutrements has acted as a stimulus to exertion in filling up organizations to the number required by law. In addition to the full regiments organized, there are company organizations completed in several regimental districts, the strength of which is as follows:

			Men.
4	companies,	Cortland county.....	154
6	do	2d district Rensselaer county.....	231
3	do	1st do Delaware county.....	143
2	do	2d do Herkimer county.....	69
3	do	1st do Columbia county.....	107
1	do	3d do Oneida county.....	34
1	do	3d do Rensselaer county.....	34
3	do	2d do Allegany county.....	113
1	do	2d do Washington county.....	50

Total, 24 companies, and 935 men.

Adding the strength of these companies to the completed regiments, it will raise the force of the National Guard to thirty-two thousand four hundred and thirty-five (32,435,) men. The number of regimental authorizations given during the past year, in accordance with the recommendation of the Inspector General, and under General Orders No. 24, issued from these headquarters June 19th, 1863, is seventy-four. Of the regiments authorized, the following have been completed, viz:

Nos. 35, 58, 44, 75, 83, 84, 85, 86, 87, 88, 89, 90, 91, 92, 93, 94, 95, and 96.

The number of reserved militia, by the enrollment under the provisions of the Militia Law of April 23d, 1862, was two hundred and ninety-eight thousand five hundred and twenty-seven, (298,527). The number of persons liable to military duty in the State, after deducting exempts, as returned by the enrolling officers appointed to make the enrollment preliminary to the draft ordered in July, 1862, one month afterwards, was five hundred and eighty-six thousand nine hundred and fifty-nine, (586,959).

The difference between these two enrollments is great. In the first, under the militia law, neither members of the uniformed militia, nor firemen, were included.

The Legislature at its last session remitted, as stated, the fines imposed for non-attendance of the reserved militia at the September parade in 1862, and further provided, that no parade should be required in the year 1863. Under the provisions of the existing militia law, a new enrollment will be made in June next, and a parade of the reserved militia will take place in the month of September following.

The number of commissions issued to the National Guard of the State since January 1st, 1863, is one thousand seven hundred and fifty-three (1,753).

Regiments are now ready to receive their arms, accoutrements and uniforms. The appropriation for the purchase of these is inadequate. The large number of discharged soldiers who have been two years in the field, residing in almost every town in the State, makes this an appropriate time for organizing the militia, and thus securing the benefit of their knowledge and experience.

The State of New York is imperatively called upon to have, within its limits, a perfectly equipped and organized militia. It has the men, the means, and the spirit. Its power ought to be felt in this particular, as well as in its political, commercial and maritime relations. The long line of frontier, occupied by a thrifty and vigorous population, should be protected by bayonets. A blow struck upon this frontier is felt as sensibly in the city of New York, as in the city of Buffalo, or Elmira. Railroads, canals, and telegraphic communications have created a community of interests, so that war or disorder awakens apprehension, and carries alarm to every man's home. No period in our history has so strongly illustrated this, as the events which have transpired around us during the past six months.

The Executive of a neighboring State, Pennsylvania, appealed earnestly to your Excellency to come to his aid. While this was freely granted, the absence of the organized militia from the State was not without embarrassment. The advance of the enemy was threatened by the way of Harrisburgh which is but one hundred and twenty-five (125) miles from Elmira. A victorious army might have swept through the interior of the State, as the routes to Syracuse, Utica and Rochester were destitute of arms and ammunition, and of all proper military organizations to resist a successful foe advancing to take their property and to desolate their homes. Even the citizens of New York at this period were not without apprehension, lest the enemy, if not repulsed, might extend his raid from Elmira to that city.

For more than twenty years the militia laws of this State were the subject of ridicule; but, in spite of opposition and discouragement, a few officers of rank had the intelligence and firmness to uphold those laws, and zealously persevered in their duties regardless of the obloquy thrown upon them. The injunction, "In peace, prepare for war" has appealed with fearful truthfulness to every citizen of this State within the past year.

The details connected with the movements of the State troops to Pennsylvania in June last, in accordance with a request from the Hon. E. M. Stanton, Sec'y of War, and His Excellency Governor Curtin of Pennsylvania, is interesting and instructive. It shows the necessity of a complete military organization and equipment throughout the State. It was these regiments, comprising men of every vocation, who, abandoning their homes upon a short notice, took their muskets and knapsacks, and with cheerful promptness and obedience to orders, contributed materially to the defeat of the enemy, and thus saved a neighboring State from devastation, and guaranteed peace and security to their own.

The reports, herewith transmitted, from the commanders of divisions are much in detail, but they are submitted as an act of justice to these troops, in order that the public may know and appreciate their services.

On the 15th of June, 1863, a telegram was received from Hon. E. M. Stanton, Secretary of War, by Your Excellency, of which the following is a copy.

" WASHINGTON, June 15, 1863.

" To His Excellency Governor SEYMOUR :

" The movements of the rebel forces in Virginia are now sufficiently developed, to show that General Lee, with his whole army, is moving forward to invade the States of Maryland, Pennsylvania, and other States. The President, to repel this invasion promptly, has called upon Ohio, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Western Virginia for one hundred thousand (100,000) militia for six months, unless sooner discharged. It is important to have the largest possible force in the least time; and, if other States would furnish militia for a short term, to be credited on the draft, it would greatly advance the object.

" Will you please inform me immediately, if, in answer to a special call from the President, you can forward, say twenty thousand militia, as volunteers without bounty, to be credited on the draft of your State, or what number you can probably raise?

" (Signed)

E. M. STANTON,

" Secretary of War."

To which you responded the same day, as follows:

" ALBANY, June 15, 1863.

" To Hon. E. M. STANTON, Secretary of War, Washington :

" I will spare no efforts to send you troops at once. I have sent orders to the militia officers of the State.

" (Signed,)

HORATIO SEYMOUR."

In answer to the foregoing, a telegram was received, the same night, as follows:

"To GOVERNOR SEYMOUR,

"The President directs me to return his thanks, with those of the Department, for your prompt response. A strong movement of your city regiments to Philadelphia would be a very encouraging movement, will do great good, and give strength in that State. The call should be for six months, unless sooner discharged, in order to comply with the law. It is not likely that more than thirty days' service—perhaps not so long—would be required. Can you forward your city regiments speedily?"

"(Signed,)

E. M. STANTON,

"Secretary of War."

Again, the same night, your Excellency telegraphed as follows:

"I will order the New York and Brooklyn troops to Philadelphia at once. Where can they get arms if they are needed?"

Again, on the same day:

"We have about two thousand enlisted volunteers in the State. I will have them consolidated into companies and regiments, and sent on at once. You must provide them with arms."

The following telegram was received from His Excellency Governor Curtin.

"To his Excellency GOVERNOR SEYMOUR:

"I am in receipt of a message from the War Department stating that you are preparing troops to aid in defending the borders. The enemy is now in Cumberland Valley in large force. The danger is imminent. Allow me to urge the forwarding of all troops to Harrisburgh without delay.

"(Signed)

A. G. CURTIN,

Governor of Pennsylvania."

To which you replied by telegram dated,

"ALBANY, June 16, 1863.

"To Governor CURTIN, Harrisburgh, Pa.:

"I am pushing forward troops as fast as possible. Regiments leave New York to-night. All will be ordered to report to Gen. Couch. (Signed)

HORATIO SEYMOUR."

To obtain further information, the following telegram was transmitted:

" ALBANY, June 16, 1863.

" To Hon. E. M. STANTON, Secretary of War :

" The Governor wishes that directions be given to Col. Vinton to issue clothing and camp equipage to the Quartermaster-General for the militia regiments now assembling for service in the field. The regiments will move in twenty-four (24) hours. Subsistence and transportation will also be needed.

" (Signed)

JOHN T. SPRAGUE,

"Adjutant-General."

The Secretary of War replied :

" WASHINGTON, June 16, 1863.

" To Adjutant-General SPRAGUE :

" The Quartermaster-General has made provision for the clothing and equipment of the troops that may go to Pennsylvania. The issues to be made at Harrisburgh. You can make requisition for subsistence and transportation as heretofore, for troops forwarded from your State.

" (Signed)

E. M. STANTON,

" Secretary of War."

Telegram to

" Hon. E. M. STANTON, Secretary of War, WASHINGTON, D. C. :

" ALBANY, June 18, 1863.

" About twelve thousand (12,000) men are now on the move for Harrisburgh, in good spirits and well equipped. The Governor says, Shall troops continue to be forwarded? Please answer. Nothing from Washington since my last telegram.

" (Signed)

JOHN T. SPRAGUE,

"Adjutant-General."

The Secretary of War answered :

" WASHINGTON, June 19th, 1863.

" To Adjutant-General SPRAGUE :

" The President directs me to return his thanks to His Excellency Governor Seymour and his staff, for their energetic and prompt action. Whether any other force is likely to be required, will be communicated to you to-morrow, by which time it is expected the movements of the enemy will be more fully developed.

" (Signed)

E. M. STANTON, Secretary of War."

Again, on June 21st, Secretary Stanton telegraphed as follows:

" To Assistant Adjutant-General STONEHOUSE :

" The President desires Governor Seymour to forward to Baltimore all the militia regiments he can raise.

" (Signed)

E. M. STANTON, Secretary of War."

Troops were thus continued to be sent with the utmost despatch.

The following list gives the dates of their departure, the numbers of the regiments, their commanders, and the strength of each, showing that twelve thousand and ninety-one (12,091) men were equipped and marched to the relief of Harrisburgh in ten (10) days. The total number sent between the 15th day of June and the 3d day of July, was thirteen thousand, nine hundred and seventy-one, (13,971).

In connection with this militia force, detachments of volunteers, scattered throughout the State, were organized, equipped, and ordered forthwith to Harrisburgh, Pennsylvania. This force comprised one thousand, eight hundred and twenty-seven (1,827) men.

Governor Curtin again, on the 2nd of July, transmitted a despatch dated,

"HARRISBURGH, July 2, 1863.

"To His Excellency Governor SEYMOUR:

"Send forward more troops as rapidly as possible: every hour increases the necessity for large forces to protect Pennsylvania. The battles of yesterday were not decisive; and if Meade should be defeated, unless we have a large army, the State will be overrun by the rebels.

"(Signed)

A. G. CURTIN,

"Governor of Pennsylvania."

This telegram was transmitted to your Excellency while in New Jersey, when you directed me, by telegram, as follows:

"BRUNSWICK, N. J., July 2.—12 P. M.

"Send forward more troops to the relief of Pennsylvania."

To which I replied, as follows:

"ST. NICHOLAS HOTEL, July 2, 1863.—Midnight.

"Telegram just received. Conkling's regiment will go to-morrow night. The 10th (Benedix) Monday. I have directed the 17th and 18th regiments to go. I will see General Sandford to-night.

At the same time I telegraphed to Governor Curtin:

"JULY 3.—2 o'clock, A. M.

"To His Excellency A. G. CURTIN, Governor of Pennsylvania:

"Your telegram is received. Troops will continue to be sent. One regiment leaves to-night, another to-morrow, all in good spirits.

JOHN T. SPRAGUE,

"Adjutant-General."

The anxiety expressed by His Excellency Governor Curtin, as conveyed in his telegram of July 2nd, caused serious apprehension that the enemy might invade this State by the way of Elmira. At that point there were neither arms, ammunition, nor a combined militia force sufficient to stimulate resistance. Citizens might have assembled, but the rapid approach of a foe flushed with victory would have soon overcome brave men without organization or discipline.

Citizens should feel that the security of their homes lies in the musket and cartridge box. This was contemplated by our forefathers. The laws of every State exempt fire-arms from seizure under a civil process. Measures were immediately adopted, as far as resources would permit, to protect this frontier. The commanders of regiments were apprized of the danger, and two thousand stands of arms and equipments, and fifty thousand rounds of ammunition were despatched to meet the emergency. More recently a rebel force threatened the northern frontier of the State by an invasion from Canada. The citizens in that quarter appealed to the Executive for protection, which could only be provided through the agency of the organized militia.

The cities of New York and Brooklyn have for many years, sustained regiments which have been well equipped and highly distinguished for discipline. Regiments of a similar character have been organized in Syracuse, Rochester, and Buffalo.

On the 11th of July last, information was conveyed to your Excellency, that the draft would take place in the city of New York. It was found upon consultation with Major General Charles W. Sandford, commanding 1st division National Guard of the State, that he had but about six hundred (600) men upon whom he could rely for the safety of the city in case of disorder or riot. The militia of New York city and Brooklyn were then in Pennsylvania and in Maryland, following up the retreating enemy. Under your Excellency's instructions, I proceeded to Washington city that night, in the expectation of arriving in time to have the draft postponed until a sufficient military force, belonging to the city, could be sent back to meet the apprehended difficulties; but upon reaching the War Department, Monday morning, a telegram was received announcing that a riot was in progress, and a part of the city in flames. The Secretary of War immediately directed a temporary suspension of the draft and ordered four regiments, belonging to the city, then in the field, to return without delay in compliance with the following telegram, viz:

"HEADQUARTERS, ST. NICHOLAS HOTEL, }
 "NEW YORK, July 16, 1863. }

"To the SECRETARY OF WAR, Washington, D. C. :

"There is great disorder here. It is important to have the New York and Brooklyn regiments sent home at once.

"(Signed)

HORATIO SEYMOUR."

"WASHINGTON, July 16, 1863.

"To His Excellency Governor SEYMOUR, New York :

"Eleven New York regiments are relieved, and are at Frederick, and will be relieved as fast as transportation can be furnished them.

"(Signed)

EDWIN M. STANTON,

"Secretary of War."

The timely arrival of these regiments enabled Major General Sandford to restore order and safety. The organized militia in the interior of the State was ordered to repair forthwith, to the city. Regiments responded promptly, but upon reaching Albany, the railroad and steamboat companies refused transportation, as the destruction of their depots and boats had been threatened by the mob if facilities were granted. The arrival of the 54th regiment National Guard of the State was most opportune. The mob had assembled in force, threatening the office of the provost marshal, the Delavan House, and the lives of all who dared to interpose any obstacle. The discipline of the regiment, and the firmness of their commander, frustrated their designs, and gave peace and security to the city. At this time, applications were received at these headquarters from all parts of the State, for arms and ammunition. These events, though disastrous, are not without their lessons of instruction. Tumults and disorders within the limits of the State jeopardize the interests of her citizens, as well as the threatened invasion of enemies upon the borders.

In order to carry out the instruction of the militia to the utmost extent, the application of your Excellency, in April last, to the War Department, to permit companies to be stationed temporarily in the forts in the harbor of New York, would, if it had been in accordance with the rules of the service, have effected good results. Merchants and manufacturers were willing to give the time to the young men in their employ, and thus, after one or two months' instruction, there would have been an efficient body of artillerists capable of manning all the forts in the harbor upon the shortest notice. The letter upon this subject to Brigadier General Thomas, Adjutant General U. S. A., is given below:

“ GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, STATE OF NEW YORK, }
 ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE, }
 ALBANY, March 17, 1863. }

“ Brig-Gen. LORENZO THOMAS, Adjutant-General, U. S. A.:

“ General—The First Division, National Guard of the State of New York, comprising seven thousand (7,000) efficient, well-organized and equipped men, are located in and around the city of New York. Upon this organization the city must mainly depend when threatened by an enemy, and will form a valuable auxiliary force if attacked. To this end it is essential that this body of men should be instructed in the use of sea-coast guns, and to the general detail and discipline incident to garrisons and forts. To accomplish so desirable an object, it is proposed to place in the forts defending New York harbor, on the first day of May next, two thousand men, and continuing through the months of May, June, July, August and September, changing monthly. On the first day of May, this number can be in readiness, with arms, accoutrements, and blankets complete, whose names will be recorded upon muster-rolls in the usual form, and then turned over to Major-General Wool, with an understanding that these troops are to serve one month in the fortifications and garrisons as common soldiers. If the usual monthly pay can not be allowed, let such rations be issued as are furnished to the United States troops. Upon the expiration of the month another two thousand will be in readiness, and so continue until this entire force has gone through a course of instruction. Citizens of large mercantile, commercial, and mechanical interests offer the services of men in their employ gratuitously, to perfect a plan so desirable, in making the citizens of New York feel that in time of danger, their well instructed troops, and the skillful use of artillery in fortifications, are the protectors of their homes and their property. I am directed by His Excellency Governor Seymour thus briefly to submit the foregoing for the consideration of the Secretary of War.

"I am, General, very respectfully,

" Your obedient servant,

" (Signed)

JOHN T. SPRAGUE,

"Adjutant-General."

In connection with the foregoing I would most respectfully and most urgently recommend, that there be a course of elementary military instruction introduced in all the institutions of learning throughout the State, for the education of young men. These duties and studies elevate the mind, develop physical and mental energy, introduce method and order into the daily occupations of life, and above all, inculcate in the youthful mind, respect for authority, military and civil. A sufficient number of arms and accoutrements might be issued by the State for this purpose, as they could as well be entrusted to the care of those who would have them in daily use, as allowed to remain in the various arsenals of the State. The establishment of a State military school, is a subject well worthy of consideration.

The printing and binding of the muster-in rolls of the volunteer troops sent to the field from the State since the act of the Legislature of April 16th, 1861, is now in progress under the provisions of chapter 210, Laws of 1863. The work will consist of seven quarto volumes, each containing about forty thousand (40,000) names. In addition to these, there are some forty thousand (40,000) names recorded in the offices of the United States mustering and disbursing officers on duty in the State. These will have to be copied. The increased labor and additional number of volumes will require a further appropriation of five thousand dollars, ($5,000).

By a joint resolution of the Legislature on the 17th of April last, two hundred thousand (200,000) copies of the proceedings relating to the presentation of flags from regiments in the field, and the returned two years regiments, to the State, were ordered to be printed. Upon careful estimates it was found that, to have the number executed as desired, it would cost not less than thirty thousand dollars, ($30,000). There being no appropriation to meet this expenditure, it was thought more judicious to limit the number to six thousand (6,000) copies. These are completed and are being sent to the officers and non-commissioned officers of all the regiments, battalions, and batteries of New York volunteers in the field. The work is stereotyped and more can be ordered if required.

A commendable zeal has been displayed in uniforming and equipping new regiments of the National Guard, organized in assembly districts. The very limited military appropriations would not justify an expenditure sufficient to meet their demands. Several regiments have, therefore, obtained uniforms at their own expense, relying upon the Legislature to refund the amount. This patriotic spirit should be cherished; and to this end, their claims ought to receive due consideration.

Tactics and regulations have been freely distributed among all organizations.

The act of the Legislature, passed April 24th, 1863, appropriating the sum of two hundred thousand dollars ($200,000,) to provide for the sick, wounded, furloughed and discharged soldiers of this State, has been executed in such a manner, as to meet most liberally, the wants and demands of this meritorious class of citizens.

Immediately upon the passage of the law, orders were issued from these headquarters, creating a board of managers consisting of the Adjutant General, the Inspector General, the Surgeon General, and the Quartermaster General, to which was confided the disbursement of the fund, subject to your Excellency's approval. A suitable building was obtained at No. 51, Howard street, New York city, to accommodate four hundred (400) men. The institution was designated the "New York State Soldiers' Depot." The board has met monthly and given to its management and to the expenditures a careful supervision. Here the soldier, from whatever part of the country he may come, has found a resting place and been treated with the utmost consideration and attention; if sick, medical attendance was at hand, and when sufficiently recovered, he has been sent to his regiment, or to his home. The relatives and friends of those who have died, have received timely notice, and the remains conveyed, as desired, under the immediate care of the agent of the State. Agencies have been established wherever New York State troops were to be found, and money has been transmitted to soldiers in a suffering condition, and to prisoners in the hands of the enemy. Fifteen hundred dollars ($1,500) were appropriated to be distributed to prisoners in Richmond, Virginia. The annual report of the board, submitted, shows that fifteen thousand, seven hundred and twenty-seven (15,727) soldiers have passed through the institution since its opening, May 11th, 1863, and have received transportation, clothing, subsistence and medical attendance.

Though much has been accomplished, a more enlarged system of agencies, together with a wider discretion in the application of money, would have effected much in ameliorating the condition of the soldier. The spirit of the law is liberal, but in the application of its provisions the board has been constrained to execute them with the utmost prudence and economy. This institution should be maintained with great liberality. The soldier looks to it amidst his privations and toils, as his home; and, though so fortunate as not to be the recipient of its bounty, he nevertheless realizes its charity and turns to his native State with pride and enthusiasm, as her liberality is bestowed with a responsive heart and with a liberal hand.

In compliance with the instructions of your Excellency of the 11th ultimo, I proceeded to visit the volunteer troops from the State of New York, now in the field; but, owing to the recent active movements of the armies of the Potomac, Cumberland, and of the South, my observations were confined to the Tenth Army Corps, commanded by Major-General Q. A. Gilmore. The New York State volunteers, I found, were stationed at Morris Island, Folly Island, Port Royal, Beaufort, and St. Augustine. These regiments were in excellent condition and were well subsisted, clothed and disciplined, and considering the duties to which they have been subjected for six months past, were in excellent health. The highest encomiums were bestowed upon them by the commander, for their unremitting support in his operations, resulting in the reduction of Forts Wagner and Gregg and silencing the guns of Fort Sumter, thus opening the way to Charleston harbor. Commodious hospitals are established at Beaufort, South Carolina and at St. Augustine, Florida, with the best medical attendance, and with ample means to insure the comfort of the sick and wounded. So soon as time and opportunity permit, other Departments will be visited.

I recommend that a stringent law be passed to prevent the establishment of recruiting offices within this State by agents from other States. In the city of New York there were at one time as many as seventeen; others were located at Utica, Rochester, Lockport, and Buffalo. Large bounties have been offered and the men obtained, credited to a neighboring State. This interference is discouraging to those counties, cities and towns now using every exertion to fill their quotas.

In conclusion, I again refer to the necessity of equipping and uniforming the National Guard. The regiments can be filled to their maximum strength in the coming ninety days providing the indispensable stimulus be given to citizens now desirous of creating efficient military organizations. Without arms, accoutrements, and uniforms, the militia forces of the State must sink rapidly into insignificance, inefficiency, and disorder. War brings with it a nervous and restless population. Commotions within, and intrusions from without, may stimulate men to overt acts; neighboring States may again call for assistance, the General Government may again ask for troops, when our patriotic citizens should be able to respond with a well disciplined force.

The reserved militia will be required to appear armed and equipped, under section 13, page 7, of the militia law, in September next; and the fine of one dollar for non-attendance, imposed in section 14, should be enforced. Without the penalty therein enjoined, two hundred and ninety-eight thousand five hundred and twenty seven (298,527) men, capable of bearing arms, will be converted into an undisciplined crowd, unable to protect themselves, or to serve their State and country in time of danger.

The varied duties of this Department have been unremitting and laborious, but the experience and fidelity of my assistants, detailed from the National Guard, together with the industry and efficiency of the clerks, employed at all hours, have aided materially in perfecting the organization, the equipment, and the movement of troops. The call for information by the citizens of the State, imposes much additional work upon the Department and renders necessary an increased number of clerks. This office has become the depository of important records which appertain to, and are identified with, every family in the State. The history of fathers, husbands, brothers, relatives, and friends is here deposited, and will, in all future time, be a record of the loyalty with which the citizens of the State have come up to the support of the Government and the Union.

Respectfully submitted

JOHN T. SPRAGUE,

Adjutant General.

INSPECTION FIRST BRIGADE NATIONAL GUARD.

HEADQUARTERS, 1ST BRIGADE, N. G., S. N. Y., }
 NEW YORK, November 1, 1863. }

SIR—I beg herewith to hand you inspection return of the 1st brigade, 1st division, N. Y. S. N. G., made on the 27th day of October, 1863.

The 1st regiment (cavalry), under the command of Lieut. Col. D. C. Minton, mustered on parade 246 present, 106 absent; total strength of the regiment 352 men.

The 2d regiment (infantry), under the command of Captain James Brady, is being reorganized, and mustered for inspection 202 present and 66 reported absent, making a total of 268 men, which is the present strength of the regiment. This regiment is, at present, without uniforms, arms or equipment, but have made a requisition for what they require, and have lately received 50 muskets and 50 sets of equipments, and have also made a contract for all the uniforms they require.

The 3d regiment (cavalry), under the command of Col. S. B. Postley, mustered for inspection 342 men and 147 absent, showing the total strength of the regiment to be 489 men.

The 71st regiment (infantry), under the command of Col. B. L. Trafford, inspected 557 men present, 168 reporting absent, making the total strength of the regiment 725 men.

The 73d regiment (infantry) were not inspected, owing to the absence of Col. Ray Tompkins, at Washington on government business, and who failed to issue the necessary orders; however, the numerical strength of the regiment does not differ materially from that of last year, which was 170, total, present and absent.

I have inserted, in the above return, only such arms and equipments, in the possession of the several regiments, as belong to the State, all others, including uniforms, being the private property of the officers and men, all of whom, with the exception of those composing the 2d regiment, are fully armed and equipped, and were found to be, on inspection, in complete order and fit for service. Brig. Gen. C. B. Spicer and staff, were also inspected, and were found to be fully uniformed, armed and equipped.

The inspection of this brigade showed a great improvement over that of last year, both as to the numerical strength, uniformity in appearance, and proficiency in the drill of both officers and men of all the regiments.

Submitting the above,

I remain, your's truly,

RUSSELL H. HOADLEY,

1st Brigade Inspector.

REPORT OF THE SECOND BRIGADE, NATIONAL GUARD.

HEADQUARTERS 2D BRIGADE N. G., S. N. Y., }
NEW YORK, December 7th, 1863. }

To Brig. Gen. J. T. SPRAGUE,

Adjutant General State of New York:

GENERAL.—I have the honor of enclosing herewith my annual inspection report and return of the second brigade, N. G., for the present year. Please acknowledge receipt, that I may know that they have reached you.

I remain, very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

CHAS. TRUMBULL WHITE,

Brig. Maj. and Inspector 2d Brig., N. G., S. N. Y.

HEADQUARTERS 2D BRIGADE, N. G., S. N. Y., }
NEW YORK, December 1st, 1863. }

To Brig. General JOHN T. SPRAGUE,

Adjutant General State of New York:

GENERAL.—In accordance with the regulations, I have the honor to submit herewith the annual inspection return of the 2d brigade N. G., S. N. Y.

This brigade has paraded on several occasions during the year, and has also been for 30 days in the service of the United States in Pennsylvania, and a corresponding time in that of our own State, at the time of the draft. The principal parade and drill of the brigade took place on the 13th of June, at East New York. It was preceded by a course of theoretical and practical instruction for the benefit of the officers and non-commissioned officers of the brigade.

Upon the occasion of this parade, the brigade was reviewed by the brigadier general and exercised in the manoeuvres described in his report.

These movements were performed with a promptitude and exactness which, considering the large proportion of new material in the brigade, reflects most creditably upon the capacity and skill of the officers, and the intelligence and discipline of their commands. On the 20th of June, in pursuance of orders from general and division headquarters, this brigade proceeded to Pennsylvania and Maryland to aid in repelling the rebel invasion of those States.

The 4th regiment light artillery, Col. Teller, the 5th regiment, Col. Burger, and 12th regiment, Col. Ward, infantry, were ordered to Harrisburg. The 6th regiment, Col. Mason, and the 84th regiment, Col. Conkling, to Baltimore. Gen. Yates was accompanied to Harrisburg by Major Gardiner, Captains Herrick, Landon and Anthon, besides myself, as members of his staff.

Upon his arrival, Major Gen. Couch, to whom he reported, ordered him to take the 5th and 12th regiments of the brigade to Fenwick, a small village a few miles from Harrisburgh, in the Dauphin Valley, to guard two important railroad bridges which here cross the Susquehanna.

Upon arrival, the command was set to work to prepare hastily constructed defences as an attack was momentarily expected. About two weeks were spent at this place in building earthworks, digging rifle-pits, making abbatis, closing the gaps of the mountains, and performing important picket and other guard duties. A part of the time a large portion of the force was placed upon the mountains guarding the approaches, exposed to the severest storms, with but scanty shelter.

Upon the 7th of July, the brigade was ordered to go by rail to Carlisle, and after bivouacking at that place for the night, marched to Shippensburgh and Chambersburg. On the road, and at Chambersburg, several Pennsylvania regiments were attached to the brigade, until it comprised six regiments of infantry and a battery of artillery. It was then formed with two other brigades into a division under the command of Major Gen. Dana. The division, 12,000 strong, with three batteries of artillery, was ordered to march, on the 14th of July, to Hagerstown, this brigade being in the advance.

The force bivouacked for the night at Greencastle. Here information was received of the retreat of the rebel army across the Potomac; and in consequence of this and the fact that the thirty days service for which the brigade was enlisted having about expired, General Yates was directed to return with his own regiments to Shippensburg, and there take the cars for New York, via Harrisburgh.

Here let me say for that portion of the brigade, the 5th and 12th regiments, immediately under the charge of Gen. Yates, that the conduct of both officers and men was worthy of the highest praise. The toilsome marches, short rations, exposures in bivouacs, excessive guard duties, etc., etc., were endured with a fortitude and heroism worthy of veteran troops. For the other regiments of the brigade, I would remark that the 4th artillery was at Harrisburg in charge of the fortifications, and the 6th and 84th infantry, at Baltimore, and from all that I have heard, performed their varied duties in a most creditable and faithful manner. The labors devolving upon Gen. Yates and his staff during this campaign, were of the most arduous and exacting nature, and were attended to with the greatest fidelity. The General often spending a large portion of the night as well as day, in satisfying himself that his defences and other arrangements had received the desired attention, and at critical times taking every precaution to prevent surprise and repel attack.

The several regiments of the brigade upon arriving at home, remained on duty, in whole or in part, for some time in consequence of the disturbed state of the city after the riots. In August, upon the occasion of the draft, the whole brigade was ordered to be under arms, and remained on duty until its conclusion. The district assigned to the charge of Gen. Yates was all that part of the city lying south of Grand street, with headquarters at the mayor's office in the city hall.

The annual inspections of the several regiments of this brigade have been duly made, and for the numerical results I would refer you to the accompanying return, showing an aggregate force of 2,958 officers and men.

The inspection of the 4th regiment was made at the city armory, Oct. 21st. Owing to the illness of Col. Teller, Lt. Col. Diehl was in command. The companies were full, two of them being very large. The men were, for the most part well uniformed and equipped, though the sabres were of several different kinds. If possible, I would suggest that the State should replace the old ones by those more serviceable and of newer pattern, and thus give greater uniformity to the appearance of the side arms of the command.

The veteran corps made their usual creditable appearance, but complain exceedingly of the condition of their harness which is utterly unserviceable, obliging them to attach their guns to ordinary drays when ordered to fire salutes. I enclose a copy of a communication upon the subject, received by me from the commandant of the corps, and hope it will meet with the attention it deserves.

In this connection, I would again urge upon the department the great importance of furnishing this regiment, with the requisite guns, harness, &c., for which they have so long applied. Without these their present organization is rendered quite useless.

The 5th regiment, Col. Burger commanding, was inspected at Washington Square, Oct. 20th. Prior to the inspection, Gen. Yates reviewed the regiment which presented full ranks. Most of the arms were found to be in good order, though some were imperfect, and of the old pattern, and are to be exchanged. The general appearance of the men and equipments was very satisfactory. After the inspection was concluded the regiment marched to the city hall, and was presented, by the city, with an elegant stand of colors, and afterwards reviewed by the mayor.

The inspection of the 6th regiment took place October 20th, at the city armory, Colonel Mason being in command. The regiment was but partially uniformed, and most of the uniforms were of the U. S. pattern. Company "E" is very large, composed of excellent men, and was found uniformed and equipped according to the new regimental pattern, in a neat and serviceable manner. Captain Mittnacht, the commandant, deserves great credit for his zeal and perseverance in bringing his company up to its present high standard.

Company "A," Captain Kaiser, inspected but 24 men. Some were found in the company whom I ascertained were not regular members, but brought forward for the occasion. These I ordered out of the ranks. Unless Captain Kaiser is able to recruit his command immediately, as he promises to do, to the requisite standard, I would suggest its consolidation with some other company.

This regiment is about procuring new uniforms, and is being supplied with arms. When properly uniformed and armed it will increase in numbers and discipline.

The 12th regiment, under Colonel Ward, was inspected on the 27th of October, at Washington Square. Major Gen. Sanford, accompanied by his staff, and Brigadier General Yates and staff, were present, and were respectively inspected and found to be armed and equipped according to regulations. Before the 12th regiment was inspected, it was reviewed by the major and brigadier generals.

The inspection of the regiment then followed, and it was found to be in good condition, with a slight gain in numbers since last year.

Companies "E," "H" and "I," have cadet muskets. These should be changed, as it is very desirable, to prevent difficulty in supplying cartridges, and for other reasons, that the arms of each company, of every regiment, should be alike. The uniform adopted by the 12th regiment, and described in my last year's report, is now generally used, and seems very suitable and appropriate. After the inspection I proceeded to the new armory of the regiment, corner 4th street and Broadway, and was shown by Colonel Ward the various improvements in progress, which, when completed, will make it one of the most attractive and serviceable in our city.

The 84th regiment was inspected at their own armory, corner 4th street and Broadway, Colonel Conkling in command. As the regiment was both ununiformed and unarmed, I could only inspect the general appearance of the men. The material of this regiment is excellent, and it needs but a continuance of the energy already displayed by the commandant and his subalterns to give it a foremost place among our militia organizations.

I would say, in conclusion, that the present position of this brigade is highly gratifying. Its numbers have increased, and in consequence of the experience and discipline acquired during the summer's campaign, its efficiency has been greatly promoted.

Hoping that the length of my report will be overlooked, when the important services rendered by the brigade during the year are considered, and that it will meet your approval.

I remain, general, with respect,

Your very obedient servant,

CHAS. TRUMBULL WHITE,

NEW YORK, October 22, 1863.

MAJOR CHAS. TRUMBULL WHITE, Brigade Inspector :

Sir—At the last regimental inspection of the 4th regiment artillery, I had the pleasure of calling your attention to the dilapidated condition of the harness of company G, Veteran Corps. It has been in use for thirty years, and can be no longer used. At our next annual parade, Nov. 25th, we will be obliged to limber our 4 24-lbs. howitzers to carts, before firing the national salute on the Battery. By making this known to the proper authority, you will oblige

Yours respectfully,

REPORT OF MAJOR R. TAYLOR, FOURTH BRIGADE NATIONAL GUARD.

HEADQUARTERS, 4TH BRIGADE, 1ST DIVISION, N. G., S. N. Y.

To the Adjutant General of the State of New York:

SIR—The annual inspection of this brigade took place on the 28th of October. There were present the 11th, 22d, and 69th regiments, the 79th being nominally, still absent in the United States service.

The strength of the several regiments present was the Strength of the brigade.....			2,080

The arms and equipments of the several regiments were in fair condition. Those of the 22d were in unexceptionable order, although they had been used in two short campaigns. Their drill was also perfect. I cannot say as much for the 11th or 69th, as but little attention has been paid of late to drill in either of these regiments.

The line officers of the 11th and 69th, with but few exceptions, do not understand their duties, or, understanding them, have failed to give any evidence of it.

I account for this, partially, by the fact that many of the old officers have gone to the war, and their places have been filled by men more available for any other than military acquirements.

In view of these facts, I recommend that a law be passed requiring an examination to be made of all officers to be elected—those of the line by the field officers of the regiment—and field officers by the brigadier general or brigade inspector of the brigade to which the regiment is attached, and on the certificate of the examiners that the officer elect is competent to fill the post to which he has been elected, the Governor will issue the commission.

This mode would tend to secure good officers for companies and regiments, besides securing uniformity in drill and discipline, and greater efficiency in the military arm of the State.

Several of the companies of the 11th regiment are short of sword bayonets, having lost them—some by carelessness when in the field—others by carrying them home from drill or parade and forgetting to return them.

The practice of carrying home bayonets and equipments has been a source of loss to the State. I recommend, therefore, that a law be passed prohibiting members of companies carrying away from the armory or drill room, arms, parts of arms, uniforms or equipments that are now, or that may be furnished by the State. The members of companies, particularly in cities, should be required to go to and return from their drill rooms or armories, in citizen's dress, as nothing so much detracts from the effectiveness of citizen soldiery or National Guard, as the habit of going to and returning from drill or parade small bodies of men in uniform. The armory should be the depository of uniforms and equipments as well as of arms.

To render this suggestion effective, I recommend that the State cause the armories to be made more commodious and secure than many of them now are in this city. Armory accommodations for the military of this city has not kept pace with their necessity, or the increase of population. That of the 11th regiment in particular, is altogether inadequate, it being small and in a building the lower part of which is used as a rectifying distillery. However pleasant the fumes arising from this process may be to the temporary occupants of the drill room, the danger from fire is great, and the passage way leading to it is so narrow that, in case of fire originating in the building, all the property of the State would be destroyed.

In view of this fact, which illustrates the case of other armories, except the rectifying business, I respectfully recommend that suitable armories be at once provided by the State for each regiment, if possible, with such internal arrangements as will conduce to the comfort of the men when under arms, and with such external ornamentation as will indicate the character of the building and form an attractive feature in the architectural adornments of a great and opulent city.

The operations of this brigade since the annual inspection of 1862, were confined to the usual routine of drill during the winter and spring, and in responding to the orders from general headquarters in June, to march to Pennsylvania in aid of the government to protect that State from the ravages of General Lee's rebel army, which had temporarily invaded it. After a month's duty there, it returned in July to perform another month of duty in aid of the authorities in maintaining order during the completion of the draft, which had been interrupted by a portion of the people who made it the occasion of a most disgraceful riot, requiring the strong arm of military power for its suppression.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Your obd't servant,

R. TAYLOR,

Major Inspector 4th Brigade.

REPORT OF MAJOR G. F. VON BECK, EIGHTH BRIGADE, NATIONAL GUARD.

RONDOUT, November 16, 1863.

To the Adjutant General of the State of New York :

GENERAL—Complying with my duties, I hereby give my report, showing the result of the annual inspection of the 8th brigade, in the 3d division, N. Y. S. M. or N. G.

The 20th regiment is in the field since '61 and '62—it left a flank company of cavalry—light dragoons—they are completely armed, uniformed and equipped according to law, and mounted, the most at their private expense; they desire to be supplied by the State, and a requisition will come before you through the proper authority.

The 21st regiment (which, with the above, forms the 8th brigade) is a regiment of light artillery; they have one six-pounder brass cannon, the other was partly destroyed by fire last spring, and the remainder disposed of, and as I learned for the benefit of the State; their firearms, with the exception of Co.'s A and G, are the old flint muskets altered to percussion locks, and ought to be exchanged for better muskets, as they are actually unfit for service; the other equipments and the uniforms are quite good.

In the manual of arms, evolutions and marching, the men are quite efficient.

With due respect,

Your ob't servant,

G. F. VON BECK,

Brigade Inspector, 8th Brigade.

REPORT OF DARIUS ALLEN, BRIGADIER GENERAL
TENTH BRIGADE, NATIONAL GUARD.

HEADQUARTERS, 10TH BRIGADE, 3D DIVISION, N. Y. N. G., }
TROY, December 28th, 1863. }

HONORABLE JOHN T. SPRAGUE, Adjutant General :

DEAR SIR—In obedience to paragraph 527, of the general regulations; the undersigned has the honor to report: That he has not received from the commandants of regiments of this brigade the reports contemplated in said paragraph. That the 24th regiment has made several parades during the year, which was very creditable to the regiment and the officers in command; also, as to numbers and discipline. The 24th and 30th regiments were not ordered for inspection and review, for the reason that they had no arms and equipments in time fit for service, as many of the arms had been lent to volunteer regiments recruiting in the vicinity, which were used for guard duty, and rendered entirely worthless, but were duly inspected by companies.

The 24th regiment is commanded by Hon. Isaac McConihe, jr., an efficient officer. He has lately drawn four hundred new Springfield muskets and equipments for the regiment, and is about reorganizing the same, in order, if possible, to place it upon a war footing. The 30th regiment have not paraded as a regiment for the last year, for the reason that their uniform, arms and equipments were in a bad condition, and many of their officers and men have volunteered for the war. This is also the case with many of the officers and men of the 24th regiment. Under general order No. 24 of the Commander-in-Chief of June 19th, 1863, for a more effective organization of the National Guard of the State of New York, the 10th brigade is divided into five regimental districts, as follows: three in Rensselaer and two in Washington counties. The first, in Rensselaer, comprises the 24th regiment, which has nine organized companies; the second district has six newly organized companies, numbering 320 effective men, which entitles them to an organization, and is under the command of Col. Schuyler Greenman, an active officer. The third district has two company organizations, and is commanded by Col. Nicholas S. Miller. The first Assembly district, Washington county, has six organized companies, and is commanded by Col. Wm. P. Robertson, and is designated as the 30th regiment.

The second district has four newly organized companies, numbering 201 effective men, and is under the command of Col. Lemon Burns, a very able, efficient and experienced officer, and will soon have the requisite number to entitle it to an organization.

All of the newly organized companies of the 10th brigade have elected to have their uniforms and equipments furnished at the expense of the State, as provided in paragraph 35, chapter 477 of the Laws of 1862. It will be recollected that the above entitled act provides that all companies organized under the provision of said act may elect, at the time of their organization, to have their uniforms and equipments furnished at the expense of the State, under certain conditions. And it is to be regretted that the Legislature of 1862, should have deemed it necessary to so far suspend the said act, as to prevent the collections of any funds for the purpose of purchasing the uniforms, arms and equipments, or for field or camp duty, as provided for under said act, and which only indicates that it was their determination to destroy, or at least cripple the whole National Guard of the State; and it would seem as if the Legislature had entirely forgotten the valuable services rendered by the militia of this State during this wicked rebellion; and it is to be hoped that the present Legislature will appropriate sufficient means to place the National Guard of the State of New York upon a war footing, with uniforms and equipments, as provided for under said act.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

DARIUS ALLEN,

Brig. Gen. Com. 10th Brigade, N. G.

Adjutant General JOHN T. SPRAGUE, Albany, N. Y. :

GENERAL—In compliance with statute and regulations, I have the honor to report the result of the last annual inspection of this brigade ordered by Brigadier General Jesse C. Smith.

The brigade was inspected on the 28th October, 1863. The 23d regiment, under the command of Colonel Calvin E. Pratt, had present at inspection 370 officers and privates—absent, 165 officers and privates; total, 535. This, as compared with my previous annual report, shows a decrease of 71 present, and a decrease of 32 in the members of the regiment. The number of absentees, as compared with last year, is in excess 39.

The 47th regiment, under command of its colonel, Jeremiah V. Meserole, inspected 347 officers and privates—absent, 91 officers and privates; total, 438. Compared with previous report, this shows a decrease of 15 present, increase of 27 absentees, and an increase of 12 in the total of the regiment.

The 52d regiment, Colonel Matthias W. Cole, inspected 178 officers and privates—reported absent, 65 officers and privates; total, 243. As this regiment was not inspected last year, being then but newly organized and without uniforms and equipments, of course no comparison of inspection can be made. Over 100 men of this regiment joined the United States volunteer regiments. Companies C, F and H were not present or represented at inspection.

The 56th regiment, under command of Colonel John Q. Adams, inspected 319 officers and privates—absent, 100 officers and privates; total, 419. This regiment also, like the 52d regiment, and for the same reasons, was not inspected last year; but the colonel there informed me, as appears by my last annual report, that the strength of the regiment then in the total was 380 officers and privates, thus showing an increase in the total strength of 39.

Since my last report the 11th brigade has been in active service for the United States and the county. As regimental commanders have made direct detailed reports of United States service rendered by their regiments to general headquarters, in compliance with orders, I will not enter into minute particulars, but simply refer in general terms to the conduct of the brigade in the late campaign.

On the 17th of June last orders were received from the commander-in-chief to dispatch forthwith the regiments of the brigade to Harrisburg, Pa., to serve for the emergency. After the regiments had been forwarded, General Smith and staff followed, in compliance with orders, and reported to General Couch at Harrisburg. General Couch directed the general and staff to report for duty to General Wm. Hall, commanding Fort Washington, opposite Harrisburg. General Smith, by direction of General Hall, assumed command of his brigade, and hastened the work of digging trenches, felling trees and throwing up earthworks.

June 27th—In consequence of the illness of General Hall, the entire command of Fort Washington devolved on General Smith.

June 28th—General Smith was informed, by orders of General Couch, that General W. F. Smith, brigadier general of volunteers and major in the regular army, would have the command of the troops in and about Fort Washington. From this officer we received all that courtesy and gentlemanly attention that officers of the regular army are, with rare exceptions, apt to display towards the militia.

July 1st—It having been reported that the enemy were retreating, orders were received to move in light marching order. Then commenced those terrible marches and counter-marches from Harrisburg to Monocacy Junction, Md. The troops day and night were drenched to the skin; it stormed incessantly. The members of the brigade suffered from cold; they were without overcoats and blankets, for they had been directed by the commanding general to leave them and they would be forwarded. This was not done until the marches were nearly over. The men tramped through the mud and over the wearisome mountains without shelter, without food, since from some unaccountable reason the men received only one third of the rations due them. Veteran soldiers of two years' regiments, discharged, that were with us, state that they never experienced hardships so severe as those of this campaign during their service. So to the citizen soldiers too much praise cannot be awarded.

July 19th—We reached home, and by the order of the Governor and Sheriff were retained in service to suppress riots; this service continued 40 days.

I think it desirable that the regiments should be put on a war footing while they are liable to be called upon to do active service. Heretofore when the militia have been called, their services were needed at once. The regiments were delayed in procuring their outfit from the proper officials and distributing and fitting them, thus valuable time was lost when the regiments should have been in the field; and the men, not considering or understanding the causes of delay, after waiting day after day, would become discouraged, thinking their services were held lightly in esteem. Therefore I would recommend that during the war all equipments necessary for an active campaign be issued to the different regiments, and that they should be inspected at least every two months by the commandants of their respective companies, who should be held responsible for any loss that should arise through his neglect. I am aware that this plan would cause some inconvenience, but no loss; for if the regiments were not called into service the articles issued could be returned at the close of the war; and on the other hand if the service of the militia was needed, the regiments would be able to march on the day of the reception of orders, and by this might be of incalculable good.

Laws were made last year giving the militia homes in the shape of armories, where the manual of arms could be taught. What is now needed by our city militia is a parade ground. Our general devoted a whole day endeavoring to find within a reasonable distance from the city, a field sufficiently large to move his command. The most accessible place found is known as Prospect park parade, a field hardly large enough for a regiment to practice, much less four regiments together. If it is expected that our militia should be effective and perfect in drill and discipline, they certainly should be afforded a place adequately large for field manoeuvres. At present, to obtain a space large enough for a brigade parade, it is necessary to go miles from the city.

The following changes are to be noticed: The 23d regiment has lost the services, by resignation, of Col. Wm. Everdell, Jr., a soldier and a gentleman. By this resignation, the brigade has lost a valuable officer.

The regiment has been fortunate in securing the services of Col. C. E. Pratt, late brigadier general of volunteers.

D. M. Talmage resigned the colonelcy of the 55th. The place has been ably filled by Col. John Q. Adams, its late lieutenant colonel.

I regret to say, that with the exception of companies A, B, and C, 23d regiment, no commandants of companies or regimental adjutants made the inspection returns in a proper manner.

Majer general, H. B. Duryea and staff, were present at inspection and reviewed the brigade.

Brig. Gen. J. C. Smith and staff inspected with the brigade.

I am General, very respectfully your obd't servant,

BENJAMIN HASKELL,

REPORT OF BRIG. GENERAL J. C. SMITH, ELEVENTH BRIGADE NATIONAL GUARD.

HEADQUARTERS, 11TH BRIGADE, N. G., S. N. Y., }
BROOKLYN, December 1st, 1863. }

Adjutant General SPRAGUE:

GENERAL—The commandants of regiments in this brigade have not made to me the report required by section 527 of General Regulations.

In the month of May last, three brigade drills of officers were had, at which instructions in the evolutions of the line; by regiments, were given.

In the latter part of that month, the 23d regiment had a day of practice in evolutions of the line in the field. And in the fore part of the month of June, the 56th regiment had a day of field practice. The 47th regiment had in like manner ordered a parade and drill for a day in the latter part of June, and a day of practice in the field for the four regiments of the brigade was contemplated for the month of June or September. But the order of the Commander-in-chief on the 15th of June last, for all these regiments to go into the service of the United States for the defence of the State of Pennsylvania, prevented the practice of the 47th and of the Brigade in the field at home.

The 23d, 52d and 56th regiments of this brigade were on duty in Pennsylvania, and the 47th in Virginia, until their return to the State about the 20th of July last. The details of that campaign, in which myself and staff were also engaged, have been furnished to the Commander-in-chief pursuant to orders. Upon the return of the several regiments, they were at once placed on duty by the Commander-in-chief and by the civil authorities of the metropolitan district and the sheriff of Kings county, for the protection of the peace of the county, and continued on duty with the exception of the time from July 29th to August 17th, until the 8th day of September last.

This latter duty which, though not arduous was performed with great sacrifice to the business employments of the officers and members of the brigade, and yet with promptness and with great credit to the organization of the National Guard.

On the 28th of October last, the several regiments of the brigade were, for the first time since their organization, brought together for the annual parade for the purpose of discipline, inspection and review. The numbers of the several regiments in uniform were small in consequence of the destruction of many of their uniforms while in the service of the General Government.

The command was reviewed by Major General Duryea, of the 2d division, and during the inspection were exercised by the commandants of regiments in evolutions of the line.

Very respectfully,

J. C. SMITH,

REPORT OF COLONEL E. A. BROWN, COMMANDING THIRTEENTH BRIGADE, NATIONAL GUARD.

HEADQUARTERS, 13TH BRIG., 5TH DIV., N. G., S. N. Y. }
MINAVILLE, November 10th, 1863. }

Brigadier General J. T. SPRAGUE, Adjutant General :

GENERAL—The annual report of the payments of the several regiments now being reinforced to form a new brigade, will be handed to you by the several commandants.

The 13th brigade is composed of the 40th regiment, which is Montgomery county; the 26th regiment, which is Fulton and Hamilton counties; the 29th regiment is Assembly district No. 1, Saratoga county; the new regiment, which we propose calling the 76th, is Assembly district No. 2, Saratoga county, under the command respectively of Lieut. Col. J. J. Radliff, 26th regiment, (late) now acting commandant of 40th.

Col. Timothy W. Miller, 26th regiment.

Col. Calvin T. Peek, 29th regiment.

Maj. Alonzo Welch, late of 29th, now acting commandant of district 2.

There have been no parades ordered in the brigade this year, for two, among other more prominent reasons: First, the breaking up entirely of old organizations and severing of the component parts. Second, the late date at which the new organization was authorized.

The new organizations are proceeding, and the 26th and 40th regiments have had several new companies organized and others organizing; the 29th will report progress. The new regiment in 2d Assembly district, Saratoga, has enlistment papers circulating by those engaged in organizing, and we anticipate, notwithstanding all the embarrassing circumstances that surround the organization of the National Guard, to have a full brigade at an early day prepared for any emergency—we mean a minimum brigade, for we are persuaded until the people adopt the guard as their institution and foster it as such, we labor in vain.

The exemptions of the guard should be extended to fully equal, if not surpass, those of the fire department, for modern improvements in hydrants and fire apparatus, have lessened their labors, which are at home, and mostly out of business hours, while the soldiers' is away from home, at great expense of time and money, in no other but business hours. The fireman works for the benefit of insurance offices, the soldier works for the State. Persons may insure against fire, but cannot insure against war, insurrection or invasion. The argument might be extended ad infinitum, in favor of the Guard, but no doubt these things are already apparent to your mind.

I am, very respectfully, General,

Your ob't servant,

ELIAS A. BROWN,

REPORT OF MAJOR JAMES L. GILBERT, TWENTY-SECOND BRIGADE NATIONAL GUARD.

OFFICE OF THE BRIGADE INSPECTOR
OF THE 22D BRIGADE N. G., N. Y. S.
GILBERTSVILLE, OTSEGO Co., Nov. 27, 1863. }

To the Adjutant General of the State of New York :

In compliance with paragraph 773 of general regulations, I beg leave to furnish the following report for the 22d brigade National Guard :

The late order of the Commander-in-chief of the State of New York in making brigade districts conform to senatorial districts, relieves me from the inspectorship of the 19th brigade, and I have therefore reported myself for duty to Brig. Gen. Z. C. Priest, commandant of 22d brigade.

As no brigade or regimental drill or reviews have been ordered for the year 1863, I could not be expected to know the condition of the forces attached to this brigade; neither could I report the condition of the arms and military property in the respective regiments any better than to refer you to reports of former brigade inspectors now on file in the Adjutant General's office. The present bounds of this 22d brigade, is made up of parts of the old 12th, 17th, 18th and 19th brigades, and I have to say will make the duties of the inspector less arduous; for while the former 19th embraced a territory of fifty miles by seventy, the present will range nearer twenty by fifty. I find we have in the bounds of this brigade three regiments organized—none of them however full—and they are the old 38th, 39th, and 41st.

The 38th régiment, commanded by Col. Wm. Coperall, of Ohio, Herkimer county, has five companies, as follows :

Company C,	Captain Sanford Getman,	numbering	34 men.
D,	do Jacob Conner,	do	27 men.
E,	do John G. Gilliland,	do	15 men.
F,	do Jas. W. Hardenburgh,	do	20 men.
G,	do Lawrence G. Reno,	do	35 men.

---

The 39th regiment, commanded by Lieut. Col. Myron I. Hubbard, of Westford, Otsego county, has also five companies, as follows:

Company A,	Captain William W. Babcock,	numbering	37 men.
C,	do Amos L. Swan,	do	37 men.
F,	do Chester Fellows,	do	37 men.
G,	do Monroe Wilcox,	do	37 men.
R,	do David Wheeler,	do	56 men.
			<hr/>
			204
			<hr/> <hr/>

The 41st regiment, commanded by Col. Chester Card, of Pittsfield, Otsego county, has four companies, as follows:

Company A,	Captain George F. White,	numbering	48 men.
B,	do Augustus F. Wing,	do	34 men.
D,	do Charles P. Root,	do	33 men.
E,	do John M. Brown,	do	33 men.
			<hr/>
			148

In former years I have invariably reported the arms of our brigade unfit for service. I have now, however, to report Capt. Root's company of the 41st regiment, supplied with Enfield rifles, fit for service. This company has been on duty the last few months acting as guard to the provost marshal of this congressional district.

The late law authorizing drill rooms to be rented at the expense of company districts, I regard just the thing needed, and I believe will not fail to be regarded hereafter as indispensable in the education of the citizen soldier; and how infinitely better than the old system of keeping arms in armories many miles away, and where the soldier could have them safe from two to five days in the year.

The order of the Inspector General of Nov. 10, to me as inspector of the 19th brigade, I have forwarded to Major Joseph Julliand, 2d., of Bainbridge, Chenango county, (former inspector of the 12th brigade,) he being the only inspector now residing in the bounds of that senatorial district, and so becoming acting brigade inspector thereof, with a request that he report therefrom without delay. Hoping that the strong arm of the nation will soon be found sufficient to crush out the wicked rebellion now raging in the south, I subscribe myself with due respect, your obedient servant,

JAMES L. GILBERT,

REPORTS OF DIVISION COMMANDERS.

REPORT OF MAJOR GENERAL SANDFORD, FIRST DIVISION, N. Y. S. N. G.

HEADQUARTERS FIRST DIVISION, N. Y. S. N. G. }
 NEW YORK, December 30, 1863. }

Brigadier General JOHN T. SPRAGUE, Adjutant General of the State of New York :

General—During the present year, 1863, the First Division has performed a large amount of duty. In addition to the usual parades and drills, the reception of regiments returned from the war, and funeral honors to our noble sons who have fallen upon the battle-fields of our country, in defence of the Union, the division has been again called to the field, and upon its return has been engaged in the suppression of riots at home.

On the 16th of June last, I received orders of that date from the Commander-in-chief (a copy whereof is annexed), directing me to send as many regiments as possible to Harrisburgh, to assist in repelling the invasion of Pennsylvania by the Rebels.

The destination of some of these regiments was changed, by request of the War Department, to Baltimore.

The following regiments of this division were sent forward by me, pursuant to these orders, viz :

June 17..	7th	regiment,	800	men,	for	Baltimore.
18..	8th	do	350	do	Harrisburgh.
	11th	do	850	do	do
	71st	do	650	do	do
19..	5th	do	900	do	do
	12th	do	700	do	do
	22d	do	600	do	do
	37th	do	800	do	do
20..	4th	do	500	do	do
22..	6th	do	650	do	Baltimore.
	69th	do	700	do	do
24..	55th	do	350	do	do
July 3..	84th	do	400	do	do

These regiments were divided into three brigades, and placed under the command of Brigadier Generals Hall, Ewen and Yates, whose reports of their operations during their absence I have the honor to enclose, and to which I respectfully refer.

I have also the honor to enclose reports from the commandants of several of these regiments, which exhibit the details of their employment and services during their absence.

The readiness and alacrity with which these regiments departed to assist our sister State in the hour of danger, is evidenced by the fact that most of our New York regiments arrived at Harrisburgh before a single regiment reached there from Philadelphia, and were immediately sent forward to cover all the approaches to that city, and they effectually prevented the further advance of the Rebel army.

During the absence of all these regiments of my division, on the 13th of July last, a riot of the most serious character occurred (in consequence of the commencement of the U. S. draft), which for three or four days was more disgraceful in its character and more serious in its consequences than any before known in our city, and which could not have lasted twelve hours, if one third of our regiments had been at home at its commencement.

Upon the first alarm, upon the requisition of his honor the mayor, the whole of the division remaining in the city was ordered on duty, but the absence of over 8,000 men at the seat of war, had left me with so small a force, that my means were entirely inadequate to the magnitude of the occasion.

In this emergency, Major General Wool, commanding the U. S. Department of the East, in a most liberal spirit, immediately proffered the aid of the U. S. detachments in the harbor, and directed them to report to me for duty. The following is a copy of his orders :

HEADQUARTERS DEPARTMENT OF THE EAST, }
NEW YORK, July 13, 1863. }

SPECIAL ORDERS.

All the troops called out for the protection of the city are placed under the command of Major Gen. Sandford, whose orders they will implicitly obey.

By command of Major General WOOL.

C. T. CHRISTENSEN, Ass't Adjutant General.

With the remnant of the division and the first of these reinforcements from Gen. Wool, detachments were sent to all parts of the city, and the rioters were everywhere beaten and dispersed.

The north and west side of the city was effectually cleared of rioters, by detachments sent by me from the arsenal. In Broadway, 42d street, 27th, 28th, 29th, 30th, 31st, and 32d streets, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, and Tenth avenues, mobs were attacked, and in every instance defeated or dispersed. No blank cartridges were issued to or used by any of the troops under my orders. The gas works in 18th and 19th streets, and also, upon the East River, Webb's shipyards and the various manufactories threatened by the rioters, were fully protected, and numerous fires in buildings occupied by colored people and others obnoxious to the mob, were extinguished by the firemen after the rioters were dispersed.

In these encounters I regret to report that Major Fearing, of my staff, was very seriously wounded, while gallantly leading a charge upon the mob in 42d street, and one private soldier was killed, and 22 officers and men dangerously, and 53 slightly wounded, at the storming of the barricades erected by the rioters in 29th street, and in other conflicts which followed.

The whole of the force remaining with me at the arsenal was kept on duty day and night during the whole period, and 26 detachments, at different times, were sent out to disperse the rioters and protect private and public property.

This division has always been so organized as to be ready upon any emergency to effectually suppress all riots or insurrections, and the citizens of New York know that they can safely repose under its protection. The absence of the thirteen regiments above mentioned, and of six regiments of the division which volunteered for the war, alone gave temporary success to the rioters.

As soon as our regiments could be recalled, they returned to the city, and the rioters were then entirely dispersed; but most of the regiments were kept on duty during the residue of the month of July, and some of them until the middle of August.

On the 17th of August last, I received requisitions from the mayor of the city and the police commissioners, in apprehension of a riot on the renewal of the draft, which was appointed to take place in this city on the 19th of August last, requesting me to call out the First Division, to aid the civil authorities in pre-serving the peace and suppressing any tumult, riot, or insurrection during the draft.

In pursuance of these requisitions, the whole division was called out, and stationed by regiments and detachments in various parts of the city, from the High Bridge to the Battery, and was kept on duty until the 5th of September, and a small detachment from each regiment until the 15th of September.

In consequence of this precaution, the draft proceeded without any interruption or breach of the peace.

A division parade took place on the first day of October last, by request of the common council of the city, for the purpose of uniting in the reception of Rear-Admiral Lesoffsky and his officers of the Russian fleet, upon their first visit to the harbor of New York.

In consequence of the large amount of duty performed by the division during the year, the usual division parade upon the 25th of November was omitted.

The ordinary inspection parades of the several regiments and brigades took place as usual, of which returns have been heretofore transmitted to your office.

I have the honor to be,

Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

CHAS. W. SANDFORD,

Major General.

REPORT OF CAMPAIGN IN PENNSYLVANIA OF MAJOR GENERAL H. B. DURYEA, COMMANDING SECOND DI-VISION NEW YORK STATE NATIONAL GUARD.

HEADQUARTERS SECOND DIVISION N. G. S. N. Y. }
BROOKLYN, December 20th, 1863. }

To Adjutant General SPRAGUE :

General—I have the honor to report that the division of National Guards under my command responded with great promptitude to the call made by his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in June last, for special service upon the occasion of the invasion of the State of Pennsylvania by General Lee; that the 13th, 17th, 18th, 23d, 28th, 47th, 52d and 56th regiments, belonging to this division, left the State for thirty days' service; and that the 70th regiment was ordered for duty and held in readiness until the occurrence of the riots in New York city, which led to a countermand of the orders and a call for service in the city of Brooklyn.

At this time, June, 1863, the 14th regiment (Brooklyn) and the 19th regiment (Orange county), belonging to this division, were in the service of the United States; the former for the war and the latter as nine months' volunteers.

The call upon our National Guards was met with alacrity and good-will, although in many cases it involved great pecuniary loss, and in some instances much anxiety and distress, to those who were obliged on short notice to leave their business and families.

We know that the men sent from this State would work, march, and fight, and we know that they were pretty well disciplined and drilled, and were incapable of any act of cowardice which would bring dishonor upon themselves or their country. That they were not veteran troops was well known; but in the ranks were many men who had seen service, and the force as a whole was to be relied upon just as far as any force of the same number in the same circumstances.

It was during this campaign that the anti-draft riots in New York took place. Our National Guard regiments being nearly all absent from the 1st and 2d divisions of this State, but a small force could be mustered to preserve public order.

Immediately upon the outbreak in New York, the sheriff of Kings county and the Police Commissioners called the whole of the 2d division into service, and the Commander-in-Chief ordered a guard for our State arsenal in Brooklyn. In pursuance of these orders I directed the 70th regiment to guard the arsenal, and it continued to perform that duty from the 14th July until the 18th September with marked fidelity, good conduct and vigilance. I also directed the 15th and 16th regiments to report for duty at Brooklyn, and both regiments promptly responded to the call; but a riot having occurred in Queens county, I was induced, at the request of the local authorities, to countermand the orders to the 15th regiment and return that regiment for duty in Queens county. The 16th regiment continued on duty in Brooklyn until the 20th July, when our Brooklyn regiments having arrived home, I allowed the 16th to dismiss. While in Brooklyn the regiment rendered valuable services and contributed much by its presence and excellent deportment to the preservation of public order. I also called into service a number of members of the regiments then out of the State, who had sent substitutes with their regiments, and these were of great use in protecting our armories and placing guards at exposed points. A riot having occurred at the Atlantic dock, accompanied by the burning of several steam elevators, I sent a detachment of these members of the 13th and 23d regiments, accompanied by artillery, under the command of Captain Thorn, 13th regiment to prevent further manifestations of riot and protect property, in which object they were successful.

The 13th and 28th regiments and 23d, 47th, 52d and 56th regiments returned to Brooklyn on the 19th July, and by direction of General Canby, at the request of the Commander-in-Chief, reported to me for orders, and were immediately placed on duty and continued to serve until the 31st July, from which time guards were continued at the arsenal and armories until the 18th August, when by order of the Police Commissioners the whole force in the county of Kings was again called into service and kept on duty until the 7th day of September, from which time until the 18th September guards were kept at the arsenal and armories in the city of Brooklyn.

All the regiments were faithful and diligent in the discharge of their very laborious and important services during this long period, and received the thanks of the civil authorities for their prompt response to the call and excellent conduct while in the performance of duty; and they were well deserving of this tribute. The spirit of riotous resistance to law had in the city of New York taken on its extreme forms of murder, arson and theft, and the community as well as the public authorities saw that safety alone could be secured by an armed force sufficient to preserve the public order.

In consideration of the patriotic conduct of our Brooklyn regiments during the invasion of Pennsylvania, as well as their service upon the call of the civil authorities, the Common Council of Brooklyn determined to relieve them from the operation of the draft by advancing to such of their members as should be drawn the sum necessary to pay their commutation money, and to apply to the Legislature for authority to sanction this action. I sincerely trust that this action of the Common Council may meet the approval of the Legislature. It is in every respect just, and but a proper public acknowledgment of service rendered.

Indeed it so happened that by reason of the inquiry put from the Adjutant General's office as to what number of men we could send for six months upon condition of an exemption from the draft having been followed, as it was, by an immediate order for duty in Pennsylvania, it was very generally understood by our men that one of the terms of the duty was exemption from the draft; and although it was found, after the service was rendered, that this was not so and had not been so intended, yet as the service had been rendered on this supposition, it now seems eminently proper that the pledge, as understood, should be kept as far as it is possible to keep it through the action of the city and State authorities, although no such pledge was made by the General Government, nor intended to be made by the State.

To secure a ready response to future calls, it is of the highest importance that the public faith to the soldier should not only be kept, but seem to him to be kept.

I am, General, yours very truly,

(Signed) H. B. DURYEA,

Major General Commanding 2d Div. N. Y. S. M.

REPORT OF MAJOR-GENERAL H. B. DURYEA, COMMAND-ING SECOND DIVISION, N. Y. S. N. G., OF SERVICE
OF THAT DIVISION DURING RIOTS IN NEW YORK CITY IN JULY.

HEADQUARTERS SECOND DIVISION, N. Y. S. M., }
BROOKLYN, January 20th, 1864. }

General JOHN T. SPRAGUE,

Adjutant-General of the State of New York :

Sir—In pursuance of orders from the Commander-in-Chief to report in detail the services rendered by the forces under my command on the occasion of the riots in New York in July last, I have the honor to report, that on the 14th day of July last I received a requisition from the sheriff of Kings county, reciting that there was apprehension of imminent danger of riot in the county of Kings, and directing me, in pursuance of the law, to order out, in aid of the civil authorities in Kings county, the military forces under my command. This was the second day of the riots in New York city, and a disturbance was anticipated in Brooklyn.

In pursuance of this requisition I called into service the only military force then in the city, viz: the 70th regiment, Colonel Cropley commanding, directing the regiment to assemble forthwith at the State arsenal in Brooklyn.

On the same day I received orders from his Excellency, through the Inspector-General, to post a guard at the State arsenal in Brooklyn, and to send a regiment to New York city to report to Major-General Sandford, and I immediately issued orders to the sixth brigade, General Hamilton, consisting of the 15th and 16th regiments, from Queens and Suffolk counties, to assemble forthwith and proceed to the State arsenal, Brooklyn, preparatory to marching to the city of New York.

On the morning of the 15th July, General Hamilton reported to me that a riot had occurred in Queens county, which made it desirable, in his judgment and that of the civil authorities in that county, that the 15th regiment should remain there for duty; and on the same day I reported these facts to his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, personally, and received his verbal orders countermanding the orders to send a regiment to the city of New York, and approving of granting permission to the 15th regiment to remain in Queens county, and of the retention of the residue of the force for the protection of Brooklyn and Kings county.

At this time the 13th, 14th and 28th regiments, 5th brigade, General P. S. Croke, were in the service of the United States; the 14th as volunteers for the war, and the 13th and 28th under General Croke in Pennsylvania. The other Brooklyn brigade, the 11th, General J. C. Smith, composed of the 23d, 47th, 52d and 56th regiments, was also in the service of the United States; the 23d, 52d and 56th, under General Smith, being in Pennsylvania, and the 47th near Alexandria, Virginia.

At this time, also, the whole of the 7th brigade belonging to this division, was in the service of the United States; the 17th and 18th regiments being on duty at Baltimore, and the 19th being organized as a volunteer regiment for nine months service, and at or near Harper's Ferry. This left at my command only the 70th regiment, and the 16th, a portion of which reported for duty. Feeling that the force at my disposal was insufficient for the suppression of a serious disturbance in the city of Brooklyn, I called into service such members of the National Guard, in Brooklyn, as had sent substitutes with their regiments to the seat of war, and they promptly responded to the call. Capt. R. V. W. Thorne, 13th regiment, took command, by my direction, of a portion of these forces, assisted by Captains Washburn and Atwater of the 28d regiment, and a similar force, composed of members of the 47th regiment, was organized under Lieutenant Brown.

These organizations were also in part filled by volunteers from the citizens, and were of the greatest value at this critical period. A call was also made for volunteers from the exempt members of regiments and from citizens, and a regiment was provisionally organized, composed of these, under the command of Colonel A. M. Wood, which subsequently received the approbation of his Excellency.

I had immediately upon the receipt of the requisition of the sheriff, taken measures to provide the forces under my command with ammunition; and the artillery, upon which it was obvious that our principal reliance must be placed, was got in readiness for instant service.

On the 15th day of July the Police Commissioners passed a resolution directing me to call out and muster the forces under my command to aid the civil authorities in putting down and suppressing all riots, &c., and to preserve the public tranquillity in the city of Brooklyn. Our entire available force had already been put on duty. The 70th regiment was posted at the arsenal, and the 16th and the forces under Captain Thorne, held the city armory. Lieutenant Brown, of the 47th regiment, with members of that regiment, aided by citizens, kept guard at the armory of the 47th regiment (Eastern District of Brooklyn); and the arms from all the other armories were removed to the arsenal and other safe places.

The riot in New York city, which commenced on the 13th July, had in the meantime continued, and that city was the scene of conflict between the public authorities and the rioters; and the spirit of riot seemed to extend over all the adjacent region, filling the citizens of Brooklyn and the neighboring villages with great alarm, and causing constant demands upon the public authorities for special protection, which could not be given with the limited force under the control of the authorities.

By the advice, as was understood, of his Excellency, and also of the local authorities, the citizens began to form associations for local protection and mutual defence; and some of these associations of citizens were provided with arms by orders of his Excellency.

Other citizens were made special deputies by the sheriff, and the police commissioners appointed many special policemen, and regular patrols were established by night in many parts of the city of Brooklyn and the adjacent towns. As yet there had been no open manifestations of violence in Brooklyn, although these were momentarily expected, and the regular and special civil force and the military, were held in constant readiness for an outbreak. Large bodies of men, it was reported, had assembled in Hamilton avenue, near the Atlantic dock, and rumors of intended attacks upon public and private property which were flying about the city, caused many of the citizens to leave for places of presumed greater safety, and the general excitement was constantly increasing. On the night of the 15th of July, a mob assembled in the vicinity of the Atlantic dock and forcing an entrance, set on fire two grain elevators which were consumed. The mayor and police proceeded to the Atlantic dock and the mob dispersed without much, if any, resistance; but the persons who had fired the elevators had escaped and were unknown. The military force under Capt. Thorne, was under arms ready to aid the civil authorities, but their services were not required. It was anticipated that the incendiarism at the Atlantic dock would be followed by further attacks in that quarter, and upon the application of the president of that company and by direction of the sheriff, a force was got in readiness for its protection, consisting of an artillery detachment from the 70th regiment, under the command of Major Smith, and infantry from the city armory, under Capt. Thorne—which force was sent on the night of the 16th of July, by water, to the Atlantic dock. Upon its arrival a considerable number of persons were found assembled for some purpose, but no attack was made on the military force, nor was there any attempt made to destroy property. From this time until the 31st of July, a guard was regularly kept at the Atlantic dock, supplied at times from this command, and at other times from the 74th regiment N. G. of Buffalo, by order of the United States military commandant in New York.

The riots in New York continued on the 15th, 16th and 17th of July, and the intense excitement of our citizens naturally arising from the excesses in New York city, was augmented by reports, credited at the time, of the existence of large organizations of men in various parts of the city of Brooklyn, provided with arms, and determined to resist the execution of the conscription law not only, but to burn and destroy property, and to maltreat and murder obnoxious persons. The existence of such organizations has never been established by legal evidence, that I am aware of; but the alleged revelation of the contemplated action of such bodies was calculated to produce and continue the apprehensions of the citizens and authorities for the peace and safety of the city; and perhaps no just conception of the necessity or propriety of the preparations to guard against a riot can be formed without taking into account this element of disquietude and alarm.

On the morning of the 19th of July, Brigadier General Crooke arrived in Brooklyn with the 13th and 28th regiments N. G. These regiments were directed by General Canby, U. S. commandant in New York, by request of his Excellency, to report to me for orders. On the afternoon of the same day, Brig. Gen. Smith arrived in this city with the 23d, 52d, and 56th regiments, and the 47th regiment arrived shortly after, all being directed by Gen. Canby to report to me; and these officers and regiments were immediately directed by me, after a proper dismissal for rest, to perform duty under the calls of the civil authorities; and they were continued on duty until the 31st day of July, when they were dismissed, with the exception of the necessary guards for the arsenal and regimental armories, by the orders of the sheriff and police commissioners. During this period, from the 20th to the 30th July inclusive, the troops were kept on duty during stated hours, and were ordered to so assemble and dismiss daily, that a sufficient force was always held in hand to check disturbance until the residue could be assembled. Signals were arranged for a prompt assembly of the whole force if needed—and strong guards were posted at night at the arsenal and armories and other important points. Apprehensions of an attempt to destroy property having been felt in one of the towns of Kings county, a cavalry force was placed on duty for its security, and in every respect the design was carried out without making the service too oppressive upon the troops to give entire security to life and property. In the meantime the riot in New York had been suppressed. The return of the regiments from the first and second divisions had given the authorities additional means of preserving the peace, and contributed largely to the restoration of a sense of security among the citizens. Upon the return of our Brooklyn regiments, I dismissed the 16th regiment, Col. Wagstaff, with the approbation of the civil authorities. The excellent behavior of the command, and the prompt and resolute conduct of the colonel and his officers, entitle both officers and men to a special acknowledgment of the value of their services. By the direction of the police commissioners, and with the approbation of his Excellency, from July 31 to August 18, a guard was kept at the armories of the 23d, 47th, and 56th regiments, by these regiments respectively. The 70th regiment was posted at the arsenal, and the 28th regiment had charge of the city armory until relieved on the 16th of August by the 13th regiment.

On the 17th of August, I received a requisition from the police commissioners, to call out the division of militia under my command, to aid the civil authorities in preserving the peace and suppressing any tumult, riot, or insurrection in the city of Brooklyn. This requisition was made in view of the commencement of drafting in the city of New York, on the 19th of August.

I immediately issued orders to the 5th and 11th brigades, requiring them to assemble on the 18th of August for the purposes mentioned, and reported my action to the commissioners, who thereupon directed that the residue of the division be held in readiness, but not called out until further orders.

On the 17th of August I also received a request from his Excellency the Commander-in-chief, to proceed to Albany to confer with him, and in compliance therewith I visited Albany, and received general directions from his Excellency as to the course to be pursued to prevent and to repress disorder within my district.

On the 18th of August, the 13th, 23d, 28th, 47th, 52d, and 56th regiments assembled in obedience to orders, and were from that time held to duty, with suitable intervals of relief, until the 8th of September. Strong guards were kept at the arsenal and city armory, and at the armory of the 47th regiment (Eastern District); and the other regimental armories were closed and the arms removed, so as to leave us, at all hours of the day and night, with a sufficient force, unembarrassed with guard duty to move to any part of the city.

The 13th, 23d, and 52d were on duty at the city armory, the 28th was at times at the arsenal, at the city armory, and in the Eastern District of Brooklyn, as necessity seemed to require. The 70th regiment was at the State arsenal, as its permanent guard, supported at times by the 56th.

While the drawing was progressing in Brooklyn, a portion of the cavalry and artillery stood ready, with horses at hand, for immediate service.

The orders for the service of the troops were issued specially and on the moment to each regiment, and the places and times of assembly and dismissal of the forces not part of the permanent guards, were constantly changed, so that their movements could in no event be known or anticipated, and the concentration was such as to enable us to use what force we had to the best advantage, and on all the principal points of the city by the shortest lines. Immediately prior to the drawing of names in Brooklyn, five regiments of United States troops reported to me, by order of Gen Canby, for location at important points in Kings county, and were posted as follows: one near Carrol Park, in South Brooklyn; two at Washington Park, Fort Greene; and two at East New York. The camping grounds were pleasantly and conveniently located, and the position of the troops was such as to attain most readily and perfectly all the objects which the authorities had in view. These regiments were from the army of the Potomac, and the behavior of the officers and men were such as to induce the ladies of the localities where the camps were established to give to the soldiers a handsome entertainment before their departure.

On the 7th of September, the regiments of this command were dismissed from duty by the police commissioners, with the exception of guards at the arsenal and armories, which guards were continued until the 19th of September, and then dismissed by order of the police commissioners.

The whole of the force under my command was on all occasions prompt and attentive to duty, and although the service was at times really very arduous, and attended with much loss and inconvenience, it was always pleasantly and faithfully performed.

REPORT OF BRIGADIER GENERAL YATES OF SERVICE OF SECOND BRIGADE, FIRST DIVISION, IN PENNSYLVANIA, &c., IN JUNE AND JULY, 1863.

HEADQUARTERS SECOND BRIGADE N. G. S. N. Y. }
NEW YORK, September 30th, 1863. }

To Major General CHARLES W. SANDFORD, Commanding 1st Division N. G. S. N. Y. :

General—Herewith I transmit the reports of the several commandants of regiments of this brigade, detailing the duties assigned to them while in the service of the United States in June and July last.

On the 18th of June I ordered Major Gardiner of my staff to repair immediately to Harrisburg to attend to the several regiments on their arrival there. On the 20th of June I arrived at Harrisburg with my staff and reported immediately to Major General Couch, pursuant to your orders. The 5th, 12th and 4th regiments arrived there at about the same time. The day following our arrival, the 4th was placed on detached service at Camp Curtin and elsewhere, and was not under my command during any portion of the residue of the term of service.

The 6th and 84th regiments were ordered to report at Baltimore, and the 71st, assigned by your orders to my brigade, was on its arrival at Harrisburg also placed on detached service in another command. The reports of the commandants of the above named regiments will show the fidelity with which they discharged the duties assigned to them.

The staff organization of my brigade was as follows :

Major Charles Trumbull White, Assistant Adjutant General.

Major Henry D. Gardiner, Brigade Quartermaster.

Captain Henry C. Landon, Commissary.

Captain J. Hobart Herrick, Ordnance Officer.

Captain Reginald H. Anthon, Aid.

Captain Anthon, having been taken ill in consequence of severe exposure in the discharge of his duties, obtained leave of absence, and Captain Benjamin S. Church, of the 12th regiment, was assigned to his post during the residue of our term of service.

On the 21st of June I was directed to proceed with the 5th and 12th regiments, numbering together about one thousand men, early the next day, to Marysville and Fennwick, at the junction of the Dauphin and Susquehanna valleys, about six miles above Harrisburg, to guard two railroad bridges crossing the Susquehanna at that point. The Dauphin valley runs parallel with the Cumberland valley, being connected with it by several mountain gaps, the farthest of which is Sterrit's gap, through which the road to Carlisle passes.

The enemy being then advancing toward Harrisburg, it was supposed he might make a diversion to the left pass down the Dauphin valley and cross the Susquehanna. Our position therefore assumed a very important character and required very great diligence in checking a movement of that kind. On arriving at the Dauphin valley the only force we found there consisted of about fifty or sixty men of the invalid corps stationed at block houses near the bridges. We immediately commenced constructing such earthworks in front and flank as were deemed necessary, and selected a position to make a determined stand, the left flank of our contemplated line being protected by an obstruction of felled woods, and the narrow pass along the Susquehanna being guarded by such force as could be spared for that purpose.

Various detachments from time to time were sent with axemen to obstruct and guard the mountain gaps. During their service there they were exposed to almost incessant rains, having only their shelter tents to protect them from the inclemency of the weather. These detachments performed the duty assigned to them with alacrity and fidelity. During a portion of the term of service in the Dauphin valley we were very materially aided by the 13th and 28th New York National Guard, under the command of Brigadier General Philip S. Crooke, and three companies of the 28th Pennsylvania militia, under the command of Major Jessup. General Crooke and Major Jessup, with their officers and men, diligently co-operated with me in the performance of the several duties assigned to them.

On the 7th of July we proceeded by rail with the 5th and 12th regiments to Carlisle, thence on the 8th and 9th by march by way of the turnpike to Shippensburg. At this place the 20th, 35th and 45th Pennsylvania militia were attached to my brigade, then denominated the 1st brigade of the 2d division of the department of the Susquehanna, under the command of Major Gen. Dana, to whom I reported for duty. Under his orders the brigade was marched to a point one mile beyond Chambersburg, where it was further reinforced by the 26th regiment of the Pennsylvania militia and a battery of U. S. artillery. It then comprised the 5th and 12th N. Y. National Guard, and the 20th, 26th, 35th and 45th Pennsylvania militia, and battery — United States artillery, and numbered nearly forty-three hundred officers, non-commissioned officers and men.

From Chambersburg our brigade and the other brigades of the 2d division were marched to Greencastle. The whole division comprised about twelve thousand men. On the arrival of the division at Greencastle, we learned that General Lee had crossed the Potomac with the whole rebel army. In consequence of this and the near expiration of our term of service, I received orders to proceed the next day with the 5th and 12th regiments by march to Shippensburg, and thence by rail to New York, and report to Major General Wool, commanding the Department of the East. We arrived at New York on the evening and night of the 18th, and reported accordingly. The regiments did duty at New York until they were mustered out of service.

The members of the brigade staff were unremitting in the discharge of the duties of their several departments, and performed them with very great regularity. To them as well as to Colonel Burger, commanding the 5th, and Colonel Ward, commanding the 12th, and their officers and men, and to the officers and men of the several commands attached to my brigade, my acknowledgments are due for the faithful discharge of the several duties assigned to them.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

CHAS. YATES,

REPORT OF BRIGADIER GENERAL WILLIAM HALL, COMMANDING THIRD BRIGADE, FIRST DIVISION, NEW YORK STATE NATIONAL GUARD, OF SERVICE IN PENNSYLVANIA.

To His Excellency HORATIO SEYMOUR, Governor of the State of New York and Commander-in-Chief:

Sir—I have the honor to report to you the condition of the 3d brigade of the first division, composed of the 7th, 8th, 37th and 55th regiments, N. G. S. N. Y.

At the annual inspection held on the 9th, 12th, 14th and 16th days of October last, 1,929 were reported as present, and 621 as absent, making a total of 2,550, which is a large increase in numbers over the last year. The particulars of said inspection are contained in the brigade major's report made heretofore to the Adjutant General, to which your Excellency is respectfully referred.

It may not be deemed inappropriate for me to refer somewhat particularly to the services performed by this brigade, in the months of June and July last, at a period when a loyal State was invaded by an armed foe, threatening to despoil its citizens, to destroy its towns and cities, and set at defiance the authorities of both the local and general governments.

On the 15th day of June last, I received from you a telegraphic dispatch, as the Commander-in-Chief of the militia forces of the State of New York, to proceed with my brigade, as speedily as possible, to the defence of the city of Harrisburgh, the capital of the State of Pennsylvania. By direction and orders of Major General Sandford, the 71st regiment, of the first brigade was attached to my command, to participate in the expedition.

These five regiments promptly responded to your Excellency's orders. The 7th, 8th, 37th and 71st regiments left the city of New York on the 16th, 17th and 18th days of June; the 55th regiment left on the 24th.

I reached the place of destination on the morning of the 20th of June, and reported to Gen. Couch, who had command of all the military concentrated at that point, acting under orders from the authorities at Washington.

On the arrival of the 7th and 55th regiments at the city of Philadelphia, they were met by orders from General Headquarters, detaching them from my command. They were by those orders attached to the third army corps of the Army of the Potomac.

On my arrival at Harrisburgh, I found that the 8th and 71st regiments had been placed under the command of Gen. Knipe, of the U. S. Volunteer service, and had been ordered to the front. I was placed immediately in command of all the regiments detailed to the fortifications at Bridgeport, on the opposite side of the Susquehanna river, or rather on the river opposite the city of Harrisburgh. In this force was included the 11th, 22d, and 37th regiments, one company of the 8th regiment, and two companies of the 4th regiment of artillery, all from the city of New York, also five regiments from the city of Brooklyn. The 11th and 22d regiments were commanded by Brig. Gen. Ewen; those from Brooklyn were under the command of Brig. Gens. Crooke and Smith.

My first order was to send out pickets to a distance of five miles, making a crescent form of fifteen miles, to avoid a surprise of the enemy in our rear; this duty was assigned to the 37th regiment.

On the 25th, I received an order to send two regiments to Maysville, about eight miles up the river, to report to General Yates. I sent the 13th and 28th, of the 5th brigade. On the 26th, Brig. Gen. Crooke, of that brigade, reported for duty. I directed him to report to Gen. Yates, at Maysville, where his command had been sent.

On the 28th, Gen. Crooke returned with his brigade, and was quartered in the fort. On the 27th, the 37th regiment was directed to proceed to the front, under the command of Brig. Gen. W. F. Smith, of the U. S. Volunteers, with the 11th and 22d regiments, under the command of Brig. Gen. Ewen. Brig. Gen. J. C. Smith of Brooklyn, arrived with the 23d, 52d, and 56th regiments, reported, and was sent to the front, under the command of Brig. Gen. W. F. Smith.

During our encampment the 37th, 13th, 28th and several other regiments worked on the defences in the two forts on the heights, one of which was called Fort Washington, the other was named Fort Couch.

On the 3d day of July, I received a verbal order from General Couch, to proceed forthwith to the front with the 5th brigade. Accordingly, I directed Brig. Gen. Crooke to order his brigade to be in readiness to leave immediately. We broke camp about two o'clock in the morning, and took the cars for Carlisle, where we arrived at 7 A. M. While preparing to leave for Chambersburg, I received a telegram from Gen. Couch, to return and resume my former command. I left the brigade at Carlisle, under the command of Brig. Gen. Crooke, who proceeded with it to Chambersburg.

On my return I found in the forts five companies of New Jersey troops (a very fine body of men), two companies of the 4th regiment of artillery, N. G. S. N. Y., one company of the 8th regiment, under the command of Capt. Brown, N. G. S. N. Y., and one company from Philadelphia.

On the 11th day of July, the 65th regiment, of Buffalo, reached the forts en route for home. It was detained some days, on account of the difficulty then existing to procure transportation. On the 14th, the startling intelligence reached me, that the city of New York was in a state of insubordination. Knowing the small military force left to defend that city from internal foes, and believing it important that relief should be sent there at the earliest possible moment, I sought and obtained permission of Gen. Couch to send this regiment there. It accordingly left my headquarters at daylight on the morning of the 15th, and arrived in the city of New York at about 4 o'clock in the afternoon of the same day. The alarm produced by continued unfavorable reports in reference to the insecurity of the lives and property of the citizens of the city of New York, induced Gen. Couch to issue a general order directing the speedy return of all the New York and New Jersey regiments. This order was executed on the 18th, and the New York regiments reached the city the same evening.

I cannot forbear expressing my obligations to Captain B. Frishmuth, commanding an independent company in the city of Philadelphia, for permission to bring with my command, from that city, a battery of four guns of artillery, the private property of his company, believing they might be of service in restoring municipal order in the metropolis.

During my operations in Pennsylvania, I was greatly assisted by Col. Pierson and Col. Cone, both of the city of New York, who volunteered as members of my staff; their experience and skill in military affairs deserve acknowledgments.

I herewith have the honor to enclose the reports of the colonels of the 7th, 8th, 37th, and 55th regiments, of their services during the expedition.

I have the honor to be,

Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

WM. HALL,

Commanding 3d Brigade, N. G. S. N. Y.

REPORT OF BRIGADIER GENERAL JOHN EWEN, COMMANDING FOURTH BRIGADE, FIRST DIVISION N. Y. S. N. G., OF SERVICE IN PENNSYLVANIA.

HEADQUARTERS 4TH BRIGADE N. Y. S. N. G. }
NEW YORK, December 25, 1863. }

Major Gen. CHARLES W. SANDFORD, Commanding 1st Div. N. G. S. N. Y.

General—In accordance with your request I have the honor to submit the following report of the short campaign of my command in Pennsylvania and Maryland, in the service of the General Government, in June and July last.

The 11th and 22d regiments left this city for Harrisburg via Philadelphia, on the 18th June. I followed with my staff on the evening of the 19th, by the express train, arriving at Harrisburg on the morning of the 20th, at which time the said regiments also arrived. The 69th was to follow in the course of a couple of days—but pursuant to subsequent orders from the secretary of war and the Adjutant General of this State, this regiment was sent to Baltimore.

Having reported to Major General Couch, I selected pursuant to his authority, camping ground for my command on the south side of the Susquehanna, opposite Harrisburgh, on the York road, about three-fourths of a mile southeast of Bridgeport and Fort

Washington, and issued orders to Colonels Maidhof and Aspinwall to move their regiments across the river preparatory to occupying the positions to be assigned them.

June 26th, employed a negro force which had been engaged on the earthworks of Fort Washington in excavating rifle pits and entrenchments in the vicinity of the camp, and caused my command to be supplied with forty rounds of ball cartridge.

June 22, was stunned by a shock received in consequence of a fall of my horse while in the camp of the 11th regiment, and conveyed to Harrisburg; was, by the advice of surgeons, restrained from attending to any business until the morning of the 24th. My command was this day mustered into the service of the U. States.

On the 25th, General Hall, who as senior officer had been placed in command of the division, returned to Harrisburg sick. I immediately assumed the command, putting Col. Maidhof in command of my brigade.

On the 26th, received orders that Brigadier General W. F. Smith, U. S. V., had been appointed to the command of the 1st division of the army of the Susquehanna. Had an interview with him at Harrisburg the same day and was desired to continue in command of the division until further orders. Continued the work at the rifle pits and the earthworks of Fort Washington, the latter proceeding under the supervision of Major Brady, U. S. engineers, by a negro force, and by regiments quartered in the fort.

On the 27th, ordered the 37th N. G., Col. Roome, to move camp and join the two regiments of the 4th brigade, reporting to Col. Maidhof.

June 28th, Gen. W. F. Smith removed his headquarters to Bridgeport, near Fort Washington, and assumed the command of the division, I returning to the command of my brigade, directing Col. Maidhof to report with his regiment to the commander of the division for special duty.

An attack from the enemy being momentarily anticipated, broke up camp pursuant to orders, moving the 22d and 37th regiments behind the rifle pits. Received into my command the 11th artillery, N. Y. V., Col. Barnes, doing duty as infantry. Employed a detachment of this regiment in felling the woods in front, and detachments of the 22d and 37th regiments in completing the works of the rifle pits, and men on picket duty.

It was designed by the commanding general that my command should check the advance of the enemy by the York road, and if hard pressed, retire to the fort where a more effectual stand could be made. Desiring to avoid such a contingency, I solicited and obtained from him, June 29th, a section of light battery, posting it on the turnpike, supported on each side by the 11th and 37th regiments in the trenches. The 22d regiment being held in reserve, continued the detachments in clearing away the woods in front and completing the rifle pits, those of the 37th being engaged at the latter during the whole of the night of the 29th.

On the morning of the 30th, pursuant to orders requiring the 22d, and 37th regiments to be in readiness, without rations, for a few hours service, marched these regiments to division headquarters, it being designed to cut off a body of cavalry, acting also as mounted infantry, with artillery, supposed to be posted a few miles from camp. After some delay I was directed to proceed with these regiments on the turnpike, General W. F. Smith and staff accompanying. Having marched about three miles, and finding no trace of the enemy, the general took leave, directing me to return with my command to camp.

After proceeding about a mile on my return, I was overtaken by a small company of dragoons, the commandant of which informed me that he had been driven by the enemy about three miles distant. I immediately countermarched and went in pursuit, employing the dragoons as an advance guard; despatching an aid to headquarters with intelligence of my information and movement.

After proceeding a few miles to a place called Sportsman's Hill, had a skirmish with the enemy, who, concealed in a wood on the right of the road, about a quarter of a mile distant, fired a volley of musketry at my command at the moment of halting it.

I immediately changed from forward, returning the fire with the 37th regiment, in the direction from which the shots had proceeded, and advanced that regiment about thirty yards into a wheat field, which concealed it from the observation of the enemy, holding the 22d in reserve. The enemy then ceased firing with small arms, and commenced throwing shells from the woods, which passed over us. At this time a section of a battery, called Lander's battery, belonging to a company of gentlemen from Philadelphia, came up, under command of Lieut. Rufus King, of the army, serving on General W. F. Smith's staff. I immediately posted one piece in the road, and the other in rear of a dwelling to the right of the road, the side from which the enemy's fire came. After a few rounds the enemy ceased firing and fled. It being a cavalry force, we were unable to pursue.

During this skirmish there were several discharges of artillery on our left, demonstrating the existence of a body of the enemy in that direction, not very far distant; and expecting an immediate attack from that quarter, I changed front to rear with the 22d regiment, to be in readiness to meet and repel it.

On the retreat of the force with which we had been contending, the firing from the other force ceased. The discharges of artillery on our left had evidently been designed as an intimidation to us, or a signal to the other force of the enemy to retire. The casualties in my command, were a few officers and men of the 37th slightly wounded.

After remaining one hour on the field, and hearing no sound from the enemy, I proceeded to return to camp. On arriving at the intersection of the two roads leading from Carlisle, called Oyster Point, within about three miles from Fort Washington, I received orders from headquarters directing me to follow up the enemy. It was then dark. My command had had no food since breakfast, and was destitute of rations and blankets. A considerable portion had also been working in the trenches during the preceding night. I found it, therefore, impracticable to proceed until rations should be procured, for which requisition was immediately made; but owing to the delay in procuring and preparing the same, it was daylight before a meal could be obtained. Immediately after which I marched for Carlisle; both regiments manifesting dissatisfaction in consequence of being without knapsacks and haversacks, and the privations and fatigue which they had already undergone.

The column advanced, with the 37th regiment on the right, preceded by a company of the 22d regiment, commanded by Capt. Asa Bird Gardner, as an advance guard, and by skirmishers also from that regiment.

After proceeding about a mile beyond Sportman's Hill, I learned from a farmer residing in the vicinity, that the force on our left the preceding evening consisted of a body of about 3,500 cavalry, with field pieces, and had occupied the road leading from Carlisle to Oyster Point, called the mud road, and that it had retired. And on advancing about two miles further, I learned from citizens returning in wagons from Carlisle, on their way to Harrisburg, that the force we had encountered the night before had passed rapidly through Carlisle about daylight, carrying with them a number of killed and wounded in ambulances.

This information being soon after confirmed, the skirmishers were called in, enabling the column to proceed more rapidly. It arrived at Carlisle about 3 o'clock in the afternoon; the march having been about 13 miles.

The troops were refreshed at the small villages along the march, by the inhabitants, who were kindly at their doors with offerings of food.

About 6 P. M. there was a report that the enemy was returning to Carlisle. An aid was despatched to hurry up reinforcements which might be on the road, while I proceeded with my command about a mile south of the town, and occupied a position on the main road, on the brow of a hill overlooking a broad valley.

Soon after reports of artillery were heard in our rear, and the flash and smoke of the guns were visible along the hills north of Carlisle. Just then I received intelligence of the arrival, at Carlisle, of General W. F. Smith, and two regiments of Pennsylvania militia, under Colonel Brisbane, accompanied by directions for my immediate return.

On returning to Carlisle, the regiments were subdivided into detachments to guard all sides—the several approaches to the town. The Pennsylvania regiments were posted on the northerly portions, the 37th regiment, with one field piece, guarded the central portion, under the immediate command of General Smith, and the 22d regiment, with the remaining field piece, the southerly portion of the town, under my immediate command; skirmishers being also thrown out.

Before these dispositions were perfected, which was not until after dark, the enemy commenced shelling from his position opposite the east side of the town, doing, however, little damage, the shells mostly passing over. A few slight casualties occurred in the 37th regiment.

Orders had been given by General Smith not to fire a gun unless it came to close quarters, which, in my judgment, was eminently judicious under the circumstances. We had but two light field pieces, and the enemy seven, and a much superior force.

A flag of truce was sent in demanding a surrender; our commander in reply desiring the enemy to come in and take us. He was no doubt deterred from making the attempt, under an apprehension that we were much stronger than we were. The shelling continued during the greater part of the night. The principal arsenal buildings, situate about half a mile east from town, were fired with torches and burnt down, and about an hour before daylight the enemy retired.

The force opposed to us was said to embody about 3,500 cavalry, with several pieces of artillery, under Fitz Hugh Lee. I have but little doubt it was the same that saluted on my left the preceding evening, and had remained in my rear when I entered Carlisle, several stragglers of the 37th regiment having been made prisoners that afternoon, and paroled; also Mr. Dockerty, of General Smith's staff, while on his way to Carlisle. He was subsequently paroled, and fell in with the division at Paperstown, while on the march southward.

We remained at Carlisle during the 2d and 3d of July. The 11th regiment N. G., rejoining my command at the latter date, having arrived with the remaining corps of the division, consisting of three regiments N. G. S. N. Y. of New York city, under command of Brigadier General Knipe, three regiments composing the 11th brigade N. G. S. N. Y. of Brooklyn, commanded by Brigadier General Jesse C. Smith, and a section of Lander's battery—the whole under the command of General Knipe.

This column, it appears by the annexed communication from General Jesse C. Smith, left Fort Washington for Carlisle on the afternoon of the day my command marched from Oyster Point, July 1st, arriving on the 3d. They "heard heavy firing in the direction of Carlisle" before halting, and saw "the light from the burning barracks at that place." The column halted about 9 o'clock at night, "General Knipe going forward to see if he could get communication with General W. F. Smith, then at Carlisle," about thirteen miles distant, and did not return until after 2 o'clock in the morning. At 3 o'clock, General Couch, pursuant to whose directions my command of two small regiments, comprising about 900 men and two field pieces, had been ordered to follow up the enemy the preceding night, without rations or blankets, and while deemed to be engaged with the enemy, sent pre-emptory orders for this command to return to Fort Washington. It is but just, however, to General Couch to say, that at the time of giving such orders, it was too late for this force to render any assistance to the troops at Carlisle. Had it, however, gone forward promptly, and quietly entered the town during the bombardment, as it might unquestionably have done, several hours before the retirement of the enemy, it could as a separate disposable force have been instrumental in surprising and effectively destroying or capturing the enemy, who could have been surprised and attacked on his left flank or rear from the south side of the town at any time before his retirement. Being a cavalry force hemmed in by a road, a single available regiment might have approached it very closely under cover of the darkness and poured in upon it a very destructive fire. From the south side of the town the sound of the wheels of the enemy's artillery were distinctly heard on his retirement.

July 4th—Command consisting of the 11th, 22d and 37th regiments N. G. marched with the division from Carlisle, forming the rear guard. At Paperstown directed Colonel Roome to report with his regiment to General W. F. Smith for special duty in guarding roads in that vicinity. Reached Laurel Forge, in the mountains of Pennsylvania, on the evening of the 5th July.

July 6th—About daylight received an accession to my command by the arrival of the 13th and 28th regiments of the 5th brigade N. G. S. N. Y. of Brooklyn, under command of Brigadier General Philip S. Crooke: and on the evening of this day the 37th regiment rejoined my command. I proceeded with the two brigades as the rear of the division to Newman's Gap, Funkstown and Waynesburg, in Pennsylvania. At the latter place united with a brigade of the army of the Potomac in command of Brigadier General Neal.

July 11th—The division resumed march, passing through Petersburg, Cavetown and Bownsborough, in Maryland, reaching the latter place the evening of the 14th. We had, before leaving Carlisle, heard of the movements of General Meade to cut off Lee's army; and it was the expectation of the commander of our division to arrive in time to take part in the contemplated action; but on arriving at Newman's Gap, we learned that the battle of Gettysburg had been fought two days previously.

My command, during the march from Carlisle suffered many privations and hardships from lack of food and clothing and exposure to frequent rains without tents or change of raiment; the men on several occasions having to ford streams to the waist; the baggage as well as tents having been left in camp near Fort Washington. I had no clothing myself except a thin suit in which I left camp, expecting to return after a few hours' absence. My baggage, as well as that of two of the regiments, had been sent for from Carlisle before leaving that place, communication with Harrisburg by railroad having been re-established the preceding day; but they were shipped by a general officer, who said orders had been given that no baggage should go forward.

July 15—News was received of the outbreak in the city of New York, growing out of the intended draft; and as the presence of the New York troops at home was urgent, and their term of duty had expired, their further services were dispensed with by the following complimentary orders from Generals Meade and Smith:

HEADQUARTER'S ARMY OF THE POTOMAC, }
July 15, 1863. }

Special Order, No. 190:

The troops comprising the command of Brigadier-General W. F. Smith, are relieved from further service with the army of the Potomac, and will be reported to Major General Couch for instructions.

The Major General commanding thanks Brigadier General Smith and his troops for their zeal and promptitude which, amid no little privation, have marked their efforts to render this army all the assistance in their power, and especially commends the good conduct of the officers and men that participated in General Kilpatrick's engagement with the enemy on the 13th inst.

By command of Major General Meade.

11th regiment, Col. J. Maidhof; 22d regiment, Col. Lloyd Aspinwall, of the 4th brigade, N. G. S. N. Y.; and a regiment from the western part of the State, whose designation I cannot now call to mind.

I immediately proceeded with these troops to Frederick, to take the cars to New York, passing through Middletown and Frederick to the vicinity of the railway station, arriving after dark, having marched 25 miles, halting one hour on the way for food and rest.

Telegraphed arrival of this force to the Commander-in-chief at the earliest opportunity, and was desired by him to come immediately to the city; having learned from the railway superintendent that a telegram had been received from Major General Couch not to transport us until further orders; next morning received a telegram from General Couch that he had orders to detain us for the present. Telegraphed him of the urgency of our presence in New York, and was desired in reply to report to Major General Halleck, and obey his orders. Telegraphed General Halleck of the necessity of our immediate departure, and on the 17th received his authority to return to New York. We left by the cars in the afternoon, passing through Baltimore and Philadelphia, and arriving in New York on the morning of the 18th, where I reported to the Commander-in-chief at the St. Nicholas Hotel.

REPORT OF BRIGADIER GENERAL PHILIP S. CROOKE,
COMMANDING FIFTH BRIGADE, SECOND DIVISION,
NEW YORK STATE NATIONAL GUARD, OF SERVICE IN PENNSYLVANIA.

HEADQUARTERS 5TH BRIGADE, N. G. S. N. Y. }
BROOKLYN, December 1st, 1863. }

To the Adjutant General of the State of New York:

General—I have the honor to report the condition and service of the 5th brigade for the present year.

The inspection returns show the numbers:

The 14th regiment is and has been, since May, 1861, in the United States service in the army of the Potomac; has distinguished itself for courage and endurance in many a hard fought battle field and many a wearisome march; its reputation is part of the history of the country, and all the battles of the army of the Potomac record its bravery and good service. The regiment is now under Col. E. B. Fowler, who has been in command since 1861, and has proved himself worthy.

The aggregate morning report of the 29th October, 1863, shows a total of 514 in the "Brooklyn 14th."

A battalion of artillery has just been organized under the command of that experienced officer, Major Horace A. Sprague. The battalion is composed of good officers and men, and numbers about 200. It will prove a valuable corps.

The force of the brigade available for service in this State in the month of June, 1863, consists of the 13th regiment, Col.

John B. Woodward, 28th regiment, Col. Michael Bennett, and the 70th regiment, Col. William J. Cropsy; the two first doing duty as infantry, the 70th as cavalry and artillery.

On the 15th June, 1863, at 10 o'clock P. M., orders were received by me from head-quarters to assemble the 13th and 28th regiments for short service in Pennsylvania.

At 9 A. M. next morning they were ready and assembled at their armories.

On the 20th they left for Harrisburgh. On the 22d I received orders to join them and take command. I left here on the 24th; arrived at Harrisburgh on the 25th; reported to Governor Curtin and General D. N. Couch, U. S. army, having command of all the forces.

I was directed by Gen. Couch to report to Brig. Gen. William Hall, at Fort Washington, opposite Harrisburgh.

On reporting to Gen. Hall, I was informed that the 13th and 28th regiments were at Marysville, about ten miles north of Harrisburgh, on the west bank of the Susquehanna river, and was ordered to report there to Gen. Yates in command of the post.

At this time the rebel forces were in Pennsylvania and advancing up the Cumberland valley towards Harrisburgh, by way of Carlisle. The roads were filled with people, flocks and herds, flying from the advance of the enemy, and the people of Harrisburgh did not seem prepared or inclined to act on the defensive.

The force then available for defence and offence seemed only to be New York militia.

On the 26th June I reported to General Yates at Marysville, and took command of the 13th and 28th regiments; my staff consisted of Major William H. Leaycraft, A. A. G.; Capt. John L. Bergen, aid; Capt. James Mooney, B. Q. M.; Dr. Thomas McAllister, brigade surgeon.

Major Leaycraft who was appointed by me on this duty, had seen service in the army of the Potomac, in the 87th regiment of volunteers, and to his knowledge, experience and soldierly qualities myself and command are much indebted, whilst his genial and kindly nature endeared him to all who associated with him.

Captain Bergen, Captain Mooney and Dr. Thomas McAllister, proved themselves to be all that could have been desired.

I beg leave to state that for zeal, capability of endurance and all other qualifications, mental and physical, they were equal to the service required of them, and they have my thanks—for myself and the brigade.

The post at Marysville, was in a valley on the west bank of the Susquehanna, called Fishing Creek Valley, commanding two railroad bridges and fords, the river here was about one mile wide.

The place (an important one,) was surrounded on two sides by ranges of mountains terminating at a gap near Carlisle.

The garrison was 3 regiments of 2d brigade, N. Y. S. N. G., under General Yates, and the 13th and 28th.

The services of those regiments will be found in their regimental reports annexed. The duties at Marysville were constant, laborious and fatiguing. The rebel forces were at Carlisle and on the south side of the mountain around us; we could hear the sound of cannon, and heard reports of skirmishing around Carlisle, and expected an attack.

July 1st, at 11 o'clock, P. M., received orders to break camp and proceed by railroad to Harrisburgh, obeyed orders, arrived at Harrisburgh July 2d, at sunrise, marched to Fort Washington opposite, the former garrison marched out. In command of the fort, garrisoned by the 13th and 28th regiments, one regiment of Pennsylvania militia and several corps of N. Y. artillery. The rebels had advanced within sight of Fort Washington, and constant skirmishing had ensued between the advanced posts of both forces. We remained thus until July 3d, 10 o'clock, when orders arrived to take the railroad to Carlisle that night, leaving everything except blankets, haversacks and arms. Colonel Bennett of the 28th, and Major Leaycraft, had been ordered to inspect pickets that evening, which was dark and rainy. At 11 o'clock, Colonel Bennet was brought into the fort with his ankle badly broken, his horse had stumbled in the dark and fallen on him—with much sadness he was sent home—he is a good officer, a brave and kind hearted man, and his absence left a great void in the brigade. The command was assumed by Lieut. Colonel Bakee, who acquitted himself well. Major Scheppe had previously been taken very sick and sent home. Thus Lieut. Colonel Bakee was suddenly left the only field officer in the regiment. The 13th also had but one field officer, Colonel John B. Woodward. Both regiments were fortunate in their adjutants—the 13th, Lieut. McKee, the 28th, Lieut. Dean—and I am pleased to report now that Lieut. McKee has been elected Lieut. Col. of the 13th, and Lieut. Col. Dean brigade inspector of the 5th brigade; both well earned promotions.

The quartermasters—Leggett of the 13th, and Duel of the 28th—had a most arduous and difficult duty to perform, and did so zealously and ably as far as was possible. Lieut. Leggett has since been elected Major of the 13th.

July 4th. After midnight the brigade left by railroad for Carlisle, 21 miles. The quartermaster and brigade surgeon were left to attend to their departments; as the sun arose we arrived at Carlisle and saw the ruins of the barracks and the railroad bridge outside destroyed by the rebels. We were under command of Brig. Gen. Wm. Hall, 3d brigade, N. G. S. N. Y.; marched into the main street of Carlisle and rested in column, saw marks of shell on the buildings. Gen. Hall here received despatch from Harrisburgh ordering him to return to Fort Washington. He informed me I was left in command, I asked for orders, he had none to give. I telegraphed to Gen. Couch at Harrisburgh, that I was there without orders, supplies or horses. At 10 o'clock, A. M., I received the answer by telegraph.

“HARRISBURGH, July 4th, 1863.

An order was given to take rations last night. Do troops want me to tell them to breathe? Always have rations in your haversacks. You want no buggy, you are going in the mountains for a few days. Beef cattle go forward. Now is the time to aid your country; let trifles go; march.”

On the receipt of this paper—as the only definite information seemed that we were bound “for the mountains”—I started on the turnpike leading to the mountains south of Carlisle. All the officers, as well as men on foot, without anything except they carried it; not a wagon or pack horse, or any knowledge of route or supplies, present or future.

The result proved the dispatch in one respect—we “wanted no buggy”—the roads in places were impassable for one. The dispatch was in fault as to the beef cattle; they did not “go forward” fast enough to overtake us. We were left to our own resources in a country which had been overrun and exhausted by the rebel forces. About two miles south of Carlisle, we were overtaken by a heavy rain storm, and we rested for three hours in a large barn and farm-house. Here we met a few stragglers from the battle of Gettysburg, paroled Union soldiers and rebel deserters, and from them heard of the great battle which was going on when they left. We then knew our route and started anxiously. We met three of the "Brooklyn 14th," who had been taken prisoners and paroled in the battle. Their unexpected encounter with their Brooklyn friends in the middle of Pennsylvania, was startling and strange; we left them cheered and cheering.

A little before sundown we arrived at Paperville, a village at the gorge of the mountains, with a stream of water which had overflowed our road. Here we had to ford about half a mile in places waist deep; the drummer boys and drums were carried. We halted at Holly Springs after dark; the brigade bivouacked; next day a muddy, hard, hungry march to Laurel Furnace.

July 5. Came up with Gen. John Ewers' brigade, (4th N. G. S. N. Y.) who took command. Here the horses of myself and staff reached us. We were marched up a mountain road to a pass looking down upon Gettysburg about twelve miles off. Bivouacked there—obtained some bread from the inhabitants who were very kind and considerate.

July 6. Some wagons met us with supplies—obtained one day's rations; marched on towards the south; bivouacked in the woods next morning.

July 7. Arrived at Newman's Gap on the turnpike from Gettysburg to Chambersburg; met Gen. B. F. Smith, U. S. A., commanding army of Susquehanna; saw tracks of the battle of Gettysburg in broken caissons, &c.; marched forward on the track of Lee's army, turned off the turnpike to the south, bivouacked at Funkstown, terrible rain storm all night, and until 10 A. M.

July 8. But little to eat; marched on to Waynesboro near the Maryland line, a considerable village, where we found the 6th army corps of the Potomac bivouacked on the hills south of the village.

July 9, 10, 11. Pleasant weather, and rations just before sundown; orders to march; marched; forded Antietam creek, the timbers of the bridge burnt by the rebels yet smoking. 11 o'clock, P. M., bivouacked at Lieterstown in a clover field.

July 12. Marched to Cavetown—tremendous storm of rain, thunder and lightning; bivouacked there.

July 13. Marched through Snoketown and Mount Pleasant to Booneboro, Maryland. There we met several members of the 5th brigade, now in the U. S. service. Col. Brewster, of the Excelsior brigade, Capt. E. D. Taft, commanding battery—both of whom distinguished themselves at Gettysburg. Here we were informed that Lee's army had escaped over the Potomac, and we were ordered home; marched to Frederick, Md.; the march was very fatiguing, and Christian Hemming, a private of the 28th, died from exhaustion. July 15th, arrived at Frederick, and bivouacked south of the city; remained there until July 17; passed by railroad to Baltimore; July 18, arrived at Philadelphia; July 19, arrived at New York. We were met on the wharf by orders from the Commander-in-chief, to report for duty in Brooklyn, and remained on duty until September 6th, in the protection of the peace and property of Kings county. In all of which the whole of my command acquitted themselves as good soldiers and citizens, and did good service.

The 70th regiment remaining at home were on duty guarding the State arsenal at Brooklyn, and assisting in preserving the peace during July, until Sept. 6th, faithfully and zealously, and also are entitled to the same credit. Their Colonel, William J. Cropsey, is an energetic and reliable officer, and the officers and men are of a most respectable class of citizens. It is a valuable corps for home service.

The 13th and 28th regiments had been in the U. S. service in 1861—the 13th also in 1862. Many hundreds of their members had joined the volunteer U. S. service, and their uniforms worn out in the service. Those regiments have done hard and faithful service, and are now re-forming with the prospect of much efficiency.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

REPORT OF BRIGADIER GENERAL J. C. SMITH OF THE SERVICES OF THE ELEVENTH BRIGADE, SECOND DI-VISION, N. Y. S. N. G., OF SERVICE IN PENNSYLVANIA.

HEADQUARTERS 11TH BRIGADE N. G. S. N. Y. }
BROOKLYN, December 28, 1863. }

Colonel W. I. STEELE, Division Inspector (A. A. G.) 2d Division:

Colonel—On the morning of the 16th of June last, at about nine o'clock, I received a telegraphic order from Governor Seymour, dated June 15, ordering all the regiments in my command to be ready to go to Philadelphia at once on short service. On the 18th, the 23d regiment, Colonel William Everdell, Jr., 518 strong; on the 19th, the 56th regiment, Lieutenant Colonel J. Q. Adams, 400 strong; and on the 22d, the 52d regiment, Col. M. W. Cole, with 325 men, left for Harrisburg, Pa.

The promptness with which regiments responded to the call of the Commander-in-Chief was highly commendable. On the 22d of June I received an order from Major General Duryea, commanding division, that the 23d, 47th, 52d and 56th regiments, and such other regiments of the 2d division as should thereafter be designated for that purpose, were constituted a brigade under my command during the term of duty, in obedience to the orders of the Commander-in-Chief. On the afternoon of the 24th of June I departed for Harrisburg, Pa., with Major Benj. Haskell, A. A. G. (chief of staff); Capt. John Berry, Aide-de-Camp; Capt. Lebbeus Chapman, Jr., Brigade Quartermaster; Capt. Zach. Voorhies, Ass't Com. of Subsistence on my staff. On the morning of the 25th of June I reported to Major Gen. Couch at Harrisburg, and afterward on the same morning crossed the Susquehanna river and reported to Brig. General Hall, then in command of Fort Washington, a newly erected fort of earthworks on the high ground directly opposite Harrisburg. Three of my regiments—the 23d, the 52d and the 56th—were then located in and around the fort, having arrived there at different times from the 19th to the 23d of June. The 47th regiment was ordered to Washington, D. C., and did duty in Virginia. On my arrival to take charge of the three regiments of my command, a great state of excitement existed at Harrisburg and through the Cumberland Valley, in consequence of the near approach of General Lee's army and of the daily reports that he was marching on Harrisburg by way of Carlisle with a large force.

The 8th and 71st regiments N. G. S. N. Y. and one regiment of Pennsylvania militia, having been sent forward, under command of General Knipe, by the Cumberland valley railroad to Shippensburg, and having fallen back from point to point, as they were driven in by the rebels, presented the appearance of an advance guard of a large force, delayed the rebels a week or more in their advance, and enabled many other regiments to arrive at Harrisburg and to throw up quite formidable earthworks, to erect barricades across the roads through the mountain gaps, and to dig rifle pits and make other defensive preparations. My hospital surgeon, Major E. Malone, joined me here, and his services were very valuable at the hospital established near the fort. The entire force was constantly employed night and day, as the regiments arrived, in erecting these earthworks, barricades, &c., and in picket duty, and were saved from an attack from Lee's army by the delay in its advance occasioned by the militia force and demonstration, until, on the morning of the 30th of June, after having driven in our outer line of pickets, the rebels fell back under orders, as appears by General Lee's report, to meet the army of the Potomac at Gettysburg. On the 1st of July, the 22d and 37th N. G. S. N. Y., with two regiments of Pennsylvania militia and a battery of citizen artillery from Philadelphia, entered Carlisle, eighteen miles from Harrisburg down the Cumberland valley, and were that night shelled by Stuart's cavalry, who burned the Carlisle barracks and other buildings. The militia stood their ground nobly, and the artillery are said to have done good service in the defence of the place. On the afternoon of the 1st of July, my three regiments, with the 8th, 11th and 71st regiments N. G. S. N. Y., and Miller's light battery, attached temporarily to the 8th regiment N. G., marched out from the fort opposite Harrisburg on the road towards Carlisle, the whole under the command of General Knipe, and went into camp, or rather into a field seven miles from the fort, at about 9 o'clock in the evening. As we went into quarters, heavy cannonading was heard in the direction of Carlisle, and the light of the burning barracks was distinctly visible on the sky. This was an anxious night to our command, as the supposition was that Ewell's corps of Lee's army had returned to Carlisle, and attacked our militia there in force, and would capture them, and be down upon us the next morning. We had no intimation that on that day there had been a battle at Gettysburg. At two o'clock the next morning a staff officer came in from General Couch with orders to get the baggage train back on the road to Harrisburg, and to have the men in readiness to march at a moment's notice. At 3 o'clock A. M. another officer came from General Couch, with peremptory orders to march back at once to the fort. The retreat was then commenced, and continued for about three miles. We were then halted in the road, and remained there until near sundown, when we bivouached on the bank of a beautiful stream for the night, and the next day (July 3d) marched to Carlisle, about fifteen miles. The weather was very warm; the men marched with their knapsacks packed, their blankets rolled, their haversacks supplied with two days' rations, and their cartridge boxes with 40 rounds. They suffered greatly from this first march, and were compelled to leave their knapsacks and many other things that were afterwards much needed. The next morning (July 4th) our column having been united to the brigades of Generals Ewen and Crooke, and a brigade of Pennsylvania militia under command of Col. Brisbane, with Landis's battery of artillery from Philadelphia, which was now attached to our division in command of Gen. Knipe—in all about fifteen regiments of infantry, one battery and one light battery of artillery—moved out on the Mount Holly road, south from Carlisle and away from all railroad communication. About 12 o'clock it commenced to rain, and continued through the afternoon and night. The road led through the South Mountain, and was very narrow and muddy. The men marched through mud and water oftentimes knee-deep. The 23d regiment, having had some of its men nearly drowned while fording a stream, had to stop for the night. The men of the other regiments struggled and straggled through, but when we halted for the night at 9 o'clock scarcely a corporal's guard were present. The next morning (the 5th of July), without anything to eat, and without waiting for the command to come up, we were marched over the mountains about five miles, and encamped, here we gathered some bread and other eatables from the neighborhood. The next day (the 6th of July) was another rainy day, and night found us on the road from Gettysburg to Chambersburg—on which the day before the rebels had retreated—without rations, the men sleeping on the wet ground in an orchard; Gen. Knipe and myself and our staffs without anything to eat except a little prepared coffee and a piece of bread. Capt. Cipperly, additional aide-de-camp, at this time reported to me for duty. The following night, the men having encamped in a piece of wood, found themselves immersed in water in the morning. Our supplies, which were to have come forward, had gone by mistake to Gettysburg. My quartermaster was directed to gather up all loose horses and wagons and then was sent to Shippensburg for supplies. These did not reach us until after we had arrived at Waynesboro, on the 10th of July. We here (Waynesboro) connected with the army of the Potomac, and had two or three days of rest. From this place, on the 12th and 13th, we marched to within a mile or two of Boonsboro', Md. Here we encamped again in the rain and with scant rations. The next day we advanced on the National road towards Hagerstown, about two miles, and as we marched we heard the firing on the Potomac as Kilpatrick engaged the rebels while crossing. A general engagement was expected, and our force stood in line of battle on the field where Kilpatrick had fought on the Friday preceding, in readiness if called upon as a reserve force to the army of the Potomac, then in front of us. In the afternoon we were informed that Gen. Lee had recrossed the Potomac river with his whole army.

The next morning we were dismissed by Gen. W. F. Smith, and my command, including the 8th and 71st regiments, with Generals Ewen's and Croke's, were placed in command of Gen. Ewen, and directed to march to Frederick, where we would embark for home. The march to Frederick, on the 15th of July, was eighteen miles over the South Mountain, and without rations. The men, supposing that Frederick was the termination of their day's march, came into that town in good order; but when after dark the command was ordered by the commanding officer to march to the railroad junction, three or four miles further, they became disheartened, and having no rations served them since the day before, they suffered much from hunger and fatigue, and as they went into camp at 9 o'clock at night one man of the 28th regiment actually died from exhaustion—an unnecessary hardship, because the troops were on the homeward march, and did not obtain transportation for the next twenty-four hours.

The following night the troops were embarked, in a most severe rain storm, on board of cars for Baltimore, Md., some of the men in open cars exposed to the storm. The entire next day was spent in reaching Baltimore, and the whole of the night of the 17th and of the day of the 18th, was spent in getting to Harrisburg, and many of the men in open cars exposed to the rain and night air. On Sunday, the 19th of July, we came from Harrisburg and arrived in New York in the afternoon. The command in fifteen days were marched over one hundred miles, most of the time in the rain, without proper clothing or shoes for many of the men, with scarcely half the ordinary rations of soldiers, and those irregularly supplied. With little or no covering at night, not even blankets or shelter tents, it is not to be wondered at that many have suffered and that others have died from sickness contracted in this short campaign, and when the facts shall be fully collected and properly detailed, I am sure that the General Government will be satisfied that if "little or no reliance can be placed upon the paid militia" (vide General Halleck's report), it has at least contributed something towards the safety of the capital of the State of Pennsylvania, and of the great railroads that cross the Susquehanna river at or near that place.

The 68th regiment N. G., S. N. Y., from Chautauqua county, were with us at the fort, and did yeoman's service with axes in leveling a forest around the fort, and marched with us the entire route. There was also another column, consisting of Pennsylvania militia, under the command of General Dana, that went down the Cumberland Valley railroad after it was reconstructed in part, and joined the army of the Potomac near Hagerstown.

The officers under my command having been required to make a report of their several regiments directly to the Commander-in-chief, have, as I am informed, made such reports. The 52d and 56th having furnished to me copies, which have been printed, I annex. The 23d and 47th regiments have not made to me any reports. Too much praise cannot be given to the officers and men of the several regiments of my brigade for the promptness with which they responded to the call of the Commander-in-chief; and for their endurance of fatigue in their duty, of throwing up embankments, felling forests, and marching through such an extent of country, so poorly as they were supplied with clothing, with camp equipments and with rations.

By the activity and energy of the different members of my staff, the several regiments in our column of march were much assisted, and their wants and sufferings greatly alleviated.

Respectfully yours,

JESSE C. SMITH,

Brig.-Gen. com'g 11th brigade, N. G., S. N. Y.

REPORT OF J. A. GREEN, JR., COMMANDING TWENTY-FOURTH BRIGADE, N. Y. S. N. G.

HEADQUARTERS 24TH BRIGADE, N. Y. S. N. G. }
SYRACUSE, Dec. 30, 1863. }

To JOHN T. SPRAGUE, Adjutant General of the State of New York :

Sir—Pursuant to section 527 of the General Regulations, I have the honor to submit the following report :

In June last I assumed command of the 24th brigade of the National Guards of this State. It then numbered two regiments, consisting of twelve companies of infantry and one of artillery—in all between four and five hundred men. Since then three new regiments have been organized and the two old ones filled up, and now comprises 46 companies of infantry and one battery—in all about 3,000 men, who can be relied on to answer any call made by the Commander-in-chief.

The several commandants of regiments in this brigade having forwarded their reports to your office, I beg leave to refer you to their statements for the more minute condition of my command as to strength and equipment. In this connection, I would also state, that the Inspector General of the State, Gen. Josiah T. Miller, is at this time making an inspection of the brigade by companies. In July last, the services of the 48th regiment, this brigade, were required by the sheriff of the county of Oswego, for the purpose of preserving the peace and preventing an imagined riot. The regiment responded, and on report to me, was ordered to hold itself in readiness to preserve the peace and good order of the city and county of Oswego. A conflict of authority arose between the colonel of said regiment and the sheriff of said county, which resulted in disobedience of the orders of said colonel by some of his subordinate officers, which has been brought before a court-martial, the result of which is on record in your department.

About the same time the sheriff of the county of Onondaga made a requisition upon me for forces to protect the city of Syracuse from supposed disturbances likely to arise during "the draft." Col. J. Dean Hawley commanding the 51st regiment, by my orders, detailed several companies of his command to meet the emergency. They were on duty some twelve days and nights, and were personally visited by myself, and I desire to speak most favorably of their promptness and efficiency.

On the 16th day of July last, orders were received from the Commander-in-chief to forward a portion of my command to the city of New York to assist in suppressing a riot. Such orders were received between 11 and 12 o'clock, P. M., and next morning at 9 o'clock, A. M., there were about 400 men in line awaiting transportation, under command of Lieut. Col. Gustavus Sniper, of the 51st regiment. They proceeded on their way so far as Binghamton, when, upon a counter order, they returned to this city. The alacrity with which the officers and men responded to the call was highly creditable, and received my warmest commendation.

There have been no brigade or regimental drills since I took command, for the reason that the regiments were not fully organized or in a condition for drill until the season was passed in which it would answer to bivouac citizen soldiery, and the State was without tents and camp equipage for an encampment. In the months of October and November I had an officers' drill lasting three days each, for the 75th, 85th, and 88th regiments. The 51st regiment has an officers' drill once in each week, to be continued during the winter season. The 48th regiment is now about to adopt the same course of instruction. I think these drills are of much benefit in disciplining the officers, and believe that when required for active service, much good will be found to have accrued from this system. The supervisors of the county of Onondaga have, in accordance with the law of 1862, provided armories in each of the company districts for drill, care of arms, and other property in the possession of the company and belonging to the State. The supervisors of the county of Oswego, in which is located the 48th and 88th regiments, have neglected or refused to provide armories, and I have instructed the commandants of companies to proceed, in accordance with the law of 1862, to provide their companies with armories. The uniforms manufactured for this brigade have not yet been received, but are in New York city in the possession of the Quartermaster General, awaiting the approval of my requisition by the Inspector General.

I cannot allow the opportunity to pass without expressing my pride and admiration at the promptness with which the young men of the counties of Onondaga and Oswego volunteered to organize the several regiments composing the brigade; and I beg leave to assure you that they will always be ready on call, to obey the orders of their Commander-in-chief, and to vindicate the dignity of the State.

I have the honor to be, General,

Yours, very truly,

JNO. A. GREEN,

Brigadier General, commanding 24th Brigade N. Y. S. N. G.

REPORT OF COLONEL MARSHALL LEFFERTS, OF SERVICE OF THE SEVENTH REGIMENT, NEW YORK STATE NATIONAL GUARD.

HEADQUARTERS N. Y. N. G.,
NEW YORK, October —, 1863. }

J. T. SPRAGUE, Adjutant General:

Sir—I have the honor to report that on the morning of the 16th June I received the following telegram:

ALBANY, June 15th, 7:15 o'clock, P. M.

To Col. MARSHALL LEFFERTS, 7th Regiment, N. Y. S. N. G.:

The Governor desires to know immediately how soon the Seventh regiment can be in readiness to move to Philadelphia. Cannot the Seventh be the first regiment?

(Signed) J. B. STONEHOUSE,

A. A. Adjutant General.

As I was absent from the city, I did not receive this dispatch until the next morning at 10 o'clock, when I answered as follows:

NEW YORK, June 16th, 10 o'clock, A. M.

J. B. STONEHOUSE, A. A. Adjutant General, Albany:

Have just arrived in the city, and have your telegram. I presume I can move with my regiment this evening. In order to carry full compliment of men, it is necessary that I should be able to state to them definitely the time they will be required to be absent, and it will be difficult for them to remain any length of time, leaving on such short notice. Can they volunteer without being mustered into the service of the U. S.?

M. LEFFERTS,

Col. Com'dg 7th Regiment,

To which I received the following answer:

ALBANY, June 15th, 10:55 o'clock, A. M.

To Col. M. LEFFERTS:

The Governor directs that you proceed forthwith with your regiment, as full as possible, to Harrisburg, Penn., and report to

Maj. Gen. Couch. They volunteer for a time not to exceed three (3) months' service, most likely not more than thirty days will be required. Requisition for transportation will be made upon Major Van Vliet, No. 6 State street, and for subsistence upon Col. A. B. Eaton, 7 State street.

(Signed) JOHN T. SPRAGUE,
Adjutant General.

Upon receipt of this telegram, my order for assembling the officers and men was promulgated, and requisition made for transportation to be in readiness, and should have taken our departure, but Gen. Hall, who did not know of my orders to move immediately, went to the armory and dismissed the men until the following morning, of which I promptly advised you by telegraph.

At an early hour on the morning of the 17th of June we left the city, via. Amboy, with a total of 583 men, but in consequence of delays on the road did not reach Philadelphia until late in the afternoon. At this point I was requested to report to Col. Ruff, U. S. A., commanding at Philadelphia, who informed me that I should proceed to Baltimore in conformity to the following order:

HEADQUARTERS, PHILADELPHIA, }
PENN., June 17, 1863. }

To Commanding Officer 7th Regiment, N. Y. S. M.:

Sir—You will proceed without delay to Baltimore, Md. Report on the arrival of your regiment to Maj. Gen. Robert Schenck, U. S. V., commanding that military depot. Transportation is provided for your regiment via the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore railroad.

By command of

Maj. Gen. HALLECK,
General-in-Chief.

C. S. RUFF,

Lt. Col. 3d Cavalry, U. S. A., Com'dg Phila.

Although I had your order to proceed to Harrisburg, I could not doubt you would desire me to go where there was the most need of my services, and at once marched my regiment forward, sending you the following notification of this change:

PHILADELPHIA, June 17, 1863—midnight.

J. T. SPRAGUE, A. G.:

I have received orders from Maj. Gen. Halleck to proceed to Baltimore, and the regiment is now on the cars ready to proceed to that city. I presume this will receive the sanction of the Governor.
[Assem. No. 80.]

M. LEFFERTS,

Col. Com'dg 7th Reg't.

Upon arrival at Baltimore I reported to Maj. Gen. Schenck, and was ordered on duty in the city for that night and following day, when we were directed to relieve the 129th regiment, N. Y. S. V., Col. Porter, at Fort Federal Hill. We remained at this fort until the 5th of July, during which time we were actively engaged on outpost and other duty, being frequently reduced to 150 men in the fort. On the 5th of July we were ordered to report to Gen. Briggs, and proceed to Frederick, Md., in light marching order, leaving tents, knapsacks and baggage behind. This order was received during the night, and although two of our outposts were distant nine and twelve miles, respectively, they were called in, and the regiment moved from the fort at 8 o'clock, A. M., in a drenching rain. At Monocacy Junction we were detained some time awaiting the decision of, I believe, Maj. Gen. Meade, whether the troops then on the road should go to Harper's Ferry. Finally we received orders to march to Frederick city (by order), leaving two detachments for duty near that city. The regiment went into camp on the road to Harper's Ferry. We were here assigned to the 3d army corps, army of the Potomac. On the 8th of July, by the following order, I assumed command of Frederick, relieving Gen. French, who was ordered to the command of the 3d army corps:

HEADQUARTERS, FREDERICK CITY, }
July 8, 1863. }

Special Order, No. 24:

II. Col. Lefferts, New York 7th regiment, is detailed on special duty in Frederick city. Col. Lefferts will make such arrangements for guarding the depots and for the police required for the city, as he may deem necessary.

III. Maj. H. A. Cole, Maryland cavalry, will report to Col. Lefferts for instructions.

IV. The battalion—14th Mass. H. A.—under Major Rolfe, now on duty at Monocacy Junction, will be relieved by a detachment from the 7th regiment N. Y., after which Major Rolfe will report to these headquarters in person.

By order,

Major General FRENCH.

As Monocacy Junction was made the grand depot for the Army of the Potomac, and a large portion of the army then moving through Frederick to South Mountain—Hagerstown—and pressing the rebel army to Williamsport, our duties were active, and I trust faithfully performed. On July 14th, I received the following order at 4 o'clock, P. M., called in the various detachments, and marched to Monocacy Junction.

HEADQUARTERS, FREDERICK, July 14, 1863.

Col. LEFFERTS, Com'g 7th Regt, N. Y. S. M.:

Sir—Major General Halleck directs that the 7th regiment, N. Y. S. M. be sent to New York by railroad, to report to Major General Wool. You will please take immediate measures to carry out this order.

ED. SCHRIVER,

I had been already notified, by telegraph, of the disgraceful riot in New York city, and on the receipt of the foregoing order made all haste in its execution. Detachments were called in, and, notwithstanding the roads were very heavy from a three-days' storm, we reached Monocacy Junction in four and a half hours from the time I received the order at Frederick city. I had sent one of my staff to the Junction, to explain the necessity of the transportation being ready, but I regret to say we did not leave the Junction until 11.45 P. M., and from this hour until daylight of the 16th July, we were on the road. Receiving from his Excellency the Governor an intimation that the rails would be taken up at or near Newark, and my regiment probably attacked, which circumstance might delay my arrival in New York city, and the pressing necessity for our presence, I succeeded, with the assistance of Col. E. S. Sanford, in arranging with the authorities to transport the regiment via Amboy. Landing at Canal street, I marched up Broadway, to the headquarters of Major General Wool, at the St. Nicholas Hotel, and reported for duty. I was directed by the General to proceed to the regimental armory, and remain in readiness for immediate service. At 10 o'clock A. M., I reported to His Excellency the Governor. I will mention here, that in consequence of the order directing us to leave all baggage behind, upon our departure from Baltimore to join the Army of the Potomac, then moving upon Hagerstown, Md., my men were entirely destitute of extra clothing, and had not, at the time of their arrival in New York, changed their under clothing for a period of eleven days, during which time they had also been without even the shelter of tents. At 3 o'clock p. m. of the same day, I received the following order:

NEW YORK, July 16, 1863.

ORDER.

Col. Lefferts, of the 7th regiment, will proceed and take station with his regiment as follows: His headquarters, with one battalion, at the 18th. precinct, and one battalion, under command of the senior field officer, at the 21st precinct, the Colonel commanding both. He is charged with suppressing all mobs and riots, and will sternly use all means he has in doing so.

His district will extend from 7th street to 65th street, and he will make such further distribution of his regiment as he may think proper. He will continue in that district until he receives further orders, and will make frequent reports to these headquarters.

By command of Brevet Brig. Gen. H. BROWN.

JOHN B. FROTHINGHAM,

Lieut. Col., A. D. C., U. S. A.

Upon its receipt I at once marched my command into the district indicated, making my headquarters at the police station, 35th street, two doors from the 3d avenue. Although we were fired upon, and during the march some shots returned, yet I know of no casualties. After dusk my detachments of observation were continually annoyed by shots from the houses and other places of concealment. At 10 o'clock p. m., I directed a detachment of four companies, under command of Lieut. Col. Price, and a battery of two pieces, under command of Captain Rogers, Co. I, to pass through the district as low down as 14th street; this was promptly executed. I subjoin my report of the following morning:

HEADQUARTERS, 21ST POLICE PRECINCT, }
July 17, 1863. }

General HARVEY BROWN, Police Headquarters:

Sir—I have the honor to report the district under my charge as quiet, after 12 p. m. I was obliged to use harsh measures during the evening, but hope we shall have no further trouble.

In obedience to orders, a thorough patrol of the district between 35th street and 14th street, 3d avenue and East river, was made last evening after 10 o'clock p. m.

None of my men were injured.

MARSHALL LEFFERTS, Col. com'g 7th Regt.

During the night of the 16th, I was informed of several depositories of arms, in the custody of the mob, and accordingly, on the morning of the 17th, I proceeded, with my whole force, to 38th street and 2d avenue, and by surrounding the blocks the houses were searched. This I continued from square to square, toward 14th street, aided by an efficient platoon of police, under charge of acting-captain ——. Soon 250 arms (many of them loaded and capped), were secured, and considerable clothing which had been stolen from the store of Messrs. Brooks. At 2 o'clock p. m. of this day, I received orders from headquarters to return to the armory. On the afternoon of the 18th, I was obliged, by indisposition, to give the command to Lieut. Col. Price. From this period the regiment remained on duty, by detachments, until —, but without anything material to note.

I have the honor to be, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

MARSHALL LEFFERTS,

Colonel com'g 7th Regiment N. Y. S. N. G.

REPORT OF WM. F. BERENS, COLONEL OF THE SIXTY-FIFTH REGIMENT, N. Y. S. N. G., OF SERVICE IN PENNSYLVANIA.

GENERAL—I have the honor to submit to you according to orders from Major General Randall, my report of the services of the 65th regiment, N. Y. N. G., during the Pennsylvania campaign, 1863.

According to the best of my knowledge, the 65th regiment of the N. Y. N. G., received orders to march to Harrisburg, in the State of Pennsylvania, on the 17th day of June, 1863, the occasion being the invasion of that State by the rebel General Lee. I was appointed Lieut. Colonel of the regiment on the 18th day of June, and reported on the same evening to Colonel Jacob Krettner, commander of the regiment. June 19th at 9 o'clock, A. M., the regiment marched for Harrisburg, taking the cars at Buffalo, of the Erie railway company; upon our departure the regiment contained 382 men; arrived at Harrisburg on the 20th, in the afternoon, and was ordered to Camp Curtin; drew and pitched tents; Quartermaster R. Flack (65th N. Y. N. G.) drew blankets for the men, which came handy, as a heavy rain storm set in that night. Some of the tents blew down, and although the men generally were wet, they maintained good spirits.

On the 21st of June the weather broke fine with the morning. The regiment drew their arms, clothing, and camp and garrison equipage, and regular camp guards were established. During the day Lieutenant Zimmerman arrived from Buffalo with twenty-five (25) additional men who belonged to the regiment.

On the 22d day of June Colonel Krettner was furloughed on account of sickness, and returned to Buffalo, whereupon I assumed command of the regiment.

June 23d, the artillery company belonging to this regiment, Capt. Philip Houck, was attached to the 4th regiment, New York artillery, and the day following sent to Fort Washington. The 65th, after such detachment, and the 74th regiment N. Y. N. G., were then formed into a brigade called the 31st brigade N. Y. N. G., of which Col. Watson A. Fox, of the 74th took command.

June 24th at 8 o'clock, P. M., the brigade received orders from Gen. Couch to proceed to Mount Union and report to Col. Hawley; at 9 o'clock, A. M. the next day, the brigade started from Camp Curtin, taking the cars of the Pennsylvania Central railroad, and arrived at Mount Union at 10 P. M. the same day; reported to Col. Hawley, my regiment encamped in a stone yard near a large railroad bridge over the Juniatta river; I detailed two companies, A and B, with instructions to guard the bridge, and sent out pickets to several important points.

On the 26th, at 3 o'clock, P. M., I received orders from Col. Hawley to go out on picket duty, at a place called Bell's Mills, nine miles distant, to guard a mountain pass leading to Blacklog and Cumberland valleys. Leaving company A, Capt. Sieber, and company B, Capt. S. Krettner, at Mount Union in company with the 74th regiment, I then proceeded with the rest of my command to Bell's Mills, Huntington county, arriving there at about dark. I then proceeded to establish pickets at different passes and points, extending two or three miles through the mountains and forests. A considerable portion of the night was consumed in this way. Upon my arrival at Bell's Mills I found the inhabitants in great excitement, if not alarm; they were on the point of deserting their homes, and many of them busily engaged removing their stock and other property. Here our troops received valuable assistance from Mr. David Bell, the proprietor, I believe, of the mills; I was also indebted to him for valuable information concerning the roads and passes. By his activity and influence, the farmers and people of that section were got out and assisted in obstructing the roads and passes by piling logs and felling trees. I continued on this duty with my men till the 5th day of July, when I received orders to report to Col. Hawley. I returned to Mount Union and encamped on the ground of the 74th, which had left with Col. Hawley's regiment for Chambersburg. The ensuing day, (6th of July,) mustered into the United States service for thirty days from June 19th, ultimo, and I was appointed commander of the post, with Capt. Horace Thomas as post adjutant.

On the 8th of July I received orders from Col. Hawley and Col. Fox to send them 3,000 rations; I immediately impressed farmers' teams sufficient for the purpose and started the rations forward. On several different days while at Mount Union, rebel stragglers came within our lines, and were despatched under guard to headquarters. On the 11th day of July 350 rebels were brought in by a part of an Ohio regiment; many of them were badly wounded. Our surgeons attended to them and they were forwarded to headquarters.

At 11 P. M., orders came from Gen. Couch to report with my command at Bridgeport, to Gen. Hall, commanding at Fort Washington. At 7 A. M. next morning took the cars, arriving at Bridgeport at 5 P. M., and reported. I remained with my command at Bridgeport doing guard duty till the 14th, at 7 P. M., when I was ordered by Gen. Hall to proceed to the city of New York. By great activity and exertion a train of cars was got together and provided for the next morning. At 4 o'clock, A. M., July 15th, I put my men on board the cars, leaving our camp and garrison equipage at Fort Washington, and arrived at the city of New York at about 5 o'clock, P. M. Before leaving Fort Washington a battery of four howitzers belonging to the 8th N. Y. N. G., was attached to my command. On arriving in New York I immediately marched my command to headquarters, reporting to Gen. Wool in person. On the way from the dock a large mob gathered about and attempted to get possession of two negroes who were serving with the artillery company of the 8th N. Y. N. G., as cooks. I protected them from harm by placing them amidst the battery and protecting the same by a company thrown on either flank.

Upon reporting to General Wool I was ordered to take quarters at Centre Market, and to report to General Harvey Brown, which I did. Pursuant to orders from General Brown; the same evening I sent two companies to guard the Treasury Buildings, on Wall street, viz., company E, Captain Wagner, and company H, Captain Schaefer, and two other companies, along with some United States troops to restore order in the vicinity of Union square, viz., company A, Captain Sieber, and company D, Capt. Geyer.

On the morning of the 16th of July, pursuant to orders which I had received from General Brown, at 7 o'clock I set out with my companies not theretofore detailed as above set forth, and the howitzers. Passed through to the Hotchkiss shell factory, on 24th street, and left company B, Captain L. Krettner, and one of the howitzers at that point. I then passed on with the remaining companies of my command and two of the howitzers for my next point of destination, Seward's shell factory on 17th street. While my men were passing down 17th street the mob gathered about in a threatening manner, but no violence was committed. At Seward's shell factory I stationed company F, Lieut. Myers commanding, with one of the howitzers. I then passed on up Avenue A, with company G, Captain Retel, and a howitzer, towards Jackson's shell factory, on 28th street, where I was to make my headquarters. On arriving at the corner of Avenue A and 22d street, I was fired into by the mob. I wheeled my men into line to return the fire, and the mob skedaddled. I then passed on a block further, to the corner of 23d street, when the mob gathered in upon my company from both directions on 23d street, and commenced at once to fire upon us. I returned the fire, and kept up street firing, until I arrived at 28th street. Finding my small company of only twenty-eight men, besides the men serving the howitzer, too small to disperse so large a mob as had collected, I despatched Quartermaster Flack to headquarters, on Mulberry street, for reinforcements. The mob seemed to be very generally armed. I then fought my way through the mob to the factory. One of my men was wounded, and several of the crowd were killed and wounded by our fire. On arriving at the factory we found the door closed. I forced the door and took possession.

The mob gathered heavy around the factory and fired upon us. We returned their fire, and afterwards sallied out upon them and drove them up Twenty-eighth street, as far as the corner of First avenue, and dispersed them.

At 2 o'clock p. m. Quartermaster R. Flack arrived with companies A and D. At about 5 p. m. a priest came to me as a commissioner from the riotous populace, and urged me to quit the factory and return, stating the people agreed that if I did so the factory should not be injured. He stated further that the crowd threatened that if we did not leave they would burn us out. He implored me to accept the proposal, saying that he feared for the worst consequences; that the mob was about 4,000 strong, altogether too large for my weak force to resist, and that he could not control or restrain them. I reported the offer made to me by the priest to General Brown. His answer was, to hold the place at all events, and to disperse the assemblage about me at the point of the bayonet, if necessary. Previous to the receipt of this response from General Brown, however, having refused the offered compromise, and the priest having retired beyond the reach of harm, and the crowd gathering heavily around the building we occupied, I found it necessary to open fire upon them, which was kept up until our assailants were driven back behind the corners of the neighboring streets.

The next morning I received orders from Gen. E. R. S. Canby (General Brown having been relieved by him), notifying me that the large meeting taking place at the residence of Archbishop Hughes, was held for the purpose of aiding in the restoration of law and order, and directing that care should be exercised not to molest persons passing to and from, and to pay no attention to harsh words, only interfering when actual force or violence should occur.

At 1 o'clock at night I was relieved, by orders from headquarters, by the 152d regiment of N. Y. volunteers.

Saturday, July 18.—About 2½ a. m. I reported to Gen. Canby, at his headquarters. Quartered my regiment in an empty house and a part in a church near by for the remainder of the night. After daybreak I sent companies A and B to the Gas-works, near East river. On the 19th I reported with my command to his Excellency Gov. Seymour. On the 20th, by order of Governor Seymour, I started with my command for Buffalo, where trouble was apprehended, arriving at that city on Tuesday afternoon, the 21st of July. My regiment was quartered in the New York State arsenal in Buffalo, my men remaining under arms and in the United States service till the 30th day of July, when the regiment was mustered out of the U. S. service.

I cannot omit to praise the promptness of the N. Y. Central Railroad Company, in forwarding us comfortably and rapidly through to the city of Buffalo, and to acknowledge the kindness with which we were received by the common council and citizens of Buffalo upon our arrival.

SPECIAL ORDER No. 2.

In pursuance of Special Order No. 296, dated June 16, 1863, from the Commander-in-chief, Col. Chauncey Abbott, 67th regiment, will order his regiment to prepare for immediate service.

By order of Major General NELSON RANDALL.

RUFUS L. HOWARD,

Division Inspector.

The above special order was received on the evening of the 16th, and orders were immediately issued to the several commandants of companies belonging to the 67th regiment, to notify their several commands, and although the regiment is scattered over a large tract of country, comprising the south towns in Erie county and the whole of Wyoming county, through the prompt action of the officers and non-commissioned officers of the regiment, the whole command was immediately notified and in readiness for the emergency.

To Col. CHAUNCEY ABBOTT, 67th Regt N. Y. S. N. G.:

You are hereby ordered to report to me, with your command, at Buffalo (corner of Exchange and Michigan streets), on Thursday, the 25th inst., at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and in readiness to proceed to New York. Transportation and subsistence will be furnished here on your arrival. The regiment will be supplied with uniforms and equipments by Quartermaster and Commissary Generals in the city of New York. Commissioned officers will appear in uniform, as far as possible.

By order of Major General NELSON RANDALL.

R. L. HOWARD,

Division Inspector.

The last order, which at once decided the destination of the 67th regiment, brought also with it relief to those composing said regiment, as suspense was worse than active duty, under our peculiar circumstances. And now, truly may it be said of the 67th, that active duty commenced, as it was necessary to issue orders, and have each member notified and at Buffalo in two days from the receipt of the last order. When it is remembered that most of the members of the command are men of middle age, and with families and farms which must be left, and to a great extent neglected during their absence, they being for the most part engaged in agricultural pursuits, and their presence so much needed at home at this season of the year, too much praise cannot be awarded them for their prompt response to the call made by the Executive of the State for their services in the hour of danger. Notwithstanding all the difficulties to be overcome, the 67th regiment, 300 strong, was in Buffalo and left for Harrisburgh, Pa., at the time appointed, a thing which had not occurred before during the rebellion, as was stated by the commanding general of the division.

The 67th regiment, N. Y. S. N. G., left Buffalo for Harrisburgh, Pa., June 25th, 1863, at 3 o'clock P. M., numbering 300, with 3 days' rations, under the following officers :

Chauncey Abbot, Colonel commanding,
Houghton S. Clough, Lieutenant Colonel,
George W. Gilman, Major,
Lucius H. Abbott, Engineer,
Dewitt C. Welch, Adjutant,
George Abbott, Surgeon,
John McBeth, Assistant Surgeon,
Orrin S. Washburn, Quartermaster,
James H. Beebe, Quartermaster Sergeant,
Fayette Baker, Sergeant Major,

Charles F. Goodman, Hospital Steward,
 Marcus Field, Commissary Sergeant.

Company A—Timothy G. Grannis, Horace Holmes, Isaac Gale.

Company B—Brailey K. Buxton, Marcus Swurt, Wm. H. Hall.

Company C—Wm. H. Candee, Wm. W. Hammond, Jared Matteson.

Company D—Myron Stilwell, Benjamin Baker, Isaac E. Webster.

Company F—Lott Shaw, Stafford J. Godfrey.

Company G—Myron L. Fargo, James Wilkin, N. Jackson Morris.

Company H—Lysander Needham, James A. Cranston, Hosea
 S. Heath.

Company I—Frederick Thorp, Ira H. Toms.

Company R—Dewitt C. Corbon, Delos D. Darrow, Wheeler C.
 Holmes, Wm. R. Whitney.

Company L—John P. Bartlett, Oliver G. Rowley :

And proceeded to Elmira, when they were joined by the 68th regiment, under command of Col. David Forbes, and arrived at Harrisburg about 11 o'clock, P. M. After reporting to the proper officers, we were ordered to march to Camp Curtin, about two miles distant, to take up our quarters for the night, without blankets, in tents that had been previously occupied, but deserted, with no other preparation than a cold, drenching rain which had been falling during the day. After much earnest solicitation and delay, we were allowed the hospitalities of the streets and depot, but were not allowed the cars to rest in, although it was a cattle train which we arrived on. Next morning (Saturday) we marched to Camp Curtin, where we pitched our tents, drew blankets and camp equipage from the government, and tried to feel as much at home as we could under the circumstances. At the time of our arrival at Harrisburg all was excitement and consternation. Business, except so far as the army was concerned, was almost entirely closed, and although the enemy were said to be in the immediate vicinity, I did not see but one company of the citizens of Harrisburg organized and on duty for the defense of their own city, and that was a small company of Americans of African descent, drilling under some shade trees in front of the capitol. However, we had a good number of officers belonging to Pennsylvania, so we got along very well. Do not think that Harrisburg was left to become an easy prey to Lee and his rebel hosts ; for on our arrival there we received a hearty greeting from many of our citizen soldiers from the city and State of New York, whose patriotism and military skill reflected the highest honor upon the State from which they came. Our labors commenced with our first day's occupation at Camp Curtin. At night, a detail of 25 men was made upon the regiment to go to Fort Washington, across the river, a distance of some three miles, to fell trees and otherwise obstruct the roads over which the enemy were expected to pass. When the call was made for volunteers, instead of 25 men 75 went on that duty. The next evening (Sunday) the whole regiment was ordered over, and under orders received from Brig. Gen. J. C. Smith, commanding 2d brigade, 1st division, they were instructed to level to the ground every tree, and remove all obstacles in the range of the guns on the fortifications. During the long hours of that eventful night the 67th stood nobly to their work outside the defences, while the attack was every moment expected. The fortune of war in some way changed Lee's designs upon Harrisburg, and thus we escaped the conflict which was gathering and seemed ready with all its fury to burst upon us. During the remaining period of our service we remained at Camp Curtin, acting as guards and working parties, as large amounts of ordnance and commissary stores were being forwarded. Each day from 25 to 50 men were detailed from our regiment for such service. Every call and order was promptly met, and when we left we had the assurance of the best wishes of those in command at that post.

[Copy Special Order, No. 39.]

HEADQUARTERS DEPARTMENT OF THE SUSQUEHANNA.

The 67th regiment, N. Y. S. N. G., Col. Abbott commanding, will proceed without delay by rail, from camp Curtin to Buffalo, N. Y., and be mustered out of the service of the United States. All government property, including blankets received from the quartermaster, ordnance and commissary departments, excepting clothing, will be turned over to the chief of those departments at these headquarters. The men must be supplied with three day's cooked rations.

Lieut. Col. A. Thompson, chief of Quartermaster's department, will furnish the necessary transportation.

By command of Major General Couch.

JOHN S. SCHULTZE, A. A. G.

[Official—A. C. Mager, Adjutant Camp Curtin.

Immediately on the receipt of the above order, the 67th regiment left Harrisburg for Buffalo, where it arrived in safety after an absence of about thirty days. Although nearly every member of the regiment was sick during our short stay in camp, through the untiring efforts of the surgeons no deaths occurred, and we were all permitted again to join our families. I have no words to express the kind feelings I entertain towards all those under my command for their kind efforts in enabling me to carry out faithfully and promptly every order that was made upon the regiment.

Elmira to Harrisburg, Pa., and report to Major General Couch, commanding. Arms and camp equipage will be supplied in Harrisburg. General Randall will make the necessary requisitions upon Captain Sheldon Sturgeon, U. S. A., mustering and disbursing officer at Buffalo, for transportation direct to Harrisburg and call upon him for the necessary subsistence.

 FREDONIA, June 17, 1863. }

In pursuance of special orders, No. 296, and special orders No. 3, headquarters 8th division, Major General Nelson Randall, commanding, the officers, non-commissioned officers, musicians and privates, will forthwith report at these headquarters, Fredonia, for duty, for the purpose of proceeding to Harrisburg, Pa. Commandants of companies will immediately promulgate this order to their respective commands and report to me forthwith the number of effective men in their companies, with muster rolls made complete. Non-commissioned, staff and musicians, will report to Adjutant Francis L. Norton. Commissioned officers will appear uniformed and equipped—all others in citizens dress, as uniforms and equipments will be furnished in Harrisburg. Commandants will enlist for three months, all able bodied men who desire to enter the service, thereby increasing the number of the regiment.

Each soldier should be provided with two shirts, two pairs of drawers, two pairs of socks, one towel, comb, soap and knapsack or satchel, which, with its contents, should be as light as possible.

The citizens of Chautauqua county are requested to use every effort to add to the ranks of the 68th regiment under this order, thereby, as is believed, lessening the number of men liable which are to be raised under the conscription act.

On Thursday, June 25, 1863, at 2 o'clock, P. M., the regiment was formed, and immediately marched to Dunkirk, a distance of three miles, where it arrived at 3½ o'clock, and by special train left Dunkirk via Erie railway for Harrisburg, Penn., at 4 o'clock, P. M.; arrived at Elmira, N. Y., at day break, on the morning of the 26th June, 1863. Much credit is due to the Erie railway company, and particularly superintendent H. G. Brook and dispatcher Thomas C. Thompson, for the interest manifested in furnishing the regiment with comfortable and even splendid accommodations. Were detained at Elmira about two hours waiting for transportation to Harrisburg, where we arrived on Friday the 26th inst., about 12 o'clock at night; were obliged to lodge the men in the depot until morning. On Saturday morning at 7 o'clock, the regiment was marched to Camp Curtin, a distance of 1½ miles, were shown the ground they were to occupy, and furnished tents by Capt. —. The camp ground was very muddy owing to the late heavy rains, but notwithstanding, the men went to work with a will, and in a short time presented a respectable camp, which, from its regularity and soldierly appearance elicited a very flattering notice from the officers in command of Camp Curtin.

At 3 o'clock, P. M., of the 27th inst., orders were received from Col. Beers, commanding officer of the camp, for a detail of seventy-five men from the regiment for chopping duty. Col. Forbes refused to furnish the detail owing to his men not having had any rest for the last two nights, unless it was by special request and favor from Gen. Couch. In about three quarters of an hour an order was received from Gen. Couch, saying it would be deemed a special favor. Col. Forbes immediately ordered the detail which was promptly and cheerfully responded to by the various companies. Capt. J. M. Stedman of company A, was placed in command of the detail. Col. Forbes then made requisition for blankets and axes. The detail left Camp Curtin about 5 o'clock, P. M., marched over the river and reported to Gen. Jesse C. Smith, who assigned them the place. The men hung their axes and chopped twelve acres that night and returned to camp before sunrise the next morning without a scratch, and with the handsome compliment from Gen. Smith that it was the most and best work done by the number of men he ever saw.

On Sunday the 28th, at 9 o'clock, A. M., the companies were formed in their respective streets, and were mustered into the service of the United States for thirty days, from the 25th inst., by Capt. Dodge, U. S. A., and immediately thereupon requisitions were made and filled for uniforms, camp and garrison equipage.

On Monday the 29th inst., requisition was made and filled for arms and ammunition, 40 rounds of ball cartridge to each man.

On Tuesday June 30th, the following order was received :

Special Orders, No. 20: (Extract.)

HEADQUARTERS DEP'T OF THE SUSQUEHANNA, }
June 30th, 1863. }

Part I.—The 68th regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., Col. D. S. Forbes commanding, will report at once to these headquarters, fully armed and equipped, for field service.

The men will carry three days' rations in their haversacks, and forty rounds of ammunition in cartridge boxes.

By command of Maj. Gen. D. N. Couch.

JNO. S. SCHULTZE, Major, A. A. G.

(Official)—A. C. MAGER, Adjutant; Col. JAMES A. BEAVER.

The line was immediately formed, and reported forthwith to Gen. Couch in obedience to above special orders No. 20, when the following order was received:

HEADQUARTERS DEPARTMENT OF THE SUSQUEHANNA,
 HARRISBURG, June 30th, 1863.

Col. FORBES, 68th Vol. N. G.:

You will proceed with your regiment to Stinson's Ferry, near Highspire. Find out about the ford there and others in the vicinity down the river. Keep your men in hand to resist any attempt at crossing. In no event must an enemy cross. Use the canal for rifle-pits. There will be no difficulties in your work. In connection with the cavalry, you will take command and patrol and watch well down the river, seeing all boats, allow no communication with the other side. Arrest all suspicious persons; and, in general, watch guard and protect the people; allow no marauding. I shall hold you responsible, and expect you to do all that men can do for the interest of the service.

By command

Maj. Gen. COUCH.

Jno. S. SHULTZE, Maj., A. A. G.

The regiment left Harrisburg, pursuant to above orders, about 3 o'clock, P. M.; marched to Highspire, a distance of eight miles; formed a junction with the cavalry company then patrolling the river, also a company of minute men stationed at Middletown, four miles below; established my headquarters at Highspire in a church; patrolled the left wing, and established sentinel posts along the river in connection with the cavalry; held the right wing in reserve at headquarters, and thereby had a connected line of sentinel posts twelve miles down the river from Harrisburg. I immediately after establishing the above connection, ordered the water drawn from the canal.

On Wednesday, July 1st, relieved the left wing by sending the right to their relief, holding the left wing in reserve; took soundings of the different fords, and made a diagram of the river, its fords, islands and accessible crossings; kept close watch upon all crossings; arrested all boats on the opposite side, and retained them at Highspire; allowed no person to cross the river without a pass.

On Thursday, July 2d, placed the left wing under drill until 4 o'clock, P. M.; sent them to the relief of the right wing.

On Friday, the 3d inst., at 12 o'clock at night, a special message arrived, ordering the regiment to report at Harrisburg forthwith, which we did, whereupon the following order was received:

HEADQUARTERS DEPART OF THE SUSQUEHANNA, }
July 4, 1868. }

Col.—The Major General commanding directs that you proceed with your regiment by railroad to Carlisle, and from thence march to and report to Brig. Gen. Smith, commanding division.

You will see that your men are supplied with forty rounds ammunition and rations.

I am, Colonel,

Very respectfully,

Your obed't servant,

JNO. S. SCHULTZE,

Maj. A. A. G.

To Col. FORBES, Commanding 68th Reg't N. G. S. N. Y.

Were detained at Harrisburg waiting for transportation until 4 o'clock, P. M., of Saturday the 4th inst. Arrived at Carlisle at 11 o'clock of the same night. The bridge having been burned and track torn up, were obliged to camp in a meadow, about a mile out of Carlisle.

On Sunday, the 5th, forded the river; received two days' rations of Captain Thompson, at Carlisle, which, however, could not be obtained until 10 o'clock of that day. Made application for transportation to assist the command in the march.

By order of Major Burt, then acting as provost marshal at Carlisle, who was instructed by Gen. Smith to direct regiments where to report to him, the regiment was to march out on the Walnut Bottom road, but by direction of Major Burt the regiment took the Carlisle and Gettysburgh pike, ordered to cross to the Walnut Bottom road, about five miles out of town, which brought us at night, where we camped, near the stone tavern, about five miles out of Carlisle, having traveled ten miles to get there. This proved to be one of the hardest day's march the regiment endured during the whole service. From exposure to the rain the night previous, the intense heat of the sun, and the want of transportation, whereby they were obliged to carry everything, the men soon gave out, and the command was obliged to halt early.

At Carlisle, Col. Forbes detailed Quartermaster Mullet, Sergeants Lester, Prichard and Barnum, to take charge of camp and garrison equipage, and send back to Harrisburg the extra baggage, which, for want of transportation, could not accompany the regiment; also the medical stores were obliged to be left at Carlisle. In the performance of this duty the quartermaster succeeded in getting an order from headquarter at Harrisburg for one wagon to convey medical stores to regiment.

By order of Major Burt we were to report to Gen. Smith at Pine Grove.

Monday, the 6th, broke camp and marched at 5 o'clock, A. M., for Pine Grove: In the march over the mountains we took the Walnut bottom road, one mile beyond Stone Tavern, then turned off to the left over the first range of the South mountain; before arriving at South Mountain we took three deserters from the rebels, who had been secreting themselves in the woods since the Gettysburg fights, and who were anxious to avail themselves of the old flag, having become heartily sick of their wicked cause, which I sent on to Carlisle under guard that was returning with some twenty of the same description. By this means I did not lessen the number of my regiment, which being small could not well be spared. Arrived at Pine Grove, a distance of nine miles, at 2 o'clock, P. M. Here we learned that General Smith had left in the morning for Newman's Gap. Our rations that were drawn at Carlisle were now exhausted.

Succeeded in getting two boxes of wet, damaged hard tack, from remnant of train that was just leaving for General Smith's division, which proved to be useless, and a little bacon, the charity of the invalids left behind from the preceding division. Halted at Pine Grove about one hour, then took up line of march for Newman's Gap.

Bivouacked about dark on the mountain at a cross roads called Quaker Valley, here the boys succeeded in obtaining two small pigs and four sheep, which were soon dressed and distributed through the regiment, and which would have done much to alleviate the hunger of the boys had we salt, but salt was out of the question, the rebels having before us, taken all they could find. The meat was soon on sticks roasting in the camp fires. As usual, after which, guard was mounted and the men sought repose. About 12 o'clock it commenced raining and rained very hard until morning.

Tuesday, July 7th, reveille at day-break, morning reports were made at 5 a. m., broke camp at 6 o'clock, and marched without breakfast on to Newman's Gap, where we expected certainly to overtake General Smith and obtain supplies. During this day's march we could obtain but little subsistence. A foraging party was sent forward under Lieut. Lewis, of company G, but could not obtain anything, they joined the regiment at 11 o'clock, A. M. We lived this day principally upon milk, and an occasional loaf of bread that the boys obtained at 6s, per loaf, and in most instances 60 cents for a canteen of milk—when it was to be found. Arrived just at dark, after a hard day's march, having traveled about twenty-seven miles through mud, with clothes and blankets wet and heavy; learned that General Smith's division had left four hours before of that day. The regiment were so much fatigued from the heavy march and absence of necessary food, that they could not proceed further that night. Obtained from stragglers left behind about sixty pounds of rusty, damaged pork, which we learned afterwards had been thrown away was all we had to eat this night. Bivouacked for the night upon same ground occupied by preceding division. On arriving at Newman's Gap, and seeing the situation of my regiment, I dispatched Lieut. Col. Swift and Lieut. Weeks, of company B, to go forward and contract subsistence for the morrow, at a settlement which I learned was four miles ahead. They returned about 10 o'clock, bringing the joyous news that they had succeeded in contracting for 150 biscuits and five loaves of bread.

Wednesday, July 8th, broke camp at nine (9) o'clock, A. M. It having rained very hard all night previous, and still raining in torrents, we were unable to leave earlier. The sick report this morning, from eating the bad pork the night before, disclosed some thirty men unfit for duty. However, I impressed two teams, travelers, to bring forward the sick and exhausted, until we arrived at the settlement where subsistence was contracted.

Marched at 9 o'clock, A. M. it still raining very hard, the officers and men all wet through to the skin, on the pike to Greenwood, arriving at the place where the bread was contracted, halted for refreshments. The amount procured but partially satisfied the hunger of the regiment, and after a rest of one hour, marched on towards Greenwood, arriving at Greenwood about half-past 2 o'clock, P. M., here we found two Pennsylvania regiments, just breaking camp, under orders to march forthwith and join General Smith's division at Franktown, distance south, eight miles. In consultation with the colonels of these regiments, they advised me to march forward to a village two miles ahead, by the name of Fayetteville, where I could obtain plenty to eat, and that the inhabitants were very hospitable, and by doing so it would be but two miles further to Funktown. Arrived at Fayetteville at about 4 o'clock, p. m., found the inhabitants as reported. Before arriving at Greenwood the rain had ceased, and the sun came out very warm, which rendered the march to Fayetteville quite oppressive. Finding the regiment so much exhausted, we bivouaced for the night, and set ourselves about drying our wet blankets. The town soon presented the appearance of a country cloth dressing establishment, our wet blankets completely covering the fences both sides of the street through the entire village. Every possible courtesy was extended to us, we were taken to their houses, fed and cared for, and in most cases without compensation. We obtained one day's ration, had a good rest, and left this pleasant village and its kind people, who will ever be remembered by the 68th regiment, with feelings of deep gratitude for their kindness and liberality.

Thursday morning, July the 9th, inst., we took up line of march for Funktown, distant nine miles. Before leaving, we took several deserters who had just arrived, which I turned over to the deputy provost, who was to send them immediately on to Chambersburg. We got under march at 7 o'clock, a. m., arrived at Funktown at 1 o'clock, p. m., halted for rest and refreshment, left at 2 o'clock, p. m., and marched on Waynesburg, distant eight miles. Arrived at Waynesburg about dark, and where we came up with General Wm. F. Smith. Six miles back, I had sent forward Lieut.-Col. Swift to report, that the 68th regiment would join his division this p. m., and to make the necessary arrangement, when and where we were to bivouac, and to what brigade we would be attached. On arriving at Waynesburg, we were welcomed by the 49th regimental N. Y. V. band, and escorted to the camp ground, situate on a high hill, one and a-half miles out of town. General Smith had by mistake, as he informed me afterwards, brigaded us with the Pennsylvania regiments then under command of Col. Brisband, acting brigadier, which was changed the next day, and we were brigaded with the following regiments New York State National Guards, the 8th, 22nd, 50th, 71st, and the 68th regiments, then commanded by Brigadier-General Joseph F. Knipe.

Applications were immediately made to the commissary department for rations, and to my surprise, I learned there was none on hand, and but a scanty supply in the hands of the different regiments constituting the division. We were obliged to make the best of what we had for the night.

Friday morning, July 10.—I renewed my application on the commissary department for supplies; was informed that government train sent to Shippensburg had not returned, but when it did my regiment would be supplied. About four o'clock, P. M., the train arrived under charge of brigade quartermaster, Capt. Chapin, of N. Y. S. N. G. I immediately obtained permission of him for four boxes of hardtack.

Saturday, July 11th, 10 o'clock A. M., the following orders were received from Brig. Gen. Knipe's aid-de-camp.

HEADQUARTERS 1ST DIVISION,
DEPARTMENT OF SUSQUEHANNA, }
WAYNESBURG, July 11, 1863.

The brigadier general commanding calls the attention of the command to the certainty of an early engagement with the enemy, and it is strictly enjoined upon brigade, regimental and company commanders to attend at once to the condition of the arms and ammunition of the men under them. No time is to be lost in putting the arms in perfect order, and seeing that the boxes are filled with cartridges. The rations on hand must be cooked and put in haversacks, so that no detention will ensue when the order to march is given, and also that the men may not suffer for food when it may be impossible for the supply trains to reach them. By order of

In pursuance of General Orders No. 13, you will have your command in readiness to march at a moment's notice.

By order of JOSEPH KNIPE,

ROBERT MURCH, A. A. A. G.

To Col. FORBES, com'g 68th reg't N. Y. S. N. G.

Preparations were immediately made to carry out the above orders. Rations were procured and cooked under the directions of Quartermaster John C. Mullett; and orders were received to form in line at 3 o'clock P. M. of the 11th inst. Here, at this time, we joined our brigade for the first time, having been separated, as before mentioned, during our stay at Waynesburg, and marched down the hill on to the road, halted for the other regiments in our brigade to come into line, where we had to wait one full hour before they came into line; a delay, I am happy to say, which the gallant 68th regiment never caused any officer or brigade while in the service, being always prompt. Preparations being completed, orders were given—Battalion, right face; forward, march—and we were off for "Dixie," our march being on the direct road to Hagerstown from Waynesburg. Our march was with quick step for the first four miles. When we arrived at the Little Antietam, a river, from the heavy rains which had fallen, had become much swollen, and was very rough and rapid, the bridge over which had been destroyed by Lee's army, on their retreat after the Gettysburgh fight, only three days before, which we had to ford. We had now advanced some two miles across the line into Maryland. After fording and getting everything across, our march was slow and cautious, being in close proximity with the rebel pickets, and every moment expecting an engagement. Marching slowly, the night very dark, mud deep, we came to a halt in an open field about 10 o'clock, where the division bivouacked for the remainder of the night, having sent out pickets and taken every precaution against a surprise. Before arriving where we bivouacked, my sickness became so severe, that I was obliged to turn over my command to Lieut. Col. Swift, and stopped, accompanied by Surgeon Strong and my servants. The night was one of great bustle and movement, the different detached regiments, with their heavy artillery, following up the retreating foe from the battle-field of Gettysburgh, together with the rumbling noise of the transportation train, made all confusion for the night.

Sunday, July 12th.—Marched at 7 o'clock A. M. Our movement to-day was through fields, and was more of a reconnoissance than otherwise, watching closely all points, and making but slow advance. Bivouacked on a high hill three miles this side and to the left of Hagerstown; a brisk and heavy cannonading going on all day. The New York troops were held at this point in reserve. The United States volunteer force, before mentioned as having passed our division the previous night, some marched direct for Hagerstown, while others marched to the left, on or towards Boonsboro'. This night we encountered one of the most terrific thunder storms ever known in this country. The 68th regiment, during the march had the right of our brigade, and we bivouacked in column by regiments.

Monday, July 13.—Broke camp at 6 o'clock A. M. Marched toward Cavetown. To-day, as usual, our advance was slow and cautious, the men being kept well in hand for an emergency. My regiment to-day showed exhaustion, and were feeble from want of necessary food, being reminded of Starvation Gap, which we had so lately passed. Cannonading opened anew at Hagerstown this morning, and was kept up briskly until 10 o'clock A. M., when it ceased altogether. The march to-day was through fields, bye roads, over hills, through valleys, stopping often to rest, but keeping a close watch on Lee's pickets, who, as we advanced, slowly retired. Bivouacked for the night four miles this side of Boonsboro', and to the right, on a hill commanding a good view of surrounding country.

Tuesday morning, July 14.—Orders were received from headquarters, at an early hour, to have arms inspected, 40 rounds in cartridge boxes, and be in readiness at a moment's notice, as an engagement was momentarily expected. While all was bustle and preparations, I came up, having been absent from my command Saturday night, July 11th, up to Monday, July 13th, one day and two nights. Monday I rode forward, accompanied by the surgeon; had to be lifted into the saddle; remained in saddle until 3½ o'clock P. M.; came up with division while resting in a beautiful grove, ten miles distant, and near Lightersville; saw all was moving on properly; passed on ahead one mile; stopped at a private house, accompanied by the surgeon, where we remained until 5 o'clock the next morning; reasons: being too weak and feeble to take command. Tuesday morning, 5 o'clock A. M., I was helped into the saddle and went up to the regiment, where I found them bivouacked upon an open hill in direction of Boonsboro. Here, on coming up to my regiment, I was cheered, and almost every conceivable expression of joy was manifested.

Preparation having been completed, and at 9 o'clock A. M. news was brought into camp that Gen. Lee's army was retreating, and our division was ordered to march forward and join Gen. Meade's corps d'armée on the centre, by way of the Baltimore and Williamsburg pike; and in the direction of Williamsburg. Line was immediately formed and we took up line of march at a quarter past 9 A. M.

Gen. Knipe, who had been in command of our brigade up to this time, was relieved from duty; Col. Varian, of the 8th N. Y. N. G. was placed in command. Arriving at the pike, through the fields, we came in full view of the advanced portion of the army of the Potomac. The road was one moving mass of soldiers; some marching to the right, others to the left and front, giving us to understand that Gen. Meade was preparing to follow up and attack Gen. Lee before he had time to cross the Potomac; but to our disappointment, and, I may add, chagrin, after we had marched five miles from where we started this morning we changed direction to the right, and instead of being drawn up in line of battle, as we had anticipated, were marched into a wheat field and bivouacked for the afternoon and night, still hoping, and I may add, praying, that Gen. Meade would attack the rebel lines before morning, so that the New York National Guards might have an opportunity of showing discipline, courage and ability side by side with our veteran brothers-in-arms, and to the Washington government, convincing proof that no better troops face the enemy than the New York State troops, known as "National Guards."

Wednesday morning, July 15th, the day opened pleasant; the sun came out scorching hot, and we were all excitement what was to be done next; when in came a messenger from Gen. Smith announcing Gen. Lee's army had crossed the Potomac, and that the emergency in Pennsylvania was over, and promulgating the following special orders :

HEADQUARTERS 1st DIVISION IN THE FIELD, }
 MARYLAND, July 15, 1863. }

Brig. Gen. John Ewen, will take command of all the New York troops in this division and proceed with them to Frederick City, Maryland, at which point transportation will be furnished them to New York city.

In parting with them the general commanding must express his admiration of the courage and fortitude with which they have stood the toils and privations of their late marches.

By order of

Brig. Gen. WM. F. SMITH, Com'dg.

PRESTON F. WEST, A. A. A. G.

To COL. FORBES, Com'dg 68th Reg't, N. Y. S. N. G.

Wednesday, July 15.—In accordance with the above orders, division was immediately formed and we took up line of march for Frederick City, distant 7 miles, at half-past 8 o'clock, A. M. Arriving at Boonsboro, I detailed Lieut. Julius J. Parker of company "A," to proceed on our back track to Harrisburg, Pa., taking one four mule team, wagon, tents, camp equipage, &c., and deliver them up to the first U. S. quartermaster's post, then proceed to Harrisburg collect all sick, stragglers, and baggage and proceed to New York city without delay; orders for transportation having been procured from Gen. Ewen to this effect. In marching on Frederick City, we took the Baltimore pike, through and over the ever to be remembered battle field of South Mountain, which still retains many land marks to refresh the memory of that hard fought and victorious battle under Gen. George B. McClellan, and where remains no doubt, rifle pits, shattered trees, broken and useless ordnance, dead horses, mules, and the many mounds where lay our dead, brave soldiers, in fact perfect desolation and ruin marks the battle field.

The march to-day was very severe, the weather being so excessively hot, the troops weak, and many sick, causing many to fall out from exhaustion, to remain by the way, and come up as best they could, many not arriving until next morning. Arrived at Frederick City just before dark, halted a few moments, then marched on towards Monocacy Junction, where we encamped in a grove, or rather open woods, three and a half miles beyond Frederick, and a half mile this side of "Junction." I cannot pass over this day's fatigues and hardships, without mention of the remarkable manner the sick soldiers of my regiment stood the march, having only the day before been reported unfit for duty. Much, no doubt, is attributable to the fact of their realizing they were going home.

Thursday, July 16.—We were obliged to remain encamped all day for want of transportation. I here obtained permission of Gen. Ewan to return by way of Harrisburg and muster out there, instead of going to New York. General Ewan, having telegraphed to New York, from this point, and received answer that the city troops would furnish all the military necessary to maintain law and order, the riot having ceased. Here I issued orders to regimental quartermaster, to turn over to the government post at Frederick City, horses, horse equipments complete, all government stores, excepting two days rations, transportation team, consisting of one four mule team wagon and driver, which was immediately done and properly receipted for. At 7 P. M., I received the following instruction from Gen. Ewan:

To COL. FORBES, Com'dg 68th Reg't:

SIR—The New York city troops will leave the Junction for New York city first; your regiment will move last.

By order of

Friday morning, July 17th.—At eight o'clock, A. M., left "Monocacy Junction" for Baltimore, arrived at B. about five o'clock, P. M., or rather at the Harrisburg and Baltimore depot. Here again we were detained about three hours for transportation. At 8 o'clock, P. M., left Baltimore for Harrisburg, arriving at Harrisburgh at 7 o'clock, A. M. Saturday morning July 18th, reported to Adjutant General, was instructed to proceed to Camp Curtin and remain until the return of General Couch, who was expected that day.

Saturday, July 18th.—Marched to Camp Curtin, drew rations, and soon had tents pitched, and awaited further order. Remained in camp until Monday, July 20th, when Major-General Couch returned, when we received orders to return all arms, equipments, camp and garrison equipage to the proper departments, and be ready to leave at 8 o'clock, A. M., July 21st, by railroad for Elmira, New York, there to be mustered out of the U. S. service.

This order, I need not say, was received with great joy and satisfaction by the entire regiment, and all was in readiness at the appointed time with one day's rations in haversacks.

We marched to the cars Tuesday, July 21, there to await transportation; we took cars at 10 o'clock, A. M.; moved over the river, where we were obliged to remain until 3 o'clock, P. M., waiting for a Pennsylvania regiment to accompany us as far as Scranton.

Wednesday morning, July 22.—Arrived in Elmira at 8 o'clock, A. M., the regiment having suffered very much with cold, from the miserable open cattle cars in which we rode.

I immediately reported to Capt. Livingston, mustering and disbursing officer at Elmira, where I received orders to march my regiment to barracks No. 3 for breakfast, and in the afternoon to march over and occupy Buffalo barracks No. 1, until mustered out. On taking possession of the latter, we found them in a miserable and filthy condition, which were soon cleaned and made quite comfortable. When application was made to Captain Livingston for blank mustering out and pay rolls, also the natural question, when in all probability the time to be mustered out would occur, was informed as soon as the pay and mustering out rolls were completed, thought it might be by Friday or Saturday of that week, this information was communicated to the regiment. Friday and Saturday arrived, mustering out rolls not completed; men coming down sick every day, all anxious to get home, together with instructions from mustering officer, that the uniforms were to be deducted from the pay of each soldier, which last question was under controversy and not yet decided, all tended to create great uneasiness and dissatisfaction.

Thursday, July 23.—I telegraphed Adjutant General J. T. Sprague for instruction, at which date I received the following telegraph.

ALBANY, July 23, 1863.

TO COL. FORBES, Elmira:

The mustering out and the payment of troops are entirely in the hands of the War Department, report your readiness there. It was understood that the uniforms were not to be paid for.

J. T. SPRAGUE,

Adjutant General.

The above telegraph was shown Captain Livingston, when he replied, he did not see how such an arrangement could be made, but immediately telegraphed Secretary of War, at Washington, answer was received on Monday, July 27, early in the morning, that Adjutant General Sprague was correct, the uniforms were to be furnished free. The company rolls now had to be made out over again. This was good and cheering news to the regiment, but was not sufficient to produce a quieting of the waters. No paymaster had arrived. Nor was the prospect very flattering that one would be forthcoming very soon. Yet Captain Livingston had received notice from Paymaster General that Major C. W. Campbell, Paymaster U. S. A., was ordered to Elmira, to pay off the 68th regiment, and would be there during the week, on Thursday, July the 30th, 3 o'clock P. M., rolls having been completed, reviewed and triplicate copies made; the regiment was drawn up in column by companies, and the 68th regiment was mustered out of U. S. service by Captain Livingston and his assistants. Regiment was wheeled into line, dress parade was gone through with, orders communicated to the officers, parade dismissed. I immediately after telegraphed Major General Randall, at Buffalo, if he had any further orders for the 68th regiment, and soon received the following telegram:

BUFFALO, July 30, 1863.

To Col. D. S. FORBES, Elmira:

No orders. I congratulate you on your success, your regiment is highly spoken of.

NELSON RANDALL,

Maj. Gen. 8th Division.

To go back before mustering out, I ordered Quartermaster Mullett to collect together all the blankets in the regiment, take account of them, and deliver them over to the military storekeeper, as instructed in orders from Maj. Gen. Couch, before leaving Harrisburgh. Finding the boys had become so much attached to them, and the probability of our having to remain in Elmira for a number of days yet, many being sick, and to sleep in the barracks without covering would be unnecessarily cruel, I called upon Captain Livingston and inquired if there was not some way to manage the matter so that the boys could retain their blankets. He inquired what condition they were in. I told him they were in as good condition as any blankets could be that had been slept in on the wet and muddy ground, some were probably torn, snapping them to get the water out when ordered to march, that they had been unavoidably roughly used in dirty coal and cattle cars to sleep in, and were undoubtedly very filthy, and thought the boys ought to keep them. Certain it was, that we did not know how long we would have to wait for a paymaster, if we mustered out this day, and to deprive the boys of covering during the night was severe and cruel. Captain Livingston ordered the military storekeeper to make an examination of said blankets and report immediately. While the inspection was going on, I returned to my quarters, and informed Chaplain Norton of the conversation had with Captain L., and requested him to call over to Captain Livingston's quarters, or rather office, await the return of military storekeeper, and if his views coincided with mine, to put in a word which might assist me in obtaining them. The storekeeper soon returned, and reported them very dirty, and stated they could only be issued by the government for horse blankets, and said Col. Forbes' description of them was correct. Chaplain Norton then asked, as a special favor, that the regiment be allowed to keep the blankets. Whereupon Captain L. instructed Chaplain Norton to inform Col. Forbes that he could take possession of them and return them to his regiment. The chaplain, however, immediately repaired to the barracks, informed the boys he had succeeded in getting their blankets back, and had come to say to them they might go and take them, whereupon he was loudly cheered. I should not have given this blanket transaction one thought, nor mentioned it in this report, were it not for a false impression in circulation, going to show that I did not look well to the comfort and care of my regiment, which I think cannot justly be said.

At 4 o'clock p. m., a telegram was received by Captain Livingston from U. S. Paymaster Campbell, stating he could not be at Elmira before the latter part of next week, to pay off the 68th regiment. This news caused the regiment to almost mutiny. At 5 o'clock, I called upon Capt. L., reported the disaffection going on in the regiment in consequence of being thus detained, having already been in Elmira (9) days; that I had no arms to enforce discipline, and that trouble was brewing if transportation was not furnished, and asked to be paid off at Fredonia. This proposition was not entertained at first, but, on reflection, Capt. L. concluded, if transportation could be obtained, and I would give my guarantee that there should not be any charge to the government for subsistence, he would furnish the order for transportation, and we might leave and be paid off at Fredonia at such time as Paymaster Campbell should select, which I readily agreed to. I immediately called upon General Superintendent Minot, of the Erie railway, who agreed to furnish cars and transportation to Dunkirk at any time I should say, and a special train at that. Having concluded the arrangement, time selected was 3.40 o'clock A. M. I obtained order for transportation, sent Lt. Col. Swift to notify the regiment, and detailed him with Major Barker to have the regiment at the depot at 2 o'clock A. M., in readiness to proceed to Dunkirk; left Elmira at 3.40 A. M., and arrived at Dunkirk at 10 o'clock A. M., of July 31st, 1863, with every man, I am happy to say, that went away with the 68th regiment—a miracle almost—when you take into consideration the time of the year and the hardships and privations the regiment passed through.

The regiment was paid off August 10, 1863, at Fredonia, by paymaster Campbell.

Nor can I conclude this report without expressing the obligations I am placed under by my associate field, commissioned, non-commissioned staff officers, together with the line officers, who, being all new and inexperienced, discharged their duties with marked ability, and the hardships of the campaign with courage and fortitude.

It would also afford me great pleasure to particularize in the different companies several non-commissioned officers and privates, who, from their courage and good behavior, won my admiration, but time will not permit. Especial mention is however made of Quartermaster John C. Mullett, Surgeon Strong, and Chaplain Norton, for their valuable services rendered during the entire campaign.

Permit me to hope the conduct of the 68th regiment, N. Y. S. N. G., was such, that should another emergency require their assistance, they may have gained the confidence of the Commander-in-chief sufficiently to receive his first attention.

I am sir, very respectfully, your obd't servant,

D. S. FORBES, Col. Com'g 68th Reg. N. Y. S. N. G.

To his Excellency, HORATIO SEYMOUR, Governor S. N. Y.

REPORT OF COL. WALTER A. FOX, OF THE SERVICES
OF THE SEVENTY-FOURTH REGIMENT N. Y. S. N. G.,
DURING THE CAMPAIGN IN PENNSYLVANIA, DURING JUNE AND JULY.

STATE OF N. Y., HEADQUARTERS 74TH REG. N. Y. N. G. }
BUFFALO, September 10, 1863. }

General—In compliance with your order of the 8th inst., issued in accordance with an order of His Excellency, Governor Seymour, dated June 17, I have the honor to submit the following report concerning the part taken by the 74th regiment under my command, in repelling the late rebel raid into Pennsylvania, in obedience to orders from general headquarters, dated Albany, June 16, 1863, and promulgated to me Thursday, June 18. In compliance with such orders, I immediately ordered my command to assemble at the State arsenal at 7 o'clock the following morning, June 19, for the purpose of proceeding to Harrisburg, Pa., in accordance with your orders. The line was formed at 9 o'clock, with seven companies, 374 officers and men, without arms or accoutrements, in the midst of an immense assemblage of citizens. We took up our line of march preceded by the 65th regiment, Col. Jacob Kretner, for the New York and Erie railroad, and, in company with that regiment, embarked on their cars and took our departure from Buffalo at 10 A. M. We took with us fifteen hundred cooked rations, issued by Capt. Sheldon Sturgeon, mustering and disbursing officer U. S. A.

Prior to leaving Buffalo, I ordered my adjutant, James M. Johnson, with Lieut. Elisha T. Smith, to remain for the purpose of providing for the sending forward of company R, cavalry, Capt. Alexander Sloan, who were ordered to remain until the day following as only about one half of his command had assembled, and company I, Capt. George B. Knight, of Akron, who could not join us on so short notice, it being impossible to get orders to his command until after we had left; also for the purpose of making the necessary provision for sending to the regiment such members as were unable to leave with us, but would follow soon after. We arrived in Harrisburg on Saturday, 20th inst., at 4 P. M. I immediately reported to Major Gen. Couch, commanding the department of the Susquehanna, and was ordered to camp Curtin, distant about two miles, to report to Col. Beaver, commanding the camp, where we arrived at 5 P. M., reported, drew wall tents and encamped.

Sunday, 21.—Our Quartermaster, Clark Dodge, drew two day's rations, and the day was spent in cleaning up and getting our camp in order, it having rained heavily throughout the night completely flooding the camp.

Monday, 22.—I drew from U. S. Quartermaster's department uniforms for 450 men, together with camp equipage, and from U. S. ordnance department 450 Springfield rifled muskets, in very bad order—not one musket in order, having been used by nine month's Pennsylvania volunteers. The day was spent in issuing uniforms to the men and packing up their cast off clothing, which was returned to Buffalo. Company R, cavalry, Capt. Alexander Sloan, with forty officers and men, arrived at 12 o'clock, M., and were immediately quartered in camp. Major Gen. Couch informed me that it would not be possible for the government to furnish horses for the company, and would be under the necessity of ordering their return. Upon acquainting Capt. Sloan of the facts, he informed me that his company would be unwilling to return, and if permitted to remain, would serve as infantry; whereupon I ordered necessary uniforms, arms and accoutrements, to be issued to his command; and upon consultation with Major General Couch, he approved of my action, and paid a deserved compliment to Capt. Sloan and his command and desired them to remain.

Thursday, 23.—Company I, Capt. George B. Knight, with 41 officers and men, arrived and were quartered in camp. Clothing was immediately issued to the company; I also issued arms and accoutrements to my entire command. To-day and the day following, were spent in cleaning up our muskets and accoutrements and putting them in order. Camp Curtin was under the command of Col. Beaver, to whom we were under many obligations for his kind attention to all our wants, and the gentlemanly and soldierly treatment received at his hands. We are also indebted to Capt. Ball, his gentlemanly assistant, for many favors received from him. There were 12,000 soldiers in camp, each commandant regulating his own camp, and establishing his own camp guard, without reference to any other regiment.

Wednesday, 23.—His Excellency, Gov. Curtin, in company with Col. Beaver, paid us a visit and complimented me highly upon the appearance of my command, pronouncing our camp the cleanest, best laid out and regulated on the ground, and the regiment the best disciplined and best appearing of any among the troops in camp. I thanked his Excellency for the compliment paid us, and believe that I had just cause to feel proud of the appearance of my command.

Thursday, 24.—Having been placed in command of the 31st brigade, comprising the 65th and 74th regiments, Col. Kretner of the 65th, having returned to Buffalo on account of sickness in his family, I received an order from Major General Couch to proceed the following day at 9 A. M., to Mount Union, Pa., there to report to Col. J. W. Hawley, 29th Pa., commanding the post.

Thursday, 25th.—The brigade under my command left Harrisburgh by the Pennsylvania Central railroad at 2 p. m., and arrived at Mount Union, distant eighty-six miles from Harrisburgh, at 7 o'clock p. m., where I reported to Col. Hawley, and encamped for the night.

Saturday, June 26th.—I ordered five companies of the 65th regiment, under command of Lieut. Col. Wm. F. Berens commanding the regiment, about five miles distant, to Bell's Mills, near the Juniatta river, there to establish his headquarters and picket the country in that region, and to protect the fords of the river. The remaining two companies of that regiment—Co. A, Capt. Siebert, and Co. B, Capt. Louis Kretner—I sent to guard a bridge across the Blue Juniatta, about two miles distant, also the Pennsylvania canal and locks to the village of Mapleton, about four miles distant. Three companies of the 74th regiment were, immediately on our arrival at Mount Union, sent out on picket at different points distant from two to four miles, the remaining six companies held as a reserve at Mount Union. This number out during our stay, then relieved every two days until July 5th. Mount Union is 86 miles from Harrisburgh, on the Pennsylvania Central railroad, which crosses the Blue Juniatta river by a bridge costing over one million dollars. The aqueduct of the Pennsylvania canal also crosses this river at the same point. These structures were threatened by the enemy, and their destruction would have cut off all communication between Pittsburgh and Harrisburgh; hence this place was held to be very important, and the utmost vigilance enjoined to guard it, and at the same time avoid surprise from the enemy, on the alert, and all about us.

Mount Union was occupied by the 29th Pennsylvania militia, Col. J. W. Hawley, who was in command of the post, and one company of cavalry, under the command of Capt. Morrow. Immediately on our arrival, five companies of the 29th Pennsylvania were ordered to Osbison, Pa., about thirty miles distant. Col. Hawley had two brass twelve pounders sent to him by Major General Couch, one of which was manned by picked men from my command, and placed in command of private Edward M. Allen, an experienced artillerist and member of Co. C. We were joined at Mount Union by our worthy chaplain, Rev. G. W. Heacock, D.D., and about sixty men sent to us by Adjutant Johnson and Lieut. Elisha T. Smith. It would be difficult to enumerate all the duties my regiment performed while at Mount Union; officers and men were constantly on duty. No regiment could have done more or better under the circumstances; a generous spirit of rivalry pervaded the regiment, as to who should be most active in the performance of duty.

July 2d.—At 7 o'clock p. m., Col. Hawley received a telegram from McConnellsburg, notifying him that an iron structure known as Mill Creek railroad bridge was threatened by the enemy, and that its destruction was anticipated that night by 500 of Imboden's cavalry. This bridge crosses the Juniatta river six miles from Mount Union. We had about 400 men in camp all told. On consultation with Col. Hawley, it was determined that I should make the advance and defend the bridge with 150 men; whereupon Co. D, Capt. George M. Baker, and Co. A, Lieut. John C. Nagle, with 50 men each, were detailed for this duty, and under my command left Mount Union at 9 o'clock p. m. I was accompanied in this expedition by Major Charles J. Wing and Surgeon Jacob Whittaker, of the 74th regiment. Our route was by the bridge guarded by Co. A, 65th regiment, and Major Wing was sent in advance, with orders to detach 25 men, under command of Lieut. Henry Rudolf, from that company to join us; also to go on to the village of Mapleton and call in the pickets of Co. B, 65th regiment, Capt. Lewis Kretner, which company joined us at that place. I was joined at Mapleton and vicinity by 20 farmers, who volunteered their services, as axe-men. There were four roads or passes leading over the mountains, through Bear Valley, to this bridge, and I decided to blockade these roads in the narrow passes in the mountains. Major Wing was sent with Capt. Kretner's company one mile north of Mapleton, with instructions to blockade and defend Mill Creek road. I then moved on about two miles further, and posted Co. D, Capt. Baker, in Bear Valley pass; about one half mile southeast, I posted 26 men of Co. A., under command of Lieut. Nagle; in another pass, one half mile distant from this point and half a mile higher up the mountain, was posted 25 men of Co. A., under command of Lieut. Wm. Bean. Each of these points were the narrowest in the passes—barely sufficient for four horsemen to ride abreast—and easily defended. All the roads were blockaded by felling trees across them; trees were also cut nearly off at different points 500 yards in advance, and axe-men stationed to fell them as soon as the enemy should pass, thus blockading them in; men were also stationed on the upper side of the roads and on the sides of the mountain between the two points prepared to meet them. It was impossible for a horseman to ride up or down the mountain on either side of the roads. I held twenty men, under command of Lieut. Henry Rudolf, of the 65th regiment at a convenient point, as a reserve. These dispositions were concluded at 1 A. M.

July 3d.—At two o'clock A. M., five hundred of Imboden's rebel cavalry appeared, near Bear Valley pass, within six hundred yards of the barricade, and immediately retreated, probably notified by their spies of the reception prepared for them. Having left Mount Union in great haste we were unprovided with rations, but the farmers in the vicinity brought us sufficient in the morning. We remained there until 12 M., of the 3d, when we fell back to Mount Union, where we arrived at two P. M., the distance being seven miles.

Saturday, July 4.—The regiment was this day mustered into the U. S. service by Lieut. William F. Fulton, 29th Pa., appointed by Maj. Gen. Couch for that purpose, for thirty days from June 19.

Herewith I hand you a roster of my officers and muster rolls of the several companies of my command. The day was duly celebrated by the companies of the 74th in camp, and by a dinner given by the officers, at which were present Col. Hawley, and his field and staff officers, as invited guests. The utmost good cheer and good feeling prevailed throughout the day among officers and men.

During our stay at Mount Union we were constantly active doing picket and provost guard duty; our pickets captured at sundry times, fifty-eight prisoners from Lee's army, who were sent to Maj. Gen. Couch, at Harrisburg. Several reconnoissances were made by Col. Hawley and myself, and by myself and officers, with of course some degree of profit in gaining a knowledge and familiarity with the topography of the country in that vicinity.

July 2d.—I received from the Buffalo Board of Trade five hundred dollars, and from Gen. Henry L. Lansing, one hundred dollars, generously donated and placed in my hands to be disbursed for the benefit of the brigade, but for this timely donation, my command would have suffered greatly in its subsequent marches, government not providing at all times adequate transportation and subsistence.

July 3d.—My quartermaster, Clark Dodge, a valuable man in that department, was ordered by the Chief of the Quartermaster Department of the Susquehanna to report, with five competent men, at Harrisburg, for duty in that department. Five men were accordingly detailed and he left with them on the 5th inst. Quartermaster-sergeant, S. Fred. Hartman, performed the duties of quartermaster to my entire satisfaction, until we were rejoined by Quartermaster Dodge, at Harrisburg, July 15th.

July 5.—At 3 p. m., Col. Hawley received a telegram from Maj. Gen. Couch, at Chambersburg, ordering three companies of the 29th Pa., and the 74th regiment, N. Y. N. G., to move immediately for Chambersburg, with three days cooked rations in our haversacks. At six p. m., we left Mount Union with three companies of the 29th Pa., under command of Col. J. W. Hawley, with one day's rations, not being able to get any more as the government had no more rations at this place, and took the Shurley road for Chambersburg. Our route led through Shurleyburg, Flannetsburg, Shade's Gap, Burned Cabins to Loudon, distant fifty-two miles from Mount Union, where we arrived July 7th, at six o'clock p. m., and encamped. Col. Hawley reported to Maj. Gen. Couch by telegraph at Chambersburg. In the meantime, Gen. Couch telegraphed Col. Pierce, who was at Loudon, in command of the remains of Gen. Milroy's division, instructing him to order us to Clear Spring, Md. When we arrived at Loudon we were entirely out of rations, and were only able to draw half a ration of hard tack for three days. We left Loudon July 8, at 4 p. m., and arrived at Mercersburg, seven miles, at 7 p. m., where we encamped for the night.

July 9.—At 6 a. m., left Mercersburg and arrived in Blair's Valley, within two miles of Clear Spring, at two p. m., where we encamped, distant from Loudon twenty-six miles. When at Loudon, we were joined by Capt. Paine's company of cavalry of Milroy's division.

July 10.—At 8 A. M., leaving the regiment with the 29th Pa. in camp, Col. Hawley and myself, with the advance guard of cavalry, under command of Capt. Paine, made a reconnoissance toward Clear Spring, ascertaining the position and strength of the enemy. At 10 A. M., I returned and, with my command and the 29th Pa., broke camp and moved forward. Arriving within half a mile of Clear Spring, Col. Hawley rode up and informed me that Capt. Paine's cavalry were at this moment having a skirmish with five hundred rebel cavalry.

Col. Hawley took his command and made a detour to the left, while I moved forward at double quick with my command, leaving the baggage train and guard in command of Maj. Wing, arriving at the Boonsboro road where the skirmish was in progress, the enemy made a precipitate retreat. Three of Capt. Paine's command were severely wounded, one of whom died the following day. Four of the enemy were wounded, and a rebel major's horse was shot from under him. We encamped by a spring in the woods, distant from the village and distant from the summit of the mountain called Fair View, one mile. On our arrival at Clear Spring we were entirely out of rations, and were generously supplied by the citizens of the town, a portion of which was paid for by the colonel. We ascertained that Lee's army had just arrived at Williamsport, seven miles distant, and (before the completion of the pontoon bridges,) had commenced crossing the Potomac in boats at the rate of three teams an hour. We also ascertained that Lee's pontoons were built with old canal boats and pieces of houses and lumber. The rebel General Imboden, with ten thousand cavalry, infantry and artillery were encamped within two and a half miles. From the summit of Fair View, Williamsport, a portion of the rebel forces were plainly discernable. I posted four companies of my command on picket and kept that number out during our stay at the Spring, and the greatest vigilance was exercised to guard against a surprise, having been ordered here to hold and guard this pass, (Boonsboro pike,) Clear Spring, and Fair View, until the arrival of General Kelley's division, which took place during the night of the 11th July, and early on the morning of the 12th General Kelley posted a battery on the summit of Fair View and below near the village of Clear Spring, and commenced shelling Imboden on the morning of the 12th. On the 12th Capt. Hugh Swan captured a rebel major and captain, who were not three hours from Lee's headquarters. They were sent under guard to Maj. Gen. Couch at Chambersburg.

Sunday morning, July 12.—Col. Hawley received a despatch from Col. Pierce, at Loudon, ordering the 29th Pa. regiment and my command to proceed immediately to Loudon, as that division was to leave that morning to join General Kelley's division at Clear Spring. We left at 7 A. M., and arrived at Mercersburg at 6 P. M., where we encamped for the night. At this place I detached company G, Capt. Harry Kester, who remained at Mercersburg as provost guard.

July 13th.—At 6 A. M., left Mercersburg, and when about one mile distant from this place met Col. Pierce, with Milroy's division, on his way to Clear Spring, arrived at Loudon at 10 A. M., and encamped. Col. Hawley reported by telegraph to Major General Couch at Chambersburg.

Tuesday, July 14th.—At 5 P. M., while inspecting my command, Col. Hawley received a telegram from Maj. Gen. Couch ordering me to report, with my command, to Maj. Gen. Wool, in New York city, with all possible dispatch. Major Wing was sent to Mercersburg with orders to follow with company G, Capt. Kester, and join us as soon as possible. Government not being able to furnish transportation, Lieut. Col. Sealy, Surgeon Jacob Whittaker, and quartermaster sergeant Hartman, were left to hire teams and bring on our camp equipage. Left Loudon at 8 P. M., and arrived at Chambersburg 15 miles, at two A. M., July 15, where we rested on a muddy sidewalk until six A. M., when we took up our line of march and arrived at Shippensburg, twelve miles from Loudon, at 12 o'clock, M. Left Shippensburg at 2 o'clock, P. M., and arrived at Harrisburg at 5 o'clock, P. M., same day, where we were joined by Quartermaster Lieut. Clark Dodge and his assistants, and Lieut. E. T. Smith from Buffalo; changed cars at Harrisburg, taking the road via Reading, Allentown and Easton, for New York city, where we arrived July 17, at 10 A. M., marched up Broadway and to Centre market, the armory of 8th regiment, N. Y. N. G., where we arrived at one o'clock, P. M. I immediately reported to Maj. Gen. Wool, who ordered me to report to Brig. Gen. Harvey Brown, 300 Mulberry street, which I did at 2 o'clock, P. M. At 3 o'clock P. M., Gen. Brown ordered the following disposition of my command—Co. A, Lieut. John C. Nagle and Co. E, Capt. Wm. Clingen, were ordered to Hotchkiss' shell factory, 17th street; Co. B, Capt. Theodore D.

Barnum, at gas works, 23d street; Co. C, Capt. John W. Wayland, and Co. R, Capt. Alexander Sloan to Atlantic dock, Brooklyn city; Co. D, Capt. George M. Baker, to fort Richmond; Co. F, Capt. Hugh Sloan, to forts Hamilton and Lafayette; Co. I, Capt. George B. Knight, to Jersey City, to report to the mayor. Late in the evening of the 18th inst, Co. G, Capt. Harry Kester arrived, and was ordered to join Capt. Knight, at Jersey City; various dispositions were made of the several companies remaining in the city during their stay, and active participation in the suppression of the rioters. They received high compliments from Gen. Brown, for their efficiency, good discipline, and faithful performance of all the duties assigned them.

July 19th.—Co. A, Lieut. John C. Nagle, and Co. B., Capt. Theodore D. Barnum, were sent up the Hudson river, stopping at all places on the way to Sing Sing, returning to New York city 21st inst., performing important duty at these several points in quelling riots.

July 19th, Gen. Brown was relieved by Gen. Canby, who on the 21st inst. ordered me to proceed with my command to Buffalo. We left New York at 6 p. m. this day, on special train via Hudson River road, arriving in Albany 22d inst. at 12 o'clock m., being detained by washing away of a culvert on the road. At Albany we were generously furnished with refreshments sent to the depot by Messrs. Paige and Dawson. Left Albany at 3 o'clock p. m., and arrived at Buffalo at 10 o'clock a. m., July 23d, when we met with a magnificent reception; the citizens turning out en masse, crowding the streets to such an extent, that it was with the utmost difficulty we were able to get through them. We were escorted to the State arsenal by the Union Continentals, Lieut. Asher P. Nichols, 65th regiment, N. Y. S. N. G., Lieut. Col. Wm. F. Berrens; Eagle Hose, 2; Neptune Hose, 5; Columbia Hose, 11; Lansing Zouaves; and Ellsworth Guard; escort preceded by Union cornet band, the 74th by Miller's band and drum corps. At the State arsenal we were welcomed, on behalf of the city, by Alderman Charles E. Beckwith, mayor pro tem, in a neat and appropriate speech, which was responded to by the colonel, after which we partook of a bountiful collation in the arsenal drill-room, prepared and tendered by the ladies of Buffalo. We remained on duty at the State arsenal from this date until August 3d, when we were mustered out by Capt. Sheldon Sturgeon, 1st Infantry, U. S. A., mustering and disbursing officer. While being mustered out of the service of the United States, an order was placed in my hands from the mayor pro tem, calling us into the service of the city, for the purpose of preserving the public peace during the impending draft. We entered at once upon this duty, and were relieved August 22d.

During our absence, and while in command of the brigade, the command of the regiment devolved upon Lieut. Col. Walter G. Seely. To this officer, as well as Major Charles J. Wing, and my staff and line officers, too much praise and credit cannot be accorded for their faithful attention to duty, and readiness to second me in every effort to render my command efficient and acceptable to my superiors.

I cannot close this without a just and deserved tribute to the men, who at an hour's notice, left their homes and friends, business pursuits and pleasures, and throughout this campaign were ever ready to perform any duty, however arduous, without a murmur or complaint. My regiment is made up for the most part of middle aged and young men engaged in active business pursuits, and the personal sacrifices made by them cannot be estimated and is not appreciated by the community. I am happy to say it was cheerfully made from conviction of duty, and would as cheerfully be made again when occasion requires it, from the same patriotic conviction. I am proud of my regiment, and esteem it an honor to command such a body of soldiers, who by their strict devotion to duty, have reflected so much credit upon themselves, their noble city, and the State which they so faithfully represent. For the purpose of encouraging this spirit, I beg to suggest that the State troops responding to the late order, should be awarded some testimonial of appreciation of their patriotism and self-sacrificing spirit of devotion to the call of duty.

I am general, very respectfully, your obd't servant,

WATSON A. FOX,

Colonel com'g 74th Regiment N. Y. N. G.

Major Gen. NELSON RANDALL, com'g 8th division N. Y. N. G.
