To the Legislature:

I have the honor to transmit herewith the Annual Report of the Adjutant-General.

SAMUEL J. TILDEN.

REPORT.

STATE OF NEW YORK:

ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
ALBANY, December 31, 1874. }

TO HIS EXCELLENCY JOHN A. DIX,

Governor and Commander-in-Chief:

GOVERNOR— I have the honor to present the following report of this department for the year ending December 31, 1874.

ORGANIZATION.

The National Guard, as at present constituted, consists of eight (8) divisions, nineteen (19) brigades, one (1) regiment, and nine (9) separate troops of cavalry; one (1) battalion and ten (10) batteries of artillery; thirty (30) regiments and thirteen battalions of infantry; including nineteen hundred and forty-eight (1948) commissioned officers, and nineteen thousand three hundred and ninety (19,390) non-commissioned officers, musicians and privates, making a total force of twenty-one thousand three hundred and thirty-eight (21,338).

The number of non-commissioned officers, musicians and privates being now reduced below that prescribed by law, I deem it important for the public safety that there should be organizations of the National Guard in large towns and cities, especially upon the frontier, where at present they do not exist. I, therefore, recommend the authorization in such places either of companies of 100 men or of battalions of four companies of infantry, to the extent of any decrease of the entire force below 20,000.

During the past year the boundaries of the 3d, 5th and 6th Divisions have been slightly changed. The boundaries of brigade districts have been re-arranged so as to embrace the territory of the 12th, 17th, 18th, 22d and 32d districts, which have been disbanded and the general and staff officers rendered supernumerary.

During the same time two regiments of infantry, one battalion and one troop of cavalry, and two batteries of artillery have been disbanded and mustered out of service. Two battalions of infantry have been raised and organized (2d and 16th); the companies composing the 20th and 110th battalions, have been reduced in number, and in each case a new battalion organization effected. A battalion of infantry to be attached to the 13th brigade, recruited entirely in the city of Schenectady, is nearly ready for inspection and muster-in.

A battery of Gatling guns has been placed in charge of the company of artillery in the 2d Division, known as the "Howitzer Battery." It is now being fully equipped and will be one of the most effective organizations in the National Guard.

I am fully convinced that the brigades and regiments composing the 1st Division might be reduced in numbers with benefit to the service; not that the aggregate force should be any less, but, that the companies should in all cases be as fully up to the maximum as possible.

Experience has conclusively shown that the smaller regiments and battalions are less efficient and more expensive than those whose ranks are always well filled. If the 1st Division was composed of only two brigades, say, of five full regiments each, with two batteries of artillery and three troops of cavalry reporting direct to division headquarters, not only would a large amount be saved to the state, but the sum paid annually by the county of New York would be greatly reduced.

GENERAL REGULATIONS.

The "General Regulations for the Military Forces of the State of New York" have not been revised since the year 1866, and consequently since the passage of the present Military Code in 1870 many of its provisions have become obsolete, and others conflict with the law, while the new ones have not been inserted.

During this time the United States army regulations have not been revised, although boards for their revision have been appointed and have, through the Secretary of War, reported the results of their labors to congress, which has failed to adopt them.

Your Excellency has delayed causing the State Regulations to be revised until the adoption of the contemplated regulations for the government of the army of the United States, in order that they may conform to these as nearly as practicable. It is hoped and expected that they will be prescribed during the present session of congress.

TACTICS.

Copies of the new system of infantry, cavalry and artillery tactics, adopted for the instruction of the army and militia of the United States, have been furnished for the use of the National Guard.

INSPECTIONS.

Your Excellency, accompanied by your Staff, has reviewed the entire force of the National Guard during the year just closed, and in the discharge of this duty the 5th and 6th Divisions, for the first time since their organization, have been reviewed as divisions.

The Inspector-General has personally inspected every organization. This inspection has been carefully and thoroughly made, including not only the evolutions of the troops, but their uniforms, arms, equipments, armories and books. The effect of this rigid inspection by the Inspector-General I believe to be highly beneficial, tending to the better discipline of the commands, the preservation of the state property, the proper keeping of the records of the organizations, and enabling General Head-Quarters to be thoroughly informed in regard to the condition of each command. Among the results of these inspections have been the disbanding of several weak and inefficient organizations, and the establishment of a system of returns to be made quarterly to the Adjutant-General, showing the strength of the respective commands, and all changes that have taken place during each quarter. A reduction, however, has been made in the number of returns and reports heretofore required, with a view to lessening clerical labor, retaining only such as are considered indispensable, and requiring a prompt rendition of these.

The reports of commandants and brigade inspectors, and the abstract of the annual muster and inspection rolls, will be found in the appendix.

EQUIPMENTS.

The Military Code provides that the equipments of the members of the National Guard shall be furnished at the expense of the State. Their uniform are provided for by means of a uniform fund, toward which the state annually pays a sum equal to five dollars ($5) for each member who shall have paraded during the year the number of times required by law. I respectfully recommend that the equipments be furnished in the same manner and on the same conditions, viz., by provision for an equipment fund, toward which the state shall annually pay a sum equal to $1 for each member that attends the required number of parades; or that the uniform fund be abolished, and a uniform and equipment fund established, by which the state shall annually contribute a sum equal to six dollars ($6) on similar conditions, toward assisting the members to procure their uniforms and equipments.

I am induced to make this recommendation from the good results that have attended the manner of furnishing uniforms. In my opinion it would prove economical and would tend to the better care and preservation of the equipments.

OVERCOATS.

I respectfully renew the recommendation made in my last annual report that some provision be made for supplying overcoats for the use of the National Guard. The appropriations for military purposes heretofore made have been insufficient to supply them.

With the exception of a few organizations that have procured them at their own expense, the troops could not be called into service during the winter months or in inclement weather, without great danger to health and life. They should be so equipped as to be ready for any emergency at all seasons.

CAVALRY.

I am satisfied that cavalry is of little practical value in the National Guard. It is very expensive in equipment, the horses are generally draught horses in constant employment and unused to the saddle, and the majority of the members poor horsemen, with no opportunity of becoming familiarized with the evolutions of the cavalry arm of the service.

I therefore respectfully recommend the disbandment of the cavalry organizations of the National Guard, except the separate troops attached to division and brigade headquarters.

ARSENALS AND ARMORIES.

The state arsenals have been kept in good repair. As the arsenals at Brooklyn and Schenectady are no longer needed for state purposes, they should, in my judgment be sold, thus saving the cost of keeping them in repair and the salaries of the keepers.

Unserviceable military property has been sold during the year from which has been realized the sum of thirteen thousand two hundred and eighty-seven dollars and fifty-nine cents ($13,287.59).

ENCAMPMENTS.

The true standard of proficiency for the National Guard should be not only its power to suppress internal disorders, but its ability to take the field as a thoroughly equipped and disciplined organization. Toward the accomplishment of this end I deem encampments of vital importance. In armories and drill-rooms, the troops have instruction in tactical exercises, the system of rifle practice already established, if properly carried out, will enable them to become skilled in the use of their arms, but owing to the difficulty of procuring proper parade grounds, they rarely have the opportunity of practicing the manœuvres of the field.

During the past year the Sixth Division went into camp at Syracuse for three days, the state furnishing part of the camp equipage and paying a portion of the expense.

The limited military appropriations, and the small amount of camp equipage owned by the state (not sufficient for the use of a brigade), have prevented your Excellency from ordering such camps of instruction as are provided for in the Military Code, when officers and men are put under canvas at the expense of the state, and are subjected to the same regulations and discipline which govern troops when in actual service. In this way only can they be familiarized with the duties of the field. The neighboring states of Massachusetts and Connecticut are so thoroughly convinced of this truth and of its practical importance, that their entire force is put into camp for ten days in each year, all the necessary expenses being paid by the state.

I have the honor therefore, respectfully, to recommend that provision be made for the purchase of additional camp equipage, and that the military appropriations be made large enough to enable the Commander-in-Chief to order into camp, each year, at least one division of the National Guard.

RIFLE PRACTICE.

The subject of rifle practice has received from your Excellency that attention and encouragement which its importance deserves.

The establishment of the rifle range at Creedmoor marked the progress of correct ideas, and has greatly promoted a just appreciation and general adoption of sound methods. Much has been accomplished during the year toward permanently instituting a thorough and systematic course of instruction and practice in the use of the rifle. The old custom of the "annual target excursion," now happily becoming less common, was both ineffective and demoralizing. Instead of advancing true soldiership it fostered erroneous impressions and vicious habits. The real object was not military proficiency, but social festivity, and, while whatever fairly contributes to the fellowship of the organizations deserves recognition, it should not be sustained at the expense of right military development.

In place of these practices, so entirely subversive to military discipline, and so foreign to the legitimate duties of a soldier, the substitution of a well established system of rifle practice has already proved of great practical benefit to the National Guard, and if properly developed, will still further increase its efficiency. Since its introduction, great impetus has been given to enlistments, and the general tone of the guard has been sensibly elevated. To be familiar with the arm he bears and to know how most effectively to use it, are as necessary for the soldier as to be well versed and skilled in the manual. It is an indispensable part of his accomplishments. This practice in the rifle range has proved attractive and has served as a grateful relief from the ordinary duties in the armory or the drill-room. Besides, it affords a manly, healthful exercise, requiring nerve and skill, conducing to a proper spirit of pride and emulation, and creating an interest in a science that admits of almost unlimited development.

An act (chap. 268, Laws of 1874), to promote rifle practice in the National Guard was passed by the last legislature. It provides for the appointment of inspectors of rifle practice of divisions and brigades, and for a General Inspector of rifle practice, who is an officer in the Inspector-General's department. The former have the superintendence of all matters appertaining to rifle practice in their respective divisions and brigades, and the latter exercises a general supervision over rifle practice in the National Guard, the ranges and property thereon. The bill further provides for reports to be made to General Head-quarters for the establishment of rifle ranges in the various military districts and for the furnishing, at the expense of the state, of their targets and necessary appurtenances.

The section that prevents the alienation of the property at Creedmoor for purposes other than those for which it was purchased, and giving the state a controlling interest in its management, is in accordance with the recommendation made in my last report.

In conformity to orders from these headquarters the infantry and cavalry organizations of the First and Second divisions, each devoted one day to target practice at Creedmoor. As a rule, the commands appeared with well filled ranks and maintained a proper degree of discipline.

At the annual meeting of the National Rifle Association at Creedmoor in October, the National Guard was well represented. In the competition for the state and other prizes marked improvement was shown, some of the members exhibiting great proficiency and skill.

As it is required that the Remington breach loading rifle (state model) must be used by members of the National Guard in these matches, the preparatory practice is valuable in familiarizing the men with the construction and use of their weapon.

The 19th Battalion of Newburgh, and the 48th Regiment of Oswego, have devoted much time to rifle practice during the year. Teams from both these commands were present at Creedmoor and competed for the state prizes.

I trust that during the next year rifle ranges will be established in every division district in the state in accordance with the provision of chapter 268, Laws of 1874, and that at the next annual meeting, teams from most of the regiments and battalions in the state will be competitors for the state prizes.

I commend to your Excellency, and to the fostering care of the legislature, this subject of rifle practice in the National Guard.

RE-ENLISTMENTS.

No provision is made in the Military Code for the re-enlistment of members of the National Guard.

Every encouragement should be given the well-disciplined soldier to remain in the ranks. Nowhere is a recognition of faithful and honorable service more essential and just than in a military organization, and especially in one like that of our state, the members of which without compensation devote time and money to the public interests. The majority of those who have completed their term of enlistment of seven years desire to remain longer, but are unwilling to bind themselves again for the same full period. In this way the service is deprived of its most valuable material. As an inducement for such to remain attached to the organization, I would respectfully recommend that provision be made for their re-enlistment for periods of three years, with the same privileges and exemptions as are granted them during their first term of enlistment; and as a recognition of their faithful service, that they be permitted to wear service stripes, or some other proper veteran designation to be prescribed by the Adjutant-General.

EXEMPTIONS.

To that provision of the Military Code which entitles members of the National Guard to a deduction from the assessed valuation of their real and personal property to the amount of $1,000 during the time they perform military duty, much opposition has been developed within a few years, and many petitions asking for a repeal of this enactment were presented to the legislature during its last session.

There can be little doubt that this statute operates unjustly to the tax payer and unequally to the soldier. An organization of the National Guard, while of benefit to its immediate locality as a security for public order is subject to the command of the state and liable to be called upon whenever the state requires and wherever it may be needed. In some parts of the state the exemptions on account of membership in the National Guard are so numerous as materially to increase the burden for those not sharing the privilege. All the taxation thus deducted is necessarily added to the proportion of the rest of the community. There are localities in which persons have joined the organization simply for the sake of availing themselves of this immunity, and in the light of such facts its inequality becomes apparent.

But it is unequal in its operations among the members of the guard themselves. The young soldier who enlists from genuine interest in the service, and who cheerfully and faithfully performs all his duty, is rarely the possessor of taxable property of the value of $1,000, and thus receives no benefit from the provision, while, on the other hand, those who join solely to obtain the advantage of the exemption are generally poor soldiers, reluctantly performing only imperative duty, and contributing little or nothing to the efficiency of the guard.

Unquestionably the expense of maintaining the military establishment of the state should be borne by the whole people, and clearly it is just and proper that officers and members of the National Guard should in return for their sacrifice of time and money for the public good receive some substantial benefits from the state. But the exemption in question fails to accomplish this object, while producing the evils suggested. So unsatisfactory has its operation been, and so great has the opposition become, that at the last annual meeting of the State Military Association, a committee, composed of some of the most prominent and intelligent officers of the guard, was appointed to consider and report at its next session upon the expediency of abolishing this provision and substituting a privilege that would be less objectionable, and at the same time ensure a proper return for the faithful performance of military duty. The subject is worthy of the careful consideration of the legislature, to whose attention it is referred.

OF ELECTIONS AND APPOINTMENTS.

The elective system has been incorporated into and preserved in our Military Code, because it is thought to conform to the general analogy of our institutions, and to maintain the symmetry of the whole. But civic principles and military law are entirely distinct. The representatives of the people are chosen to administer their affairs and carry out their will. The officers of military organizations are chosen to execute prescribed rules, and enforce rigorous discipline. Evidently if we were to follow the strictest logic, the reason which justly sustains the elective principle in the one case is wholly inapplicable to the other.

Where organizations are pervaded by a thorough spirit of emulation in discipline and by a true appreciation of soldierly requirements and attributes, the elective system may prove satisfactory and successful in operation. And whatever tends to stimulate general interest and enlist active efforts deserves full recognition. Neither the former fact nor the latter principle should be overlooked. But unfortunately such organizations are too rare, and such considerations of interesting the soldier by giving him a share in elections are, perhaps, outweighed by others of a more vital character. When military pride and spirit are well developed they will do much to overcome, but they cannot altogether obliterate, the evils inherent in and inseparable from the elective system.

Among these evils is that of the choice of officers upon grounds entirely independent of their military qualifications. Personal popularity with the commands, the ability and willingness to lead in social entertainment, the disposition to be lenient in enforcing the penalties for delinquencies, are too often made the paramount considerations. Some of these qualities I do not disparage, but, however, excellent they may be in themselves, they do not create the efficient officer or constitute fitness for command. Least of all should they be made controlling in an organization whose greatest element of weakness is a tendency to lax discipline and whose deficiency in morale they foster rather than check. Discipline is the foundation of soldiership. Subordination is the first requirement to be sought, and unfortunately, too often the last result to be secured. At the beginning of our late war, before stern experience had wrought its reforming work, one of the chief obstacles to efficient organization was the general misconception of the true relations between officer and soldier, and the slowness of appreciating the necessity of a ready and unquestioning obedience to orders. The ranks were full of patriotism, ardor and self-sacrifice, but not of trained soldiers. The officers and men had been familiar companions; the one possessed scarcely more military acquirements than the other; and on these accounts it was the more difficult for the one to assert the authority and the other to render the obedience which lie at the very basis of military efficiency and excellence.

This difficulty is the evil of our existing military system. The officer should inspire the respect of his command. He should be their model of soldierly bearing. The pre-eminence thus accorded to the faculty and the fitness of command does not exclude full care for every interest of the regiment or the company; on the contrary, it embraces all and places each element in its proper rank, for the truly accomplished officer will cultivate not merely the strict discipline of his organization, but its well directed social enjoyment, its public pride and its personal fellowship. But if these are given the precedence, if, instead of receiving his commission because of his recognized military qualifications, he is chosen because of popular personal qualities or leadership in festivity; if especially he seeks the position himself with a view to its sumptuary possibilities and profits, this is destructive to real military efficiency.

These are evils which naturally grow out of the elective system, and to obviate them the commission should come from a source beyond the reach of such influences. Good officers will make good soldiers. The elective system has indeed the merit, as already suggested, of stimulating the interest of the soldiers, and whatever tends to enhance their attachment to the organization and to dignify their calling is entitled to full consideration. But it seems clear, that a better incentive would be furnished and a higher ambition inspired, as well as truer discipline secured, if there were an established principle of promotion from the ranks which would afford to every soldier the hope of rising in proportion to his military proficiency. While free from the evils of the elective system, it at the same time contains all its advantages.

Such a principle of promotion and a system of appointment would fit together, and they ought to be perfected. As to the legality of such a change, there can be no question of the power of the legislature to substitute the rule of appointment for the present mode of filling the offices by election. The authority is specifically conferred by Section 6 of Article 11, of the State Constitution. If the elective system must be preserved, then I would recommend that all officers elected should be examined as to their qualifications for command by a competent board of officers in each division district, to be appointed by the Commander-in-Chief, and that no officer shall be commissioned without the certificate of such examining board.

VOLUNTEER DEPARTMENT.

The labor incident to the late war has not diminished during the year. In his report transmitted to the legislature in January, 1866, Adjutant-General Irvine says that, "so long at least as the present generation shall last, the official military records, papers, books and documents required to be kept, and which in any wise affect individual soldiers or military organizations of this state that participated in the late war, will necessarily have to be searched and certified to daily by the Adjutant-General. Such searches can only be prosecuted by having ready access to, and convenient arrangement of, such records, with sufficient room in which to perform the required labor, and can only be certified to by the officer (the Adjutant-General or one of his assistants) having the actual custody of the originals. The Adjutant-General is directly responsible for the custody and safe keeping of these evidences which in many ways concern nearly half a million of men, their families, friends or representatives. He is the only officer of the state who can give a certificate on which to found application for back pay, bounties, and pensions, or that in any wise affect the military character or service of these men."

My experience has confirmed the correctness and wisdom of these statements. The number of communications received daily for information from these valuable records is very large, involving much labor and research. The war department has transmitted for examination and correction lists containing the names of the large number of men reported as having belonged to New York volunteer organizations, and interred in the national cemeteries, that the inscriptions on their head stones may be accurately noted. This has added greatly to the labor of the office.

From the many communications that have been received for information concerning soldiers who served in the Mexican war, the war of 1812, and even (now and then) in the revolutionary war. I am impressed with the great value of these records of the war of the rebellion, containing the military history of over 475,000 of New York's brave soldiers, and believe that they should be carefully and properly preserved. A generation will pass away before they will cease to be valuable, while they must always remain a matter of pride. These records have been referred to so often and handled so much in the transaction of the necessary business of the office, that many are already badly worn, and a few that could be used no longer without being destroyed, I have caused to be copied, and the copies used in place of the originals. The clerical force of the office has been too small to have them all copied, I therefore recommend that a sufficient sum be appropriated to have working copies at least of the muster rolls made, or better still, that an amount be appropriated to enable the Adjutant-General to have the records of the volunteer soldiers transferred to properly prepared books of record that will be durable and easy of reference, in order that the originals may be filed away for preservation only to be referred to when absolutely necessary.

STATE MILITARY AGENCY.

The United States treasurer's certificates and bounty checks, amounting to $1,334.34, turned over by my predecessor, with the exception of a check for $100, which has been delivered to the person for whom it was issued, are still in the possession of the department. No collections have been made for the reason that the evidence required to complete the claims cannot be obtained, owing to the loss of records, and to the death or removal of officers, by whom most of the evidence called for can only be furnished. The further prosecution of the few cases remaining unsettled will therefore, it is thought, have to be abandoned.

WAR CLAIMS.

On the 1st January, 1874, the unsettled balance of accounts of the state of New York against the United States for war expenditures was $1,209,286.10. Since that date another installment of accounts has been presented to the treasury department, amounting to over $130,000.

No efforts have been spared to obtain further payment from the treasury department, and it is confidently expected that a considerable amount will be realized early next year.

Many of the items in these accounts will, no doubt, be disallowed for want of necessary certificates and receipts, which cannot now be obtained. It is, therefore, of the utmost importance that these claims should be vigorously prosecuted, as every day the settlement is delayed increases the difficulty of obtaining the required proof.

SOLDIERS OF WAR OF 1812.

The legislature at its last session made a further appropriation of $100,000 for redeeming certain certificates issued to the soldiers of the war of 1812.

CONCLUSION.

The duty of the state to foster and strengthen the National Guard has been frequently urged and scarcely need be repeated here. If there was no other reason, a just understanding of the incalculable value of this organization in our own and other states as the true school of the soldier for the republic would enforce it. It serves in large measure to equip the nation for unforeseen exigencies without entailing the expense or the evils of a standing army. It provides in the ranks of the citizens a body of men designed to be ready to move at a moment's notice, and prepared by their infusion to give speedy efficiency to a far larger body of volunteers. In any great crisis, like the one through which we have already passed, our most threatening embarrassment under ordinary circumstances would be not any lack of men, but the difficulty of immediately utilizing them through the want of effective organization. This difficulty the existence of the National Guard tends to remedy. Its value cannot be better expressed than in the language of your Excellency in your address on this subject at Poughkeepsie: "It takes the place of the old militia organization as the guardian of the public order when its aid is invoked by the civil authorities, and it is our chief and primary reliance in case of danger abroad for the public defense. The aim of its officers should be, not only to make it an efficient nucleus around which the people in sudden emergencies may gather and be speedily prepared for active service, but it should also be made a nursery for officers, like the 7th Regiment of the city of New York, which sent more than six hundred of its members out of one thousand into the commissioned grade of the regular army and the volunteer corps during our late civil war."

In closing this report it will not be inappropriate to add, what is prompted by my grateful sense of the association, that it has been my good fortune to serve under a Commander-in-Chief who has had large experience as a soldier, and whose appreciation of the value of the National Guard has been attested by an earnest desire and well considered efforts to promote its welfare.

I have also been encouraged and assisted by the hearty support of the officers of the guard, whose co-operation has greatly lightened my labors. Special acknowledgment is due to those immediately attached to this office; to General John B. Stonehouse, the Assistant Adjutant-General, and to Major Alfred H. Taylor, the Chief Clerk, who have so long and so satisfactorily filled the positions and whose intelligent and faithful services have aided many administrations; and to the other attentive and diligent employees of the office.

The suggestions and recommendations I make in this, my final report, are some of the results of careful observation for the past two years. While there is so much to commend I feel that much remains to be done, both by the State and by the National Guard — on the part of the State to recognize more fully the importance and necessity of the Guard, and to make liberal appropriations for its support; on the part of the Guard to merit this support and to determine as the only aim with which it will be satisfied, to deserve the just recognition of a thoroughly disciplined, effective and ready force. I have the honor to be, very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

JNO. F. RATHBONE,
Adjutant-General.

CREEDMOOR.

I respectfully refer to the report of Col. Wingate, of my staff, who has been the acting inspector of rifle practice to the division during the past year, for a very full statement of what has been accomplished, and for valuable suggestions on this subject.

ARMORIES.

There are within the division district two armories owned by the city of Brooklyn, three owned by the county of Kings and the state arsenal, making six buildings devoted to military purposes, in addition to which the county rents a portion of a building for the use of one of the infantry organizations.

The armory located on the corner of Henry and Cranberry streets is owned by the city, was erected many years ago, and has been occupied until very lately by both the 13th and 14th regiments, affording, however, exceedingly meagre, and very unsuitable, accommodations for them, the latter has lately vacated, and the former will, I hope, shortly also leave for better quarters.

The armory located corner of North Second and Fourth streets is also owned by the city and affords very respectable accommodations; the roof however leaks badly, and the city does not keep the premises in proper repair; it is occupied by the 47th infantry, who have expended large sums of money in furnishing the various company and department rooms.

The armory located on corner of Stagg street and Bushwick avenue, owned by the county, is an exceedingly substantial building, badly designed and affording very much less accommodation than might have been, had the space occupied by it been more intelligently partitioned. It is used in common by the 28th and 32d infantry, one troop cavalry and battery B, artillery, consequently none of those using it are afforded suitable accommodation.

The armory located on Claremont avenue is also owned by the county, was erected for and used by the 23d regiment infantry; it is a commodious building and affords every accommodation for military purposes that could be desired.

The armory at junction of Flatbush and Atlantic avenues is being erected for and will be occupied by the 13th regiment infantry. Judging from the plans, I should say that it will be a finer building even than that used by the 23d regiment.

The state arsenal is now used by the 14th regiment; it will however need some alterations to make it perfectly suitable for their use, and I respectfully solicit permission to have these alterations made under supervision of proper state officers, the expense of alterations to be borne by the county of Kings. The arsenal is also now used by the Howitzer battery, mounted battery A and separate troop cavalry. These latter organizations will have to be withdrawn from its further use and assigned other quarters, the preliminary steps for which have already been had.

The county rents premises on corner of Orange and Fulton streets for use of the 15th battalion infantry at an annual expense of $1,500. The premises are large, well-lighted and suitable for the purpose.

It will be seen from the foregoing that there are six buildings owned by the state, county and city; five of which are suitable for use by the separate organizations, rendering it needful for the rental of only one drill room by the county, which is had at a sum previously noted. Reducing the annual expenditures on national guard account by the county to a very small amount as compared with other counties supporting any thing like a force of troops.

EXPENDITURES.

The expenditures for "militia" account as given by the county treasurer for the fiscal year ending July 31, 1874, is $12,281.74, which covers rents, fuel, light, armorer's salaries, and all other charges for support of the national guard excepting erection of armories, the amount levied for ensuing year is fixed at $12,000.

I have great pleasure in reporting that both the brigade commanders give their constant attention to the instruction of their commands, and that in consequence thereof, all of the organizations are well officered, instructed and managed. The division although not large is in most excellent condition.

I have accepted the position of inspector-general of the state tendered me by the incoming governor (Tilden), which necessitates my retirement to-day from command of this division; I leave it with regret, having formed many strong friendships with those associated with me, and especially so with my brigade commanders and the members of my staff; to the latter I am under very many obligations for the vast amount of time, labor and large expenditures of money devoted toward advancing the interests of the division. It would be invidious to mention names, but I commend them all as being model staff officers.

My brigade commanders merit, and I hope will both in time succeed to larger commands.

I am, general,

Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

JNO. B. WOODWARD,

Major-General.

HEAD-QUARTERS THIRD DIV. N. G., S. N. Y., }
TROY, January 1, 1875. }

Major-General FRANKLIN TOWNSEND,

Adjutant-General S. N. Y., Albany, N. Y.:

GENERAL—Pursuant to the requirements of paragraph four, section III, general orders number 13, issued from general headquarters May 18, 1874, I have the honor to report the following movements of the troops of this command during the year ending December 31, 1874:

Division Parade.

October 12, 1874 — Review of division by His Excellency the commander-in-chief and the major-general commanding.

Ninth Brigade.

February 23, 1874 — Parade in the city of Albany to celebrate Washington's birthday.

June 12, 1874 — Inspection and review by Major-General Wm. H. Morris, inspector-general S. N. Y.

July 4, 1874 — Parade in the city of Albany to celebrate the ninety-eighth anniversary of our national independence.

October 12, 1874 — Muster, inspection and review; also review by the commander-in-chief and major-general commanding.

Tenth Brigade.

The disbandment of the 24th regiment of infantry of this command has reduced it to a single organization, viz.: Battery B, battalion of artillery. A full report of the movements of this organization has already been forwarded.

The second battalion of infantry, a new organization attached to this brigade, now numbers about 380 rank and file, and bids fair to become a fine body of men. The material is good, and the command well officered. I hope one year from this time to be able to make a flattering report of this brigade.

Thirteenth Brigade.

In consequence of the disbandment of the 83d regiment of infantry, this command is reduced to the brigade commander and staff.

The organizations remaining in the division are in good condition, and I hope in my next report to be able to note an increase in numbers and improvement in discipline.

Very respectfully yours,

J. B. CARR,

Major-General.

GENERAL — In compliance with the requirements of general orders number 13, C. S., general head-quarters State of New York, I have the honor to report that the fifth division, paraded for review by His Excellency the commander-in-chief at Poughkeepsie on the 13th of October. With the exception of the 20th battalion (which was prevented from participating on account of the non-arrival of their uniforms) the regimental and battalion organizations comprising the division were present in remarkably full force, and, considering the facts that this was the first parade of the division, that several of the commands were of recent organization, and that on account of the distance many had to go fatigue was unavoidable, the general appearance and discipline was exceedingly creditable. I am greatly pleased with the change that has been made in the division district, and the consolidation of my brigades, and expect very beneficial results. As a whole, little has been done by the command in the way of rifle practice; but the 27th regiment has been especially active, and deserve great praise for the manner in which they have taken hold of the matter. Mainly through the efforts of officers of the 27th regiment, a fine rifle range has been opened at Mount Vernon, and considerable good shooting has already been done there. A modest appropriation from the general fund, to aid so praiseworthy an undertaking, would, in the interest of the national guard, be money well spent.

To attain the proper standard it is absolutely necessary that some provision should be made for more fully equipping the national guard. We need overcoats, blankets, knapsacks, haversacks and canteens, and I earnestly hope that this business part of a soldier's equipment shall soon be placed within our reach.

With all respect, I am, general,

Your obedient servant,

JAMES W. HUSTED,

Major-General.

HEAD-QUARTERS FIFTH BRIGADE, N. G., S. N. Y., }
 BROOKLYN, December 21, 1874. }

GENERAL — In compliance with general orders number 13, C. S., from general head-quarters, I have the honor to make the following report of the number, character and date of the occasions of duty performed by this brigade during the preceding year:

The brigade paraded, pursuant to orders from head-quarters 2d division, on May 28th, for review by the commander in-chief — the brigade being under command of myself, accompanied by my full staff.

It also paraded for drill, inspection and annual muster on October 9th, at Prospect Park parade ground, under orders from these head-quarters, the brigade being commanded by myself and accompanied by my full staff. The inspection and muster, together with a battalion drill of each organization and a dress parade of the brigade, were all held during some portion of the day. This mode of inspecting all the organizations in one day satisfies me that it is for the best interests of organizations. The benefits derived may be classified as follows: It affords an opportunity for drill and instruction; it prevents men of one organization parading with and answering to the names of absentees in other organizations; it shows more accurately the available strength of the various commands, but it is here conceded that inspections in the day-time will not show as large a percentage of men for duty; it affords an opportunity to use the bands which it has been customary to employ in order only to swell the totals present; it finishes the work in one day which ordinarily requires several on the part of the general and staff, and is therefore a saving in time and expense, beside making the duty more pleasant for the officers last named. I am firmly of the opinion that the brigade would have inspected at least from 100 to 125 more present if the inspection had been held in the evening. The class of soldiers who will only turn out at night, together with those who are willing to go from one company to another to swell the total present, is prevented from aiding a class of officers in making false returns.

I am convinced more and more, as time passes, that the annual inspections should be held in the spring, or say month of June, as the regiments are in a far better state of drill, and this season is best adapted for out-door movements of troops of the national guard, and is more inviting. It also occurs at a season of greater leisure, when business is not so active, and therefore employers and employees can better afford to devote the time.

The custom which has obtained of employing bands solely for the purpose of mustering, etc., referred to already in this report, except they are actually enlisted, I consider detrimental to the service, as this is one of the means winked at, but which encourages officers to make other returns as false as these are. I claim that only legally enlisted musicians should be permitted to muster. It will be seen in this brigade at last muster that there are 153 musicians. Of this number about fifty-five to sixty are not subject to duty, and cannot be compelled to perform it, and yet they are represented at muster as forming a portion of the available strength of the command. I am of the opinion that the organizations of this brigade will compare favorably with others of the same class in point of discipline, drill and efficiency. I am also convinced that overcoats will help to improve discipline, as a supply of them will secure a much larger attendance at drills and parades during the season when such garments become necessary. A better system of discipline and instruction would undoubtedly prevail if all business and the transmission of papers of every kind, from every source, above and below, were to pass through the authorized military channels. The fact that this has not been adhered to latterly by nearly all the departments above, has tended to render nugatory my efforts to establish a proper system of transmission of papers, as well as a correct system of routine duty in accordance with military usage. As it now is, I am obliged to seek information from subordinates which should be communicated from head-quarters alone.

Permit me to suggest that it will materially assist me in the discharge of my duties if, when orders are issued from general head-quarters at Albany, affecting this command, and the provisions of the same are not strictly complied with, that the authority from whence the orders emanate at once take summary measures to compel a timely and correct compliance with said orders. Commanding officers have been permitted to exercise to an unjustifiable degree their own judgment as to when and how they would comply with orders.

It will in my opinion, and I beg to recommend that it will be of great service to all commanding officers especially, if a more rigid compliance be insisted upon at general head-quarters in the proper and correct preparation of all papers passing up, and when not so prepared, to cause them to be returned to the officer.

I am pleased to be able to state that this brigade has shown a steady, but not remarkable, increase and improvement generally since I assumed command.

Had it not been for the disbandment of a large company belonging to the 13th regiment, since the muster in 1873, this brigade would have shown a correspondingly larger strength, say 1,600 total.

Respectfully submitted.

COLONEL—I have the honor to report, pursuant to general orders number 13, C. S., A. G. O., the following parades of this brigade during the past year :

May 28—Parade for review by his excellency the commander-in-chief, pursuant to general orders number 3, head-quarters 2d division, and general orders number 4, head-quarters 11th brigade.

June 9—Parade of the various organizations of this brigade at the parade ground, Prospect Park, for instruction in evolutions of the brigade in conformity to Upton's tactics.

October 5, 6 and 8—Parade for annual muster and inspection by Major Theo. Linington, brigade inspector, at each of which the general commanding and the members of his staff were present.

The 23d regiment and Howitzer battery were inspected October 5; 32d regiment and separate troop cavalry, October 8; 47th regiment, October 6.

GENERAL — Pursuant to section 527, general regulations, I have the honor to report the following evolutions performed by the 25th brigade during the year ending December 31, 1874:

On the 27th day of May the brigade paraded and was inspected by Brevet Major-General W. H. Morris; also was reviewed on the 4th of July by Major Clarkson.

Target practice was performed as follows: By the 54th regiment on the 17th of August; by the artillery on the 24th of August, using the ten-pound Parrott guns; by the cavalry on the 24th of August, using their new Remington breech-loading carbines.

On the 7th day of October the brigade paraded, and was reviewed by His Excellency John A. Dix, commander-in-chief, and on the 19th day of October was mustered and inspected by Major Thompson, brigade inspector.

The parades for battalion drill of the several commands comprising this brigade were superintended by myself and staff, and were held during the month of September.

Officers' instructions were ordered four times during the year, with a fair attendance.

Wing and division drills have been performed between the 1st of December, 1873, and the 1st of May, 1874.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

HENRY BRINKER,

HEAD-QUARTERS FIRST DIVISION, N. G., S. N. Y., }
 NEW YORK, December 7, 1874. }

GENERAL — In forwarding the inclosed copies of the muster-rolls of the cavalry and artillery organizations of this division, I have to say, in extenuation of the delay in so doing, that I entered upon my duties as inspector too late to insure the correct rendition of the rolls before the muster took place, and that I found many of them so poorly prepared that it became necessary in some instances to have them entirely re-written, and in others much time was consumed in their correction.

With reference to the third regiment, cavalry, and its condition as shown by the inspection and muster, I beg leave to say that, if it be the intention to retain it in service, it should be — what it has not been for at least six (6) years — suitably and entirely equipped. The horse equipments now in its possession are not only not uniform — being of almost every known modern and obsolete pattern — but about one-third of the whole number are absolutely unfit for service, and so dangerous to use as to compel, for the sake of uniformity, the inspection and muster of the regiment dismounted. If it cannot be properly and entirely equipped, I would recommend as a measure of economy, which in my opinion will not impair the efficiency and usefulness of the division, the reduction of the regiment to a battalion organization, and the muster out of Troops A, E, H and K, four of the remaining six troops to constitute the battalion, and the other two to be designated as “separate” troops, which would give the division a total of four separate troops. Under any circumstances, should the regimental organization be retained, I would strongly recommend the disbandment of Troops E and H, both of which are much below the minimum and in an unhealthy condition. An argument in favor of this recommendation, if one be needed, is found in the system of four-troop battalions prescribed by the cavalry tactics, three of which battalions constitute a full regiment. The condition of the two troops named is shown in the following table :

Annual Inspection and Muster, October 22, 1874.

	PRESENT.			ABSENT.			Aggregate.	Net loss during year.	Recruits during year.	Number doing no duty during year.	Total number entitled to discharge.	Total number having more than 6 months to serve.
	Members entitled to discharge.	Members having more than 6 mos. to serve.	Total.	Members entitled to discharge.	Members having more than 6 mos. to serve.	Total.
Troop E....	4	14	18	6	15	21	39	4	2	2	10	29
Troop K....	4	18	22	8	8	16	38	7	5	3	12	26

Experience has shown it to be most difficult, if not impossible, to maintain regimental cavalry organizations in the national guard service in an efficient condition, and it has also demonstrated their uselessness in the emergencies which have arisen during the past ten years in this city. Even well drilled, disciplined, mounted and equipped cavalry — which, from the very nature of the service, it is impossible for the national guard cavalry to be equal to — would, in my opinion, be useless for actual service upon the paved streets of cities. As a school for the training of cavalry officers, or as a nucleus in case of sudden war, a few troops, well equipped and disciplined, and as thoroughly drilled and well mounted as the circumstances would permit, will be of more value than the maintenance of the present larger but less efficient number.

The separate troop and first troop Washington Greys, cavalry, are in good condition and nearly fully equipped.

Batteries B and K are also in good condition. The latter has on requisition called for a change of guns from the six-pound now in use to the twelve-pound, or "Napoleon gun." It is the opinion of the acting chief of artillery (Colonel Josiah Porter), whom I have consulted, that the change would be a great improvement, and I therefore recommend it.

I have the honor to subscribe myself,

Very respectfully yours,

CARL JUSSSEN,

Colonel, and Inspector First Div., N. G., S. N. Y.

FIRST DIVISION, N. G. S. N. Y. }
No. 24 PINE STREET, November 7, 1874. }

Major-General JOHN F. RATHBONE,

Adjutant-General of the State of New York:

GENERAL — I have the honor to submit my report, as follows, of the annual inspections of the several regiments composing the first brigade of infantry, made by me at the city of New York on the 19th, 20th, 21st, 22d and 23d days of October, 1874, respectively, in the order named :

TWENTY-SECOND INFANTRY.

This regiment paraded in heavy marching order and was accompanied by its fine band. As usual, the manner of rolling the overcoats was negligent. It is difficult to impart the requisite instruction in these matters, the knowledge of which is not laid down in books but is handed down by tradition.

While passing in review, the distances were well kept with the exception, in some degree, of those of the 8th and 9th companies in column; the marching and alignments were good, and the salutes generally well performed. Distance was again lost toward the close of the march past, causing gaps to be made in the right wing, after wheeling into line. During the inspection the excellent discipline of the command, and the attention of the officers to the rules of the revised tactics were apparent. On the whole, the regiment surpassed the appearance made by it at the last annual inspection. The arms were in excellent order, the accoutrements were in good order. The books and papers of the regiment are kept in the best possible manner.

I desire to call your attention to one point: veteran members, and discharged officers appear upon the rolls of several of the companies, and were mustered by me, subject to advisement, upon the representation that they had enlisted for one year. No such term of enlistment is recognized of course by the military code, but in my opinion, the men having thus enlisted might and should be held, if at all, for a new term of enlistment for the full period of seven years.

SIXTY-NINTH INFANTRY.

This regiment paraded in light marching order, being, as I am informed, unprovided with knapsacks or overcoats. This want should, in my judgment, be at once supplied by the state. If the regiment was suddenly called upon for duty in the streets of the city during the winter, the men would suffer severely from cold. It was without a band. The command appeared well in line, but during the march in column, although the alignments and marching were good, the distances were not well preserved, causing gaps in the line when reformed. The salutes were poorly performed, notwithstanding the frequent efforts which I have made to instruct on this point. During the inspection and muster the discipline of the regiment appeared good, but the manual for inspection of arms was poorly performed in most of the companies.

The condition of the breech-loading arms is not perfectly satisfactory; the men appear to be negligent in using them, and in some instances it was noticed, during the inspection, that the breech-blocks were left open and the hammers thrown back.

I am sorry to be obliged to report that on the whole this regiment has not improved during the past year in drill or discipline. The military spirit which formerly made up for many deficiencies in the drill of this fine body of men, appears to have somewhat declined. The regiment deserves encouragement, and ought to be provided with a better armory.

SEVENTY-FIRST INFANTRY.

This reliable regiment paraded in heavy marching order with its band, which is an excellent one. Its appearance in line was as usual excellent, but during the review in column, while the marching and alignments of the companies were unusually good, the salutes were less well performed, and distance in several instances was lost. In several points of minutiae the discipline and instruction of the regiment appeared somewhat deficient. The arms and accoutrements were in good condition. The books and papers are properly kept.

On the whole this command cannot be said to have lost ground during the past year. It is trusted that it may be permitted to continue to use the armory at present occupied by it; the situation of which, for the purpose, is so well chosen, that if the national guard is ever expected to be of real use it should continue to be used as an armory.

TWELFTH REGIMENT.

This regiment presented on the whole the best appearance, in the judgment of the inspector, of any of the regiments of the brigade. It approached more closely to the character of a good marching regiment in actual service than any of the others. It is not intended to assert that the review and inspection were perfectly performed; on the other hand several errors were committed, and the manual for the inspection of arms was no better understood in the majority of the companies than in other regiments. As usual and as it appears to be difficult to avoid the absence of frequent practice on open ground, distance was lost during the march; the salutes also were not in all cases well performed. Great attention was visible to the changes made in the tactics. The arms and accoutrements of the regiment were in good order.

This command, like the 69th and 79th regiments, lacks overcoats. This want sadly needs supplying. The books and papers of the regiment are really as well kept as it is possible for them to be.

SEVENTY-NINTH REGIMENT.

The inspector regrets that he is unable to bestow praise upon this regiment. The review and inspection were on the whole but poorly performed, and it is feared that on the whole the regiment has rather lost than gained ground, during the past year. Great allowance must be made for the want of field officers; for actual duty Lieut.-Col. Laing stands alone, and while the line possesses several deserving officers, whose commands by contrast exhibit an improvement over other companies, they need the assistance of others to preserve the regiment from a steady decline in discipline and efficiency. Instruction on many points seems almost wholly wanting. The decline of discipline is shown by the increasing unsteadiness of the men. During the march and in the salute the alignments were good. The arms of the regiment were in better order than those of the 69th regiment, and their condition is good, in spite of the fact that the armory of the regiment, which was fitted up for its use a year or more ago, is much complained of for its condition. The roof leaks, and it seems impossible to warm the building, while its position above a large horse-stable makes it otherwise disagreeable. The 79th regiment is representative of a martial race among our varied population; it served in the war, and that ought to be remembered to its credit, especially in the city of New York, and while its numerical designation unavoidably recalls to mind a very famous and splendid regiment in the British army, it is a pity to find its present condition awaken far other ideas.

Brigadier-General William G. Ward, commanding the brigade, attended the inspections on each of the days mentioned.

I was attended on each day by members of the brigade staff, for whose valuable assistance I desire to return thanks, as I also do for the uniform courtesy shown to me by the officers of the respective regiments.

I am, general, very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

ROWLAND N. HALL,
Major and Inspector, First Brigade.

OFFICE OF THE BRIGADE INSPECTOR,
SECOND BRIGADE, FIRST DIVISION, N. G., S. N. Y., }
New York, December 10, 1874. }

Major-General JOHN F. RATHBONE,
Adjutant-General, State of New York:

GENERAL— I have the honor herewith to submit my report of inspections, held upon the dates hereinafter mentioned, of the several regiments comprising the Second Brigade of the National Guard of the State of New York.

FIFTH REGIMENT INFANTRY.

Reviewed, inspected and mustered this regiment at Tompkins square, in the city of New York, on the 12th day of October, 1874.

The review in line, and marching in review was good; the salutes were poorly given, with but few exceptions. The movements in the school of the battalion were creditably executed, and this command exhibited marked improvement in drill and discipline since the last inspection.

The arms and accoutrements were all in good condition, but some of the cartridge boxes are of the old pattern, and with the present arms are entirely useless.

The uniforms were all in good order, with but few exceptions.

This command should have a more suitable armory, and more eligibly situated.

The books and papers were all in good condition, well kept and fully written up.

SIXTH REGIMENT INFANTRY.

Reviewed, inspected and mustered this regiment at Tompkins square, in the city of New York, on the 13th day of October, 1874.

The review and marching was fair; this command did not make a very creditable appearance, and exhibited no improvement, which may be accounted for as the command has no armory and no opportunity for drill.

The uniforms were in bad condition and almost threadbare.

An armory should be furnished this command as speedily as possible, or it be better consolidated or disbanded.

The arms and accoutrements are in good condition, and are now stored for safe-keeping in the State arsenal, corner Seventh avenue and Thirty-fifth street.

The books and papers were not as well written up as they should be; the officers having no armory, have become neglectful.

ELEVENTH REGIMENT INFANTRY.

Reviewed, inspected and mustered this command at Tompkins square, in the city of New York, on the 14th day of October, 1874.

The review, marching and salutes were fairly executed; the movements of the battalion were creditably given, and a marked improvement in drill and discipline was apparent since last inspection.

The uniforms and accoutrements were all in good condition.

This command is without cartridge boxes, and they should be furnished them at once.

The armory is well located and well kept, and all the State property well cared for; proper racks for the arms have not as yet been furnished, and should be furnished them, as the arms are standing around the room much to their injury.

The books and papers are well kept, and reflect credit upon the officers in charge of the same.

EIGHTY-FOURTH REGIMENT INFANTRY.

Reviewed, inspected and mustered this command at Tompkins square, in the city of New York, on the 15th day of October, 1874.

The marching in review was good and the salutes fairly given.

The movements in battalion exhibited marked improvement in drill and discipline.

The uniforms, arms and accoutrements were all in good condition and well cared for.

The books and papers were all properly kept and neatly written up.

NINETY-SIXTH REGIMENT INFANTRY.

Reviewed, inspected and mustered this command at Tompkins square, in the city of New York, on the 16th day of October, 1874.

The review was fairly executed, and the command made a creditable appearance, notwithstanding it has been without an armory during the entire drill season, and the commandant deprived of the assistance of his field officers.

The few battalion movements given were well executed, and great credit is due to the commanding officer for the zeal and patience exhibited in keeping the command together.

This command has since been furnished with a suitable armory, and is in good condition, and all the State property well cared for.

The arms and accoutrements were all in good condition.

This command is in possession of some of the old pattern cartridge boxes, which should be exchanged for the new ones.

The books and papers were in good condition and well kept.

Inspected and mustered Colonel Frederick A. Conkling, commanding the brigade, and staff. They presented a creditable appearance, and their uniforms, arms and equipments are all in good condition and conform to the regulations.

The brigade commander was present upon the field at the inspections of the Fifth and Sixth regiments, also several of his staff on each day; and rendered valuable aid to the undersigned in the performance of his duty.

The undersigned will not reiterate his oft-repeated recommendations in relation to the necessity of improvement in drill and discipline in the National Guard, and the seasons for inspections and muster, and begs leave to submit this report of the performance of his duty.

I have the honor to be, general,

Your obedient servant,

WILLIAM C. DICKEL,

Brigade Inspector, Second Brigade, N. G., S. N. Y.

HEAD-QUARTERS 5TH BRIGADE, N. G., S. N. Y., }
BROOKLYN, N. Y., Nov. 20, 1874. }

GENERAL — I have the honor to report that the annual inspection of the 5th brigade took place at Prospect park parade ground on the 9th ult., being preceded by a review held by Brig.-Gen. Thomas S. Dakin, accompanied by his staff. The brigade was formed in line of battle at 10 o'clock A. M., the 28th battalion being absent, having been unavoidably delayed on the horse cars coming from their armory in the eastern district to the parade ground. The review was conducted by Col. James McLeer of the 14th regiment, he being next to the general, senior officer present, and was very creditably executed. In the standing review the men were very steady, and in the passage the ranks were fairly aligned, and distances fairly preserved. The officers for the most part saluted properly, but some of them neglected to look toward the reviewing officer. The review over, the line was broken into column of companies, and the brigade, as a whole, was inspected as to general appearance. I then, accompanied by the brigade staff, proceeded to minutely inspect and muster each command, and while I was engaged with one, the others, by order of the general, drilled in such battalion movements as could not be executed in their armories. The 28th battalion having arrived on the ground at 12 o'clock m., after finishing with the other commands, I proceeded to inspect and muster them. I requested Col. Burger to hold the review, which he did, but for some reason the lieutenant-colonel, who was present in uniform, and on duty with the battalion, did not conduct it, and the duty fell to the major, who committed the error of presenting arms after the reviewing officer had passed around the flanks, and before the passage. The review was fair, but in the passage I noticed the non-commissioned staff salute as if they were commissioned officers; and I called the colonel's attention to it. I then inspected and mustered this command, finishing my duties with the brigade, as inspector, about 4 o'clock, p. m. The brigade, with the exception of the Separate Troop Cavalry, which had been excused from further attendance, by the general commanding, at 1 o'clock p. m., to attend a funeral of one of their late comrades, were then formed in line of masses for dress parade, the latter ceremony was very fine, the 13th and 14th regiments during the "beat off" standing like statues, which, however, can hardly be said of the 15th and 28th battalions. After parade the brigade was dismissed. I will here call your attention to the fact that the 28th paraded but 274, out of 367 aggregate; the 13th, 289, out of 400; the 14th, 331, out of 459, and the 15th, 150, out of 223. There is little, if any, excuse for a command parading only this proportion (say seventy-two per cent average) of their strength. The exhibit does not show the proper spirit; it is wrong, and should be looked after by the regimental or battalion commanders. If men cannot parade on such an important occasion as an annual inspection, and this too, this year with the 5th brigade, when inspection and field day were combined, their names had better not appear on the rolls at all. It certainly shows the command to be less powerful, in fact, than it appears to be on paper. I refer to this sad feature because the number that was present presented a fine appearance, were very orderly, and discharged their duties creditably.

Seven brigade staff officers were present with Gen. Dakin, and presented a creditable appearance. Their uniform and equipments are in good condition, and accord with regulations and orders subsequently issued.

The 28th battalion show a loss sixty-four in the present, and twenty-nine in the total, as compared with last year's muster. The discipline of this command is not of the highest order. There is considerable unsteadiness and talking in the ranks, and connecting this with their deportment on a former occasion, when there was disorderly, and to some extent, insubordinate conduct, it has not seemed to me that the colonel has used the remedy in his power, especially with several officers, some of whom are prominent, to prevent a repetition. Failing in this, he is himself amenable to the offended law of discipline, and he is, therefore, responsible. This command needs a change in some of its officers. The colonel means well, but is not strict enough, and does not enforce obedience and a proper observance of duty from his subordinates. One lax or disorderly and incompetent officer does more harm to a command than it is in the power of ten good ones to overcome. The material of the battalion is good, and it would be much improved in discipline if several officers were changed for good and efficient ones. The arms, the Remington breech-loader, issued to them during the past year, and accoutrements are in good order, the former being properly cared for at their armory. The military appearance is fair and clothing is in a fair condition. The books, with the exception of regimental, are incomplete and incorrect. The regimental books, although not in the prescribed form, are, nevertheless, full and complete, and great credit is due to the adjutant for the able manner he keeps them. Nothing like this can be said though of the company books. The discipline books are all incomplete and incorrect, and have no property record filed up in them. They all have a bad custom of drawing a red line through the names of those who cease to belong to the command. Company I has no descriptive book at all. The enrollment books, with the exception of Company C, are all wrong. Instead of the men signing their names themselves, they have been entered in by the company clerk. The latter books are neglected, and I am under the impression that much of the business which should be in writing is done verbally. Companies A, C and I, are fair. Company B has but one letter entered, and Companies D, G and H have no letters at all entered. Company orders, with the exception of Company B, seem to be well kept, but with the exception of Companies C and I were not signed up. They have a useless custom of embracing the whole of every battalion order into a company order, which, of course, involves a waste of time and expense. Letters received are well and carefully filed. The companies have but one file of orders, and that one is battalion. Enough brigade and division orders are sent them to supply any company, but it seems the adjutant does not transmit them. I will here add, that although battalion orders directed company commanders to be present in uniform at inspection of books, but two were present, and they were not in uniform. It would be well for the officers of this battalion to heed the last clause of paragraph xxxvii, Gen. Orders, No. 21, series of 1868, from General Head-quarters.

The 13th regiment shows a loss of 21 in the present and 67 in the totals, as compared with last year, which is accounted for by the loss of Company G, disbanded since last muster. This regiment is commanded by Colonel James Jourdan, a general officer in the late war, and a splendid instructor and disciplinarian; and it follows, of course, that the instruction and discipline of this regiment is good. Their old armory has rather militated against enlistments for the past few years, but their new one is now assuming large proportions, and will be ready for occupancy early in the spring. This has the effect of inspiring the officers with hopes of less difficulty in obtaining recruits, and a good spirit throughout this old and tried command is the result. A new company is already organizing, and will soon join. The military appearance is good. They have adopted white cross-belts since last muster, which of course is more showy, and therefore more pleasing to young soldiers. Their arms (Remington breech-loaders), accoutrements and clothing are all in excellent condition, the former being well cared for at the armory. The books are correct but not complete. The descriptive books are nearly complete, but Companies A, B, C, D, F and H have no property records in them, and Companies E and I have them, but not complete. The latter books, with the exception of Company A, are well written up. The company order-books are well up and correct, with the exception of Companies A and B. The enrollment books are correctly kept, but, with the exception of B, D and E, are incomplete. Files of orders are well kept, with the exception of A, H and I, who, however, keep them fairly. Regimental head-quarters have never been supplied with a new indorsement book, and are using the old one.

The 14th regiment shows a gain since last muster of six present and 20 in the totals. They have shown marked improvement the past year, under the able direction of Colonel James McLeer, a competent and efficient officer, who, with his major and several line officers, attested their devotion to their country upon the battle-fields during the late struggle for the suppression of the rebellion, and where they lost an arm. Their empty sleeves always create the most unbounded enthusiasm and applause whenever they parade. This command will very soon be placed in possession of the arsenal on Portland avenue for their armory, and this building, with such alterations as are contemplated, will make fine quarters for them.

It is a wonder how this regiment and the 13th have got along as well as they have for the past few years, huddled together as they were in the old city armory, which has been condemned by officers of the general's staff, and also by my predecessors, and which is thoroughly inappropriate both in size and general appointments. The discipline and instruction of this command is good. The arms (Remington breech-loaders) issued to them since last muster, accoutrements and clothing are in good order, the former being well cared for in the armory. Their military appearance is good. The books and papers are not what they should be, but the officers were anxious to make them perfect. They have taken hold of them with a will, and I have no doubt they will now be correct and complete in a very short time. The regimental order-book is fair, but it is signed by the colonel instead of the adjutant, and the general and special orders are entered together. The descriptive book is incomplete. They have no letter book, roster book or indorsement book. The files of orders and letters received are fair. The company order books are good, except Company A, which is not complete; Company C, not in proper form, and signed by the captain instead of the first sergeant, and Company G, which has no orders entered in it at all. None of the companies seem to use the letter books, and this command also does too much official business verbally. The enrollment books, with the exception of Companies A, F and G, are incomplete. The descriptive books, with the exception of Company B, are correct, but in various stages of incompleteness. They are, however, working on them. The files of orders are fair, but none of the companies can show any files of letters received.

The 15th battalion shows a gain since last muster of 26 present and 27 in the totals, as compared with last year, one company, A, having been organized and mustered in by my predecessor since then. The command during the last year has been placed in possession of the armory formerly occupied by the 23d regiment, and, having but five companies, it makes fine quarters for them. They seem to be in good discipline, the only instance of disorderly conduct coming under my observation was two officers and several men on the day of inspection, which, however, was promptly met and properly handled by the commanding officer. The instruction and military appearance is good, and the arms (Remington breech-loaders) issued to them since last muster, accoutrements and clothing, are in good order, the arms being well cared for at the armory. Battalion head-quarter books are fair but not complete. They are using the old books still, but are about commencing on the new ones, and the commanding officer assures me he will soon have them correctly completed. The company order books, with the exception of Company E, which is incorrect, and Company F, which contains no company orders, but has battalion orders copied into it, on good letter-books, with the exception of Companies D and K, are poor. Company A has no letters entered; Company E incorrectly entered, and Company F has no letters entered at all this year. Enrollment books, with the exception of Company F, are all incomplete. Descriptive books are correct as far as they have gone, but are incomplete, and they contain no property record. Files of orders are fairly kept in all the companies, excepting Company A, but none of them can show any files of letters received.

Separate troop cavalry, 5th brigade, shows a gain since last month of 18 present and two aggregate. This is really a fine troop, and its commanding officer, Captain Sandhausen, seems to take great interest and pains in keeping up the reputation of the "Ringolds." They have received since last muster the Remington breech-loading carbine, and keep them in good order. Their horse equipments are now in good condition and complete, they having received recently new parts of it, such as girths, etc., to replace such parts as had worn out. The discipline and instruction is good, and their military appearance excellent. The order book and enrollment book are well kept, but the letter-book does not seem to be used, and as I know letters come from this troop to brigade head-quarters, it would seem that this book is neglected. The descriptive book is incomplete and contains no property record.

There seems to be a scarcity of tactics throughout the brigade, and in view of the recent changes, requiring study by all the officers, I would recommend that more be issued, say 40 copies.

In making this my first report in the National Guard of this State, I feel it to be my duty to say, that, much to my surprise, I find, I will not say an indifference, but the lightest term I can use is, the lax and seemingly incomprehensive manner of making up the muster-rolls, which, of course, results from officers not studying and complying with regulations and existing orders. If, before proceeding to make up the muster-rolls, they would search out and observe all instructions and information pertaining to them, which is amply laid before them in regulations and orders, or, if they would observe the printed notes on the rolls themselves, they would reflect more credit on themselves and give less trouble to a mustering officer.

The rolls, as they came to me, were at first more or less incomplete and incorrect, and I sent them all back to the company commanders for such improvements as could be made without making new rolls. They are now as perfect as I can get them, and I send them to you by Adams express. I inclose herewith tabular statement showing strength of the brigade.

Your obedient servant,

WM. J. DENSLOW,
Inspector Fifth Brigade.

HEAD-QUARTERS ELEVENTH BRIGADE, N. G., S. N. Y., }
 BROOKLYN, November 2, 1874. }

Major-General JOHN F. RATHBONE,
Adjutant-General:

GENERAL — Pursuant to instructions, I have the honor to submit the following report of the annual muster and inspections of this brigade for 1874.

The Howitzer battery was inspected October 5, 1874, 2½ o'clock P. M., at Fort Greene, with the following result: Forty-eight men total, 35 being present and 13 absent, showing a decided improvement over last year in numbers present, and a gain in totals of three men.

The 23d regiment was inspected same date and same place at 3 o'clock P. M., but owing to the lateness of the hour when through the inspection, was obliged to muster this organization in their armory, with the following result: Four hundred and sixty men present, 113 men absent, and 573 men in totals, which shows an increase of two men in present over last year, and an increase of 32 men in totals. This organization shows a steady and marked improvement year after year. I found all state property in excellent order.

The 47th regiment was mustered and inspected October 6, 1874, at 3 o'clock P. M., on one of the side streets adjacent to the Union ball grounds—owing to the ball grounds, called for in orders, being previously engaged for other purposes—with the following result: Three hundred and forty-four men present, an increase of one man over last year; 105 men absent, and 449 men in the totals, showing a slight loss of eight men in totals. The arms of this regiment were not in as good condition as I should like to have seen. I called the attention of the armorer to this fact, and have his promise for a better state of things in future. Other state property was in good condition.

The separate troop of cavalry was mustered and inspected October 8, 1874, at 2½ o'clock P. M., with the following result: Forty-nine men present, nine men absent, and 58 men in totals, showing an increase of seven men in present over last year. This organization holds its own, having the same number of members on its rolls as last year. The arms and equipments were found in excellent order.

The 32d regiment was mustered and inspected October 8, 1874, at 3 o'clock P. M., on Bushwick avenue, with the following result: Three hundred and twenty-nine men present, 58 men absent, and 387 men in totals, which shows a loss of two men present, as compared with last year, as well as a loss of nine men in totals. The arms and equipments of this regiment were found in excellent order.

The 11th brigade shows an increase of 23 in present, and total gain of 18 men over last year, and I believe is in a much healthier condition than it has been for a number of years.

Attached please find recapitulation of the several organizations, as well as by brigade.

Very respectfully yours,

THEO. LININGTON.

OFFICE OF INSPECTOR TWENTY-EIGHTH BRIGADE, }
ITHACA, November 17, 1874. }

Major-General J. F. RATHBONE,
Adjutant-General, S. N. Y.

GENERAL—In compliance with section 153 of the Military Code of the State of New York, I have the honor to report that the regiments and batteries of this brigade were inspected and mustered by me on the 7th day of October, 1874, at Syracuse, during the encampment of the sixth division, national guard. Brig-Gen. J. C. Robie, commanding brigade, and staff were present at the encampment, but owing to the unfavorable state of the weather no review was had upon the ground.

I would report the condition of the brigade as improving both in numbers, in attendance at inspection, and in military appearance and drill. Arms and clothing were in good order and the men appeared attentive to their duties.

I am, general, very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

K. S. VAN VOORHEES,
Inspector Twenty-eighth Brigade.

REPORT OF MISS L. DEMPSEY,

IN CHARGE OF BUREAU OF MILITARY STATISTICS.

BUREAU OF MILITARY STATISTICS, }
ALBANY, December 31, 1874. }

Major-General JOHN F. RATHBONE,
Adjutant-General.

GENERAL—I have the honor to submit for your information the following brief statement giving the operations of this bureau for the year ending December 31, 1874.

Most respectfully,

L. DEMPSEY,
In charge of Bureau of Military Statistics.

BATTLE FLAGS RETURNED TO STATE ARCHIVES.

Two silk guidons of the Thirty-ninth Regiment, New York State Volunteers.

Contributions to the bureau have been received from the following sources:

Bramhall, F. J., Falls Church, Va.

Buell, J., Albany, N. Y.

Bureau of Statistics, Washington, D. C.

Corning, Mrs. E., Albany, N. Y.

Cowell, T., Albany, N. Y.

Dawson, B. S., Albany, N. Y.

Dwyer, J., Sandy Hill, N. Y.

Forbes, C. H., New York city.

Hitchcox, John, Albany, N. Y.

Rice, Chas. K., Syracuse, N. Y.

Quartermaster-General Department, Washington, D. C.

[Assem. Doc. No. 7]

These donations consist of military statistics, relics of various interest and portraits of the officers and privates of New York State volunteers.

We have also received general orders from the military posts of the United States, and county papers from several counties of New York.

All contributions received have been properly registered, and promptly acknowledged.

Much care and attention has been paid to the research of records, statistics have been carefully copied, and valuable military data given, to supply the needs of the historian, furnish reference for the soldiers' personal service, or to meet the wants of town and county officers.

Your judicious orders regarding the loaning of flags have in every instance been carried out, and all flags loaned during the year have been returned to the bureau in as good condition as possible.

Yet these war-worn banners are at best but frail fragments, and the most careful handling is at a cost of their preservation.

During the past year an effort has been made to procure articles of history, not confined to war mementoes, articles of state and national interest, that would lend a new and attractive feature to the museum and prove instructive to the visitor. Yet this effort has not proved successful, owing mostly to the want of room in our present building, the museum being already too crowded for the satisfaction and pleasure of contributors.

The interest of the public in visiting our state collections of war relics has been quite equal to that of any previous year.

The number registered upon our books for 1874 is 9,000, while we would estimate the whole number of visitors to the bureau during the year at 21,000.

GENERAL ORDERS AND CIRCULARS

ISSUED DURING THE YEAR 1874.

GENERAL HEAD-QUARTERS, STATE OF NEW YORK, }
 ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE, ALBANY, January 5, 1874. }

GENERAL ORDERS, }
 NO. 1 }

1. The Examining Board appointed pursuant to Section 101, Military Code, of which Major-General John B. Woodward is president, and Brigadier-General J. M. Varian and Brigadier-General D. M. Woodhall members, is hereby dissolved.

2. Pursuant to Section 101, Military Code, the following named officers of the National Guard are hereby constituted a Board to examine into the physical ability, moral character, capacity, attainments, general fitness for the service, and efficiency of such commissioned officers as the Commander-in-chief may order to be thus examined, viz.:

Major-General John B. Woodward, Second Division.

Brigadier-General Wm. G. Ward, First Brigade.

Brigadier-General Jeremiah V. Meserole, Eleventh Brigade.

Brigadier-General N. Gano Dunn, Engineer-in-Chief.

Colonel Wm. D. Dickey, Nineteenth Battalion.

The Board hereby appointed will assemble at the State Arsenal, in the city of New York, on Tuesday, the 20th day of January, at 12 o'clock M. for the examination of officers ordered before it.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

JOHN F. RATHBONE,

Adjutant General.

GENERAL HEAD-QUARTERS, STATE OF NEW YORK, }
 ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE, ALBANY, January 7, 1874. }

GENERAL ORDERS, }
 NO. 2 }

The Commander-in-Chief has had under consideration the appeal of Herman Sussmann, First Lieutenant and Adjutant of the Eleventh Regiment, N. G., from the decision of Brigadier-General Augustus Funk, commanding the Second Brigade, declaring the election of said Sussmann as Major of the Eleventh Regiment to be illegal, and has allowed said appeal, set aside the decision of the brigade commander and directed the issue of a commission to Hermann Sussmann, as Major of the Eleventh Regiment, for the reasons set forth in the following report and opinion of the Judge Advocate-General.

MAJOR-GENERAL JOHN F. RATHBONE,

Adjutant-General, S. N. Y. :

GENERAL—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt for my examination and report of the appeal of Herman Sussmann, First Lieutenant and Adjutant Eleventh Regiment, from the decision of Brigadier-General Augustus Funk, commanding the Second Brigade, declaring the election of said Lieutenant Sussmann as Major of the Eleventh Regiment to be illegal, and the papers accompanying the said appeal, and respectfully report thereon as follows :

It appears from the documents submitted to my examination that, on the 26th day of June, 1873, an election to fill the office of Major of the Eleventh Regiment was held, whereat Lieutenant-Colonel Unbekant, presided. Twenty-one votes were cast, whereof Lieutenant Sussman received eleven and the only opposing candidate received ten, and Sussmann was duly declared elected. An appeal was taken from the proceedings and decision of the officer who presided at said election to Brigadier-General Funk, commanding the brigade, which appeal was dated July 18th, and signed by Second Lieutenant, Peter Bayer. There is nothing in all the affidavits and documents submitted tending to show that the appeal was taken (or served) previous to the time it bears date. The appeal was ordered to be heard at the regimental armory on the 30th day of July. Three witnesses were examined on the hearing at the time and place mentioned and thereupon the officer commanding the brigade declared the election illegal and void, on the ground that the Lieutenant-Colonel of the regiment had voted at the election.

The appeal of Lieutenant Sussman to the Commander-in-Chief from the decision of General Funk is taken on several alleged grounds, the first of which is that "the appeal to the Brigadier-General was not taken within the proper time."

The time for appealing in such cases as the one under consideration is limited by the general regulations to ten days from the time of holding the election. By virtue of section 252 of the Military Code, the General Regulations not in conflict with that act of the legislature have the force of a statute, and the Commander-in-Chief is alone authorized by the legislature to make changes or alterations in respect thereto. No change in the time of taking on appeal from an election has been made either by the Code or by the Commander-in-Chief, and I know of no rule of determining the question presented other than the one which obtains in the civil courts.

It is well settled by the courts of this state that an appeal taken after the time for appealing has expired is a nullity, and the appellate courts cannot, of their own motion, enlarge the time or acquire jurisdiction of the subject-matter in controversy after the time to appeal, as fixed by the statute, has expired.

In the case of Jackson v. Wiseburn, 5 Wend. R. 136, the court says: "It is the ordinary course of the court to enlarge the time to plead or other time prescribed for any other purpose by the rules or practice of the court upon cause shown; but neither a commissioner in vacation nor the court in term can enlarge the time within which an act is to be done when such time is regulated by statute."

In the case of Stone v. Morgan, 10 Paige, 615, an appeal was dismissed, with costs, because taken after the time fixed by statute had expired. So in the case of Westcott v. Platt, 1 Code R. 100, an appeal taken from an order made at special term, though regular in other respects, was dismissed with costs, because served one or two days too late; and in the case of Morris v. Morange, 17 Abb. Pr. 86, the court held that unless notice of appeal is actually received by the clerk of the court within the time limited by the Code, the right to appeal is lost. Many other cases can be cited to the same purport.

It appears, also, from the documents submitted for my examination in connection with the appeal of Lieutenant Sussmann, that there was a failure of service of the appeal from the election upon the officer who presided at the election, and upon the person declared elected, as required by the regulations.

The rule of law so clearly laid down in the civil courts of the state, when applied to case under consideration, leads to but one conclusion, viz.: That the appeal of Lieutenant Sussmann to the Commander-in-Chief is well taken, and that the decision of the officer commanding the brigade upon the appeal from the election should be set aside, he not having jurisdiction to hear the appeal.

It being unnecessary to discuss the other alleged grounds of appeal,

I remain, very respectfully, yours.

J. HAMPDEN WOOD,
Judge Advocate-General, S. N. Y.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

JNO. F. RATHBONE,
Adjutant-General.

GENERAL ORDERS, }
No. 3. }

Commanding officers of regiments, battalions, separate troops of cavalry, and batteries of artillery, will make quarterly returns, by companies, showing the condition of their respective commands on the last day of March, June, September and December.

The return of the 31st of March next will show the number of officers, non-commissioned officers, musicians and privates composing their respective commands on that day. On the last day of each quarter thereafter they will make a return, giving, in addition to the above, the full name of each person who has joined or ceased to be a member of the organization since the date of the last return; they will also enter thereon any promotions or reductions that may have taken place during the quarter, the dates and causes of the same, and reference to any orders bearing upon the subject will, in all cases, be carefully noted.

Blanks for making these returns will be furnished from this office. One copy of each return will be sent to the brigade commander, one to the commanding officer of the division, and one copy will be transmitted through the intermediate commanders to these head-quarters. The remaining copy will be retained by the organization.

By order of the commander-in-chief,

GENERAL ORDERS, }
 No. 8. }

The Commander-in-Chief has had under consideration the appeal of Captain Henry Ring, Eleventh Regiment, National Guard, from the proceedings, findings and sentence of a General Court-Martial, convened pursuant to Special Orders No. 35, Head-quarters Second Brigade, July 11, 1873, and has allowed said appeal and set aside the proceedings, findings and sentence of said Court-Martial, for the reasons set forth in the following report and opinion of the Judge-Advocate-General:

Col. J. B. STONEHOUSE,

Assistant Adjutant-General, State of New York:

COLONEL:—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt for my examination and report of the appeal of Captain Henry Ring to the Commander-in-Chief from the proceedings, findings and sentence of the General Court-Martial convened pursuant to special orders No. 35, dated Head-quarters Second Brigade, First Division, National Guard, State of New York, July 11, 1873, and respectfully report thereon as follows:

Captain Ring appeals on the ground that neither the court nor the witnesses for the prosecution were sworn as prescribed by the Military Code. It appears from the record that Captain Ring was one of a number of officers brought before said court and tried in succession; that the witnesses in his case were the same as in previous cases; that they were not sworn previous to being questioned by the Judge Advocate in Captain Ring's case, nor does it appear that the court or Judge Advocate were sworn at the commencement of his trial, all of which is required by the Code and General Regulations. The authorities agree that these defects in the record are fatal. It is not sufficient that the court or witnesses were sworn on a previous trial by the same court. When a series of cases are to be tried the record of each must be complete. I therefore respectfully recommend that the appeal be allowed, and the proceedings, findings and sentence of said Court-Martial, so far as they relate to the case of Captain Ring, be set aside.

I remain your obedient servant,

J. HAMPDEN WOOD,
Judge Advocate-General, S. N. Y.

At a meeting of the Military Examining Board, appointed by General Orders, No. 1, c. s., which convened at the city of New York on the 20th day of January, 1874, the following recommendations were made to the Commander-in-Chief, and the same are hereby approved and confirmed:

I. That the commissions of the following named officers be vacated for disobedience of the orders of the Commander-in-Chief, in not appearing for examination, viz:

Second Lieutenant William Meyer, Fifth Regiment.

Second Lieutenant David C. Brownlee, Eighty-fourth Regiment.

Captain Thomas McCarty, Separate Troop of Cavalry, Second Division.

II. That on the recommendation of the regimental commandant, First Lieutenant Jesse Wilkinson, Forty-seventh Regiment, be allowed to resign, provided said resignation be offered within thirty days.

III. That the decision of the board being unfavorable in the cases of the following named officers, they be discharged from the service, viz.:

Captain William H. Cox, Seventy-first Regiment.

Second Lieutenant Emile Cardoze, Seventy-first regiment.

IV. In the case of Brigadier-General Augustus Funk, in which the decision of the Board is unfavorable, the Commander-in-Chief, in consideration of gallant and meritorious services rendered by him during the War of the Rebellion, directs that his resignation be accepted.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief,

V. Paragraph 534, General Regulations, is hereby so modified as to make it the duty of all general staff officers to attend the meetings for instruction therein ordered, and also so as to leave the character of the instruction to be there imparted to the discretion of the division commanders.

VI. Paragraph 535, General Regulations, is hereby so modified as to provide for a period of instruction not exceeding two consecutive days.

VII. The copy of enlistment papers required by General Orders No. 10, series of 1871, General Head-quarters, to be filed with the company records, may hereafter be dispensed with.

VIII. The reports and returns herein enumerated are intended and will be regarded at these head-quarters as answering the requirements, in full, of the Military Code, the General Regulations and existing orders, in so far as the same relate to reports and returns, excepting the general requirements of Paragraph 676, General Regulations.

IX. The reduction in the number of returns and reports required, which is herein effected with the view to lessening clerical labor and which dispenses with all such as are not considered indispensable, will, it is hoped, induce a prompt rendition of those which are herein called for and which are necessary to the proper maintenance of the service.

GENERAL ORDERS, }
No. 14. }

The following law for the promotion of rifle practice in the National Guard is published for the information and guidance of all concerned:

CHAPTER 268.

AN ACT for the promotion of rifle practice in the National Guard.

PASSED April 27, 1874; three-fifths being present.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. There shall be in the Inspector-General's department an Assistant Inspector-General, with the rank of colonel, in addition to those now prescribed by law, to be known as General Inspector of Rifle Practice, who shall be appointed by the Commander-in-Chief, and whose commission shall expire with the time for which the Governor may have been elected.

§ 2. There shall also be in each division a Division Inspector of Rifle Practice, with the rank of lieutenant-colonel; in each brigade a Brigade Inspector of Rifle Practice, with the rank of captain, who shall be appointed and hold their commissions in the manner prescribed by law for division and brigade staff officers.

3. It shall be the duty of the General Inspector of Rifle Practice to exercise general supervision over the rifle practice of the National Guard; to inspect, or cause to be inspected, from time to time, all armories, ranges and practice grounds, and see that the prescribed regulations for rifle practice are carried out by the National Guard, and that proper returns thereof are made, and to report direct to General Head-quarters, from time to time, the improvement in marksmanship among the uniformed forces, together with all other matters appertaining to his duties.

4. Commandants of divisions, brigades, regiments or companies shall furnish to the General Inspector of Rifle Practice such information as he shall require in regard to the rifle practice of their commands, and as to the number and condition of all targets or other military property of the State issued to their respective commands for use in rifle practice; and if, at the conclusion of his inspection of any armory, range or practice ground, he shall find any property appertaining to rifle practice, which ought to be kept therein, missing, injured, unfit for use, or deficient in any respect, or that such range or practice ground is dangerous, he shall forthwith report the facts in respect thereto to General Head-quarters. He may, from time to time, examine the officers upon the theory and practice of markmanship, and upon the system of instruction in rifle practice.

§ 5. It shall also be his duty to attend the annual competition for the "State Prize," and, as far as practicable, all other general competitions in markmanship among the National Guard, and see that such competitions are conducted with fairness, and according to prescribed regulations. He shall make an annual report to General Head-quarters, in which he shall state the result of all competitions in markmanship for any prizes offered by the State, with the names of the winners, together with such suggestions as he may see fit.

§ 6. The Division and Brigade Inspectors of Rifle Practice shall have supervision of all matters appertaining to rifle practice within the limits of their respective commands, under the directions of the commandants of such organizations, respectively, as above prescribed for the General Inspector of Rifle Practice; they shall report to such General Inspector of Rifle Practice, whenever required by him, the condition of rifle practice in their respective divisions, brigades or regiments, and what practice of that description has been carried on during any period, and shall also, at his request, report to him upon any matter relating to rifle practice which may require examination, within their respective division or brigade districts. They shall attend the competitions for any prizes that may be offered by the State to the command to which they are attached, and see that the same are conducted with fairness and according to the prescribed regulations, and report to the Adjutant-General the result of all such competitions, with the names of the winners, together with such suggestions as they may see fit to make.

§ 7. No avenue, street or public highway shall be laid out, extended into or opened through the grounds of the National Rifle Association at Creedmoor.

§ 8. Before any targets or appurtenances are furnished by the State, a certified copy of the by-laws and other regulations of the associations to which they may be issued, shall be filed with the Adjutant-General, and approved by him, and bonds in such sum as may be required by the Commissary General of Ordnance shall be given to him to secure the care and custody of such property.

§ 9. The General Inspector of Rifle Practice and the Brigadier-General of the district in which a range is located must be constituted permanent ex officio members of the Board of Directors of the association having control of such range, and the commanding officers of the Third and Fifth Divisions, the Inspector-General of the State, and the Commissary General and Chief of Ordnance, permanent ex officio members of the Board of Directors of the National Rifle Association, before such association or the National Rifle Association shall receive any of the benefits of this act; and such Brigadier-General shall have the same authority to direct the use of any range within his district by any of the organizations of his command, without compensation, as is now given to the commanding officers of the First and Second Divisions, with reference to the range of the National Rifle Association; provided that not less than one-fourth of the targets of such associations, and of the National Rifle Association, shall be at all times reserved for the use of members.

§ 10. For the purpose of preserving the property of the State and of the rifle associations, and of preventing accidents and maintaining order upon such ranges, the officers and employees of such associations and of the National Rifle Association are hereby vested with the powers of constables when in the performance of their duty, and wearing such badge of office as shall be prescribed by the National Rifle Association, and all persons trespassing upon such ranges, or injuring any of the targets or other property situate thereon, or willfully violating thereon any of the regulations established to maintain order, preserve property, or prevent accidents, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

§ 11. The range of the National Rifle Association at Creedmoor, or any grounds hereafter acquired by that or any other rifle associations for rifle practice, and toward the purchase of which the State has contributed, shall not be sold, mortgaged or otherwise alienated from use in rifle practice without the written consent of at least two-thirds of the Board of Directors of such association, including a majority of the ex officio members of said Board, and without the written consent of the Adjutant-General of the State.

§ 12. Section five, chapter six hundred and ninety-nine, laws of eighteen hundred and seventy-two, is hereby amended to read as follows:

§ 5. It shall also be the duty of the Treasurer of the National Rifle Association, and the treasurer of all other rifle associations authorized by this act, to file with said Comptroller and with the Adjutant-General of the State, within twenty days after the first days of January and July in each year, a detailed account of all receipts and expenditures of such associations during the previous six months, verified by such treasurers under oath; it shall also be the duty of the presidents of such rifle associations to file in the Adjutant-General's office, within twenty days after the first day of January in each year, a return in detail of the property and its conditions. And the Directors of the National Rifle Association hereafter elected shall be chosen from and elected by the life members of such association.

§ 13. This act shall take effect immediately.

GENERAL ORDERS, }
No. 15. }

The Commander-in-Chief has had under consideration the appeals of Colonel Andrew Stauf, Lieutenant-Colonel Peter Hemmer, and Major Frederick Klöppel, Ninety-sixth (96) Regiment National Guard, State of New York, from the sentence and the proceedings, decisions and findings of a General Court-Martial, convened pursuant to General Orders, No. 12, dated Head-quarters First Division National Guard, State of New York, January 29, 1874, and it is hereby ordered:

I. In the case of Colonel Stauf, the various alleged grounds of appeal having been examined, and report made thereon by the Judge Advocate-General, the proceedings of said court-martial are approved as correct and in accordance with the Military Code and General Regulations. The sentence was not disproportioned to the offense charged, being one of the gravest known to military discipline. There being, however, reason to believe that Colonel Stauf was misled by the action of his brigade commander, in consideration of his previous good conduct, and on the recommendation of the Major-General commanding the first division, the Commander-in-Chief directs that the sentence of the court be remitted. Colonel Stauf will, therefore, resume command of the Ninety-sixth regiment.

II. In the cases of Lieutenant-Colonel Peter Hemmer, and Major Frederick Kloepfel, who, aware of the arrest of the Colonel of the regiment for disobedience of orders, deliberately disobeyed the same order, thus striking a blow at the foundation of all military discipline, the sentence, proceedings, decisions and findings of the court are approved, and the appeal is dismissed,

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

Adjutant-General.

GENERAL ORDERS, }
No. 16. }

I. The Infantry and Cavalry organizations of the First and Second Divisions, armed with breach-loaders, will each devote one day to target practice at Creedmoor previous to the 15th of September next, the dates to be designated by the division commanders. At such meeting each officer and enlisted man will fire seven rounds at 200 yards, standing, the two first to be sighting shots. Those who at this distance make a score of eight or ten, as may be determined by the commanding officer, will fire seven shots at 500 yards lying down, the two first to be sighting shots.

II. Requisitions for the ammunition required under this order must be made at least ten days before the time fixed for practice, the date of which will be stated in the requisition. The empty shells must be carefully collected and returned to the Ordnance Department without delay, and the Chief of Ordnance is hereby authorized to issue loaded cartridges in exchange for shells returned in the proportion of one for three, the same to be used as the commanding officers of organizations may determine.

III. The result of all target practice by National Guard organizations at Creedmoor will be immediately thereafter reported by company, in detail, to these Head-quarters on the forms furnished, for publication in the annual report of the Adjutant-General. The rules of the National Rifle Association will be observed, and in the practice required to be reported to these Head-quarters, the markers furnished by the Association will be employed, but the scoring may be done by the officers and sergeants of the organization practicing.

IV. The rifle practice herein ordered will be superintended by the division or brigade Inspector of Rifle Practice, who will indorse on the returns any remarks he may think proper.

V. The Assistant Quartermaster-General will issue orders for transportation to and from Creedmoor, upon the Central Railroad of Long Island, to the commanding officers, who will, without delay, certify to him the number of officers and men transported.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

GENERAL ORDERS, }
 No. 20. }

The Commander-in-Chief has had under consideration the appeal of Major J. P. McIvor, 69th Regiment, from the proceedings, findings and sentence of a Brigade Court-Martial, convened at the Armory of the 12th Regiment, February 16, 1874, pursuant to General Orders No. 1, c. s., from Head-quarters 1st Brigade, dated January 14, 1874, and has allowed said appeal and remitted the fine imposed by the Court for the reasons set forth in the following report and opinion of the Judge-Advocate-General:

GENERAL HEAD-QUARTERS STATE OF NEW YORK, }
 JUDGE ADVOCATE-GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT, ALBANY, June, 29, 1874. }

MAJOR-GENERAL JOHN F. RATHBONE,

Assistant Adjutant-General S. N. G. :

GENERAL:—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt for my examination and report of the appeal of Major J. P. McIvor, Sixty-ninth Regiment, N. G., S. N. Y., from the sentence, etc., of a Brigade Court Martial convened at the Armory of the Twelfth Regiment of Infantry, February 16, 1874, pursuant to General Orders No. 1, c. s., from Head-quarters, First Brigade, First Division, N. G., S. N. Y., dated January 14, 1874, and report on said appeal as follows:

It appears therefrom that Major McIvor was fined by said court-martial for delinquency, to wit: absence from regimental parade, July 23, 1873, and that at the time of said parade he was himself a member of a court-martial convened pursuant to General Orders No. 2, from Head-quarters, First Brigade, First Division, dated January 23, 1873. The question raised by his appeal is whether a detail for duty upon a court-martial relieves the officer so detailed from his ordinary duties as a member of the regiment to which he belongs.

Neither the Code nor the General Regulations furnish specific rules for the determination of this question. We are, therefore, (in accordance with the spirit of the Code) to follow the usage and custom of the United States service in this regard.

It is correctly remarked by the Major-General commanding the First Division, in his indorsement on this appeal, that it does not appear therein that the court-martial of which Major McIvor was a member, was holding a session at the time of his alleged delinquency.

By the indorsement of the Brigade Commander attention is called to the fact that this court-martial adjourned from the first of July to the first of September 1873, or thereabouts, and that the sessions of the court at which business was transacted were but nine in number, and the whole number of sessions but sixteen, beginning on the 3d of March and terminating on October 13th, wherefore he felt compelled to censure the court for its dilatory manner of dispatching business.

In view of these facts, there certainly appears to be no good reason why Major McIvor could not have attended the parade of July 23d, 1873, unless his membership of the court-martial and the rule of the service relieved him from duty with his regiment. I find from examination of General Holt's Digest of the opinions of the Judge Advocate-General of the army, that in such cases the option is given to the officer who is so detailed whether or not he will perform his ordinary, regimental or company duties, in the absence of special orders, with the right to the proper superior to require these duties of him by special orders to that effect.

The rule as there laid down (p. 221) is as follows: "Officers detailed on courts-martial, boards of examination, etc., are not, as a general rule, properly liable, while thus engaged, for the discharge of their ordinary duties as regimental and company officers, etc. When the proximity of their commands will enable them to perform these duties without interference with those of the service upon which they have been thus detailed, they may, in their discretion, do so; but in the absence of a special order requiring it, on the part of the proper superior, their detail should be regarded as necessarily relieving them from the performance of this extra labor."

Whatever the facts of this or any other particular case, it seems eminently proper that there should be a uniform rule as furnished by this practice of the regular service, and even in this case it was within the province of the Brigade Commander both to dissolve the court-martial with censure for unwarrantable delay, and as I think, to appoint a new one if deemed advisable, and also to require of the members of the court the performance of their regimental duties.

I therefore respectfully recommend that the appeal be allowed, and the fine imposed by the court remitted.

remain your obedient servant,

J. HAMPDEN WOOD,
Judge Advocate-General, S. N. G.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief,

JNO. F. RATHBONE,
Adjutant-General.

 No. 24. }

The following amendments to the Military Code are published for the information of the National Guard:

CHAPTER 386.

AN ACT to amend an act entitled "An act to provide for the enrollment of the militia for the organization of the National Guard of the State of New York and for the public defense, and entitled the Military Code."

PASSED MAY 8, 1874; three-fifths being present.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. Sections twenty-five, one hundred and sixty-seven and one hundred and ninety-six of chapter eighty of the laws of eighteen hundred and seventy, entitled "An act to amend an act entitled an act to provide for the enrollment of the militia, for the organization of the National Guard of the State of New York, and for the public defense, and entitled the Military Code," are hereby amended so as to read as follows:

§ 25. The Adjutant-General shall have the rank of Major-General, and in the corps of Adjutants-General there shall be an Assistant Adjutant-General, with the rank of Brigadier-General, and such acting assistant as shall be required, may be appointed by the Adjutant-General, with the approval of the Commander-in-Chief; and to each Division an Assistant Adjutant-General, with the rank of Colonel, to be chief of staff; to each Brigade an Assistant Adjutant-General, with the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel, to be chief of staff; and to each regiment an Adjutant, with the rank of First Lieutenant.

§ 167. The staff of the Commander-in-Chief (except the Adjutant-General, who shall be paid an annual salary of three thousand dollars and his necessary expenses), and the assistants in the several departments (except the Assistant Adjutant-General whose salary shall be fixed by the Commander-in-Chief at such sum as may be deemed proper, and not to exceed thirty-five hundred dollars per annum,) in lieu of all compensation and allowances heretofore provided by law, in time of peace, when upon actual duty under the provisions of this act, either at drills, parades, encampments, lake and sea-coast defense duty, or otherwise, shall be paid such reasonable and just compensation, not exceeding the full pay and allowance of officers of the same rank in the army of the United States as the Commander-in-Chief shall deem proper, and in no event to exceed the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars per annum, together with their necessary expenses and those of their departments, to be paid by the State upon the certificate of the Commander-in-Chief, showing a detailed statement of such services and expenses.

§ 196. For the trial of non-commissioned officers, musicians and privates, the commandant of each brigade may, at any time, appoint a regimental or battalion.

court-martial for any regiment or battalion in his brigade, which court shall consist of the brigade Judge-Advocate, except as provided in section one hundred and ninety-seven of this act.

§ 2. Section one hundred and ninety-seven of said act is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof the following words: "Which vacancy shall be filled by, or new court consist of, an officer of the brigade staff whose rank is not below that of a captain.

§ 3. This act shall take effect immediately.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief,

JNO. F. RATHBONE,
Adjutant-General.

 No. 30. }

I. The Commander-in-Chief has had under consideration the appeal of Major John Peattie, Twenty-sixth Battalion, National Guard, from the proceedings, findings and sentence of a General Court-Martial, convened at the city of Utica, on the 4th day of August, 1874, pursuant to Special Orders No. 2, c. s., from

[Assem. Doc. No. 7.] 25

Head-quarters Sixth Division, dated July 17, 1874, and subsequent orders relating thereto, and has disapproved the proceedings and sustained the appeal, for the reasons set forth in the following opinion of the Judge-Advocate-General:

JUDGE-ADVOCATE-GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT, }
ALBANY, December 15, 1874. }

BRIGADIER-GENERAL J. B. STONEHOUSE,

Assistant Adjutant-General S. N. Y. :

GENERAL—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt for my examination and report of the appeal of Major John Peattie, Twenty-sixth Battalion, N. G., S. N. Y., from the sentence, etc., of a Court-Martial convened at the city of Utica on the 4th day of August, 1874, pursuant to Special Orders No. 2, c. s., from Head-quarters Sixth Division, N. G., S. N. Y., dated July 17, 1874, and subsequent orders relating thereto; also the record of said Court-Martial and accompanying documents, and respectfully report thereon as follows:

It appears that Major Peattie was arraigned on a charge of "disobedience of orders," with three specifications; that previous to pleading to the charge and specifications, he objected that the President had been sworn before he had an opportunity to challenge any member of the court, which objection was overruled by the court.

The accused then exercised the right of challenge as to two of the members of the court, one of whom was found disqualified, and his place on the court filled by a subsequent order issued by the officer who had ordered the court; the other challenge was withdrawn.

The accused was found guilty of the first and third specifications and of the charge, and not guilty of the second specification.

The first seven alleged grounds of appeal relate to the ruling of the Court-Martial on the objection raised by the accused to the President of the court, and the decision by the court that the accused was not entitled to challenge the President after he had been sworn.

In overruling the objection raised by the accused, the Court-Martial were governed by and acted in accordance with the General Regulations of this State. Those Regulations (paragraph 116) provide that "no challenge to the President of a Court-Martial can be made, except to the officer ordering the court," while the previous paragraph (115) provides that he (the officer accused) shall deliver his cause of challenge in writing to the officer ordering such court within a reasonable time after receiving a copy of the charges and a list of the members, and paragraph 119, which describes the manner in which the Judge-Advocate shall commence the proceedings of the court, declares that he shall administer the oath prescribed by law to the President, "who cannot at this stage of the proceedings be challenged."

The inference to be drawn from these various provisions of the General Regulations is, in my judgment, that any challenge to the President of the Court-Martial, to be effective, must be preferred to the officer ordering the court before the President is sworn as a member, and within a reasonable time after the officer who is to be placed on trial is served with a list of the members of the court. And this undoubtedly was the view taken by the Court-Martial in denying Major Peattie the right of challenge to the President after he (the President) had been sworn.

The question, therefore, as regards these alleged grounds of appeal is whether the General Regulations, adopted in 1854, are consistent with the Military Code passed in 1870. Section 252 of the Code specially ratifies the Regulations, "except in so far as they conflict with this act (the Code). In turning to a preceding section of the Code, relating to Courts-Martial, viz.: Section 190, we find it provided that "If the officer accused shall have any cause of challenge to any member of such court, he shall make the same at the time and in the manner provided by the law governing the United States military service and the practice of Courts-Martial."

It is, therefore, beyond doubt, in my mind, that if the laws governing the United States service and the practice of Courts-Martial are in conflict with the General Regulations, the former must take precedence and govern the latter, which are thus made subordinate by this section of the Code.

In comparing the two systems, the first noticeable point of difference is, that in the United States service no officer is appointed president of a Court-Martial. The Army Regulations, paragraph 882, is as follows: "A president of a court will not be appointed. The officer highest in rank present will be President." By the General Regulations of this State (paragraph 114) the President may or may not be designated in the order convening the court, at the option of the officer issuing such order. If the President is not designated "the highest in rank has the right to preside."

Secondly, the State General Regulations declare that "no challenge to the President of a Court-Martial can be made, except to the officer ordering the court," and, as we have seen, this challenge should be made in writing previous to the assembling of the court, or at least previous to the President being sworn. This is not the manner provided by the laws governing the United States military service and the practice of Courts-Martial.

In the United States service a challenge may be made to any member (Benet, p. 101) and the prisoner is given the opportunity of making such challenge immediately after the reading, by the Judge-Advocate, of the order convening the court and before any member is sworn; and the record must show that he was previously asked whether he had any objection to any member, and his answer thereto (Benet, p. 104). In addition to this right of challenge to any member, before such member is sworn, the custom now prevails of permitting a challenge to a member even after he is sworn and during the progress of the trial, provided the prisoner had no opportunity of moving his objection before that form was gone through with, or provided the cause of the challenge was not known to the prisoner prior to his arraignment (Benet, p. 86).

It assuredly cannot be necessary to remark upon the importance of allowing the accused every right to make his challenge, and every reasonable cause of challenge, where the members of the court act as judges of the facts as well as of the law. They are his jurors, and, as Benet has remarked, "a culprit should never be made to appear in the light of a martyr; for when this takes place, much of the advantage of punishment is lost."

While the Court-martial which tried Major Peattie undoubtedly acted with entire good faith in following the provisions of the General Regulations, nevertheless, in my judgment, they acted erroneously, for the reason that such portion of the Regulations as they followed in this respect were in conflict with the Military Code, which, by Section 190, has made the United States military service the model of Courts-Martial proceedings. The accused had a right to assume that the Court-Martial would follow the mode of proceedings which exist in the army, more particularly so as the officer ordering the court followed the custom, which prevails in the army, of not designating any officer in the detail for the court as its President, but leaving that question to be decided by the relative rank of those of the detail who should qualify as members of the court. These remarks are not intended as in any degree reflecting upon the impartiality of the President of the court, nor as indicating what would have been the probable result of the trial if the accused had been allowed his right of challenge. But that right, in my judgment, is more than a technicality, it is a guaranty of fairness of which the accused cannot be deprived.

The appeal, among other alleged grounds, sets forth prejudice in the court against the accused, and his challenge to one member, which was sustained, is sufficient to indicate the importance of preventing, if possible, even the appearance of bias against the party on trial. In regard to the other alleged grounds of appeal and the merits of the case, there seems to be no great discrepancy in the testimony for the prosecution and of the defense (unless it be as to the intent of the accused), though the sentence seems extremely severe in proportion to the offense.

The accused received an order to parade with his command on July 4th, in which order the place for forming his command was distinctly specified. According to the testimony he formed the command some two blocks distant from the place specified, and, after waiting about a half an hour for the General commanding, he took up his line of march toward the General's quarters. He excuses his conduct on the ground of carelessness in reading the order, and the fact that the place of actual formation on that day was the customary one on such occasions, and of the impatience of his men.

In regard to the third specification, it appears that he was verbally ordered by his superior officer to report in person to him after the parade was dismissed, and also to order one Captain Kelly to perform a certain duty. The latter order, which he says was repeated, he obeyed, the former he did not, excusing his conduct by saying that he did not understand it as more than a suggestion to meet his superior in consultation as to some of the events of the day. He also testifies that he at no time had any intention of disobeying any order of his superior.

From a careful perusal of the whole testimony, it seems to me that his offense was due more to carelessness than evil intent, and a lighter punishment would have been more in accordance with justice and the best interest of the service.

I respectfully suggest that the appeal be allowed, leaving it to his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, to determine whether the sentence should be entirely set aside or commuted to a reprimand.

I herewith return the record of the court and remain,

Very respectfully,

J. HAMPDEN WOOD,

Judge-Advocate-General, S. N. G.

II. Major Peattie is released from arrest and will resume command of the Twenty-sixth Battalion.

III. The Commander-in-Chief cannot allow this opportunity to pass without impressing upon the officers of the National Guard the necessity of implicit obedience to the orders of their superiors. If insubordination is tolerated among the commissioned officers, it will be useless to attempt the enforcement of discipline in the rank and file.

Major Peattie denies that there was any intentional disregard on his part of the directions of his superior officer, but attributes his failure to execute them to carelessness. Neither carelessness nor inattention, even when free from all wrong intent, constitutes a valid excuse for violating one of the fundamental rules of military service, and his conduct was justly amenable to censure.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief,

JNO. F. RATHBONE,

Adjutant-General.

GENERAL HEAD-QUARTERS, STATE OF NEW YORK, }
 INSPECTOR-GENERAL'S OFFICE, }
 ALBANY, December 31, 1874. }

Major-General JOHN F. RATHBONE,
Adjutant-General of the State of New York:

GENERAL—I have the honor to make the following, my annual report, to his excellency the commander-in-chief :

During the past year, in compliance with the requirements of the military code, I visited the regimental and battalion districts of the state, and inspected the armories, arsenals, military store-houses, and the books of division, brigade, regimental and battalion head-quarters, and also the books of the companies, batteries and troops of the national guard. Colonel B. W. Blanchard, the assistant inspector-general, aided me in my inspections, and rendered valuable assistance. I was also accompanied through the state by Brigadier-General J. B. Stonehouse, the assistant adjutant-general, who took an active part in official examinations.

It is gratifying to be able to state that the national guard throughout the state is in an excellent condition of drill and discipline, with a few exceptions. The infantry organizations are all well armed and equipped and uniformed, except that nearly all require overcoats. The artillery and cavalry are generally in good condition, but still require some saddles and saddle-pads.

Many of the regiments of the first division, which have attained proficiency in the school of the company, are comparatively deficient in the school of the battalion, which naturally results from the want of a drill hall of sufficient size, on the ground floor, for battalion movements. If such a hall could be built, and conveniently located, it would do much toward improving the regiments of the first division. It should never be forgotten that the national guard is composed of men who are engaged during the day in their various vocations, and are obliged to acquire their knowledge of drill in the evening, and chiefly during the winter months. It was in consideration of these facts that I encouraged evening and in-door reviews and inspections during my term as inspector-general, in order that the military duties of the national guardsman might interfere as little as possible with his daily occupation. The regiments in other cities are now so well supplied with armories and drill halls that a common, large drill hall is not so necessary as in New York.

I desire to call attention again to the fact that our troops have no overcoats, except where a few regiments have supplied themselves with them at their own expense. As our city troops are liable to be called on at a moment's notice to quell a mob, and as such is most likely to rise in winter when men are out of employment and suffering for the necessities of life, it is easy to understand that many of our soldiers would perish from exposure if subjected to cold and storms with insufficient clothing.

I respectfully recommend a change in the military code, which shall leave the time for annual inspections to be designated by the commander-in-chief; and I would recommend that such inspections should be ordered for the organizations of the first and second divisions in May and June. Not only do they desire this, so far as I have learned from many conversations with their officers, but, in my judgment, the good of the service would be promoted by this change.

In my last annual report I made some comments regarding military improprieties of uniform, which I wish to call attention to, as the irregularities still exist to a limited extent.

In accordance with section 45 of the military code, I have the honor to report:

There have been no encampments reported at this office, except a short one at Syracuse, during which the rain fell incessantly.

The notices and returns required by sections 144 and 152 of the military code, have been rendered as therein provided.

The following is an abstract of the notices of parades and encampments received at this office, pursuant to section 144 of the military code:

HEAD-QUARTERS FIRST DIVISION, N. G. S. N. Y., }
NEW YORK, December 28, 1874. }

To JOHN F. RATHBONE, Adjutant-General, S. N. Y.:

GENERAL—I have the honor herewith to forward returns of Rifle Practice of the Third Regiment of Cavalry, on the 31st day of August, 1874, of the Washington Gray Troop and of the Separate Troop Cavalry, on the 30th day of July, 1874; also “scores” of the Troop Teams in the State match held September 29, 1874, all at Creedmoor, with the names of the winners in each; also consolidated reports of the First, Second and Third Brigades, N. G. S. N. Y.

The returns of the individual scores of E Troop, Third Cavalry, in the State match are incomplete, but the totals are given. The reason assigned for this, and which is undoubtedly the correct one, is that the rain was so continuous and severe as to obliterate the records, there being no shelter for the score-keeper.

This being the first year in which the regiments have practiced firing at Creedmoor under orders from General Head-quarters, it seems proper First, to state somewhat at length the results of such Rifle Practice, and Second, to indicate a few points in which the efficiency of such practice can be increased.

First—The results are:

I. A much more accurate knowledge of the weapon carried by the soldier, and an undoubtedly increased interest on the part of individual members of the National Guard in the accuracy of their firing, thereby increasing their efficiency in time of need.

II. An increased esprit du corps that naturally follows from a friendly rivalry in an interesting competition between the various organizations.

III. A general awakening of interest on the subject of Rifle Practice not confined to this State alone, but extending throughout the country, as evidenced by the establishment of other Ranges, some completed and others yet in their infancy.

It is somewhat difficult to draw a comparison between the skill of our organizations in the use of the Rifle and that, either of the Regular Army or of the standing Armies of Europe, nor would it be quite fair to do so, if the records of the latter were at hand, when we consider that abroad attention has been given to the subject for years while with us but two regiments of the entire National Guard have practiced rifle shooting until the last year, and they more from individual interest than as an organized body.

Second.—I. The returns of the different regiments forwarded herewith and through Brigade Head-quarters clearly indicate considerable skill on the part of some members of the National Guard, and I think a fair general average, but as the object in view is not so much to obtain a few remarkable individual scores as it is to secure general efficiency, it seems proper to suggest that each company should employ aiming drill and candle practice in their armories during the winter months, and when the weather again admits, should form squads of those least efficient in their commands and by frequent practice at Creedmoor or on other Ranges, improve their marksmanship.

II. It seems proper further to call attention to the fact that the great want of uniformity in the "pull" of the trigger in the different pieces makes the result of the firing quite uncertain. In the carbine particularly, and in many instances in the State rifle, tests with weights show a variation from six pounds, (the regulation "pull") to over 13 pounds the latter being so heavy that the piece is discharged with great difficulty, and accurate firing becomes impossible. The armorers of the respective regiments could remedy this defect without difficulty and with great advantage to the score of the one who uses the piece.

In conclusion I would respectfully state that I have attended officially the competitive practice of the organizations reporting directly to Division Head-quarters, and the annual competition for the State prize, also unofficially, that of many of the other regiments of the First Division and find that the discipline has been almost uniformly excellent and that a general, wide-spread and increasing interest on the subject of Rifle Practice exists.

From conversations held with officers and others who have visited the rifle ranges in England and on the Continent, it seems that the National Guard is to be congratulated on having the use of what is uniformly acknowledged to be one of the best if not the best range now in existence.

It has been the scene of one of the most closely contested matches, and is the field on which has been made the best score so far reported, either here or abroad.

All which is respectfully submitted.

Very respectfully yours, etc.,

C. B. MITCHELL,

Lt.-Col. and Inspector Rifle Practice, First Division Staff.

STATE OF NEW YORK,
OFFICE OF GENERAL INSPECTOR OF RIFLE PRACTICE, }
NEW YORK, December 31, 1874.

Major-General JOHN F. RATHBONE, Adjutant-General, S. N. Y.:

SIR—I have the honor herewith to respectfully submit my report of the Rifle Practice of the National Guard, S. N. Y. for the current year.

I regret that owing to the non-preservation of the score cards of last year's practice I am unable to furnish the percentage of improvement for the year, but I am happy to state that both the individual scores of men in picked "teams," and the average of Battalion practice show a very satisfactory improvement; also, that the interest in rifle practice seems steadily on the increase. There is, however, great room not only for improvement in the practice but in the system of instruction.

In this connection I would respectfully suggest the appointment of musketry instructors for each Battalion of the National Guard; these officers to have the rank of Captain, and to be appointed by the Governor on the recommendation of the Generals of Divisions.

The duties of these officers should be to instruct in turn each company in armory practice and the elements of the piece, a proper understanding of which is the foundation of skill in Rifle Practice to as great a degree as is the school of the soldier, the indispensable foundation of the army. The musketry instructor should also accompany the battalion on all occasions of range practice which should be under his direct supervision, and the better to serve this end, the regiments should be taken to the range by wings instead of by full battalions, for, in the first place, no instructor can exercise proper supervision over as large a body of men as a battalion; and, in the second place the practice of a full battalion amounting to 200 or 300 men at two distances, takes up so much time that an entire working day is lost to the men, who are mostly engaged in labor of some kind, while by subdividing the battalion the men would be able to make at least a half day's work at their ordinary avocations.

The practice at Creedmoor during the past season, although, with few exceptions, characterized by good conduct on the part of the organizations engaged in it, has been too much a matter of amusement, a sort of military picnic with rifle shooting as an adjunct, and not enough as it should be an occasion for carrying out the lessons of the armory in the field. It is on this account that I recommend the appointment of the battalion instructors aforesaid.

These officers should be held responsible that no man fires on the range while with the organization to which he belongs, unless he has already satisfactorily passed through the school of armory practice, as the firing of an uninstructed man is not only useless to himself, but also dangerous to persons and property in the neighborhood of the range.

Actual firing should, in my opinion, be commenced at not to exceed one hundred (100) yards, at which distance men should attain a certain degree of merit before being allowed to practice at the longer ranges; and the whole effort of instructors should be devoted rather to bringing up their men to a high average of merit, rather than to the production of "teams" of exceptional shots.

There seems to be nothing to complain of in the arm—"State model Remington"—furnished to the "National Guard," but the ammunition furnished by the State is a subject of constant complaint, principally owing to the imperfections of the cartridge anvils. This should be amended, as the saving to the State in price is small, and ammunition is the last thing to economize in.

Inclosed I send the consolidated brigade returns of such brigades as have practiced during the season.

Much dissatisfaction seems to be felt by the members of the "National Guard" at the expense of practice at the Creedmoor range, arising principally from the necessity of paying the National Rifle Association for the use of the range.

In view of the large amount of money furnished by the State, in excess of that furnished by the N. R. A., these charges seem to be unjust, and I would respectfully suggest that members of the "National Guard," in uniform, should be admitted to the range free of charge.

I would also respectfully suggest that the State prize, instead of as at present being given to the organization whose "team" makes the highest score at the fall match, should go to the organization making the highest average per man both during the State match and also during their Battalion practice for the year. This I recommend with the view as expressed above of raising the average of accuracy rather than that of exceptional shots, as these latter are afforded opportunities enough for individual display, and are not likely to neglect the individual practice necessary to maintain their proficiency.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

GOUVERNEUR MORRIS, JR.,
Colonel and I. G. R. P., N. G. S. N. Y.

HEAD-QUARTERS, SECOND DIVISION, N. G. S. N. Y., }
BROOKLYN, December 26, 1874. }

GENERAL — In pursuance of the provisions of the act of December 6, 1874, I have the honor to make the following report of the operations of the Second Division, N. G. S. N. Y., in rifle practice during the past year:

At the time of the issuing of General Orders No. 30, series of 1873, from General Head-quarters, little if any attention had been paid to the subject of rifle practice in this as in other Divisions of the National Guard.

No conveniences existed in any of the armories of the different regiments for the prosecution of either aiming drill or candle practice, and but little was known by either officers or men in regard to this or any other matter connected with the subject.

In pursuance of Special Orders Nos. 1 and 2, from those Head-quarters, a meeting of the field and company officers of the Division was convened on January 23, 1874, at which I gave general explanations in regard to the method of instruction to be pursued. Subsequently I personally visited each armory and did what I could to assist in instructing the various officers in the prescribed drill, as well as to assist in placing the targets, etc., required for aiming drill and candle practice to the best advantage.

Several of the regiments, particularly the Twenty-third and Thirty-second, have spared no pains to improve themselves in the use of the rifle, and have added to their armories a very complete shooting gallery, which is in frequent use. A similar gallery has also been established by the Forty-seventh Regiment.

One or two organizations, however, I regret to say, have paid but little attention to the matter.

Upon the whole, a great and constantly increasing interest has been taken by both officers and men in the subject, and no little improvement in skill in marksmanship has been found to result from the system of instruction carried on during the past drill season, although necessarily conducted by officers previously unfamiliar with the subject.

That much greater progress was not made was owing to a great extent to the imperfect character of the shells of the cartridges furnished by the State. These became useless after two or three discharges of the primer in candle practice and required the use of new ones, thus involving the State in an expense which obliged the Adjutant-General to discontinue their issue, thereby preventing such of the regiments as did not (as several organizations did) provide shells at their own expense from continuing this very necessary and instructive practice.

This, I submit, was wholly owing to the defective construction of the anvil in the shells issued. A series of experiments made at those Head-quarters have demonstrated that the shells made by both the United States Cartridge Company of Lowell, and Remington & Sons, will bear very many discharges of a primer without injury to the anvil, the tests having been made up to sixty discharges with but one shell giving way. The primers furnished by these corporations, and particularly a special primer furnished by the United States Company of Lowell, contain more fulminate than those issued by the State, and will extinguish a candle at the distance of a yard with much greater certainty than the latter, which are far from being reliable.

It is to be hoped that arrangements will be made hereafter to rectify this drawback as there is no portion of the system of instruction in rifle practice which produces better results or is calculated to excite that emulation which leads to improvement among the National Guard.

During the year the range at Creedmoor has been used by the organizations of this command upon the following dates, viz.:

28th Battalion	July	13, 1874.
13th Regiment	August	10, 1874.
14th Regiment	July	21, 1874.
15th Battalion	August	3, 1874.
Separate Troop Cavalry, 5th Brigade...	August	3, 1874.
47th Regiment	September	3, 1874.
32d Regiment.....	August	17, 1874.
Separate Troop Cavalry.....	August	17, 1874.
23d Regiment.....	September	7, 1874.

I would respectfully refer you to the reports of the Brigade Inspectors for the details in regard to their behavior on these occasions.

While this practice has been valuable, especially so as establishing the first official test of the general condition of the National Guard in respect to rifle practice, which it must be confessed is far from high, it is important that hereafter a different system should be pursued in which the instruction of the troops should be the sole point which should be regarded.

It must be remembered that the majority of the members of a Regiment visiting Creedmoor have had no previous experience in marksmanship. To require such men to practice at a distance of 200 yards, at a bull's eye but eight inches square, is unreasonable, as is clearly shown by the great numbers of those who failed to make eight points in five shots at that distance. The same is the case in firing at 500 yards, the difficulty being increased by the allowance required to be made for wind and elevation. For unexperienced men to fire at these distances, particularly if the wind be strong, is almost a waste of time, as they cannot tell when they miss, what their errors are, or how to counteract them.

In my opinion the practice with those members of the National Guard who have not had any previous experience should be, in all cases, begun at not over 100 yards standing and 400 lying, and only those showing a proper degree of proficiency at those ranges should be allowed to shoot at greater distances.

A regular system of classes should be established in each Regiment as prescribed in the Manual of Instruction, and each member be required to make the necessary score at each prescribed distance before firing at any greater. To carry this out practically a regimental officer should be upon the range at certain specified dates and supervise the practice of his command, who should be ordered, from time to time, to report to him, and who, as they manifest the proper degree of skill, should be reported and their names announced in orders.

The emulation excited by the team shooting, and the desire to succeed in the different matches, will hereafter, even more than in the past, develop many individual shots possessing a high degree of skill, but it is to be remembered that the great object to be attained is to render not a few, but the whole of the rank and file of each regiment good marksmen, which alone can be accomplished by a regular system thoroughly pursued under proper supervision.

To further develop this object, it is important that some arrangements should be made by which the use of the range at Creedmoor should be granted to all members of the National Guard when in uniform. The annual expense of membership in the National Rifle Association although but $3, still should not be demanded from the individual members of the National Guard whose expenses are already great; and it would be much better for all concerned, and do much to advance the interests of rifle practice, if the State would, by paying to the National Rifle Association an annual sum in gross for the privilege, so as to enable them to maintain the range in proper order, make it free to all the members of the National Guard, under such conditions and restrictions as will secure order and safety.

The regular fall match of this Division was held at Creedmoor on September 30, 1874. The weather was less favorable for rifle practice than had been the case in 1873, and, in consequence, the scores made did not compare as well with those made in that year as would otherwise have been the case.

The skill, however, displayed under the circumstances was very gratifying.

Those organizations who had applied themselves sedulously to rifle practice during the winter, displayed the benefits of it in these matches as well as in the regimental firing.

The annexed table exhibits a comparison between the scores made by the teams from the different organizations in 1874, as compared with 1873, and displays, on the whole, a decided improvement.

Very respectfully yours,

GEORGE W. WINGATE,

Colonel and Acting Inspector Rifle Practice,

Second Division, N. G. S. N. Y.

Major-General JOHN F. RATHBONE,

Adjutant-General S. N. Y.

REPORT OF THE CHIEF OF ORDNANCE.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF CHIEF }
OF ORDNANCE, NEW YORK, March 1, 1875. }

To His Excellency, SAMUEL J. TILDEN,

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.

I have the honor to submit for the information of the Commander-in-Chief the following report of the operations of this department for the year ending December 31, 1874.

The papers submitted herewith will show the workings and condition of the Ordnance Department of the State during the past year. Special reports have been made from time to time to the Adjutant-General in regard to any matters of interest transpiring in this department. All the arsenals in the State are in good condition and need but slight repairs.

During the year a large amount of unserviceable property has been collected and sold. Full particulars will be found in the papers transmitted herewith.

I desire to acknowledge the valuable services of Colonel James Creney, Assistant Chief of Ordnance, Major Edwin F. Cole, Chief Clerk, and Mr. W. R. Greene, Cashier.

I have the honor to submit herewith the following papers, viz.: "A," receipts and disbursements of cash during the year 1874; "B," statement of issues to and receipts from infantry organizations, N. G. S. N. Y., during the year ending December 31, 1874; "C," statement of issues to and receipts from cavalry organizations, etc.; "D," statements of issues to and receipts from artillery organizations, etc.; "E," statements of miscellaneous receipts, etc.; "F," ordnance and ordnance stores in the State Arsenals, New York city, etc.; "G," ordnance and ordnance stores in State Arsenals throughout the State, etc.

I am, sir, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

KILBURN KNOX,

Brig.-General and Chief of Ordnance, S. N. Y.
