FOR THE YEAR 1891,

ALBANY:
JAMES B. LYON, STATE PRINTER,
1892.

STATE OF NEW YORK.

No. 36.

IN ASSEMBLY,

JANUARY, 1892.

REPORT OF THE ADJUTANT-GENERAL.

STATE OF NEW YORK:

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,

ALBANY, January, 1892. }

To the Legislature:

I have the honor to transmit herewith the Annual Report of the Adjutant-General of the State.

DAVID B. HILL.

REPORT.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, STATE OF NEW YORK,
ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
ALBANY, December 31, 1891,

HON. DAVID B. HILL, Governor and Commander-in-Chief.

Sir.—I have the honor to submit the following report for the year 1891:

Militia.

It is estimated that there are at least 600,000 men in the State subject to military duty. The report of this office to the War Department, required by the laws of the United States to be made annually, is based this year upon such estimate. It is probable that the census of 1890, when published, will show that this number is within the limits.

National Guard.

The National Guard now comprises fourteen regiments, one battalion and forty-eight separate companies of infantry, five batteries of artillery, one troop of cavalry and three signal corps.

A company of infantry was mustered into the service at Tonawanda, May 25, 1891, designated as the Twenty-fifth Separate Company, and attached to the Fourth Brigade.

A company of infantry was mustered in at Buffalo, May 27, 1891, attached to the Seventy-fourth Regiment, and designated as Company H.

A company of infantry was mustered in at Hornellsville, September 30, 1891, designated as the Forty-seventh Separate Company, and attached to the Fourth Brigade.

A company of infantry was mustered in at Medina, December 28, 1891, which will be attached to the Fourth Brigade.

With these exceptions, no changes, by creating new organizations, disbandment or transfer of organizations, have been made during the year.

The quarterly returns of the thirtieth September, ultimo, show that on that date there were in service an aggregate of 13,540 officers and men, as follows:

First Brigade	5,339
Second Brigade	3,126
Third Brigade	2,822
Fourth Brigade	2,222
General Headquarters, officers	31

Arms, Equipments, Uniforms.

Four 3.2-inch steel field guns were issued to the Second Battery last year. Since then, caissons, harness of the latest regulation pattern, and a combination wagon-battery and forge have been supplied, and this battery is now thoroughly prepared for any service that may be required of it. A requisition for another battery, complete, was forwarded to the War Department, as stated in my last annual report, but the issue is still delayed. The allowances made to the State, on account of the annual appropriation for the militia under the United States laws, have been permitted to accumulate in the War Department for the purpose, in the first instance, of arming our field artillery with the B. L. steel guns adopted for the army.

The absolute requirement that the caliber of small arms, and the importance that the arms themselves, should be the same prescribed for the army, is such that it can only be said again that the question of small arms must await the decision of the United States authorities. In this connection, the following extracts from the report of the United States Chief of Ordnance will be found of interest:

“The advantages of a reduction of caliber and of a change to smokeless powder for the cartridges are well established, though in regard to the latter much has yet to be determined in regard to the ability of this country to supply a suitable powder in suitable quantities, and of the ability of such powders to stand long storage and exposure to low temperatures without too great deterioration of their ballistic qualities.

"The success that has been arrived at in the manufacture of the caliber .30 cartridge at the Frankford Arsenal and the excellent results obtained with the new caliber .30 Springfield single-loader lead the Department to believe that if the adoption of a magazine arm is deferred, the Department may at an early date commence to furnish to the army reduced caliber arms and ammunition charged with a satisfactory smokeless powder. The Department is earnestly urging on the experiments and other work for arriving at a solution of this question, and as soon as satisfactory powder can be obtained the question of the immediate adoption of the reduced caliber arm will be submitted to the board. * * * * *

"The question of procuring for the army a magazine rifle (small arm) of reduced caliber has engaged the attention of the Department for some time, and while no direct steps were taken until last fall, yet for some time experiments had been in progress at the Springfield Armory to determine the most appropriate caliber and the best form and weight of projectile. Connected with these trials, were many tests of smokeless powders, resulting finally in the selection of one sufficiently satisfactory for use in the examination and test of small arms." * * * * *

"Reports from our army show that an expert soldier can fire the present service Springfield single-loader with the accuracy generally needed in action, about twenty times per minute. So far as rapidity of fire alone is concerned, these reports reduce somewhat the almost universally estimated necessity for an immediate change to a magazine system.

"It is important to state that up to the present time the investigations made and knowledge gained by this Department have not demonstrated so much excellence in the magazine arms which have been adopted by foreign nations as was expected, and have not shown such perfection in any one of them as could warrant its adoption for our service. It is hoped that this country can produce a better arm and until it can or certainly until it has been demonstrated that it can not, it would be wise to defer a change from the excellent single-loader now in service to a magazine system. No efforts will be spared to arrive at a satisfactory magazine arm."

Equipments issued to the infantry sufficiently serve the purposes of drill and parade, but for actual service in the field, belts and cartridge-boxes of different pattern, the latter of larger capacity, or preferably cartridge-belts, would become necessary. It would not be a wise expenditure, however, for obvious reasons, to purchase these in advance of the adoption of the small arms with which they will be used, for the character of the arms will determine, to a certain extent, the nature of the equipments. For example, if the Lee magazine rifle is adopted, it will necessitate an equipment such as has already been made to carry the extra magazines, as well as the ammunition for the rifle used in the single-loader.

The knapsacks in use are not satisfactory, but it will be time enough to discard them when an acceptable substitute is found.

I append the following from the report of the United States Chief of Ordnance:

"The reports on the Merriam pack are inconclusive. Up to this time fifty-two reports have been received, of which twenty-three are favorable and twenty-nine unfavorable. Eight companies are still to be heard from. A number of officers adhere to the opinion that a blanket roll is the most suitable device for active service, but, on the other hand, a board called to consider this special subject objects to the use of the roll."

The Tenth Battalion and the Separate Companies of the Fourth Brigade, with the approval of the Commander-in-Chief, have greatly improved the dress uniform issued by the State, by substituting white for light blue trimmings on the coat, and white for dark blue stripes on the trousers. With these modifications the uniform is sufficiently attractive. It compares with many of the "distinctive uniforms," so called, not to the disadvantage of the former. An additional supply of overcoats, blouses and blankets is urgently required, and it is again suggested that a complete field equipment should be at all times kept in stock.

The separate companies were organized into provisional battalions, and the senior captains placed in command as follows:

On the twentieth day of July, while firing the salute to the Commander-in-Chief, one of the two guns in use exploded prematurely, injuring Private Robert Reid seriously, and Private George J. Rynne slightly, both members of the detail from the Second Battery.

Bureau of Records of the War of the Rebellion.

The work in this division of the Adjutant-General's office is as exacting as heretofore; the force allowed for it is the chief of the bureau and one clerk; the number of communications answered by mail by the bureau in 1891 is 15,360, besides this there were personal applications numbering at least 300. The information called for and furnished relates not only to records and other matters of the War of the Rebellion, but also of the Mexican War, the War of 1812, and the Revolutionary War.

Naval Militia.

By chapter 492 of the Laws of 1889, amended by chapter 243 of the Laws of 1891, four battalions of naval militia are authorized in addition to the organized militia authorized by the Military Code.

One battalion, consisting of four companies, batteries or divisions, and numbering 190 seamen, was mustered into the State service June 23, 1891. This battalion has been designated, following the language of the statute, "The First Battalion Naval Reserve Artillery." The project of establishing a naval militia could not have been undertaken under better auspices and with more desirable officers and seamen, and it should in fairness be stated that they have struggled not in vain for success, working earnestly, faithfully and intelligently, but under most discouraging circumstances.

The statute under which they were organized is lamentably deficient in nearly all the provisions that should be found in such a law. It is of the first importance that these defects should be remedied by a new enactment. Thus far the battalion has borne its own expenses, and they have not been insignificant, the State having no fund with which to come to its assistance. They need an armory near or preferably directly on the water, as well as arms, equipments and uniforms. The allowance of the United States will be of some avail, but will only partially supply the necessary arms and equipments. What has been done thus far by this battalion commends it to the favorable consideration of the Legislature.

On September 29, 1891, there were mustered in at Rochester two companies or batteries, numbering together seventy-five seamen.

On the report of this office to the Navy Department there has been allowed and credited to the State of New York, under the Naval Appropriation Act, of March 2, 1891, the sum of $7,461.71. Requisitions may be now made on the Naval Department for arms and equipments, but not for uniforms, and, on approval, the articles required will be issued in kind and the cost charged against the State allotment.

Reference is requested to the report of Lieutenant-Commander J. W. Miller, First Battalion Naval Reserve Artillery.

Code and Regulations.

The Military Code, passed April 23, 1883, has been loaded down from year to year with more or less important amendments, 1891.

until a revision of the various statutes has been for some time an urgent necessity. This work would have been undertaken at least a year ago by this office, but it was ascertained that the Commissioners of Statutory Revision had the matter in hand, and I am informed that they will report the result of their labors in this particular in season for the approaching session of the Legislature. Revised regulations should follow the Revised Code.

Conclusion.

During your administration as Commander-in-Chief, and in accordance with your orders, many improvements have been made in the organization of the National Guard, and its discipline and proficiency have been steadily advanced. The most important of these orders in the direction of organization are General Order No. 21, August 5, 1886, disbanding the division and brigade organizations then existing and reorganizing the Guard in four brigades; and General Order No. 36, December 22, 1887, and General Order No. 23, September 23, 1891, providing for the organization of ambulance corps and the proper instruction of men detailed for service therein. In the direction of discipline the methods applied at the Camp of Instruction have been brought every year nearer a true military standard until, as published in General Orders Nos. 12 and 16 c. s., they leave little to be desired. In the direction of instruction, the system pursued at the Camp of Instruction has been made more exacting from year to year, progressing from company and battalion drill and guard duty to skirmishing and field duties, until the camp is fulfilling its legitimate purpose as a school where garrison, camp and field duties are taught theoretically and practically. In connection with the instruction at camp, and as an aid thereto, there was published in General Order No. 6, on the rules of official military etiquette and courtesy; General Order No. 8, a synopsis of the duties of advanced guards, reconnoitering parties, flankers, rear guards, out-posts and patrols; and General Order No. 14, plain and complete instructions in military office duties. Finally, to secure the best class of men for service, a matter rendered more important by the passage of a pension law, General Order No. 24 was issued, September 5, 1891, prescribing a medical examination of all men enlisted after that date. It is gratifying to be able to report, as the result of your measures, that as a rule the organizations of the Guard, with a few exceptions, have shown very great improvement. It should be remembered also that during your administration many new armories, of a character superior to anything heretofore devoted to military purposes in this State or elsewhere, have been erected, and the organizations of the National Guard are now, or soon will be, with few exceptions, satisfactorily housed and quartered.

The new drill regulations, which will soon be adopted, will require a further change in some of the organizations of the Guard, inasmuch as they practically contemplate regiments to consist of two or three battalions each of four companies. This matter will no doubt receive due and careful consideration from your successor.

REPORT ON STATE CAMP.

REPORT OF INSPECTION OF THE
NATIONAL GUARD OF NEW YORK,
FORT WADSWORTH, NEW YORK HARBOR, August, 14, 1891. }

INSPECTOR-GENERAL, U. S. ARMY, Washington, D. C.:

Sir.—Referring to instructions received from your office relating to my duties in the matter of inspecting and instructing the New York National Guard, at Peekskill, N. Y., from June 13, until August 1, 1891, I have the honor to say that I tried to carry out the spirit of said instructions.

As my first duty, I reported by letter to the adjutant-general of the State, for reference to the Governor, and also to the commandant of the camp, and asked if there was any matter to which it was desired I should give my special attention; to which I received as answer, "that they would be happy to have me in camp on June 13, 1891," and, therefore, on that date I reported.

I herewith submit, direct to your office, with this general report of my observations, the return of troops, copies of orders, and copy of the military code and the regulations and laws governing the National Guard of the State. It was not necessary to make daily reports or criticisms, as they were not required.

I took great pains to mingle freely with officers of all grades, and ascertain generally their knowledge and capacity for their duties, whether they were zealous in performing them, and capable of leading and instilling proper enthusiasm and discipline among their men.

In regard to this matter, I am free to say that generally their willingness embraced all the points mentioned; they were thoroughly zealous, as a rule, in their endeavors to carry out all orders issued for the National Guard, which orders will be noticed as being voluminous and answering almost all requirements of military life. Of course, it must be understood that there were incapable officers, but they are well known by those in authority and will in time be removed. I think that some are mentioned by the inspectors.

During my stay I was not requested to suggest any problems in minor tactics. It is evident from the examination of the annual reports of the Adjutant-General of the State that it was not the intention to have such problems under the present camp system; but I did try, with both readiness and reserve, to be as useful as possible within the professional lines. I found that, in the course of conversation, points were picked up, and were at once taken note of and utilized.

By the examination of the annual reports of the Adjutant-General of the State of New York and the reports of my predecessors at the State camp, as well as of my two preceding reports, it will be seen that there must of necessity be great similarity between these reports, arising from the fact that it is the same camp in nearly every detail, from year to year, with the same commanding officer and staff officers, and every other year nearly the same regiments. However, a careful examination of the reports from 1882 will show a progress so great as to make many of the regiments entirely different in their military discipline.

The idea evidently contemplated in the New York method embraced the armory, the camp, and the field. The camp contemplated practical field exercises and maneuvers by regiments and parts of regiments for the benefit of all the officers and men; not by brigades, where the time of a large number of men is taken up with little advantage, except for a few ranking officers. Finally, however, those troops that have sufficiently profited by their opportunities in camp will be qualified for brigade work or expeditions undertaken from time to time in various parts of the State for operations in minor tactics, etc.

It becomes an interesting study to note the great progress which has been made by the inspecting officers of the State. Their reports for each regiment and separate company, at first crude and incomplete, have now reached a higher degree of excellence, and attention is particularly called to the able and concise report of 1890, by Gen. Thomas H. Barber, the present Inspector-General of the State of New York, which report is herewith inclosed. One remark agrees exactly with my observations during the last camp, namely: "During the camp of 1890, the excellent behavior of the enlisted men and their almost universal obedience to orders, in spite of great facilities for their infringement, was most remarkable. They showed a degree of self-respect worthy of high praise. Officers and men, as a rule, are subordinate and anxious to do their duty and to learn."

Attention is also called to the reports inclosed of Colonel McGrath, assistant inspector-general, one of these giving the details of one company inspection up to standard in which everything was found nearly perfect, one nearly up to standard, falling short only for three reasons: Legging not all clean; belt brasses clean, except for one man; and gloves clean, except for one man; and the third one below the standard only on account of several dirty leggings, and attention and discipline very poor.

As the inspector is a thoroughly conscientious man, it shows plainly that all the men of a company or regiment must give attention to all details or the command will be rated below the standard.

The second regiment in camp was the Seventh New York, commanded for the first time in camp, after twenty-five years, by a new colonel, who has held that position for about a year. It is well known how great was the efficiency of the regiment under Colonel, now General Clark, but, under Colonel Appleton, new life, new spring, and new vim were brought into play, and their work in camp from beginning to end, with some exceptions, was as nearly perfect as could be.

As Colonel Appleton could not at once jump from the duties of a captain to the thorough and full performance of those of a colonel, it is not remarkable that some things were overlooked, but, taken all in all, the length of time many of the officers and men have been in the service, their great esprit de regiment makes them the finest body of troops I have seen.

Colonel Appleton devoted himself personally to all the duties and details of his regiment during the camp, by which he gained the respect and confidence of his men.

Afterward came the Twenty-second and Twenty-third, well-known regiments, whose duties were well and thoroughly performed with the exceptions hereinafter noted, and these exceptions refer also to the Seventh.

The other regiments and separate companies also did their work well. One regiment, the Twelfth, will have to be watched, for if Colonel Dowd keeps on improving it at the present rate it will give a close call for a very high position.

With reference to the staff departments, it is only necessary for me to refer to my report of 1889 on the same camp. The same officers performed the same duties, and in a similar, admirable and zealous manner; but, as I have previously stated, they have done so from the inception of the camp, and it is owing to their untiring vigilance and care that the character of camp life, instruction, discipline in the commands, and sanitary condition has so greatly increased.

Guard duty, I do not think, was, as a rule, as well performed as on my previous tour. I certainly saw more individual cases of gross carelessness and lack of instruction; but sixty per cent, I found, were well-instructed officers, non-commissioned officers, and privates, and who had previously performed tours. In many cases I made inquiries and found that failure was due to the want of the preliminary instructions required, and the answer invariably was: "We want to do our duty thoroughly."

It seemed to me that not as much energy was displayed by the instruction of the guard—I mean simply with reference to the duties on post. In a number of cases the officers and non-commissioned officers of the guard worked hard, and I could plainly see the increase of vigilance and manner.

The Twenty-second made the greatest improvement in sentry duty. The ceremony of guard mounting in nearly all the regiments and battalions was admirable throughout, and with some of the regiments was done with the dispatch and ease that only arise from knowledge.

Parades and all marching duties were admirable and in some cases imposing. The time has been well employed, and the camp has well fulfilled its object, and the State of New York has had full interest on the money invested.

I would call attention to a few points:

1. That instruction of officers and non-commissioned officers is not thorough enough.

2. That the non-commissioned officers are not setting a good example as to neatness, nor are they forcible enough with the men.

3. That orders are not obeyed in regard to having men thoroughly drilled in the school of the soldier before being on duty with the company. I saw cases of men coming to "present arms" with their feet, arms and hands in any position they fancied.

4. That the moment the commands got their noses outside the company streets where all persons could have a full view, everything was braced up, but in formations—formations of all kinds—under the non-commissioned officers at the assembly, the fun began.

This is one great fault. It was partially remedied in the Twelfth, and very much so in the Twenty-second; in that regiment I heard for the first time the first sergeant calling the roll almost immediately after the last sound of the assembly, nor did the men fall in at first call.

I stated in a previous report that New York had reason to be proud of its National Guard, and I will also add that they will find the increase of discipline in the last few years so great that in case any regiment is called out their duties will be performed in a soldierly manner, so that they can be relied on to the amount of their full strength in case of any kind of demonstration.

In conclusion let me ask, after thanking all the officers for their unreserved kindness and consideration, why can not all organizations reach the highest standard of the best?

Respectfully submitted.

R. LODOR,

Lieutenant-Colonel First Artillery, U. S. Army, Inspecting Officer.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, STATE OF NEW YORK:

GENERAL ORDERS {
No. 6 {

ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE, }
ALBANY, March 7, 1891. }

The rules of official etiquette are not simply arbitrary regulations established without reason, but are founded on the experience of years, among the most self-respecting and honorable of men. When officers and men are thrown together, at times under trying conditions when orders are quickly given and prompt obedience demanded, personal irritation is apt to occur, and if the laws of courtesy be allowed to be laid aside, serious misunderstandings may arise. To avoid this, civility in personal intercourse and in official correspondence is rendered obligatory by the customs of the service, and by the regulations.

The manner in which military courtesy is observed is the touchstone applied to officers and enlisted men, and decides at once whether they be disciplined soldiers or simply uniformed and uninformed amateurs ; the attention of all concerned is therefore called to the following on this subject :

General Rules.

Officers salute each other and enlisted men salute officers, on all military occasions, and in armories at all times, even if neither be in uniform ; the junior officer or the enlisted man saluting first.

When under arms, armed with the sword or sabre drawn, the salute is present sword or sabre ; armed with the rifle or carbine, sergeant's (rifle) salute is executed ; when not under arms, or armed with sword or sabre not drawn, the salute is rendered with the hand.

In saluting with the hand, the left is used when the officer passes by the right of the saluter ; in all other cases, or if mounted, the salute is given with the right hand. Officers salute with the left hand only when the right hand is engaged.

Before saluting at a halt the position of attention is to be assumed ; when meeting or passing an officer, the position of a soldier on the march ; in either case the coat should be buttoned and if smoking, the cigar or pipe should be removed from the mouth.

When addressing or being addressed by a superior commissioned officer, the officer or enlisted man halts, if not already at a halt, faces and salutes the superior officer ; at the close of the interview or of the report, before parting, a salute is again rendered.

When passing, the salute is given six paces from the officer to be saluted, and in rendering it the hand is not dropped or the sword recovered until the salute has been acknowledged or the party or person saluted has, or has been, passed. Exception : Salute of first sergeant at dress parade, and the salute when passing the reviewing officer.

When officers remain in or about the same place salutes are not repeated, but a respectful conduct is maintained until they leave.

Prisoners on parole or under guard are not privileged to salute.

In the trenches and on out-posts duty troops render no honors, but personal salutes between officers and enlisted men are not omitted, unless they cause exposure to danger.

On fatigue duty the officers and non-commissioned officers in charge salute ; the men do not cease work to salute unless spoken to or they are by themselves, some distance from their party, and without implements in their hands.

Officers of foreign services ; officers of the army, navy, marine, and volunteers, of the United States ; officers of the National Guard of other States and of the militia, will be saluted in the manner prescribed for saluting officers of the National Guard of this State.

The President of the United States ; a sovereign or chief magistrate of a foreign country ; Governors of States and Territories ; the Vice-President or President of the Senate, members of the President's cabinet, the Chief Justice and the Speaker of the House of Representatives, of the United States ; the Lieutenant-Governor or the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the Assembly of this State ; American or foreign Envoys, Ministers, Charges d'Affairs and Consuls-general are saluted as general officers of the National Guard.

Officers inside of a house or tent, although visible from the outside, are not saluted.

Any mark of attention shown by an enlisted man to an officer must be acknowledged by the latter.

At a reception out-doors, it is proper to uncover if the person receiving be uncovered. At an official reception or social occasion indoors officers uncover, though in full uniform.

Officers in full dress at dances, receptions, dinners, etc., should wear their swords; while actually dancing or sitting at table, the sword may be laid aside.

Enlisted men address officers by the grade the latter hold; officers addressing other officers do the same, except when addressing a lieutenant, to address whom as "Mister" custom has sanctioned. Abbreviations of titles, as for instance "Cap." for captain, "Maje."

for major, etc., are highly unmilitary and an indication of the worst of bad manners.

When several officers are in company the right should be accorded to the senior in walking or riding; when entering or leaving a house or camp and it be necessary, the junior should secure admission or passage for the party; in entering a room the senior precedes, in departing the junior of the party leads when the senior has indicated his desire to leave; juniors take seats when the senior is seated, and rise with him.

Officers, subordinate in rank to the commanding officer, visiting a military post or camp should, soon after their arrival, call upon the commanding officer to pay their respects, making their official visit brief. When ranking the commanding officer, they should call or notify him of their presence, when he will return their call, or make the first call. If the ranking visitor should be a general officer the commanding officer will call, accompanied by all the officers of the post, in full uniform.

When an officer newly arrives or joins at a post, it is the duty of all officers previously at the post to call upon him.

On the arrival of a large command at a post, if it be impracticable to call upon all the newly arrived officers, the officers previously at the post call upon the commanding officer of the arrived command and the latter should take the first opportunity to return the call, making it as brief as he desires.

When a civic functionary entitled to a salute arrives, and does not call on the commanding officer, the latter, as soon as informed of the former's presence, should call on him.

Special Rules for Out-Doors.

For the purpose of paying honors the hall and drill rooms in an armory, and a porch, or veranda, are considered as out-doors.

A mounted officer or enlisted man before addressing a superior officer not mounted, dismounts.

An enlisted man in command of an armed detachment brings it to carry arms when, at a halt or on the march, he meets an officer, and then, personally, salutes the latter; if the detachment be not armed, its commander only salutes, bringing it, however, to attention, if at rest or route step. When passing sentinels and his party is armed, he brings the same to carry arms, and having passed, to right shoulder or support arms.

An officer in command of an armed detachment brings it to carry arms when, at a halt or on the march, he meets the commanding, or a general officer, and he alone salutes; if the detachment be not armed its commanding officer salutes, bringing it to attention, if it be at rest or route step. Salutes paid to him by passing officers and enlisted men, and by sentinels, he acknowledges simply by a personal salute.

Armed troops passing a guard (not sentinel), a general officer, or a body of armed troops, will be brought to carry arms and the commanding officers, (and if the troops consist of more than one battalion the battalion commanders,) will salute the guard, general officer, or each other, but all officers will salute the colors as they pass them; if, however, one body of the troops be at a halt, it will be formed into line and brought to present arms. If the troops carry no colors, or are on a regular march, only the commanding officers thereof salute each other, bringing their commands first to attention if at rest or, as they should be on a march at route step. On drill and during formation no salutes are rendered.

In camp, or at an inspection in camp, the tents and company streets are the company quarters, and when an officer enters the quarters the non-commissioned officer in charge, or the first man who perceives him, salutes, giving first the command "attention," which is executed and maintained by all until the officer leaves the quarters; the attention is, in this case, the salute.

The regulations require that every officer and enlisted man, not in ranks, when passing the national colors, carried by troops or placed on the stacks of arms on the color line, or when they pass him, should salute them. The salute is rendered as already described if armed with rifle or drawn sabre; by uncovering if not thus armed.

Special Rules for In-Doors.

For the purpose of paying honors, the meeting rooms of an organization are considered as in-doors.

Coming in-doors, the salute consists in uncovering, unless the officer or soldier entering should be under arms, or on armed duty, organization are considered as in-doors.

In quarters, or anywhere in-doors, soldiers are supposed to be uncovered, as they would be in their civilian homes.

When an officer enters the quarters or place in-doors where there are enlisted men, the one who notices him first gives the command "attention," upon which all come to attention, and the senior non-commissioned officer joins the officer; the position of attention is held until the officer, who acknowledges the same with the hand salute, has left. If there should be anyone covered, he uncovers at the command attention, unless he be under arms and on armed duty, in which case he comes to attention only. Should the officer remain in the place, he uncovers unless under arms. In the case of an officer so remaining, the men resume their employments, and come again to attention at the command of the non-commissioned officer attending the officer, when the latter is about to leave, and the officer then covers, if uncovered, and returns the salute. When seated at meals, the men do not rise, but interrupt the meal and preserve silence, until their mark of attention is returned by the officer.

I. The attached synopsis of the duties of advanced guards, reconnoitering parties, flankers, rear guards, outposts and patrols, has been prepared for the instruction of the National Guard of the State; it will be carefully studied in schools of instruction, by officers and non-commissioned officers, so that all may become familiar with the general rules prescribed.

II. Attention is called to the fact that sound judgment must apply the general principles set forth to each particular situation; that officers should be provided with good field glasses and be able to prepare plain topographical sketches of the country in which they are operating; that each officer and non-commissioned officer should possess a compass; that when the described duties are practiced for instruction, civilians living within the lines or passing through them must be treated courteously and the movement explained to them, so that they will not construe it to be an improper interference; that under no circumstances and at no time should they be fired at; nor should their dwellings be entered or their avocations interfered with; and that the formations for the march of advanced guards, given in the plates attached are only types of such, and that the distances are not in any sense to be taken as absolute, but are only serving as a rough approximation in open country.

Furthermore, that outposts, advanced and rear guards, and patrols pay no honors, which is, however, not to be construed that hand or rifle salutes should be omitted, or the presence of an officer ignored, when the same do not lead to exposure, and that in the execution of these duties, as well as in all other military duties, absolute obedience to orders is required; that under no circumstances can disobedience of orders be justified unless the orders are illegal, and that the subordinate who questions the legality of an order, does so at his peril.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

GENERAL ORDERS }
No. 12. }

I. The following general regulations are herewith adopted for the government of the Camp of Instruction when occupied by troops, and promulgated for the information and guidance of all concerned.

1. The camp is constituted a military post and will be commanded by an officer selected by the Commander-in-Chief, in accordance with the rules provided for the government of such posts, and these regulations.

The post commander will prescribe in orders the hours and calls of service and the duties to be performed; and the military exercises to be executed and practiced in camp shall consist of such tactical movements as can not be carried out in armories, and of the skirmish drill, and of schools of theoretical instruction for officers and non-commissioned officers; but no reviews will be authorized except by orders from these headquarters.

He will prescribe the amount of camp and garrison equipage and blank ammunition to be issued to the troops in camp.

Upon arrival in camp, commanding officers of regiments, battalions and detachments, and officers specially detailed, will at once report for instructions to the post commander, and regimental and battalion commanders will at the same time submit requisitions for the necessary quartermaster stores for the approval of the post commander.

2. The chief of ordnance, as such, and as acting quartermaster-general and acting commissary-general of subsistence, will cause the Camp of Instruction to be prepared in time for its occupancy by troops. He will provide and keep on hand at the camp the necessary quartermaster and ordnance stores, and, after consultation with the surgeon-general, the necessary medical stores and supplies; he will provide, by contract, for the furnishing of cooked meals to the troops in camp, and see that the meals are properly and promptly furnished, well cooked, of wholesome quality and sufficient quantity; he will furnish the necessary transportation to officers and enlisted men, ordered there, to and from the camp.

Transportation for troops to the camp will be furnished, as far as practicable, in such manner that they will arrive at the camp not later than three o'clock p. m., of the day ordered, and the chief of ordnance will report to the post commander the arrangements made by him as to the time of arrival at, and departure from, the camp of the organization ordered there.

Commanding officers of regiments, battalions, troops, batteries and separate companies, and officers specially detailed, if not traveling with troops, will at once, upon notice of detail for camp service, make requisition for proper transportation of men and baggage from their station to the Camp of Instruction, direct on the acting quartermaster-general, the chief of ordnance, State Arsenal, Thirty-fifth street and Seventh avenue, New York city. Commanding officers will specify the exact number of men as nearly as possible, for whom transportation is required. On arrival in camp, or as soon thereafter as practicable, commanding officers arriving by railway transportation will settle their transportation account with the acting quartermaster-general, the chief of ordnance. Transportation will be allowed for one servant for the officers of each company and the field and staff of a battalion, and for three servants for the field and a staff of a regiment. Transportation will not be allowed for officers or enlisted men, other than that provided for their respective organizations, except in the cases of officers or men specially detailed.

Horses for field officers will be furnished by the post-quartermaster, and transportation or forage will not be allowed for any other horses.

On the journey to and from, and the march into camp, the senior officer will command the troops present, and before leaving their stations commanding officers will telegraph to the post commander the strength of their commands, servants separately.

3. Regimental and battalion commanders, on arrival in camp, will direct their commissaries of subsistence to report for duty while in camp, to the post commissary of subsistence, without being, however, relieved from duty with their regiments or battalions.

A ration will consist of early bread and coffee, breakfast, dinner and supper. Ration returns will be prepared by the company commanders each day, immediately after retreat or dress parade, covering all the rations received by their respective commands during the day; the officers and men present at breakfast will each be credited with one day's ration for that day, and to this number will be added the number of meals received by men joined subsequent to breakfast. Adjutants will perform the duties of a company commander for the field, staff, non-commissioned staff and band.

Company returns will be consolidated the same evening by regimental and battalion commanders, who will deliver the consolidation to the post commander; at the close of the tour these officers will deliver to the post commander a consolidated return, in duplicate, of all the rations received, which will be the voucher upon which the chief of ordnance will pay the contractors.

Commanding officers of troops coming from distant stations should see that their commands are properly provisioned for the journey.

Rations will be allowed for the authorized number of servants.

4. The surgeon-general, under the orders of the post commander, to whom he will report for orders, is charged with the general supervision and direction of the medical service at the camp, and is authorized to select one competent person, who shall have charge, under his direction, of the medical stores at the camp, and who shall receive for his services transportation, rations and the pay allowed by law to hospital stewards.

Surgeons of regiments and assistant surgeons of separate companies detailed for camp service, if traveling with troops, will each make timely requisition through their immediate commanding officers, for a hospital knapsack, with medical stores and instruments, upon the acting quartermaster-general, the chief of ordnance, to whom they will return such knapsack immediately upon the arrival of their regiment or companies at their regular stations.

Commanding officers of regiments and battalions will direct their respective senior medical officer to report, on arrival in camp, for orders and instructions to the surgeon-general. The senior medical officer in camp will perform the duties of post surgeon, and within ten days after his return from camp, will, on Form 72, prepare and forward a report of his tour of service, through his regimental commander, to the surgeon-general.

The hospital steward of the regiment in camp, or, if there be none, a suitable person selected by the surgeon-general, will act as post hospital steward. Such person, or hospital steward, must have passed an examination before the State Board of Pharmacy, and be licensed as a druggist, according to the laws of the State; and regimental and battalion hospital stewards not so examined and licensed will not be recognized by the State, or permitted to act as hospital stewards. Regimental and battalion commanders ordered to camp duty, whose hospital stewards do not meet these requirements, will at once report the fact to these headquarters.

5. The paymaster-general, under the orders of the post commander, to whom he will report for orders, is charged with the payment of the troops, and will take the necessary measures to pay each person entitled thereto on the last day of the tour of his organization in camp.

The pay-rolls, in duplicate, will be prepared before going into camp by entering on them the name of each officer and enlisted man of the organization, with date of rank of officers and date of enlistment of the men. In camp, credit will be given for the day, after retreat of such day, excepting the last two days, and the rolls fully completed, signed and amounts carried out, will be handed to the paymaster-general as early before the close of the tour as possible, to enable him to pay the troops before their departure from camp. If practicable, the pay-rolls should be signed by the officers and enlisted men before coming into camp, but they must be signed, at the latest, on the first Sunday in camp. Special attention must be paid to the signatures, so that they correspond, letter for letter, with the names as entered on the pay-rolls. Initials standing for names are not sufficient.

Pay will be allowed to officers and enlisted men present for the days on which the regiment or company arrives at and departs from the camp, and for such other days of the tour during which they are present, at least from guard mounting in the morning until after retreat or dress parade in the evening, provided they are not absent without authority from any drill or parade, and provided further that their whole stay in camp does not consist simply in coming to camp on Saturday and spending Sunday there, or staying but one day, and returning on Friday to depart again on Saturday.

6. The State service uniform and equipments will be worn as issued; on drill, fatigue and when off duty the fatigue coat, R. 835, may be worn. White helmets may be worn by regiments, troops, batteries and signal corps. In the case of battalions composed of separate companies, if permission to wear white helmets is desired, application must be made by the battalion commander.

7. No men shall be taken to camp who are not already sufficiently well drilled to take part in the prescribed exercises, nor any men (those re-enlisted or taken up from dropped excepted) who have been enlisted within sixty days of the beginning of the camp tour of their respective companies.

8. Theoretical instruction in guard duty should be imparted to non-commissioned officers and privates by their respective company commanders before entering the camp. Instruction as to the general routine and duties of soldiers in camp should also be imparted in the same manner.

9. Commanding officers of regiments, battalions and companies are, and will be, held responsible for the correctness of returns and reports rendered by them.

There should be a well instructed clerk to relieve the first sergeants of, or to assist them in, their clerical duties.

The report book must show the condition of the company at the time the report is made, and the remarks must explain all the alterations which may have occurred since making the last report.

Within ten days after the close of the camp tour, commanding officers of regiments and battalions, troops and batteries, will make reports to the Adjutant-General of the general management of their command and the results obtained.

10. The following rules must be strictly observed:

Persons not connected with the administration of the post or not being members of an organization in camp, will not be permitted in the camp after tattoo.

The sale of all spirituous liquors, wine, ale or beer, and all huckster and auction sales, are prohibited.

No ale, beer, wines or spirituous liquors will be used in camp, except upon the prescription of a medical officer of the post.

Fire works, illuminations and other out-of-place performances will not be permitted.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

At the first call for drill, officers and men will prepare to fall in under arms for drill, and at the first sound of the assembly following the drill call, companies will be formed and roll called.

At the first call for breakfast, companies will be formed, and at breakfast call marched by the first sergeants to the mess hall.

At the first call for guard-mounting, the men detailed for guard and as supernumeraries will prepare to fall in; at the first sound of the assembly following it, the first sergeants will form their respective details, inspect arms and uniforms closely; replace men not up to the standard of neatness; instruct their supernumeraries and non-commissioned officers in their positions at guard-mounting, and at the first sound of the march following the adjutant's call they will march them off. The first sergeant is responsible for his guard detail.

At the first call for drill, following guard-mounting, officers and men will prepare for drill, and at the first note of the assembly, immediately after drill call, they will fall in, companies will be formed and roll will be called.

At the first call for dinner, companies will be formed, and at dinner call marched by the first sergeants to the mess hall.

At first sergeants' call, the first sergeants will repair promptly to the adjutant's office, prepared to take down in writing orders dictated to them and the details made from their respective companies.

At first call for supper, companies will be formed, and at supper call marched by the first sergeants to the mess hall.

At the first call for dress parade, officers and men will prepare to fall in; at the first sound of the assembly, companies will be formed, roll will be called, and company commanders will inspect their respective companies as to their general appearance; at the March following the adjutant's call, the companies will be marched on promptly in succession in such manner, that the color company, which should march off at the first note of the march, will have the lead, and companies which should come on the line before others have precedence in the latter; the formation of line for dress parade should under no circumstances occupy more than five minutes.

At the first call for retreat or undress parade, officers and men prepare to fall in in the uniform and with or without arms as ordered at the time, generally in undress uniform and without arms; at the first sound of the assembly, formations are made, roll is called and the officer in command brings the company to parade rest, or if a general formation be ordered, marches his company on the line; after retreat has been sounded, the officer brings his company to attention and directs the first sergeant to dismiss it, but if a general formation has taken place, he does not give these directions until the Adjutant has dismissed the parade. See §§ 813 and 814, Upton's Infantry Tactics.

Fifteen minutes after tattoo lights must be extinguished and loud talking must cease.

At taps an inspection of quarters shall be made by an officer of each company, designated by the company commander, who will report to the officer of the day the names of all enlisted men who may be absent without leave; this officer should walk his company street after taps until absolute quiet is assured and turn out on the slightest breach of discipline in his company during the night.

II. When a company or detail falls in, it does so at the head of the company street, i. e., the end nearest to the officers' tents; if the formation be for guard mounting, battalion drill, or dress parade, the company or detail will be marched as soon as formed and inspected to the other end, the foot, of the company street, its head showing clear of the tents, so as to be observed by the adjutant or officer in charge of the general formation. Details and companies of the right wing, when formed, should face the right flank of the camp, details and companies of the left wing the left flank; companies of the right wing march out of their company streets left in front, companies of the left wing right in front; when there are two companies in a street, the company of the senior officer forms nearest the head of the street; the company first to come on the line marches out first. The street, if there be one, between the right and left center companies, or located so as to divide the camp of the companies into halves, is designated "the division street;" the street between the tents of the company officers and the heads of company streets is known as the "officers' street."

Formations for all roll calls should be carefully and promptly conducted. Men should fall in at the first sound of the assembly. As soon as a man takes his place in the ranks, he should be at attention. First sergeants should be at attention in front of the center of their companies until their presence is required elsewhere.

At the first formation in camp the company may fall in as prescribed for sizing the same; after that the formation is to be in accordance with section 180, Upton's Infantry Tactics.

File-closers should be constantly vigilant, watch the men, pay attention to commands and never allow talking, gazing about or inattention in the ranks. Their instructions should be given quietly and in such manner as not to interfere with the commands of the commanding officer. They should see that their own line is dressed and their distances preserved.

When men in ranks are spoken to by file-closers for errors committed no reply should be made.

The officer present at reveille and undress parade (the latter generally known as retreat) reports the result of the roll call to the Adjutant, and he to the regimental or battalion commander. The field officers should be present at these formations, and see that they are made promptly and properly by the companies of their respective wings or battalions.

III. The members of the guard coming off duty one day, are constituted the regular fatigue party or general police for the next day, and will report at the first call for the first drill of the day to the senior non-commissioned officer of the old guard, who should prepare, while on guard, a list of their names and companies. This non-commissioned officer will report the men absent and present to the provost sergeants of their respective regiments and battalions. The formation will be made at the point where the division street crosses the officers' street and the provost sergeants will be on hand at the proper time and place to receive their details.

The policing, except of company quarters, will be in the charge of the provost sergeants under the orders of the officer of the day; at first call for breakfast the men will be permitted to join their companies, to report again immediately after breakfast if the policing be not finished.

The policing of the company quarters is under the charge of the company quartermaster sergeants, assisted by the sergeants and corporals of the company, who set the whole company at work.

The policing must be finished and tents ready for inspection when guard mounting on the parade ground is completed.

As there will be no old guard available on the first Sunday in camp, a detail must be ordered for this purpose by regimental and battalion commanders equal to the guard detail.

The ground to be policed by the troops will be the space occupied by them and fifty feet to the front and flanks of the camp proper; the remaining space of the camp ground will be policed and kept in order under the direction of the post-quartermaster by men employed by him. Companies police their quarters, which include the street as far back as the rear of the company officers' tents; the general police covers the remainder of the camp to be policed by the troops; where two companies join both are responsible for the space between the backs of the tents.

Every day, weather permitting, the tent floors must be raised before guard mounting, and remain raised at least an hour. Tents and grounds must be kept scrupulously clean, and the grass growing between and back of the tents must be kept trimmed and in good order ; tubs must be empty and clean, and the work must be done promptly ; and while the grounds must be kept scrupulously clean, this does not mean that all loose earth must be swept up and hauled off.

Tents will be dressed for inspection every morning before guard-mounting, as follows : The front of the tent open ; walls looped or rolled up if the weather permit ; tent floor cleaned ; boots and shoes clean, placed in an orderly way under the foot of the cot ; trunks between the cots against the rear pole, or between the foot of the cot and the front of the tent, against the wall ; bags etc., closed, under the head of the cot ; buckets empty and clean, upside down, against one side of the wall in front, or in front of one of the street corners of the tent, but uniform in each company ; cups clean, in front or by the side of the bucket, or on top of wash basin ; wash basin empty and clean, upside down on a bucket, and soap between basin and bucket ; stools in front of foot of cot or tent, but uniform in each company ; knapsacks packed, against foot of cot, with number toward the street ; mattresses rolled up tightly, toward the head of the cot ; blankets folded once lengthwise, then folded broadwise in five or ten parallel folds, according as they are single or double, and the pile neatly placed on top of, and parallel with, rolled mattress, the broad edges to the rear ; coats or blouses folded lengthwise, buttoned, and buttons to the front, are neatly placed on top of blankets ; overcoats and all other clothing, if not packed, are neatly folded and laid on the cot, back of mattress ; helmets and caps are placed on the blankets or coats, ornaments to the front ; accoutrements, haversacks and canteens are hung from the cross piece, attached to the rear pole ; candlesticks, clean, are placed on the wash basins or cups, if the latter be on the wash basin ; and on a cord strung high from one upright pole to the other may be placed clean towels.

Unoccupied tents must be looped or rolled up, front open, and prepared for inspection, as well as those occupied.

A non-commissioned officer, as a rule the company quartermaster sergeant, will be left in charge of each company quarters, to receive the inspecting officer.

The inspector of the post with the officer of the day will make an inspection each day, commencing on Monday, at drill call after guard mounting, and report the result thereof to post headquarters. The provost sergeants and regimental and battalion quartermaster sergeants will meet these officers when they arrive in the camp of their respective regiments and battalions.

The post-surgeon will make two sanitary inspections each day, one in the forenoon and one in the afternoon, commencing on Sunday, and report the result of each inspection to post headquarters.

Company inspections by company commanders, or by the battalion or regimental commander if he so desire, will take place Sundays at 9.30 a. m., and will be merely of dress and general appearance, without arms and, informally, of the quarters.

The provost sergeants and company quartermaster sergeants will report for instruction, conducted by the regimental or battalion quartermaster sergeant, to the inspector of the post at 2 p. m. of the first Sunday in camp.

The post-quartermaster will designate the place where refuse matter from the camp proper may be deposited, and will cause the collected matter to be removed each day at guard-mounting. Commanding officers of regiments and battalions will prohibit the depositing of refuse matter after guard-mounting, or anywhere else than at the appointed place.

IV. The nature of drills will be specified by the post-commander from time to time ; in the absence of such specific instructions, commanding officers of regiments and battalions will exercise their own discretion, keeping in mind the orders of the Commander-in-Chief as published in G. O. No. 12, c. s. from these headquarters.

When two or more battalions are to drill one will do so in front, the other on the left flank of the camp, and thereafter, according to rank of commanding officers, take turns, so that each day but one battalion will drill in front of the camp.

The early drill will be principally in company skirmish drill ; the forenoon drill will be in battalion drill for three days, and in battalion skirmish drill for the remaining days.

Drills on Saturdays are left to the discretion of regimental and battalion commanders.

Twenty rounds of blank ammunition per man will be allowed for practice in firings.

The fatigue party is excused from early morning drill, the old guard from the forenoon drill; no one else will be excused from drill except provost, quartermaster, commissary and ordnance sergeants and hospital stewards, company clerks, hospital attendants and the sick; prisoners not undergoing sentence may, at the discretion of the post-commander, be required to attend all drills; first sergeants may, however, be excused from the early morning drill by the company commanders, with the approval of the battalion or regimental commanders.

Commanding officers of battalions and companies should not use the drill ground as a place for theoretical instruction except when absolutely necessary. Men should not be kept at carry arms during long explanations. The movements should be rapid and varied to sustain the interest of the officers and men. Dressing should be prompt, and when only a few men are out of the alignment they should be spoken to by name or designated by the company commander after the command "front" is given; the whole command should not be compelled to wait for the slowness of one or two men. Soldiers are, and should be addressed as men; the word "boys" is not found in the drill regulations.

Officers at drill, when they are to take a prescribed position, must hasten to it, not walk leisurely. The sword should be at "carry," except at parade rest, order arms and when marching in double time; it should not be lowered into both hands when wheeling, nor the point dropped under other circumstances; nor should it be transferred to the left hand.

Five minutes after the assembly for company drill every company must be on the drill ground.

Equalization should be prompt, and not be a cause of delay as it too often is. An adjutant should be able to tell from his reports the exact number of men of each company due for drill, and make his preparations for equalization before drill call. If there be a discrepancy of more than two or three men between his figures and the first sergeant's report, he should, after drill, report the facts to his commanding officer, who should call for an explanation. A first sergeant reports the strength of his company to the adjutant as comprising (so many) sergeants (this includes corporals acting as sergeants) and (so many) files, and obtains these numbers before reporting his company to his captain; he reports to the adjutant as soon as he has reported to his captain, and, on returning, reports orders received to the latter, who will direct him to carry out the same. Should it become necessary to re-form the company, the captain will direct the first sergeant to do so, and having done so, the latter will report to the captain: "Sir, the company is re-formed," and take his post.

Commanding officers of battalions, composed of separate companies, will cause their musicians to report to the drum major of the regiment, or of the post, if there be one, for instruction and quarters. The drum major will impart proper instructions to the musicians during drill hours and at such other times as he may select, and report absentees to the adjutant of their regiment or battalion. All calls not expressly prescribed to be sounded by the musicians of the guard will be sounded by all the other field musicians on the color line; for this purpose and for ceremonies all the field musicians will therefore be united, and if there be two drum majors, they will take the duties of the day on the days of duty of their respective adjutants. The drum major is under the immediate orders of the post commander.

Bands, whether State or regimental, will be considered as post bands, and are under the immediate orders of the post commander.

V. Schools of instruction will be ordered by commanding officers of regiments and battalions for the officers and non-commissioned officers of their respective commands, to take place every afternoon (Sundays excepted), between first sergeants' call and dress parade or retreat, and this action will be reported to post headquarters. At these schools errors and omissions, or violations of orders, regulations or customs of service, that have been noted by the commanding officers themselves, or to which their attention has been called, will be pointed out, so that they may be avoided thereafter.

VI. When the camp is occupied by two regiments, or one regiment and one battalion, or by three battalions, the formation for dress parade will be in accordance with the rules laid down for the formation of a regiment composed of fractions of regiments, and the senior officer will command. Colors will be carried by the latter's regiment only, if two regiments; by the regiment, if one regiment and a battalion; by the center battalion, if three battalions be in camp. The staff of the officer commanding the parade will attend the same; but adjutants and sergeants-major will take turns in the formations for dress parade and in guard-mounting.

No one is excused from dress parade or review except the sick, line officers senior in rank to the commanding officer of the parade, and those absent on duty or with authority from the post commander; battalion and regimental commanders may excuse one or two men for the purpose of guarding the company streets and quarters while the companies are out on parade.

VII. The officers of the day and of the guard are under the exclusive orders of the post commander. The officer of the day is responsible for the proper and correct performance of guard duty, and especially that during the day-time each relief, after the first is posted, will be assembled by the officer of the guard at least half an hour before going on post, and properly instructed in the duties of sentinels. Challenging will commence at taps and cease at broad daylight.

The detail for camp guard will consist of one captain, as officer of the day, two lieutenants, three sergeants, five corporals, two musicians, forty-eight privates, and will be made for regiments and battalions by numbers at post headquarters. On receipt of such detail the adjutants will promptly furnish the adjutant of the day with the names and dates of rank of officers and non-commissioned officers detailed by them, and he, in turn, will promptly notify the adjutants of the rank and position these officers and non-commissioned officers will occupy in the guard, and the adjutants will notify the officers detailed of their positions, and the first sergeants of the positions of the non-commissioned officers, so that the latter may be properly instructed by the former.

The detail for out-post duty will be announced when ordered, and will march on with haversacks, canteens, overcoats or blankets and such rations as may be prescribed.

The first officer of the day will, on arrival, make requisition for the following articles, which the post-quartermaster is authorized to issue for the use of the guard.

Cots and mattresses for two-thirds of the guard at the rate of one cot and one mattress per man; twenty-five camp-stools; fifty candles; ten candlesticks; five lanterns; one gallon of oil; one table; ten brooms; two wooden pails; two tin pails for coffee; two bread baskets; two wheelbarrows; six rakes; six shovels; two sickels; one Garrison flag; one Storm flag; one State flag; two halliards.

These articles will be placed on the guard report, and turned over by each officer of the guard to his successor, who will verify the same, and receipt therefor on the guard report. The officer of the guard relieved at guard mounting of the last day of the camp season, will before guard mounting turn in the property for which he is responsible, to the post-quartermaster and take the latter's receipt on his guard report.

The details to fire the morning and evening gun and salutes will report for order to the officer of the day, who will be responsible for the prompt and proper firing of the guns. At the opening of the camp season, on the arrival of the troops on the plateau, the artillery detachment, which must precede the troops to the camp, will fire the national salute of twenty-one guns, and with the first gun the flags will be hoisted. The morning gun will be fired at the first note of reveille; the evening gun at the last note of retreat. The firing of salutes will commence at the moment that the person saluted arrives opposite the guard-house, or at such time as may be ordered by the post-commander. The salute to the Union of forty-four guns will commence at 12 o'clock noon, of the Fourth of July. At the closing of the camp season, the troops will, before leaving, be paraded in front of the camp proper, while the artillery detachment will fire the national salute of twenty-one guns; with the last gun the flags will be lowered, and the troops depart; the detail lowering the flags will turn in the same to the post-quartermaster.

A supernumerary in the guard detail is to supply the place of any man of the regular detail who may not be accepted as fit at guard mounting, or of any man who may afterward, during the tour of guard duty, for any reason be relieved from that duty. The supernumerary, after guard mounting, and while awaiting a call for his services on the guard, is not, strictly speaking, "a member of the guard," and hence is liable for other duty; nevertheless he is a man who has been ordered to hold himself in readiness for guard duty at any moment, and can not absent himself from the post during this tour of guard duty. These obligations of supernumeraries should be made known to them by their respective first sergeants.

VIII. Company morning reports must be sent to the office of the regimental or battalion adjutant by 5.45 a. m. The medical officers will send in their sick reports by the same hour. The reports of regiments and battalions, accompanied by the reports of the companies, must be in the office of the post-commander at 8.30 a. m. at the latest, and Post-Surgeons will render their reports at the same time.

Commanding officers of companies of the maximum strength are authorized to replace men lost before going to camp, by enlisting from their "waiting list or surplus numbers, with the approval of their regimental or battalion commanders, which approval must accompany the pay-rolls, men who have had military instruction for at least sixty days.

The pay-rolls in duplicate, all completed and signed, must be delivered at post-headquarters, without fail, Friday of each week, at noon. For payment, companies will be formed in the same manner as for any other military formation, but in the uniform in which they will travel to their home station, armed with side-arms only. Regiments, battalions and companies will be paid in the order of rank of their respective commanders. The company will be drawn up in line in front of the place of payment; the paymaster will, in the presence of the company, then administer the oath, as prescribed on the pay-roll, to its commanding officer; after which each man will promptly answer "here" to his name, step up to the paymaster, salute with the hand farthest off, take his check with the hand nearest, and then pass to the rear of the company and take a position corresponding to the one held before stepping out, so that when the company is paid it will be already reformed, back of its original ground, ready to be marched off. In stepping out to receive payment rear rank men will pass through the line of the front rank, the front rank men stepping aside to allow them to pass.

Commanding officers will not return for pay for the day men who have been absent without authority from any prescribed duty for that day; to be entitled to a day's pay a day's duty must be performed.

Ration returns in duplicate will be prepared each day after retreat or dress parade, a consolidation made thereof, and sent to post-headquarters the same evening; on Saturday the returns will be sent in with the morning report and commanding officers of regiments and battalions will forward then also in triplicate a consolidation of all the rations received while in camp. The post band will be taken up on the ration return of the senior regimental or battalion commander.

Regimental and battalion commanders on arrival will make requisition for the following articles, which the post-quartermaster will issue on the approval of the requisition by the post-commander:

Cots at the rate of one for each officer, enlisted man, band-man and authorized servant.

Mattresses at the rate of one for each officer, enlisted man, band-man and authorized servant.

Blankets at the rate of two for each officer, enlisted man, band-man and servant.

Camp stools at the rate of one for each officer, enlisted man, band-man and servant.

Wash basins at the rate of one for each officer, enlisted man, band-man and servant.

Tin cups at the rate of one for each officer, enlisted man, band-man and servant.

Candles at the rate of five for each officer, enlisted man, band-man and servant.

Brooms at the rate of one for each four officers, enlisted man, band-man and servants.

Candlesticks at the rate of one for each tent.

Wooden pails at the rate of one for each tent.

Tin pails for coffee at the rate of two for each company, band and the field and staff.

Bread baskets at the rate of two for each company, band and the field and staff.

Wheelbarrows at the rate of two for each company, band and the field and staff.

Rakes at the rate of two for each company, band and the field and staff.

Shovels at the rate of two for each company, band and the field and staff.

Sickels at the rate of two for each company, band and the field and staff.

Lanterns at the rate of three for each company, band and the field and staff.

Oil at the rate of one-half gallon for each company, band and the field and staff.

Tables at the rate of three for each company, and as many as may be necessary for the field and staff and the band.

One national color, two general guides' flags and two markers for each provisional battalion.

For large companies, the allowance per company may be suitably increased.

The march into and out of camp is a route march, and bayonets will not be fixed; the outgoing regiment will form line between the mess hall and guard tents, right resting toward the guard-house, clear of the road, and allow the incoming troops to pass it, after which it will take the road and leave camp; the honors to be paid are prescribed in General Orders No. 6, c. s., from these headquarters.

When a distinguished personage is to be received, line will be formed, clear of the road, with the left in the direction of the guard-house and as far from it as the strength of the command will permit, the right resting opposite the mess-hall; bayonets fixed, ranks closed.

The troops at the post will form on the parade ground in front of the camp, in time to be brought to rest before, and to attention at 12 o'clock, noon, of the Fourth of July; the band will take position between the line and the artillery detachment; after the salute the troops will be dismissed.

On the arrival of an organization, returning from camp duty, at its home station, the commanding officer will at once report by mail for duty to his brigade commander; officers and enlisted men on special duty at camp will in same circumstances report to their immediate commanding officer.

IX. Application for passes which cover the time of a prescribed drill or duty the soldier is subject to, or which extend beyond tattoo of the day of issue, must be made to post-headquarters before noon for approval, passes of this kind not approved by the post-commander will not be recognized by the guard; passes to be absent between duties may be granted by regimental and battalion commanders, but only in cases of urgent necessity. Parties going bathing or on Sundays going to church in Peekskill will be placed in charge of officers, or non-commissioned officers; parties conducted by officers require no passes; if in charge of a non-commissioned officer, the pass should be for him by name and (so many) enlisted men; the officer or non-commissioned officer in charge is responsible for the prompt return of his whole party.

The waters of the creek having been pronounced by medical report unsuitable for the purposes, bathing away from the camp will not be permitted any where except in the Hudson river, and there not near inhabited houses or frequented roads.

The bath-house in camp will be open for use between reveille and tattoo, except for one half-hour after each meal.

X. Officers and enlisted men when leaving their quarters, off duty, must wear the uniform coat, undress coat or blouse, buttoned; the men engaged in games of recreation are excused from compliance with this, and men actually at work on fatigue duty are not required to wear the blouse buttoned. Buttons should be replaced promptly when needed.

Undress or fatigue uniform implies for officers the undress coat, for enlisted men the fatigue coat, and for all the cap, or summer helmet if so ordered; officers are however authorized to wear in camp instead of the undress coat the close fitting sack coat prescribed in R. 831. On occasions of ceremony full dress will be worn. The commanding officer of the post may authorize, however, the wearing of overcoats with full or undress, when the comfort and health of the officers or men may make it necessary. Staff officers (not of mounted troops) may on all occasions, when not otherwise directed by the post-commander or other superior authority, exercise their discretion as to the duty on which top boots may be worn by them ; but on occasions where their commanding officer is present his example is their guide, and uniformity must always be preserved.

XI. Temporary commanders of the camp will transact all post business at post-headquarters and through the appointed staff officers.

XII. The attention of all officers is called to R. 26, 86, 134, page 106, sixth section, 135, 170, 178, 179, 180, 412, 473, 477, 478, 479, 790, and General Orders Nos. 6, 8, 12 and 14, current series, from these headquarters.

XIII. Representatives of the press, who desire to remain in camp, will, upon reporting at post-headquarters, be granted permission to do so, if properly accredited by the management of their respective papers ; but shall be required to conform to the rules established for the troops in camp.

XIV. Absolute, prompt and unhesitating obedience to orders is demanded, and must be exacted of every one, high and low, officer and enlisted man, and regimental and battalion commanders are, and will be held, responsible for the discipline and proper instruction of their respective commands.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

JOSIAH PORTER,

Adjutant-General.

GENERAL ORDERS }
No. 19. }

I. Privates George H. Richardson, formerly Quartermaster-Sergeant and Stephen Van Houten, formerly Corporal, both of Company "D," Twenty-second Regiment, N. G., S. N. Y., were separately tried before the General Court Martial convened pursuant to S. O. No. 18, c. s. from these headquarters of which Captain William H. Kirby, Jr., of the Twelfth Regiment, is president, upon two charges. The first charge was disrespect to his superiors and the second charge was conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline. There were two specifications under each charge. The first alleged that on February 10, 1891, the accused in an insolent manner addressed the commanding officer of his company in the presence of the commissioned officers and a number of the enlisted men of his command, and said to him in substance that he was not fit to appoint non-commissioned officers, that he had no right to make such appointments and that he would not serve under him. The second specification set out that after using these words the accused, in a disrespectful manner, cut off the chevrons from his coat.

The court found Private Richardson guilty on both charges and the specifications thereunder and sentenced him to be dishonorably discharged and find the sum of twenty dollars.

The court found Private Van Houten not guilty of using the disrespectful language set out in the first specification, but guilty of asking in a disrespectful manner that his commanding officer reduce him to the ranks and guilty of the second specification as to the cutting off his chevrons in a disrespectful manner and sentenced him to be reprimanded in orders and fined the sum of twenty-five dollars.

The Commander-in-Chief has approved the proceedings, findings and sentence of the court in each case, and the sentences of the court will be carried into execution.

II. The evidence shows that after a company drill the captain announced to his command that he made certain appointments of non-commissioned officers. Thereupon Private Richardson, who held the rank of Quartermaster-Sergeant, in an insolent manner, addressed his Captain, and told him in substance that he was not fit to appoint non-commissioned officers, that he had no right to make such appointments and that he would not serve under him. To this he added a request to be reduced to the ranks and proceeded to cut the chevrons from his coat. This occurrence took place in the presence of the commissioned officers and a large number of the enlisted men of the company.

The conduct of Private Richardson in thus publicly showing his disrespect for his superior officer in manner, words and acts was wholly unjustifiable and a gross breach of discipline. The theory that he cut off his chevrons because he believed he had been reduced to the ranks can not be accepted. It is evident from the attending circumstances that this act was intended to make more emphatic his insubordinate language and to show more plainly to his associates his contempt for the authority of his superiors.

In the case of Private Van Houten the evidence and finding of the court show that he did not address to his commanding officer the insubordinate language set out in the specification and used by Private Richardson, but did join in an insolent manner in the latter's request to be reduced to the ranks, and then proceeded to cut off his chevrons. His conduct, while not so gross a violation of discipline as that of Private Richardson, shows, nevertheless, an inexcusable and deliberate disrespect on his part to his superior officer, which the Commander-in-Chief severely censures.

It must not be forgotten that a commanding officer is always entitled to respect; it is due to the station which he fills, and so long as he continues to exercise command, respect to him is as much a point of duty as obedience. The failure to yield proper respect to an officer, if permitted to continue, must tend to undermine authority and discipline.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE, }
ALBANY, September 3, 1891. }

I. General Orders No. 36, from these headquarters, dated December 22, 1887, providing for the organization of ambulance corps, and for the instruction of men detailed for ambulance service, is hereby revoked, and the following substituted therefor:

II. Commanding officers of regiments and battalions, and of troops, batteries and separate companies having a medical officer, will organize ambulance corps in their respective commands, but the corps in existence at this date in accordance with General Orders No. 36 of these headquarters, series 1887, will be continued under the provisions hereinafter prescribed.

For a regiment or battalion, the corps shall consist of the medical officers of the command, the hospital steward, and as company bearers three enlisted men from each company of seventy-five men, and two enlisted men from each company of less than that number.

For a troop, battery or separate company, the corps shall consist of the medical officer, and as company bearers four enlisted men.

The details for company bearers will be made by the commanding officer of the organization of which the corps is a part, upon the recommendation of his senior medical officer. The men selected must possess the ability and intelligence necessary for the requirements of this service. There may be included in the detail for a regiment or battalion not more than two corporals, and for a troop, battery or separate company not more than one corporal; but if a member of the corps should be promoted to a non-commissioned office he shall be allowed, if he so desire, to complete the course of instruction, and after he has passed the examination prescribed below, the senior medical officer may select him as one of the non-commissioned officers authorized.

Men detailed to an ambulance corps shall be relieved from such duty on the application of the medical officer having charge of the corps to which they are attached.

Whenever actual relief for sick or injured is required, the commanding officer will detail such enlisted men as have attended the course of instruction, and may also detail musicians for such service.

III. When on ambulance duty, or under instruction, the corps shall be under the immediate orders and control of the senior medical officer of the command to which it belongs, but no assignment or detail for duty with the corps shall relieve an officer or enlisted man from his regular duties, except when actually on duty with the corps in active service.

IV. To prepare the members of the corps for their duties, the medical officer in charge will provide a course of instruction. This course shall commence in the first month of the drill season of each year and be held at least once in two weeks during such season. It shall be open also to such other members of the command of which the corps is a part as may be approved by its senior medical officer.

The dates, hours and places when and where the instruction will be given shall be published in orders to the whole command by its commanding officer.

V. The course of instruction given by the medical officers of the command shall include, for the present:

Rudimentary instruction in anatomy and physiology.

Rudimentary instruction in the diagnosis of the nature of accidents and disease manifestations to which national guardsmen are subject, and the common means for the prevention and treatment of the same.

Instruction as to the common means employed for the urgent relief of the sick and the injured, including stretcher-drill and matters pertaining to transportation of the sick and injured.

Instruction in individual and camp hygiene.

VI. At the close of the course of instruction the detailed men of the corps shall be examined as to their proficiency by a board to be appointed for that purpose as hereinafter provided.

The senior medical officer of each regiment, battalion, troop, battery and separate company shall keep a record of the name, proficiency and general standing of each member of the ambulance corps under his charge, from the time of the first attendance of the member to the termination of his course of instruction; also the result of his examinations and of the number of the badge, if one is awarded to him.

VII. Commanding officers of brigades will, with the approval of the Surgeon-General, appoint for their respective commands boards of examination, which shall consist of not less than three medical officers, whose duty it shall be to examine and report to the brigade commander as to the proficiency of the detailed men who have attended the prescribed course of instruction. The presiding officer of each board shall notify the commanding officers of the organizations of his brigade of the dates on which the board will be in session, and when they will examine the detailed men of the respective corps. These men shall then be ordered before the examining board by the commanding officer of the regiment, battalion, troop, battery or separate company to which they belong, and those who pass the prescribed examination shall form the ambulance corps of their respective organizations and remain members of the same, subject to the approval of the medical officer in charge, and subject also to an annual examination by the board mentioned.

VIII. Enlisted men of ambulance corps, when actually on duty as such, are authorized to wear around the left arm above the elbow (non-commissioned officers as far above the chevron as practicable) an arm badge ("brassard") of white cloth, sixteen inches long and three wide, with a cross of red cloth, two inches high and two inches wide in center.

IX. An enlisted man who has been detailed to an ambulance corps, and who has passed the prescribed examination satisfactorily, and has the approval of the commanding officer of the brigade to which he belongs, will be permitted to wear, with the consent of the commanding officer mentioned below, while a member of the corps, on dress and undress uniforms, and when in citizen's dress, the badge of the ambulance corps of this State, of the pattern heretofore issued, as an indication of special fitness to aid the sick and injured under urgent circumstances; this badge shall be turned in to the regimental, battalion, troop, battery or company commander of the soldier, when the latter ceases to be a member of the organization, and such commander shall be responsible to the State for the same, and shall have the power, for good reasons, to refuse permission to wear or decline to issue the same to any one.

X. Details to fill vacancies in the ambulance corps will be made upon the recommendation of the medical officers, if possible from those who have attended the course of instruction, and who appear upon competitive examination to be best qualified for the duties.

XI. When a member of the ambulance ceases to be a member of a regiment, battalion, troop, battery or separate company, he shall receive, from the Surgeon-General of the State, upon the recommendation of the medical officer and the commanding officer, as evidence of his special qualifications and ability to perform the duties of the corps, a certificate to that effect, which certificate will entitle the owner to receive instruction in the duties of the corps at regular intervals, and to be examined in the same, and to have the result of the examination indorsed on the certificate.

XII. There shall be allowed and issued by the Chief of Ordnance, as Acting Quartermaster-General, in cases where such issue has not already been made, upon requisition made direct to him by commanding officers, stretchers of a pattern approved by the Surgeon-General, at the rate of two for each regiment and battalion, and one for each troop, battery or separate company having a medical officer.

XIII. The Brigade Commanders and the Surgeon-General, and under him the Brigade Surgeons are charged with the prompt execution of this order, in their own sphere, and the latter and the Surgeon-General in matters of instruction and advice, will communicate directly with the medical officers in charge of corps.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

GENERAL ORDERS }
No. 24. }

ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE, }
ALBANY, September 5, 1891. }

I. The following letter of the Surgeon-General of the State is published for the information of all concerned, the suggestions made by him are approved, and will be considered by the medical officers as instructions, by which they will be guided in their examinations:

The Adjutant-General:

Sir.—Permit me again to call your attention to the importance of a physical examination of the recruits of the National Guard of the State. In my previous annual reports the advisability of this measure has been commented on from several standpoints. I can do no better now than to reaffirm the reasons previously given for requiring such examinations, and I will therefore quote extracts from these reports, expressing at the same time the hope that immediate steps will be taken to engraft such a measure on the service of the Guard in the State.

Extract from Report of 1883.

“The physical examination of men prior to enlistment should be obligatory rather than optional. It has not infrequently happened that commandants of companies, in their determination to excel their associates, and perchance win a recruiting medal, have failed to observe proper care in enlisting men of a quality that will justly recompense the State for the expense incurred in their behalf. Not only this, but an organization suffers when numerical expediency is encouraged to the detriment of physical and moral stamina. A soldier who has a physical deformity, although he may be able to do duty so long as he feels inclined, is quite certain, sooner or later, to avail himself of its existence that his labors may be lessened, or his discharge procured.

“The presence of such men in a command gives to it a fictitious strength, moreover the example which they set to their comrades is both contagious and demoralizing. The enlistment of those whose habits and inclinations when indulged in, will lessen the dignity of their position or impair their usefulness, should be frowned upon. The organization which conducts itself at all times, and upon all occasions with becoming dignity and sobriety, will be held in the highest esteem by the public, consequently, good policy should always determine the commandants of organizations to allow none to enter who, by reason of physical or moral incompetencies can bring distrust or disgrace upon the guard. Under no circumstances should such as suffer from organic disease of the heart, lungs or kidneys, be admitted to the ranks. The life and physical welfare of the recruit demands this caution even more strenuously, if possible, than the good of the command itself. The assertion can be safely made that there is to-day not a surgeon informed of the physique of the National Guard, who has not had his attention frequently directed to an apparently trivial complaint, and found distinctive and confirmed disease of one or more of the vital organs. Persons engaged in military as well as civil walks of life, should be taught, under these circumstances, to husband all of their resources, rather than be permitted to use them up unconsciously in the performance of self-assumed duties."

Extract from Report of 1886.

"I desire again to emphasize the importance of forestalling the physical harm that may occur to those who enlist while affected with organic disease, and of the loss to the State thereby, by requiring a physical examination of all who present themselves for enlistment. Many regimental commandants do now enforce this plan with a wise discrimination. Still, there are commandants who give little, if any, attention to this fact from a medical standpoint. I am credibly informed that it has happened frequently during the past year, that men who have been rejected by the medical officer of one regiment, on account of physical disability, have applied for admission in other regiments, and have been accepted without the least attempt whatever at a medical scrutiny. This is an evil that should certainly be remedied, since, while it adds nothing to the physical status of a command, it introduces an element of discord and weakness into it."

Extract from Report of 1890.

"Not infrequently, in preceding reports, the Surgeon-General has called attention to the vital importance of the establishment of a more definite and higher standard of physical requirement for admission to the service of the National Guard of this State. Although the necessity for this requirement has been urgently emphasized in the past, as being the only sure means of securing serviceable men, and also as a just means of protecting those already diseased from deepening their infirmities by unwarrantable exposure in the Guard, yet, thus far, no active steps have been taken to establish these purposes by the State authorities. In creditable instances the commandants of organizations have caused physical examinations of recruits to be made for admission to their respective commands. Less now than formerly, however, there are instances of rejection of men for well-marked physical defects by one organization, who, at once thereafter, are admitted to another without a physical interrogation of practical worth. I will not dwell further on this abuse from a retrospective standpoint, but will beg to call your attention at once to the increased importance of a higher standard of physical requirements, especially in view of the fact that now the State grants pensions to such as become permanently incapacitated as the result of their military service. Unless some safeguard be thrown at once around this just and generous provision, the pension-roll of the State will soon form no small part of its fiduciary obligation. Surely infirm recruits who are permitted to enlist unquestioned, are justly entitled to proper recompense for any increase of physical infirmity that may result from their associations with the service. If the State excepts unquestioned the services of men who are physically crippled at the time of admission, then truly it should recompense these men for the donations they unwittingly make to it, from their limited store of vitality. At the best, this recognition will be inadequate for the loss sustained, as one willingly and knowingly will rarely take on one's self duties or burdens that rob one of health or life, for the sake of military pomp and the prospect of a pension. It is proper to say that at this time, I think, that the Surgeon-General can with propriety do no more than to point out the need for action in this matter, and to express himself ready to indicate the scope of the requirements, when it may be thought wise to initiate the reform."

In formulating a statement for the guidance of the medical offices in the examination of recruits it is apparent at once that very many of the proper requirements must be left to the knowledge and good sense of the examining officer himself. To indicate all the conditions and diseases that should reject, would require a long and tiresome statement, that would be much more indicative of pedantic supererogation, than of good judgment on my part. I shall, therefore, direct attention only to those conditions that can be classed on the border line of requirements, together with such others as call for mention in a suggestive sense, to elicit careful scrutiny, leaving the many self-evident ones unmentioned.

It should not be the intention to do more than to approximate the general standard for physical requirement exacted by the regular army, and at the same time to exercise a degree of forethought and scrutiny that will properly protect the State treasury from an invasion of unworthy or probable pensioners.

Physical Examination of Recruits.

Your attention is directed especially to the so-called medical requirements for enlistment, leaving the present, and such prospective legal ones as you may think proper, for the consideration of other than the medical department. The physical, intellectual and moral status of a recruit are each entitled to careful attention. It is difficult, indeed, to decide to which of these three elements the precedence can be given. A good physique without intellectual and moral guidance is capable of little more than the exercise of brute force. The best physical development imaginable will soon become a piteous and degraded wreck if it be chiefly animated by ignorance and immorality. The lack of either of these three elements in a man unfits him for the duties of a soldier, except, perhaps, for those common and continuous ones demanded for good camp sanitation. A good physique, fair intelligence, and moral instincts, are the three inseparable requirements that are necessary to make a good soldier. Therefore, the moral and the intellectual developments should be as carefully interrogated for defects, as is the physical development.

It should not be forgotten, in making up the status of a recruit, irrespective of physical requirement, that his social, national and business affiliations are each a matter of great importance. Men who have a vested interest in their environments, be it acquired or inherited, are better citizens and better citizen-soldiers, than those who are actuated only by selfish personal motives, and are irresponsible to the ordinary dictates of good citizenship.

Guide for Examination of Recruits.

Were I now addressing the Adjutant-General of the Regular Army instead of the National Guard, I should unhesitatingly commend to him the use of Greenleaf's "Epitome of Tripler's Manual" and all it contains as a guide for the examination of recruits. It is self-evident, however, to one familiar with the personnel of the National Guard, that the enforcement in the Guard of many of the army requirements relating to physical examination, would now decimate rather than increase the ranks. It is quite natural that this should be so. Men who enter the Guard do not sink their personal identity nor sense of propriety in taking this step, nor is it necessary or advisable that they should, so far as a physical examination is concerned. A discreet and well-informed medical officer can, in almost all instances, gain the information necessary for proper examination of a recruit, without offending any reasonable sense of propriety the recruit may possess. At all events, he should endeavor to do so, and should only insist on the completest examination when it is deemed to be necessary for a compliance with the spirit of the regulations relating thereto. I respectfully suggest, in the event of your approval of the physical examination of recruits, that measures be taken to place in the hands of each of the medical officers as a guide, the "Epitome" prepared by Lieutenant-Colonel Charles R. Greenleaf of the United States Army. It will provide a most excellent basis of action, and if its requirements be but adjusted to the present National Guard policy, it leaves nothing to be desired in this respect.

Re-enlistment.

It will happen not infrequently that a man with a physical defect, who has done excellent service, will desire to re-enlist. If it should appear that the defect alone be the only disqualifying element, and that it be of such a nature as to offer no serious obstacle to the fulfillment of the requirements of a soldier, then I am constrained to recommend his re-enlistment, provided that,* "in all such cases, the defects and the fact that they have existed prior to re-enlistment, will be noted on the soldier's medical examination paper."

* Greenleaf's "Epitome."

Form for the Physical Examination of a Recruit.

It is manifestly proper, I think, that a suitable blank be provided by the State that shall register, as nearly as possible, the physical requirements to be exacted by the State. These blanks should be placed in the hands of the examining officers, and should be made out in duplicate, one of which should remain in the possession of the organization recruiting the man, the other should be transmitted to general headquarters, where it should remain as evidence of the physical status of the recruit and also of the ability and official scrutiny of the examining officer himself.

Your attention is respectfully called to the following list of diseases and conditions, the great majority of which should, in my judgment, lead to the rejection of the applicant. It is proper to say, however, that there are many here mentioned which ought to be quite well pronounced in their presence to entitle the applicant to a final rejection. There are also many others in regard to which it will be necessary, in order that wise and discreet judgment be exercised, to examine the applicant repeatedly before entering a final decision. However, the explanations necessary for the guidance of the medical officers in these respects will be given in connection with the individual defects as they come under consideration.

1. Less height than five feet five inches should reject.‡
2. Chest measurement less than 32 inches with a complete expiration should reject.*
3. Chest expansion of less than two inches with a full inspiration should reject.
4. Weight less than 125 pounds (infantry), and greater than 190 pounds (infantry and artillery), and greater than 165 (cavalry and light artillery), should reject.
5. Qualification or disqualification for service on account of age should be in accordance with M. C. 40, which is as follows:

Able-bodied men of good character, of 18 years of age and upwards, who can read and write, may be enlisted in the National Guard, in the first instance, for a term not less than five nor more than seven years, and on the expiration of that term they may be re-enlisted, either immediately or at any time thereafter, for terms of one or more years, at their option; but no person above the age of 45 years shall be enlisted or re-enlisted except by permission of the commandant of the brigade or division to which the organization is attached; nor any person under the age of 21 years, without the consent of his parent or guardian; provided, however, that enlistments as musicians between the ages of 16 and 21 years may be made with the consent of parents or guardians. * * *

* Height taken in stocking feet. Chest measure taken in undershirt.

6. The loss of the sight of an eye should reject.

Permanent defects of one or both eyes, which impair the vision for proper marksmanship, sentry duty, etc., should reject.

Not only this, but also severe trachoma, entropion, extensive corneal opacities, cataract, inordinate strabismus and nystagmus, should reject, if unrelieved at the time of final examination. However, any defect in vision that can be corrected need not reject. For signal service duty, color-blindness should always reject.

7. A degree of deafness that may prevent the proper reception of the countersign should reject.

In making the examination for this degree of deafness, it is well to remember that transient and remedial causes, such as closure of the Eustachian tube, cerumenous collections, polypi, etc., may temporarily seriously impair the hearing of the recruit. However, the previous history, together with a critical physical examination, will soon disclose the true nature of the trouble.

8. Defective articulation that may prevent giving proper alarm and the countersign should reject.

This condition may be caused by congenital and acquired deformities of the soft and hard parts that are necessary for proper speech. Harelip, fissure and perforation of the hard-palate, mutilation and disease of the tongue, etc., are among the best pronounced of the illustrations of these defects. However, they need not reject when their bad effects on the speech have been remedied by reliable mechanical or surgical expedients.

9. Chronic rheumatism should reject.

Any history or evidence of this disease should cause final rejection, and the medical officer's attention is especially directed to ascertaining if the applicant has suffered at any time from this affliction.

10. Repeated attacks of acute articular rheumatism should reject.

The best interests of the applicant demand his rejection if he have ever had an attack of this disease especially if an hereditary influence be present, or if the attack have followed the exposures recognized as causing rheumatism.

11. Repeated attacks of sciatica.

This affliction should reject if it be associated with a suspicion of rheumatic or gouty diathesis, or have been due to exposure. If from other causes, amenable to medicinal treatment, and not protracted nor of recent occurrence, it need not cause immediate rejection.

12. Chronic bronchitis.

General chronic bronchitis should reject. Chronic bronchitis, complicated with asthma or emphysema should reject. Chronic bronchitis, attended with feeble respiratory murmur; with a markedly increased expectoration after exposure to cold; with severe cough after unusual exercise; or with cough and profuse expectoration on arising, should reject. Chronic bronchitis, with evidence of lung consolidation should reject.

13. Repeated attacks of pleurisy should reject.

Repeated attacks of this disease, of whatever form, should cause rejection, especially if the chest have become deformed or crippled in its movements, or if severe pain located there follow continued active effort. Hydrothorax and empyaema, past or present, should reject.

14. Emphysema. If complicated with asthma, with chronic bronchitis, or with well-marked chest deformities, it should reject. Asthma due to inordinate use of the lungs only, need not reject, except it be attended with unusual shortness of breath with moderate exercise.

15. Asthma.

Asthma should cause rejection when complicated with chronic bronchitis, with emphysema, or with suspected heart disease.

Asthma due to individual susceptibility to various things, as feathers, ipecac, etc., need not reject.

16. Chronic laryngitis.

Persistent chronic laryngitis should reject, especially when attended with severe hoarseness or aphonia. The presence of laryngeal symptoms without other assignable causes should suggest the possibility of aneurism, tuberculosis or syphilis.

17. Tuberculosis.

Any evidence of this disease in the lungs, joints or other important portions of the body, should reject. Moderately enlarged lymphatic glands need not reject except they be increasing in number and size. An abnormal increase in temperature, with suspected tuberculous disease of any tissue of the body, should reject.

18. Disease of bone.

Caries, necrosis and other diseases of bone causing pain, or attended with conditions requiring special attention to cleanliness should reject.

19. Bright's disease should reject.

It is proper to say, however, that the fact of the presence of albumen and casts in the urine, as shown by a single examination, should not be deemed conclusive. If, however, albumen and casts be found after repeated examinations, the applicant should be rejected.

20. Aneurism.

That this disease of the large vessels should reject, is self-evident. The attention of the examiner should be carefully directed to the large vessels of the chest and abdomen of each recruit, to avoid the enlistment of one thus affected. Aneurismal-varix, varicose-aneurism, large and exposed aneurism by anastomosis, also prominent or increasing cirroid aneurism, should reject. Small and non-progressive cirroid, and a similar aneurism by anastomosis need not reject.

21. Valvular disease of the heart.

This should cause rejection if either hypertrophy or dilatation be present. It should reject if the efforts incident to the requirements of a soldier cause unusual shortness of breath, or unusual heart action, or, if heretofore, the applicant have suffered at times from undue shortness of breath after exercise. If the assignable cause for the lesion refer back to a remote period, and no secondary consequent evidence of disease be present, this condition need not reject.

22. Persistently painful and prolapsed hemorrhoids should reject.

No applicant should be accepted who suffers from this form of affliction. Nor should one be accepted who has chronic prolapse of any portion of the rectal structure, or acute prolapse of the same after active exercise, or with diarrhoea or other intestinal derangement.

23. Fistula-in-ano.

When painful and offensive, or when associated with suspected tuberculosis of other parts of the body, is should reject.

24. Hernia, irreducible.

Irreducible hernia of whatever variety and wherever located, should reject. However, any variety of reducible hernia that can be held in place with a well-fitting truss, need not reject. It is proper to say, though, that direct inguinal hernia is often retained only with great difficulty and much discomfort. It is necessary always, in all forms of hernia, that the medical officer himself see that the applicant meets this requirement properly, before he be admitted to the service.

25. Hydrocele.

A large hydrocele of any variety should cause temporary rejection. If amenable to palliative treatment, it need not finally reject.

26. Gastralgia with indigestion and emaciation should reject.

These manifestations of disease should reject, as they are quite surely dependent on organic disease, and at the best are inconsistent with the proper physical status of a soldier.

27. Hemoptysis.

This should reject if it be associated with symptoms of lung or heart disease or aneurism. Repeated attacks should reject, even though they be due to no directly assignable cause. The history of a recent attack should cause the suspension of judgment to a later period.

28. Hematemesis.

This symptom should reject, when associated with others indicative of disease of the stomach, liver, heart or other important organs of the abdominal or thoracic cavities. If the attacks have been recent and the cause obscure, a second application should be advised at a somewhat remote period. It will not be amiss to inquire if blood has been swallowed from any cause prior to the act of blood-vomiting.

29. Hematuria.

This symptom of disease should reject, especially if of recent date and of repeated occurrence. It should not be confounded, however, with loss of blood from injury of the urethra. A careful interrogation as to the presence of previous bladder and kidney manifestations of disease will almost certainly justify the rejection of the applicant.

30. Cystitis should reject.

This disease, of whatever form, ought always to reject. It is due the applicant, however, that he be told he may again present himself whenever a cure shall have been accomplished. This course may save him much subsequent suffering, even though it does not add to the guard a recruit.

31. Persistent jaundice.

While it is true that marked and prolonged jaundice is sometimes associated with gastro-duodenitis and certain other conditions amenable to treatment, still no applicant who is suffering from this symptom should be recruited, except after the fullest assurance that its existence does not depend on permanent structural changes.

32. Hydroperitoneum should reject.

This condition should reject in all cases. If a doubt exist regarding its presence, the attention of the examining officer should be carefully directed to the condition of the liver, heart, kidneys and lymphatic glands, with a view of determining whether or not it may not be present as a complication in disease of these organs.

33. Varicose veins.

Varicose veins and varicose and other ulcers of the extremities which are amenable to palliative treatment need not reject.

34. Epilepsy should reject.

A history of convulsions or "fits" of any kind should reject.

35. Mental aberration.

Any manifestations suggesting the belief of present or prospective disease of the mind should reject.

36. Dislocations, spontaneous.

A recent dislocation of this kind should reject, except it be of a joint, the modification of the functions of which will not incapacitate the soldier for duty.

37. Previous injuries, results of.

These should reject when of such a nature and so located as to impair the fitness of the applicant for the requirements of a soldier.

38. Apendicitis.

Repeated attacks of this disease should reject. If but a single attack have occurred, and there be any evidence of disease remaining on physical examination, or occasional pains be experienced suggestive of latent trouble, the applicant should be rejected.

39. Oedema of extremities.

The presence of oedema of the extremities, if long standing, should reject. If recent, and due to organic disease or irremediable obstruction of vessels, it should reject. If it have occurred or be present, without assignable cause, the applicant should be rejected.

40. Headache.

Severe headache, persistent or recurring, when caused by exposure to the contingencies incident to the requirements of a soldier, or due to rheumatism, gout or venereal disease, should reject.

41. Constipation.

Constipation need not reject, except it be attended with a history of intestinal obstruction.

42. Flat-foot.

When a foot thus deformed has the history of causing a limp or pain while walking; is tender on pressure at the inferior and inner aspect of the arch (Medio-tarsal joint) or painful there, with hyperflexion of the tarsus, the applicant should be rejected.

43. Halux valgus.

This deformity of the great toe, when extreme, or when complicated with painful bunion, should reject.

44. Joint function.

The permanent impairment, from whatever cause, of the functions of a joint or joints essential to the proper performance of the requirements of a soldier, should reject. A limp with walking should reject. Movable bodies in important joints should reject.

45. Loss of digits.

The loss of the thumb or any two fingers of a hand should reject. A mutilation of the digits or carpus that seriously impairs them for the required purposes of a soldier should reject. The loss of a great toe should reject.

46. Glycosuria.

The continued presence of sugar in the urine should reject. However, it may be present from time to time in varying amounts as the result of remediable causes, therefore the examiner should exercise a wise discretion in the rejection of applicants for this cause.

47. Chronic diarrhoea and chronic dysentery should reject.

The applicant with a history of having had either of these diseases, should be rejected.

48. Dysomania.

Drunkenness, slovenness and depravity. Each of these should reject.

49. Vertigo.

Severe vertigo at regular intervals, and transient irremediable attacks of vertigo, should reject.

50. Modification of motion and sensation.

Any interruption or continuous modification of the functions of motion or sensation which may unfit one for the requirements of a soldier, should reject.

These modifications refer to general and local deviation from the normal of the muscular and nervous systems, including especially chorea, and various paralysees of motion and sensation.

51. Cicatrices.

An irritable cicatrix, or a large and adherent one, should reject, especially when liable to pressure and to blows by reason of its exposed position.

52. Dyspnoea.

Unusual shortness of breath with moderate exercise should suggest the possibility of organic disease. In a degree this may be the result of sedentary habits, and of unusual fleshiness; such causes are remediable with proper training. Dyspnoea should cause rejection when due to organic disease and other irremediable causes.

53. Contagious disease.

No applicant should be accepted, nor soldier allowed to associate with comrades, who is suffering from any disease that may be communicated to another by means of agents, requirements or associations common to those who are engaged in military service.

54. Modifications of urination.

No applicant should be accepted who experiences difficulty in voiding or holding the urine, or who has frequent calls of micturition. The examiner can judge somewhat of the prominence of this infirmity by the odor or discoloration of the clothes.

55. Deformity of lower limbs.

Extreme knock-knee and bow-legs should reject. Both are objectionable for obvious reasons; the former, principally from the fact that inordinate chafing is of common occurrence in such cases.

56. Disfigurements, deformities, etc.

Any disfigurement or deformity constituting a well-marked blemish of soldierly appearance, or local disease of deep or superficial character, requiring constant attention to cleanliness, should reject.

I desire, in conclusion, to call your attention again to the fact that there are numerous diseases and conditions that should reject at once, that are not mentioned in the foregoing list. However, if the medical officers of commands will act on the line of inquiry just designated in a discreet and intelligent manner, the present physical status of the Guard will be much improved, and many a poor, unsuspecting applicant for military glory will be saved the sacrifice of his physical resources unwittingly. It is not believed that the standpoint of requirement just designated is to be the final one. It is believed, however, that its adoption will constitute an advance necessary in a line parallel with the improvements already being made in other departments of the service of the National Guard.

Respectfully submitted.

JOSEPH D. BRYANT.

Surgeon-General.

II. All men desiring to enlist or re-enlist will be examined in accordance with the foregoing instructions, and will not be accepted unless they pass the medical examination. The medical examination paper will be attached to the enlistment paper, which will be forwarded as usual to these headquarters.

III. The form adopted as the medical examination paper will be known as form number 24a.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

The manuscript is in the hands of the public printer, but no type has been set, and it may be several months before copies can be procured for the National Guard. As the drill season is now beginning, the schools of the soldier and the company, as they will appear in the new drill regulations, are furnished in order to afford officers the earliest opportunity of becoming acquainted with them.

OFFICE OF THE JUDGE-ADVOCATE GENERAL, }
CITY HALL, BROOKLYN, March 18, 1891. }

The Adjutant-General, S. N. Y. :

Sir.—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of the enlistment paper of Charles E. Lord, Company K, Seventh Regiment, by which it appears that he was twenty years of age at the time of enlisting and that consent to his entry into service was given by Susie F. Lord, as his guardian. The endorsements on this paper show that the Assistant Adjutant-General of the First Brigade inquired of the Commanding Officer of Company K
“when and by what authority Susie F. Lord was appointed guardian of Charles E. Lord” to which the latter officer has made return that Susie F. Lord “is the stepmother and natural guardian of Charles E. Lord and has ministered all his affairs since his father’s death without question.”

Upon these facts the question is asked whether there is a consent to the enlistment of the minor by a “guardian” within the meaning of M. C. 40, which requires the consent of a "parent or guardian" before such enlistment can be made.

In the outset it is to be observed that the first clause of M. C. 40 contains a general authority to enlist in the words "able-bodied men of good character of eighteen years and upwards who can read and write may be enlisted in the National Guard," but this general provision is immediately restricted by the two following clauses "but no person above the age of forty-five years shall be enlisted * * * nor any person under the age of twenty-one years without the consent of his parent or guardian." Here is a distinct prohibition against the enlistment of minors without a parent's or guardian's consent and in the language of Chief Justice Ruger in The people ex rel. Frey v. The Warden, 100 N. Y., 20-25 compliance with "this requirement is thereby made the condition of a valid enlistment." In that case the consent was lacking and the Court of Appeals held the enlistment null and void. The question presented is therefore one of practical importance, and the failure to comply with the requirements of the M. C. is more than a technical irregularity.

The first question presented is whether upon the facts of this case Susie F. Lord can properly be considered the "natural guardian" of the minor.

Guardianship "by nature" existed at Common Law. Blackstone in his Commentaries (Black. Com. 461) says it extends to "the father and in some cases the mother" and Chancellor Kent carefully limits it to the father and on his death to the mother (2 Kent. Com. 13th Ed. 220-221). No extension of this rule is to be found in the later authorities; on the contrary Schouler on Domestic relations, a work of acknowledged authority, declares that the father and mother "are the only natural guardians possible." (Schouler Dom. Rel. sect. 298, 3d Ed.) and this statement is supported by other writers. (Field Law of Infants Sect. 83; Tyler on Infancy 2d Ed. 238-239; Anderson's Dict. of Law "Guardian;" Bouvier's Law Dict. "Guardian.")

To speak of a person who has taken upon himself or herself the care of a child as a guardian is an erroneous use of the word. The relationship of guardian and ward is essentially a legal relationship. The office of guardian is an office of trust recognized and defined by law. Guardianship by nature, as shown by the authorities cited, extends only to the father and mother. Aside from this, guardianship can only legally exist by virtue of the judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction or by testamentary or other act authorized by express statutory authority. (Abbott Law Dig., "Guardian;" Schouler Dom. Rel., § 283; Tyler Infancy, 2d ed., 235; Field Law Inf., § 82; Reeves Dom. Rel., 311.)

There is another aspect of the case equally fatal to the contention of the enlisting officer.

The provision of M. C. 40 is that there shall be the consent of the minor's "parent or guardian." It has been already pointed out that the only persons recognized by law "as guardians by nature" of a minor are his father and mother, or, in other words, his parents. To hold, therefore, that the word "guardian," as used in this section of the statute, will include a natural guardian is to make it synonymous with the word "parent," and is to give this word "parent" no force or meaning, contrary to the well-settled rule of construction that effect should be given to every part of a law.

A case in point in this line of reasoning is Macready v. Wilcox, 33 Conn. 321, which arose under a statute of Connecticut, providing that "Courts of probate, in their respective districts, shall have power to appoint guardians to all minors under the age for choosing guardians, who have no father, guardian or master." In delivering the opinion of the court, Park, J., said: "These children are under the age for choosing a guardian, and have no father or master, and unless the relator can make it appear that they have a guardian, within the meaning of the statute, it follows that the court of probate had authority to appoint the respondent. It is said that the mother of these children was their natural guardian when the appointment of the respondent was made; but it is clear that the statute had reference to a guardian appointed by the court of probate, for, if the word 'guardian,' as used in the statute was intended to embrace all kinds of guardians at common law there was no necessity for its using the expression 'no father,' for it is everywhere held that a father is the natural guardian of his minor children."

For the reasons given I am of the opinion and do advise that there has been no consent to the enlistment of Charles E. Lord by any "guardian" as that word is used in M. C. 40.

I have the honor to remain,

Very respectfully yours.

ALMET F. JENKS,

JUDGE-ADVOCATE GENERAL'S OFFICE,
CITY HALL, BROOKLYN, April 28, 1891. }

The Adjutant-General, S. N. Y. :

Sir.—I am in receipt of the notice of appeal to the Commander-in-Chief, by Captain Joseph N. Billings, Ninth Regiment, National Guard, from the sentence of a delinquency court, for the trial of commissioned officers, convened pursuant to G. O. No. 1, c. s., from headquarters First Brigade, dated January 26, 1891, which is referred to me with the inquiry whether an appeal lies to the Commander-in-Chief.

Upon examination I find that the delinquency court in question was ordered by the brigade commander pursuant to the order of the Commander-in-Chief, and this fact is recited in the order convening the court.

The taking of appeals from the sentence of delinquency courts was regulated at the time this appeal was taken by M. C. 113, as amended in 1890 (Chapter 360, Laws 1890).

After providing that the Commander-in-Chief "shall order or cause to be ordered" such courts, it directs that the proceedings of the court shall be delivered "to the Commander-in-Chief or to such officer as he may cause to order such court" for his approval or disapproval allows an appeal within twenty days after notification of the fine following this statement with the declaration that "the Commander-in-Chief or in case such court shall be ordered by a commanding officer of a division or brigade by his direction, then the officer ordering such court may remit or mitigate such fine or penalty."

The effect of the amendment of 1890 quoted was to consolidate and the provisions of M. C. 113 and 117 as they stood at the time of its adoption and to make more plain and distinct their meaning.

The language of the amendment of 1890 is unambiguous. It plainly provides that where the Commander-in-Chief orders a delinquency court under this section, its proceedings are to be returned to him for approval or disapproval, and he is vested with the power to remit or mitigate any fine or penalty imposed. Where on the other hand he does not exercise the power of ordering the court himself, but causes it to be ordered by the brigade commander, then the proceedings of the court are returned to him for approval and the power to remit or mitigate the sentence of the court is vested in him.

I am, therefore, of the opinion, and do advise that Captain Billings had no right of appeal to the Commander-in-Chief from the sentence of the delinquency court in question and the notice of appeal given by him is of no effect.

Very respectfully yours.

ALMET F. JENKS,

Brigadier-General and Judge-Advocate General.

OFFICE OF THE JUDGE-ADVOCATE GENERAL, }
CITY HALL, BROOKLYN, June 5, 1891. }

The Adjutant-General, S. N. Y. :

Sir.—I have considered the communication addressed to you under date of March thirty-first last, by Herbert Satterlee, Esq., president of the Naval Reserve Association, inquiring whether an applicant for membership in the naval battalion, who has an honorable discharge from the National Guard, and has served for five years or more in a regiment in New York city, may enlist in the naval battalion for the term of one year under M. C. 40.

I have examined and considered chapter 492 of the Laws of 1889, authorizing the establishment of a State naval militia, with reference to the question referred for my opinion. Many of the provisions of that law are expressed in very general language, but I do not find any that, upon a fair construction, permits such an enlistment as in the case stated is desired to be made.

I have not overlooked the provision in the seventh section of the law of 1889 referred to, which is cited by Mr. Satterlee, which reads that, "when not otherwise provided, the government of the naval militia shall be controlled by the provisions of the Military Code as now applied to the National Guard." I am of the opinion that the word government, as here used, does not authorize the proposed enlistment.

I have the honor to remain,

Very respectfully yours.

ALMET F. JENKS,

Brigadier-General and Judge-Advocate General.

OFFICE OF THE JUDGE-ADVOCATE GENERAL,
BROOKLYN, October , 1891. }

Adjutant-General of the State of New York:

Sir.—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of a communication addressed to you under date of July 31 last by Brigadier-General Edmund O. Beers, relating to the discharge of Private Edwin J. Park of the Thirtieth Separate Company, and accompanied by a certificate of the Commanding Officer of that organization showing the dates of Private Park's enlistment and discharge.

It appears from these papers that Private Park enlisted in the Thirtieth Separate Company on July 7, 1882, and was dishonorably discharged therefrom on May 4, 1884, by the Division Commander for the good of the service. The facts on which this action of the Division Commander is based are not set forth in detail. It is, however, to be inferred that Private Park failed to do military duty and was continuously absent from his company for such a length of time that the Commanding Officer felt that his name should no longer be carried on the rolls as an efficient soldier, and therefore application was made for his discharge.

The discharge in question was granted after the present military code went into effect in 1883. It was provided by section 49 of the Code, as in force in 1884, that "The Commander of each division may for sufficient reasons, and in his discretion, discharge enlisted men with or without their consent in his division at any time upon the recommendation of the commander of the troop, battery or company," with the provision that no such discharge shall be granted before the expiration of the term of service of the enlisted man, without his consent until he has had ten days notice of the ground for the recommendation, and ten days opportunity to be heard and for explanation and defense before the Commander of the division. The nature of the discharge to be granted an enlisted man who is thus proceeded against, is regulated by R. 218, which requires that he shall receive a dishonorable discharge.

It must be assumed in the absence of evidence to the contrary that the method of procedure prescribed by this section of the M. C. was strictly followed by the Division Commander. It does not appear whether Private Park availed himself of the opportunity to be heard before the Division Commander, or not. It must, however, be assumed that an opportunity for such a hearing was afforded him.

It is now stated that Private Park's absence from duty was due to want of physical capacity, owing to a disease from which he was then and is still suffering.

It will be observed that the procedure under M. C. 49 contains all the elements of a judicial inquiry where, as in this case, the discharge of an enlisted man is asked for before the expiration of his term of enlistment. It is expressly required that he shall have an opportunity for hearing, and that the action of the Division Commander, while discretionary, shall, nevertheless, be based on some sufficient ground.

It is also to be observed that the application now made by Private Park is made not on any allegation of illegality, or even of irregularity, in the proceedings which terminated in his dismissal, but on the fact that he had evidence which he neglected to present at the proper time, or which, if he presented it, did not receive sufficient consideration from the Division Commander. I state the basis on which relief is asked in the alternative, for the reason that from the facts set forth in the papers before me, the application may inferentially be rested on either ground.

Many instances are to be found where, after a trial by court-martial, followed by the approval and execution of its sentence, the officer affected thereby has sought either to set aside its proceedings or procure a modification of the sentence, substantially on the ground now set forth, viz., that injustice was done him by the military tribunal before which he was tried. In some cases such relief was afforded, and orders are to be found purporting to reinstate delinquents, and granting them an "honorable discharge," but it is now well settled that such action proceeded on a misconception of the law, and the order so granted was wholly without legal authority. (1 Winthrop M. L., 1075, 1076.)

This practice found some countenance at one time in the Court of Claims, it being held that such orders were revocable, and when they were recalled the consequences of the order were annulled. (Smith v. U. S., 2 Ct. Cl., 206.) But this doctrine is contrary to numerous decisions of the Attorneys-General, and has been distinctly overruled by the Supreme Court of the United States. (Lieut. Devlin's Case, 6 Op. Atty.-Gen., 370; 12 id., 548; Lieut. Whitney's Case, 14 id., 274; McGrath v. U. S., 102 U. S., 426; Corson v. U. S., 114 id., 619.)

It has been further decided in the application of the principles involved in these cases that it was immaterial whether the proceedings of the military court were approved by the President or by some general authorized by law to approve them. (Captain Howe's Case, 6 Op. Atty.-Gen., 514.)

Similar rulings have been made in cases where the discharge was granted by executive order authorized by statute, as distinct from the judgment of a military court. (Dig. Op. J. A. G., 241; 1 Winthrop, M. L., 1078; 8 Opp. Atty.-Gen. 235.)

In many of the cases referred to great stress has been laid by the applicant for relief upon the injustice done him in the disposition of his case by the court-martial or by the executive or other officer issuing the order of dismissal, but these considerations have not been permitted by the law advisers of the government to modify or influence the rulings stated. Thus in Moorhead's case (4 Op. Atty.-Gen. 274), the action of the military court was sustained although Attorney-General Nelson, in his opinion, states that "The facts disclosed by the record show it to be one in which the sentence pronounced and executed was peculiarly harsh and severe." So in Surgeon Du Barry's case (4 Op. Atty-Gen. 124), where the dismissal was by order without trial, Attorney-General Legare said of the applicant for relief: "He was clearly out of service by a lawful and valid, however harsh (and even it may be unfair) exercise of the appointing power. If he has been restored it has not been by avoiding the act dismissing him, for that could not be done." In Lieutenant Devlin's case, already referred to (6 Op. Atty-Gen. 370.) Attorney-General Caleb Cushing states the general principles applicable in the following language: "The decision of the President of the United States in cases of this sort is that of the ultimate judge provided by the constitution and laws. Like that of any other court in the last resort, it is final as to the subject-matter. There is one and but one legal question which would be competent in this case after the final decision of the President upon it, to wit, that of nullity of proceeding, as being, for instance, coram non iudice, or for other causes absolutely void ab initio." So far has this rule of finality of a discharge, when executed, been carried that where by competent authority an honorable discharge was given to a soldier who was at the time in arrest under charges, it has been held that such discharge — no fraud being imputed to the soldier — was final and could not legally be revoked. (Dig. Op. J. A. G., 232, 233.)

The only exception to the rule exists where the discharge was obtained by fraud on the part of the applicant. (Coleman's case, 16 Op. Atty-Gen. 349.)

A case with facts very similar to those presented by the present claimant, is that of Lieutenant Newton which was considered by Attorney-General Devens in an opinion reported in 17 Op. Atty-Gen., 13, and which was subsequently before the Court of Claims, under the title of Newton v. U. S., 18 Ct. Cl., 455.

In this case Lieutenant Newton had been dismissed from the army by the President, under a statute which authorized him to "drop from the rolls of the army, for desertion, any officer who has now or may hereafter be absent from duty three months without leave." Nine years after the order of dismissal had been issued Lieutenant Newton applied to have it set aside on the ground substantially as appears in the opinion of the Attorney-General, that it was issued "under a misapprehension of the facts," and, in default of this, further asked for a trial by court-martial, claimed to be allowed to officers so dismissed by another section of the law.

In his opinion the Attorney-General points out that, under the section of the law quoted, it is the President who must determine, to his own satisfaction, by an examination of the records of the War Department, or in other ways, and not necessarily by the actions of the court-martial, what officers have been absent from duty for the period of three months without leave. The Attorney-General then adds: "But, however, to be solved, this question of fact was placed within the President's exclusive jurisdiction. The right to decide it implied the power to determine it conclusively either way as to any officer. (Central Pacific R. R. Co. v. Placer Co., 43 Cal. Rep., 367.) His decision as to any officer having been made, the President is, as to the case of that individual, functus officio, the statute giving him no right to review, annul, affirm or reverse his own adjudication."

Referring to the length of time intervening between the making of the application and the dismissal, the Attorney-General said: "Though no time is limited in the act for making the application, the general rule would require the claim to be made within a reasonable time. It is not reasonable to wait until the statute of limitations has run against the offense, the witnesses have all disappeared and memory failed, or until we may naturally expect these things to have occurred."

The Attorney-General advised that the case was not a proper one for executive action, and his conclusion was sustained, substantially upon the reasons advanced by him in his opinion, by the Court of Claims when the case came before that tribunal.

In applying these principles to the facts of the present case it will be observed that the Division Commander was, by M. C. 46, made a tribunal for the determination of the application for the claimant's discharge. He has passed upon that question in what must be assumed to have been a regular and legal way.

No appeal from his determination is provided by statute; he is within the language used by Attorney-General Cushing in Devlin's case "the ultimate judge" provided by law. His decision may be attacked on the ground that the proceeding before him was illegal and void, but no such contention is made in the present instance. Here, as in Newton's case, the only claim made is that the actual facts of the case were not understood by the officer who issued the order of dismissal. In other words a retrial of the case on the merits is practically what is now asked for. It may be that on a rehearing a different determination would be reached from that previously arrived at, but the general principle of law founded on evident principles of policy requires that such determinations when legally made, specially when, as in this case, they affect the status of a person, should be final. The unsettling of all decisions which would result from a contrary rule is a much greater misfortune than any injury which may be caused in individual cases by the application of the principles referred to.

In view of the authorities cited, I am of the opinion that no case is made by the facts presented for action as contemplated by the present application.

I have the honor to remain, very respectfully yours.

ALMET F. JENKS,

Brigadier-General and Judge-Advocate General.

REPORT OF THE INSPECTOR-GENERAL.

STATE OF NEW YORK :

INSPECTOR-GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT, }
ALBANY, November 21, 1891. }

To the Adjutant-General, State of New York :

Sir.—In accordance with instructions I have the honor to submit the result of the annual inspection and muster of the State troops for 1891.

Reports have already been submitted on the condition of the equipments.

All the arms were examined prior to the inspection and muster, and the necessary measures taken when demanded to have them put in good condition.

The result of the inspection shows a general improvement. In most commands the advance has been marked. In a few cases progress has been slow and the organizations have little military merit.

The standard by which the troops were judged is contained in circular No. 2, from general headquarters, State of New York, dated February 12, 1890. A copy of which is appended.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant.

THOMAS H. BARBER,

Inspector-General.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, STATE OF NEW YORK :

The attention of commanding officers is called to the following extract from the report of the Inspector-General for 1889 :

"In order that there may be no misunderstanding in future in regard to the annual inspection and muster, the following requirements are given on which the military appearance of the companies will be judged :

“Carefully prepared and correct muster rolls. Percentage of attendance. Arms clean and in good order. Clean shoes. Where practicable, wide-toed and wide-soled, substantial shoes should be worn. Trousers well-fitting, in good repair, clean, and when practicable, pressed. Coats clean, made to fit, in good repair, neat about the neck. Canteen and haversack worn well to the rear and in good order. Knapsack in good order, straps serviceable. Overcoats carefully rolled and strapped thereon. Blouses, caps and leggings (clean) in knapsack. The blouse folded and in good order, the cap clean and brasses bright. Brasses clean on helmet; belt plate clean. Helmet worn square on the head, tipped neither to one side or the other. Belt in good order and above lower row of buttons. Belt plate mid-way between the two rows of buttons. Cartridge boxes capable of being opened with ease, free from cartridge shells or cartridges, block in place. When beard is not worn, face cleanly shaven, hair not unnecessarily long. Gloves clean.

“At attention the men in ranks should stand as prescribed in tactics, heels together, head and eyes to the front, no gazing about, no talking, no unsteadiness.

“Captains should see that no tobacco is used when in ranks.”

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

All the companies of this regiment were up to the standard in military neatness, but were totally deficient in military bearing, and showed an almost entire absence of proper tactical instruction. The floor of the armory was clean.

Notwithstanding the severe report that it is necessary to make of this regiment, its improvement has been very great. Two years ago there was drunkenness in ranks, an absence of neatness and floor of the armory was foul with the use of tobacco.

The present commanding officer has accomplished much and gives evidence of a desire to raise this command to the required standard of efficiency.

Forty-seventh Regiment.

Colonel John G. Eddy, commanding. Inspected April 24, 1891. Present, 489; absent, 68; total, 557.

All the companies of this regiment were up to the standard in military neatness. In military bearing they were up to the standard with the exception of a very few men in each company who were unsteady in ranks at attention.

The improvement in this regiment is marked. The commanding officer deserves credit for the work he has accomplished in the short time he has been in actual command.

REPORT OF THE GENERAL INSPECTOR OF RIFLE PRACTICE FOR 1891.

STATE OF NEW YORK :

DEPARTMENT OF RIFLE PRACTICE, OFFICE 18 COENTIES SLIP, }
NEW YORK CITY, December 31, 1891. }

The Adjutant-General, State of New York :

Sir.—The annual report of this department for the year 1891 may be compassed in few words.

Believing from experience gained before I entered this position in 1883, that the main effort should be to obtain the greatest amount of practice consistent with other duties from each and every man in the National Guard; the system followed and maintained through the nine years past has been to that end; the results show somewhat of success. There were:

	Strength.	Practiced.	Marksmen.
In 1882	10,843	6,618	2,745
In 1891	12,218	8,228	5,260

The system of records initiated in 1883 and continued with slight changes incident to changes in practice is believed to be as simple and comprehensive as can be obtained combining completeness with accuracy.

I have given personal attention, I think, with good results to much of the individual practice and believe the presence of a competent supervising inspecting officer at each competitive practice a necessity to obtain uniform and regular work and instruction.

Methods of practice at present in use seem effective and if free and preliminary practice can be extended the results will undoubtedly be beneficial.

Following is the

Second Brigade, Company F, Twenty-third Regiment.....	74.13
Third Brigade, Twentieth Separate Company.....	93.52
Fourth Brigade, Forty-second Separate Company	87.89

And are each entitled to a prize valued at $50. Notable mention should be made of Companies A, F and H, Seventh Regiment, and the Second, Third, Ninth, Twenty-third, Twenty-seventh, Thirty-third and Thirty-ninth Separate Companies and the Sixth Battery, each of which has a figure of merit of over seventy-four per cent.

In closing my connection with the service, I wish to bear witness to the uniform courtesy I have received and testimony to the zeal and loyalty of its members.

Much of my labor has been lessened by the perfect clerical work of Capt. N. B. Thurston, and Col. P. P. Beals, Major C. H. Gaus and Major D. Crocker are especially adapted to their positions and officers of whom any service may be proud.

STATE OF NEW YORK:

DEPARTMENT OF RIFLE PRACTICE, OFFICE No. 18 COENTHES SLIP, }
NEW YORK CITY, December 31, 1891. }

The Adjutant-General, State of New York:

Sir.—The various ranges throughout the State have been duly inspected.

Creedmoor.

This range has, during the past year, passed into the hands of the State. The sum of $25,000 appropriated by the Legislature was used for the purchase of added lands amounting to seventy-six and seven-hundredths acres, costing $18,078.66, and the building of a new pit, butt and targets costing $6,900.03, the sum available for the last not being sufficient to complete the entire butt; the material is nearly all upon the ground, and a further sum of about $2,500 will be needed to finish the butt and to lay out, level off and grass-up the firing points so that thirty targets may be used back to 600 yards; this done the practice of the two brigades can be consolidated into fifteen or twenty days in the early part of the season, thus saving means which can be expended judiciously for more extended free practice.

The butt and pit on the east side of range will probably need repairs ere long and to relieve the authorities from possible complaints from contiguous owners, an addition of about forty acres should be made to the land as soon as necessary means can be obtained.

Rensselaerwyck.

Albany.—Used by the Tenth Battalion and Sixth, Seventh, Twelfth, Twenty-first and Thirty-second Separate Companies, is not in good order, $6,500 appropriated by the Legislature to purchase ground and refit range, but as public improvements under way would be delayed by building up in present location it was deemed best to select new one. This has not been done yet. A bill should be put in the Legislature to reappropriate money, as it lapses early in 1892.

Bay View.

Buffalo.—Used by the Sixty-fifth and Seventy-fourth Regiments. In fair condition considering time since it was built.

First Separate Company.

Rochester.—Range needs more care; is used by the Eighth Separate Company. Both companies ought to keep this range in better shape.

Second Separate Company.

Auburn.—Range will need repairs soon, not extensive.

Reports of Commanding Officers of First and Third Brigades.

HEADQUARTERS FIRST BRIGADE NATIONAL GUARD,
EQUITABLE BUILDING NO. 6 PINE STREET,
NEW YORK, November 30, 1891. }

The Adjutant-General, State of New York, Albany, N. Y.:

Sir.—In accordance with R. 591, I have the honor to submit the following report of the First Brigade, N. G. S. N. Y.:

Movement of Troops.

On February nineteenth, the Brigade paraded to take part in the ceremonies incident to the obsequies of the illustrious General W. T. Sherman.

On May thirtieth, the Brigade paraded as escort to the Grand Army of the Republic in commemoration of Memorial Day.

On October eighth, the Brigade paraded at Van Cortlandt park for instruction, and was reviewed by his Excellency the Governor of the State of New York. The park being within the city limits, the several commanding officers were instructed to use their own judgment as to the transportation of their commands, and the result was satisfactory as all but one regiment, which had been delayed on the Hudson River railroad, reported promptly at the hour designated. The total strength was 3,591 officers and men. From ten to twelve o'clock the various regiments were exercised by their commanding officers, the two batteries were drilled as a battalion by Major Greene, of the Brigade Staff, a grand guard was mounted by the Assistant Adjutant-General and the troop was detailed for escort duty. From half-past one to three o'clock the Brigade was exercised in battalion movements by the Brigade Commander, which was followed by battle formation in one, two and three lines, in which important use was made of skirmishers and the artillery. At three o'clock the Brigade was formed for dress parade in lines of masses, which was followed by a review by the Commander-in-Chief accompanied by his Excellency Governor Leon Abbett, of the State of New Jersey. The exercises and ceremonies were executed promptly, and the efficiency of the officers and the steadiness of the men were especially to be commended. The troops were dismissed at about five o'clock, enabling them to reach their homes at a comparatively early hour.

The following regiments of the Brigade were present at the State Camp in accordance with G. O. Nos. 11 and 18 G. H. Q.: The Seventh, Eighth, Twelfth, Twenty-second and Seventy-first, and details from the First and Second batteries of artillery.

Strength of the Brigade.

The aggregate strength of the brigade by the quarterly return dated September 30, 1890, was 5,457; the strength for the corresponding quarter this year was 5,339, a loss of 118.

Transportation of Troops.

The growth of the city of New York has been so great that the armories of the several commands of the First Brigade have become widely separated, and the distance to its drill-ground, at Van Cortlandt park, although within the city limits, is so great that to secure the best results it is necessary for the troops to be transported to and from the ground, at a cost of thirty cents per man. This charge makes a serious inroad upon the very small treasuries of the various commands, and should, in the opinion of the Brigade Commander, be borne by the State. I therefor have the honor to request that the sum of $5,000 per annum be set aside from the military fund to meet the expense of transportation of troops to Van Cortlandt park and back, whether by battalion, battery, troop or by brigade.

Artillery.

The Brigade Commander begs respectfully to renew his recommendation made November 30, 1888, that he be given authority to raise a regiment of heavy artillery, which, while subject to the other usual military duties, shall be especially charged with the knowledge of, and practice in, the use of heavy guns in the defense of fortifications. Such regiment can be readily recruited and officered, and, with the assistance of officers of the Regular Army stationed at the forts in the harbor, can easily acquire such proficiency in the matters indicated as to become a very valuable and efficient protection from a foreign foe.

Distinctive Uniforms.

The present State service uniform has been thoroughly tested, and it is, I think, pretty generally the opinion in this Brigade that the uniform as it exists does not fill all the requirements of the National Guard service and that it would be to the interests of the regiments and batteries composing the First Brigade that they should be furnished with a service uniform of less expensive character than the one now used, and that an allowance of the difference in cost, with perhaps something added, should be made to enable them to purchase a full-dress uniform that should be distinctive in its character. It is the custom of most nations maintaining standing armies to furnish their troops with two kinds of uniforms, one to wear in times of peace that is made as brilliant and attractive as possible, and one made for use in times of war in accordance with the kind of service expected.

The New Drill Regulations.

On October 22, Circular No. 1, G. H. Q., 1891, authorized the study of the new drill regulations adopted for the use of the Army of the United States, and the officers of this command were furnished with copies by general headquarters. The brigade commander immediately ordered the drill for the season to be taught in accordance with the new regulations, and considerable progress is being made. As the instruction progresses, however, changes in the organizations will become necessary to enable the commands to arrive at anything like perfection, and it is recommended that immediate steps be taken to provide for the increase and division of the commands in accordance with the new regulations and for the appointment or election of additional officers made necessary thereby.

In General.

While the Brigade Commander has but the warmest commendation for the officers of the Brigade in their efforts to secure the full performance of duty, he feels it is his duty to invite the attention of the Commander-in-Chief to the suggestions of the Brigade-Commander as to the present system of enlistment made in his report of 1888 and repeated in proper and appropriate ways to the present date. Under the present system of enlistment the amount of duty performed is, in some commands, not in proportion to the number of men enlisted, some of the companies showing at their weekly drills a number so far below the number carried upon their rolls as to excite comment and to demand this statement.

In the report of November 30, 1888, the Brigade Commander used the following words which can be repeated with emphasis and without alteration: "The present system of enlistment has, wherever carried out strictly, been hurtful to what may be called company sentiment. Under the present plan a captain can enlist anybody he pleases, and, animated by a desire to make as good a showing of numbers as possible, he is too often disposed to enlist members without regards to their circumstances, or to their ability to perform military duty. The members of the company, having lost their right of choice by election, do not know the new men with whom they are to associate, and the result is that there is no bond of union or comradeship between them. The enlisted man, finding that he gets his uniform for nothing, commits himself too hastily to the performance of military duty, gets very soon tired of it, and disappears, not only from the control, but actually from the knowledge of the commanding officer. In one regiment alone there was at one time more than 100 men on the rolls who could not be found at their addresses, and the great difficulty now felt in some regiments is the inability to collect dues and

The average attendance at drill and parades for the year has been high, with the exception of the Fourteenth Separate Company, Kingston, and Thirty-fifth Separate Company, Ogdensburg.

The companies of the brigade, with the exception of the Thirty-fifth Separate Company, are in excellent condition, and the Twelfth Separate Company, Troy, has shown steady improvement and growth during the past year.

The following organizations of the brigade were present at the State Camp, as follows:

Tenth Battalion, July 25 to August 1, present 182, 75.50 per cent average attendance.

Fourth Separate Company, July 11 to 18, present 69, 82.14 per cent.

Fifth Separate Company, July 4 to 11, present 99, 95.69 per cent.

Sixth Separate Company, July 11 to 18, present 69, 66.35 per cent.

Ninth Separate Company, July 11 to 18, present 58, 82.86 per cent.

The Eighteenth Separate Company went into camp at Lake George from July 11 to 18.

Recommendations.

I would respectfully recommend that the brigade be mobilized for field maneuvers at least once a year. The cost of transportation would not be excessive and I am confident that the value of the results would be of great practical benefit.

For this purpose battalions of six companies each would be the most simple and practical organizations, and the line officers selected to act as battalion and staff officers should be designated early in the season, to enable them to prepare themselves, at least theoretically, for the position which they would be called upon to fill, and in this connection I would urge that, if practicable, the companies be sent to the State Camp in such proposed battalion formation of four or six companies each, under officers as designated, combined, if necessary, in two or three battalion regiments, under my direct instruction. By this method the brigade would be properly organized when called to act as such, and the officers properly instructed and qualified to perform the duties which would then devolve upon them.

Very respectfully your obedient servant.

ROBERT SHAW OLIVER,
Brigadier-General, Commanding Third Brigade.

Report of the Lieutenant-Commander First Battalion Naval Reserve Artillery.

HEADQUARTERS FIRST BATTALION,
NAVAL RESERVE ARTILLERY, S. N. Y.,
No. 55 WEST TWENTY-SIXTH STREET, NEW YORK CITY, }
NEW YORK, December 1, 1891.

Major-General JOSIAH PORTER, Adjutant-General, General Headquarters, Albany, New York:

Sir.—I have the honor to submit the following report upon the operations and condition of the First Battalion, N. R. A., S. N. Y., for the year ending December 1, 1891. As the Battalion was not in existence a year ago, it may not be amiss to give in this, the first annual report of its Lieutenant-Commander, some account of the factors which promoted its organization, have aided its operations and influenced its good condition.

Some five years ago a Naval Reserve movement was started in the city of New York; but as the methods proposed looked more towards the organization of a national force than to a State Naval Militia, which should act in concert with the National Guard, little was accomplished.

In 1889 those who had been interested in the unsuccessful attempt to secure national legislation turned their attention to the State Legislature, and in the spring of that year, aided by a rapidly growing popular sentiment, Mr. Aaron Vanderbilt and the gentlemen who had worked so perseveringly with him to that end, procured the passage of "An Act to establish a State Naval Militia" (chapter 492 of the Laws of 1889). In the autumn of that year Captain Philip B. Low, an ex-navy officer, who served with distinction during the Rebellion, drew round him a few enthusiastic men and formed a provisional Naval Battalion, which increased in membership until it numbered last winter about eighty men.

In March, 1891, the New York Naval Reserve Association was incorporated, with Mr. H. L. Satterlee as president, its objects being to promote an interest in a national naval reserve and a State naval militia. This organization grew rapidly in membership and influence, and drew about it 100 men anxious to enlist in a naval battalion, of which it was proposed that I should be the Lieutenant-Commander.

For some time Captain Low had realized that his health and business engagements demanded that he should be relieved from the duties and responsibilities of his position, and as a result of this situation, the two provisional battalions were harmonically merged under my command and became the "First Battalion," which was mustered into the State service by you on June 23, 1891, at the Second Battery armory, with a membership of 190 seamen.

Quite a number of drills had been held prior to this date on board the U. S. S. "Minnesota" and the U. S. S. "Philadelphia," the commanding officers of those ships having assisted the battalion in many courteous ways. The Navy Department, through Assistant Secretary Soley, had also given me to understand that the department would do all it legitimately could to forward the naval militia movement. Practically it provided the use of the "Minnesota," and the equipments, arms and boats thereof, for the purpose of weekly exercise. The Battalion is also greatly indebted to Captain Henry Erben, the present Commandant of the New York Navy Yard, for his personal and official efforts during the early days of the provisional organization.

The Navy Department having given its permission, and expressed the wish that the Naval Militia of the various States should be drilled on board the Squadron of Evolution, and the Governor having approved of the plan, Admiral Walker was ordered to New York, and, on July seventeen, issued a "Programme of Exercises for the Instruction of the Naval Militia Battalion of the State of New York." This programme having been approved by you (copy annexed and marked Appendix A), the Battalion reported on board the government ships, which were then lying in New York Harbor, and were instructed and drilled on July twenty-one and twenty-three. The men were without previous naval training, and the drill not up to standard, but taking into consideration the tide of the Hudson, and the new and complicated mechanism of the modern men-of-war, the result was, as a whole, creditable.

The week's practice cruise began on Saturday, July 25, the command, 160 strong, reporting on board the "Minnesota" at 8 a. m. The Battalion transferred the arms, cutters and equipments loaned by the United States Government to the steamer "Stonington," which was moored to the wharf, the men at this time, and during the succeeding cruise, doing all the work and duty required by their ratings. The steamer "Stonington" had been chartered through funds raised by the Naval Reserve Association, and generously contributed by the citizens of New York. The men wore during the cruise the navy working suit, which they had provided at their own expense. They received no pay from the State. I annex a copy of my Order No. 10 (marked Appendix B), which gives a detailed programme of the cruise as ordered and carried out.

The Governor, with his Staff, arrived at New London at 1.30 p. m., on July 29; was taken on board the "Stonington" to the Squadron of Evolution, witnessed the great gun practice in Block Island sound, and received the ceremonies and salutes due his position as commanding the naval forces of the State of New York. The distinguished honor of this visit was fully appreciated by the Battalion, and the words of promise and encouragement which His Excellency gave the seamen before leaving in the afternoon served to increase the sailor-like spirit of the ship's company.

As evidence of the good work performed on the cruise, I attach a copy of Admiral Walker's letter to me, dated August 4, Appendix C. It is perhaps unnecessary for me to add anything further in the way of praise, but I can not refrain from expressing my pride in the result of the first year's labor of this new and tentative branch of the armed forces of the State. The Battalion, which became a ship's company as soon as it was afloat, performed all the duties of a man-of-war's crew without flinching or complaint, manned the guns, pulled the cutters, worked side by side with the regular sailors, and, in addition, performed day and night watch and signal duty on board the "Stonington." The newly commissioned officers, who were not Naval Academy graduates, and the petty officers, were also compelled to study extra hours to learn their duties, as the cruise began just one month after enrollment.

Only one drill has been held since the cruise, and that through the courtesy of Captain Wilson, commanding the Second Battery. The armory of this command is, however, too small to accommodate the Battalion as a whole. As yet I have found no available drill-room; the time has not been wasted, however, as the past two months have been utilized in perfecting our organization and establishing a corps of information, the object of which is the collection of data which would be of value in the defense of New York harbor in case of sudden hostilities. (See copy Order No. 6, Appendix D.) The instruction of commissioned and petty officers has also been continued. In this connection I attach the scope of the examination for officers, marked Appendix E.

I also submit herewith the by-laws of the association (Appendix F). It is to be noted that their aim is to obtain absolute uniformity in the Battalion as a whole, and to avoid differences between the civic organizations of the individual Batteries. The by-laws are also made to comply with M. C., par. 139; and R., par. 144, 145, 146 and 147. No matters of a purely military nature are contained in them, except such as are required by law, the naval discipline being provided for by special regulations bearing upon that point and enforced by the officers in their capacity as such (see copy Appendix G). The Battalion finds itself at this date with a membership of 280, without a place for winter drills, and with no appropriation from the State. It has no arms nor means of obtaining any, except what may be received as its proportion of the $25,000 voted to the various States by the general government. If the tone of the popular sentiment towards the naval militia is to be judged by the 105 articles and editorials which have appeared in the papers of the city of New York since July last, then it is scarcely too much to ask the next Legislature to furnish the naval force of the State with suitable uniforms and equipments, and to insure its maintenance, and the city of New York to provide it with quarters for practice and drill. Argument at this late date would seem to be useless to prove; first, the necessity for a volunteer State naval corps to protect the immense properties at stake at the mouth of the Hudson, or on the borders of the lakes; second, that the young men of the State whose inclinations lead them towards the water, are as ready to do seamen's duties as those in the land forces are inclined to act as privates. Such being the case, the most essential requirement at present is an armory on the water for the First Battalion.

There is no regimental armory in this city in which the battalion can find room to store its equipments or in which it can drill regularly and in its entirety — two essential requisites. At this juncture, however, by a happy coincidence, for the first time in half a century, the city has at its disposal a building situated directly on the water, large enough to accommodate the battalion built for military purposes and occupying the most important strategic point on Manhattan island. Castle Garden is now unused, and unsightly, but it is the property of the city and is pre-eminently fitted for the home of a naval organization, being easily accessible both by land and water. There is no other armory south of Eighth street for the protection of the lower portion of the city, and in case a battalion should eventually be raised in Brooklyn, it is equally available for that command. The tide is less at the battery than in either river, and boat drill can be held near by. The object of the promoters of the naval militia does not, moreover, stop at the formation of the present type of battalion, but has a broader design for the future, which embraces the enrollment of the seamen along the water front, and the centering, at the historic battery, of all interests which may advance the naval and marine supremacy of the chief port of the United States. The city schoolship might be moored here, and the United States training vessel should be in close proximity. The winter shore-drills could then be supplemented by proper exercises afloat, and the seafaring community be brought under better control, by reason of their closer contact with authorized State forces. The cost to the county of placing Castle Garden in fit condition to be used will be trivial compared to the building of an armory, and the further embellishing it as a State Naval Museum would render it attractive to the public and an incentive to the people to lead a seafaring life. It is not essential to have a government man-of-war for all the winter drills; much better results will be obtained by having weekly exercises under the direct control of officers commissioned by the State, and a summer cruise upon one of the vessels of the home squadron.

As a matter of interest in connection with the naval militia movement, I would state in addition to the First Battalion, consisting of	280
There has been enrolled in Rochester two batteries containing	75
Total for New York	355
Massachusetts has enrolled	238
Rhode Island has enrolled	57
California has enrolled	371
North Carolina has enrolled.....	101
Texas has enrolled	43
Total	1,165

It is essential for the State to know these figures, as New York is to receive its proportion of whatever sum may be voted by the general government for arms and munitions. Maryland, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and other States are now about to organize naval militias. Creditable, to the country as this beginning is, it must be remembered that there are over 232,000 men leading a seafaring life in the various States of the Union, all of whom should eventually become a part of a national reserve or of the organized militia of the commonwealth in which they reside.

The question of uniform I will leave for a later report, but would state as my confirmed opinion that it should be similar to that of the United States Navy, both for officers and men.

Very respectfully your obedient servant.

J. W. MILLER,
Lieutenant-Commander.

APPENDIX A.

UNITED STATES SQUADRON OF EVOLUTION, }
FLAGSHIP "CHICAGO," NEW YORK, July 17, 1891. }

The following is the programme of exercises proposed by the Commander-in-Chief of the Squadron of Evolution for the instruction of the Naval Militia Battalion of the State of New York:

All officers and men of the Squadron will at all times be ready to explain the various parts of the ship, its armament and equipment, to the members of the Naval Militia, and will encourage and facilitate their efforts to make their tour of duty with the Squadron profitable.

Each ship's party of the Naval Militia Battalion will be in charge of one of its own divisional officers, and while on board ship will be subject to the rules and discipline of the United States Naval Service.

The Guard Ship for the day will be ready to send its steam cutter to tow the Naval Militia to and from their vessel, as directed by signal.

Unless otherwise ordered, the uniform will at all times be working clothes.

The Naval Militia Battalion will be assigned to the ships of the squadron as follows:

First division three guns' crews, to the "Chicago."

Second division, three guns' crews, to the "Newark."

Third division, three guns' crews, to the "Boston."

Fourth division, three guns' crews, to the "Atlanta."

A crew of officers to the "Concord."

A crew of officers to the "Yorktown."

Each gun's crew will be assigned to one of the guns of the main battery, and each part of each gun's crew to one of the guns of the secondary battery. This assignment will be made by the commanding officer of the ship, and will continue during the series of exercises.

The members of the Naval Militia will likewise be assigned to replace a part of each boat's crew, and will take this place when the boats are armed.

Programme to be Carried out in the Harbor of New York.

Tuesday, July 21.

At 5 p. m., the Naval Militia will report on the "Minnesota."

At 5.45, they will report on board their respective ships, and will be assigned to their boats.

At 6.15, the Squadron will, on signal, arm and equip boats "for cutting out." The boats of each ship will be taken in tow by the steam cutters and will form a line of columns in tow on the star-board side of the flagship, two boats' length between the columns, the "Chicago" column nearest the flagship, and the others in line to the right, as follows: "Newark," "Concord," "Atlanta," "Yorktown," "Boston." They will then be exercised by signal from the flagship as tide and state of the river may permit.

At 7.15, the Naval Militia will return to the "Minnesota."

Thursday, July 23.

The Naval Militia will report on the "Minnesota" and their respective ships as on Tuesday.

At 6.15, the Squadron will, on signal, arm and equip boats "for distant service." The line of columns in tow will be formed and exercised as on Tuesday.

At 7.15, the Naval Militia will return to the "Minnesota," and will again report on board their ships at 9.

From 9.15 to 10, the Squadron will exercise its search lights, as in expectation of an attack by an enemy's torpedo boats, and the Naval Militia instructed in their use and in night-signaling by the "Ardois" and "Very" systems.

At 10.15 the Naval Militia will return to the "Minnesota."

Saturday, July 25.

At 11 a. m., the squadron will leave its anchorage, and accompanied by the steamer carrying the Naval Militia Battalion, will pass down North and up East rivers on its way to Fisher's Island, New York, selected at the request of the Adjutant-General of New York, as the place most suited, the Naval Militia of the State, in view of its strategical position for the naval defense of New York city, and the advantages it offers for exercising boats, manœuvring ships and firing at target with the main and secondary batteries in unobstructed waters.

Programme for Fisher's Island, New York.

Monday, July 27.

At 9 a. m., the Naval Militia will report on board the ships as previously detailed.

At 9.30, the regular ships' companies will be instructed at quarters and drilled at great guns until 10.15, the Naval Militia looking on.

At 10.30, the Naval Militia guns' crews will be called to quarters and instructed and drilled at great guns until 11.30 by the divisional officers of the ship.

At 11.45, the Naval Militia will return to its vessel.

APPENDIX C.

UNITED STATES SQUADRON OF EVOLUTION,
FLAGSHIP "CHICAGO," NORTH RIVER, }
NEW YORK, August 4, 1891. }

Lieutenant-Commander, J. W. MILLER,

Commanding First Battalion, N. R. A., S. N. Y.:

Sir.—The exercises with the organized Naval Reserves of the State of New York having been brought to a close, it becomes my pleasure and privilege to express to you and through you to the officers and men of your command, my high appreciation of the zeal, industry, intelligence and aptitude manifested in the drills in North river and at Fisher's island. The reserves under your command have gone far towards acquiring that military and seamanlike bearing characteristic of and essential to the trained and skilled man-of-war's man; they have given most gratifying evidence of a spirit which insures permanency of their own organization, and which is an excellent and worthy example for the guidance and encouragement of others.

The movement for the formation of auxiliary naval forces has had from its inception my interest and support. I consider it a most important factor in a practical and logical scheme of national defense. Elaborate and costly material—the best ships and guns—will not realize their full value in time of war unless manned from the beginning of hostilities by men of training and experience.

It is this feature, accented much more strongly by the present conditions of naval warfare than by those of a quarter of a century ago, which gives to the organization in New York and Massachusetts of pioneer bodies of Naval Reserve a value quite incommensurate with the number of men enrolled. It is the promise and guarantee of a volunteer movement in the seaboard and lake States which shall place the proper manning of the navy, in time of emergency, beyond all doubt. The service recognizes this fact fully, and, judging from the wide interest shown in the drills at Boston and Fisher's island, the country also recognizes it.

The young men of New York and Massachusetts who have joined the naval battalions—who have surrendered their business or leisure, and have shown such excellent qualities of industry, obedience and subjection to discipline—are, in my opinion, entitled to the highest commendation. Such action, continued and persistent, is on a high plane of patriotism, which their State and country will not fail to appreciate and honor.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully,

J. G. WALKER,

Rear Admiral, U. S. N., Commanding Squadron of Evolution

If the report be favorable, the candidate may be recommended for election to membership in the battalion by ball ballot. Each battery shall be entitled to one vote, and two (2) black balls shall defeat the application. The candidate having been thus recommended for membership, his name shall be posted on the bulletin board of the battery which he desires to join, and after it has been so posted for ten days shall come up for election at the next battery meeting. Three or more black balls shall exclude him from membership; but, if he is elected, the prescribed oath may then be taken before an officer competent to administer the same, and the enlistment is thereby completed, subject to the approval of the commanding officer of the battalion.

ARTICLE VI.

3. The battery fund shall consist of one-half of the annual dues of each battery and the fines hereinafter provided for.

4. Assessments may be levied upon a battery by a vote of a majority of the battery at any meeting, five days' previous written notice of the amount and purposes of the assessment having been given to the members; but such assessment must be approved by the executive committee of the battalion association before it is binding upon the members of the battery.

ARTICLE VII.

To alter, add to or amend these by-laws, the proposed amendment must be passed by a two-thirds vote at a battery meeting, previous written notice of the proposed amendment having been mailed to each member ten (10) days before said meeting. The amendment, if adopted, shall then be brought before a meeting of the battalion association, similar notice having been given, and if passed by the battalion association by a two-thirds vote of its members, shall be ratified by the other three batteries at their next regular meetings, after similar notice, by the same majority.

Abstract from the report of the Secretary of the Navy for the Year 1891.

Naval Militia.

In my first annual report I called attention to the great importance of a trained militia for the navy, and the advantages that would result from such an organization both to the regular service and to the country at large.

The subject was further discussed in the report of last year, and it was recommended that an appropriation should be made by Congress for the supply of arms in the same manner as had been done for many years for the land militia. It was predicted at the time that if such an appropriation were made the creation of the naval militia by the States would be assured.

In pursuance of this suggestion Congress, in the naval appropriation act of March 2, 1891, appropriated $25,000 for the purchase of arms for the militia, to be expended "under such regulations as the Secretary of the Navy may prescribe." This sum became available on the first of July, and, in accordance with the terms of the act, a circular was issued and sent to the governors of the several States. The regulations governing the distribution of the appropriation are as follows:

NAVY DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, D. C., }
June 20, 1891. }

Under the authority conferred by the naval appropriation act, approved March 2, 1891, in the following terms:

"Naval Militia: For arms and equipment connected therewith for naval militia of various States under such regulations as the Secretary of the Navy may prescribe, $25,000."

The following regulations are prescribed:

(1) Upon receipt of a return from the Governor of any State of the number of men actually mustered in and serving in the naval militia of said State, on the first day of July, 1891, the Secretary of the Navy will allot to the State making the return, from the general appropriation for the naval militia, a sum equal to twelve dollars per head for each officer and man so returned.

(2) The balance of the appropriation will be held in reserve until the first of October, 1891. Upon the receipt of a similar return on that date the balance will be allotted to the States then making returns, at the rate of twelve dollars per head for every officer and man returned as actually mustered in and serving on that date in the naval militia of the State, in excess of the number returned on the first of July.

(3) Should the number in excess returned on the first of October be too great to admit of a distribution at the rate of twelve dollars per head as prescribed in section 2, the balance remaining over from the July allotment will be distributed pro rata among the States making returns, according to the number returned in excess.

(4) Should a balance remain over after the allotment of October first, provided for in section 2, it will be allotted pro rata to all the States having a naval militia, in accordance with the whole number of men returned by each State as actually mustered in and serving on that date.

(5) As soon as the allotments are made, in accordance with the above regulations, the amounts allotted will be credited to the States entitled thereto on the books of the Navy Department.

(6) Requisitions for arms and equipments will be made by the Governors of States direct to the Secretary of the Navy, who will determine and order which of such arms and equipments, their number and character, shall be issued.

(7) When a requisition is received at the Navy Department the bureau concerned will be required to give the money value of the stores called for, and the Navy Department will determine and order which of said stores, their number and character, shall be issued.

(8) All property issued upon requisition shall be accounted for under the regulations which now govern the accountability for public property in the navy, and the Navy Department will issue the necessary instructions for the safe-keeping, preservation, inspection, and accountability thereof.

(9) The Navy Department will furnish the Governors of the several States possessing a naval militia force with the necessary blank forms to carry out the provisions of the above sections. All returns shall be made to the Secretary of the Navy.

It was desirable that some part of the appropriation should be allotted on the first of July to those organizations that were already in existence. This amount was fixed at twelve dollars per man actually mustered in and serving. As a stimulus to further activity the balance was reserved until the first of October, when a further allotment was made to those States whose forces had increased in the meantime, the final balance still remaining being apportioned among all the States having a naval militia organized at that date according to the numerical strength of the organizations.

The fund appropriated by law is not distributed directly to the States, but is applied, under the supervision of the bureau of ordnance, to filling requisitions for arms and equipment connected therewith, made by the Governors of the several States, in the same manner as the appropriation for the land militia in charge of the War Department.

The result of the three allotments made from the returns received on July first and October first was as follows :

California	$8,094 43
New York	7,461 71
Massachusetts	5,123 93
North Carolina	2,203 60
Rhode Island	1,178 16
Texas	938 17

The number of men certified as mustered in and serving in the naval militia is as follows:

California	371
New York	342
Massachusetts	238
North Carolina	101
Rhode Island	54
Texas	43
Total	1,149

The naval militia, therefore, comprises to-day an effective organized force of over 1,100 men, distributed among six States. From information received from various sources it is beyond question that as soon as the necessary authority is given by enactment of their respective Legislatures, other States will immediately establish organizations, and the number of men in the service will be largely increased.

An estimate of $25,000 has been submitted for continuing the arming of the militia, but it is earnestly hoped that Congress may see fit to increase this amount in order that this new and most important branch of the service may be placed on a substantial footing.

The department has endeavored to facilitate and encourage, by every means in its power, the training of the State organizations. With this object in view, and also partly to contribute to the training of the navy itself, the Squadron of Evolution conducted drills for two successive weeks at Boston and in Long Island sound for the militia organized in Massachusetts and New York, the two States most advanced in preparation.

The importance of this movement, which is destined to add to the reserve strength of the navy a considerable force of militia, with all the advantages of thorough preliminary training, will be universally appreciated. It should be helped and forwarded in every possible way. The drills of the naval militia during the past year have shown how much can be accomplished in this direction by organization and discipline. Under the command of capable officers, many of whom have had professional experience, the naval battalions have reached a high state of efficiency, and the establishment of the naval militia must be regarded as one of the important events in the record of our naval progress during the past year.

Report of General J. G. Farnsworth, on War Claims.

ALBANY, N. Y., December 31, 1891.

To the Adjutant-General, State of New York.

Sir.—I have the honor to report that during the past year the prosecution of the war claims of the State against the United States has been continued with the following results:

The direct tax levied in 1861, after having been a subject of congressional legislation for several years, finally received favorable action, and a bill providing that the amount of said tax paid by each State should be refunded upon its compliance with the stipulations embodied therein, passed both houses of Congress, was approved by the President on the 2d day of March, 1891, and became a law.

I at once prepared a statement of the account of the State with the United States on account of the direct tax and caused the introduction in the Legislature of a draft of a resolution, in compliance with the provisions of the aforesaid act of Congress. Action was taken without delay, and the resolution was passed by the Assembly on the fourth of March and concurred in by the Senate on the sixth, two days later.

Completing the accounts and obtaining the vouchers, proofs and papers required, I proceeded to Washington; and on the thirteenth of March presented the account to the Secretary of the Treasury for settlement and appeared before the accounting officers to whom it was referred. On the sixteenth, three days after presenting the claim, I received from the Treasurer of the United States a check on the assistant treasurer at New York for the full amount, $2,213,330.86; and on the eighteenth delivered it to the Governor, who deposited it in the State Treasury.

This was the first collection made under the act of Congress providing for refunding the direct tax. Subsequently, several other States, following the form and precedent thus established, presented and collected their claims. A number of States have, however, not yet received the amount due to them under the provisions of the law.

The claim for interest on moneys borrowed by the Comptroller in 1861, in anticipation of a tax levied to raise funds to defray expenses incurred in raising troops for the United States service and for which suit was brought before the United States Court of Claims and argued by the Hon. I. H. Maynard, Deputy Attorney-General, has been decided so far as that court is concerned, and judgment rendered in favor of the State for $91,320.84, being the amount of interest paid on Comptroller's bonds issued for the purpose above stated. The amount paid for interest on moneys borrowed from the canal sinking fund, $39,867 was disallowed. An appeal has been taken to the Supreme Court of the United States, and efforts are being made to have the case advanced for early trial, with a reasonable expectation that the finding will result in the allowance to the State of the full amount of the claim, $131,188.02.

Further allowances have been obtained on the claims heretofore passed upon and suspended by the accounting officers of the Treasury, and there has been credited to the State on the books of the Treasury, $16,197.42. This amount will be included in the estimates of the Secretary of the Treasury submitted to Congress for appropriation.

A new installment of claims (the eleventh) amounting to $65,624.24 has been prepared and with vouchers and proofs filed in the Treasury department for examination and allowance.

The examination of the muster and pay-rolls of the soldiers from this State that served in the War of 1812, is progressing. Upon the completion of this examination, the amount can be determined that the State can claim as properly due from the United States for contingent expenses incurred by the soldiers of 1812, that had not been paid by the general government.

A bill for refunding duties paid by the State on arms imported in 1863 has been prepared and placed in the hands of the Hon. Charles Tracey, M. C., and another for the readjustment of interest on expenditures made by the State in raising troops for the United States, during the War of 1812, is in the hands of the Hon. J. Covert, M. C. The amount shown to be due to the State in the last-named matter appears in a report of the Secretary of the Treasury to be over $100,000. Both of these bills will be introduced as soon as Congress is organized and ready for business.

Other bills will be prepared and introduced, viz.: To modify the regulations of the Treasury governing the settlement of war claims; for the adjudication of the claim for expenditures incurred by the State in protecting the northern frontier in 1863 and 1864; and for other measures in behalf of the State whenever it is thought it can be done without prejudicing favorable action on legislation already pending. The annexed statement shows in detail the condition of the war claims of the State against the United States.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant.

J. G. FARNSWORTH.
