FRANK S. BLACK.

REPORT.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, STATE OF NEW YORK,
ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
ALBANY, December 31, 1897.

HON. FRANK S. BLACK, Governor and Commander-in-Chief, S. N. Y.:

SIR.—I have the honor to report upon the condition of the National Guard and the Naval Militia, also to submit a detailed statement of all expenditures in connection therewith, in accordance with the provisions of section 33 of the Military Code.

The National Guard.

ITS STRENGTH AND COMPOSITION.

September 30, 1896, the aggregate strength of the National Guard was 13,407 officers and enlisted men.

By your direction, and according to the law passed by the last Legislature, permission has been given to organize the Field Music in all Regiments and Battalions into Corps at the rate of four musicians to each Company.

Under the law of the State the National Guard is limited as a maximum to 15,000 enlisted men. If recruiting should be unusually brisk, the organizations now in existence could readily bring the number of enlisted men up to the maximum, and disbandment of organizations or discontinuance of recruiting would become necessary; under these conditions, the formation of new organizations is not wise.

ARMS, ACCOUTREMENTS AND EQUIPMENTS.

Under the act of the Legislature, chapter 393, Laws of 1897, the Remington rifles and carbines, caliber 50, in the hands of the troops, have been turned in to the United States Government, and the State and the troops have received in return the Springfield rod bayonet rifle and Springfield carbine. This, I consider, an exchange of the greatest value to the Guard and State, as it replaces an arm worn out by service, with a rifle that is new and highly thought of by the best authorities in our own Regular Army.

This made a change in the cartridge box necessary, and the Mills woven cartridge belt was selected for use in place of the former; these belts have to be made to order, but they are now being issued, and it is expected that the entire Guard will be supplied by the end of March.

The First, Second and Sixth Batteries are each armed with a 3.2-inch breech-loading rifle battery of four guns, four caissons and one battery and forge wagon. The Third Battery is armed with Gatling guns, caliber 50, and mountain howitzers. The men are also supplied with Colt's revolvers, caliber 45, and artillery sabres.

The Cavalry is armed with the Springfield carbine, and Colt's revolver, caliber 45, and Cavalry sabres.

The Signal Corps are armed with Colt's revolvers, caliber 45, and cavalry sabres, and they are further supplied with the necessary signal kits and instruments.

All the troops are supplied with grey (army) blankets and ponchos, and the Infantry also with Merriam packs, the Cavalry and Signal Corps with saddle bags and the Artillery with knapsacks.

Conical wall tents have been issued to organizations as far as the quantity on hand permitted, and the issue will be continued as fast as means are available; the plan being to supply each organization with everything needed to take the field thoroughly equipped at a moment's notice.

Each organization has been furnished with a reserve supply of ammunition, caliber 45, for rifles, carbines and revolvers, and arrangements are being made to provide each with a suitable reloading outfit, principally for armory small arms practice.

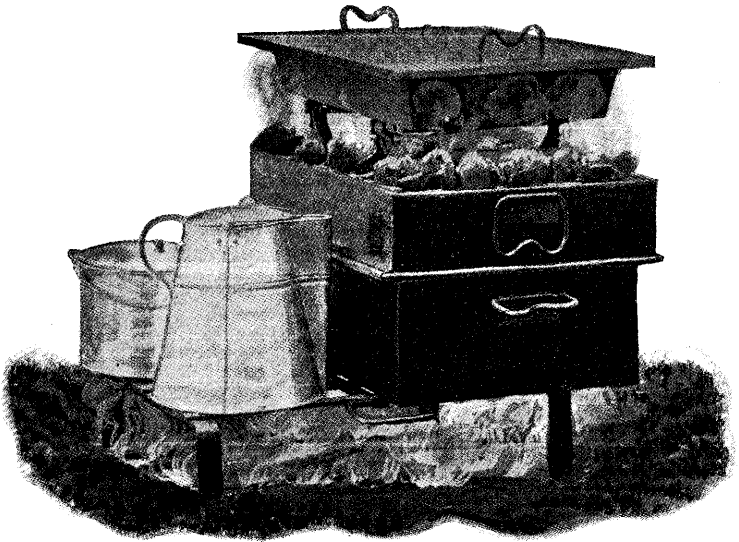

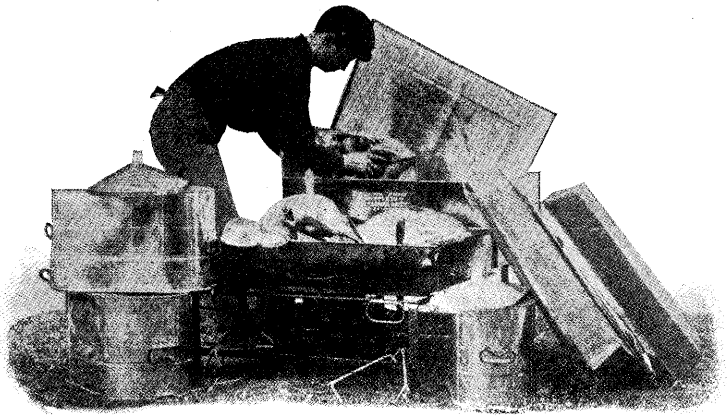

The Buzzacott Military Cooking outfit of various sizes has been ordered for each organization. This outfit simplifies the matter of cooking food to a very great extent, has given good satisfaction where used heretofore, and will contribute largely to the comfort of the troops when on duty. Cuts of this outfit are attached, which explain themselves.

The Legislature having enacted a law establishing the State color, an issue of new State colors to regiments and battalions became necessary. This has been done as well as an issue of the National colors, as prescribed for the army of the United States.

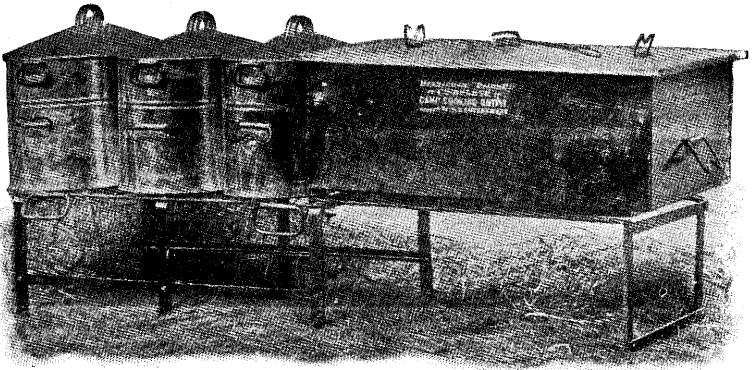

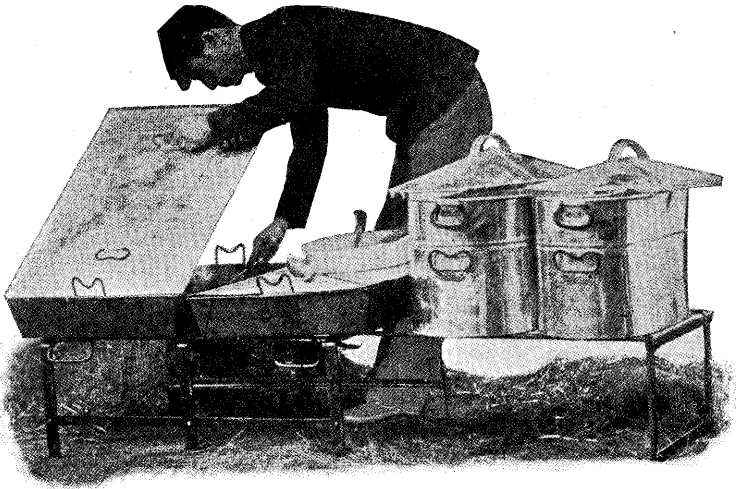

UNIFORMS.

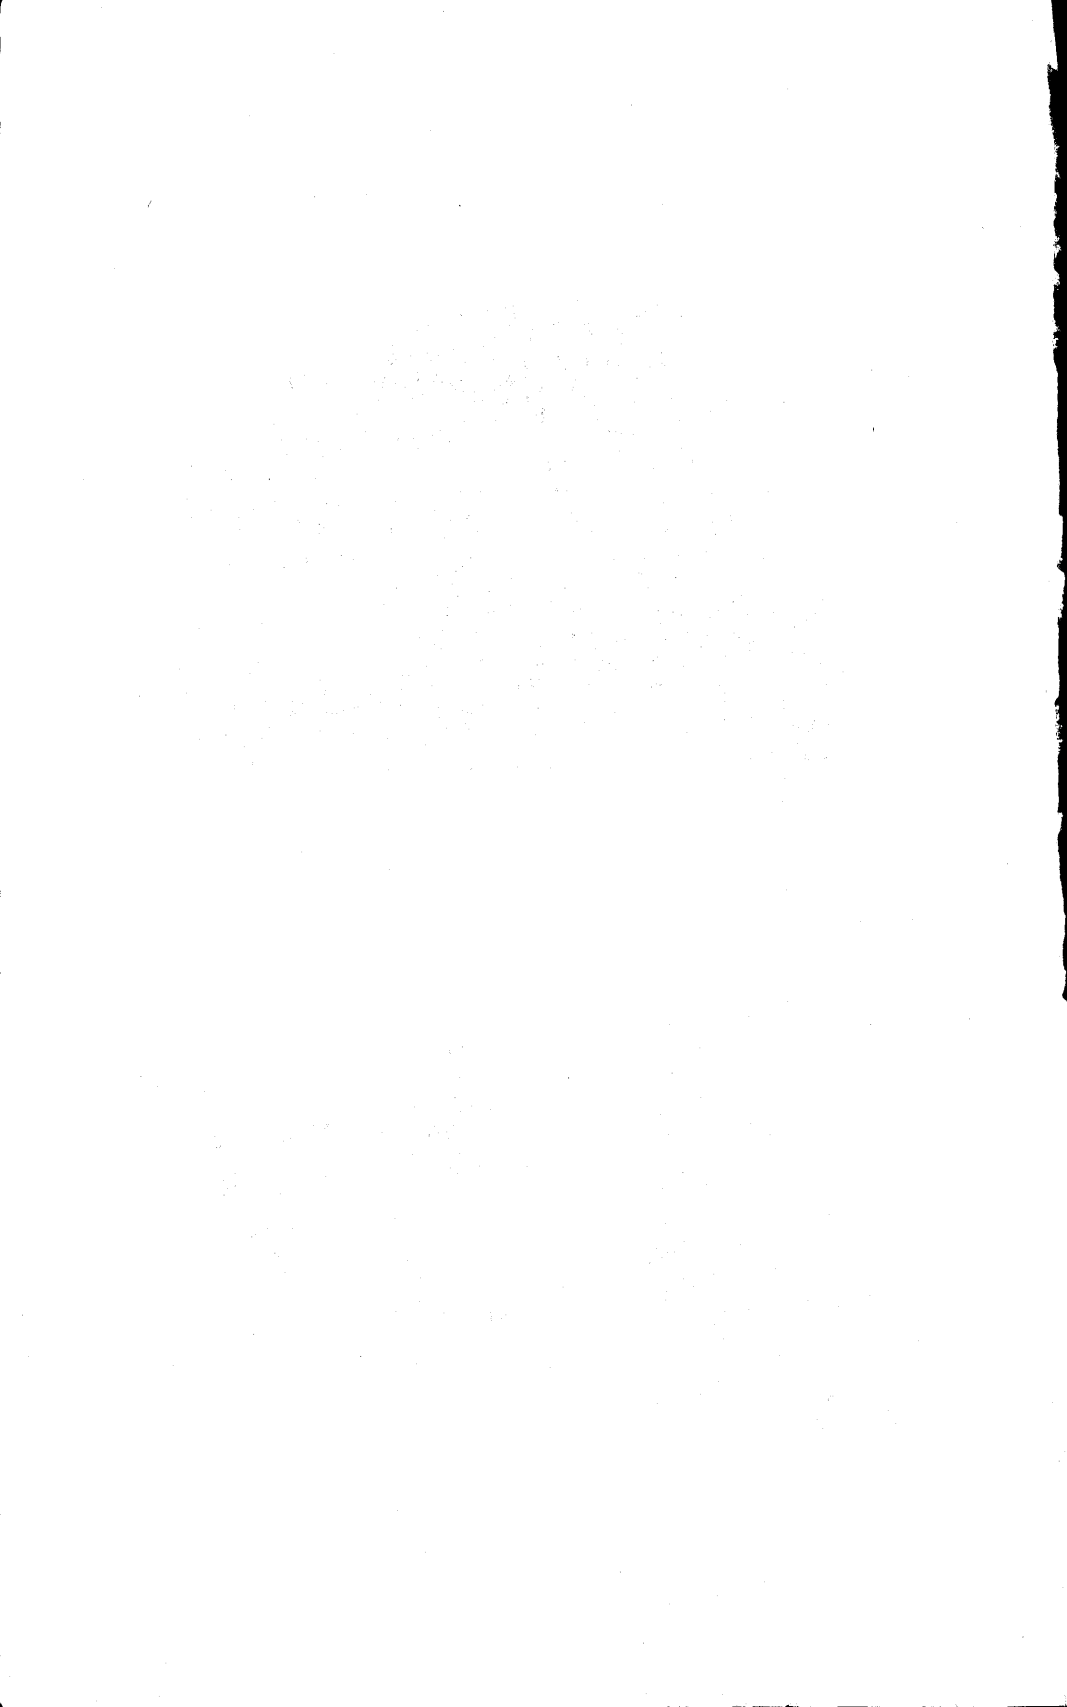

With the approval of the Commander-in-Chief the uniform furnished by the State consists now of a dress coat, dress hat, campaign hat, fatigue cap, blouse, trousers, and when needed leggings, overcoats and ponchos.

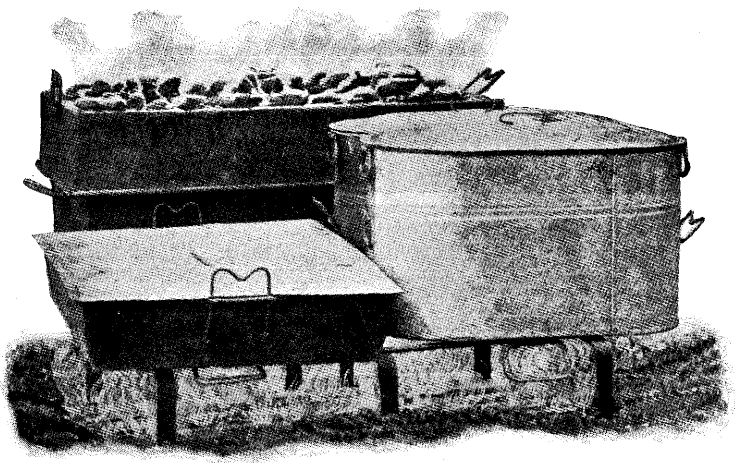

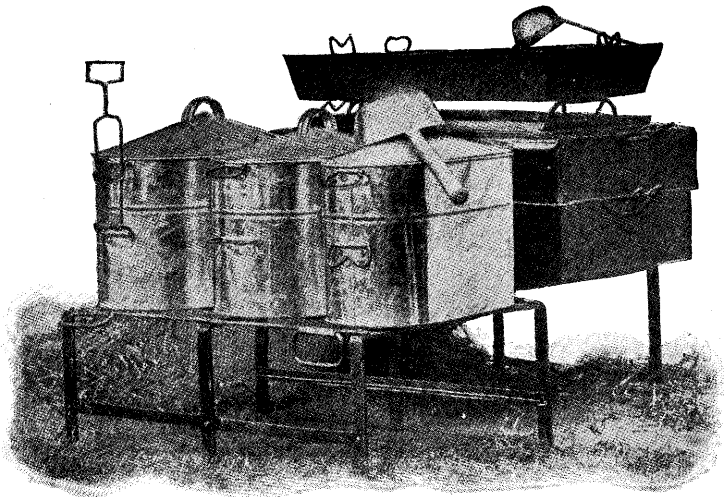

Permission has been granted to regiments and battalions, which have heretofore received the State uniform in full, to provide at their own expense a dress uniform, different from that furnished by the State; in such cases the State does not furnish a dress coat nor a dress hat.

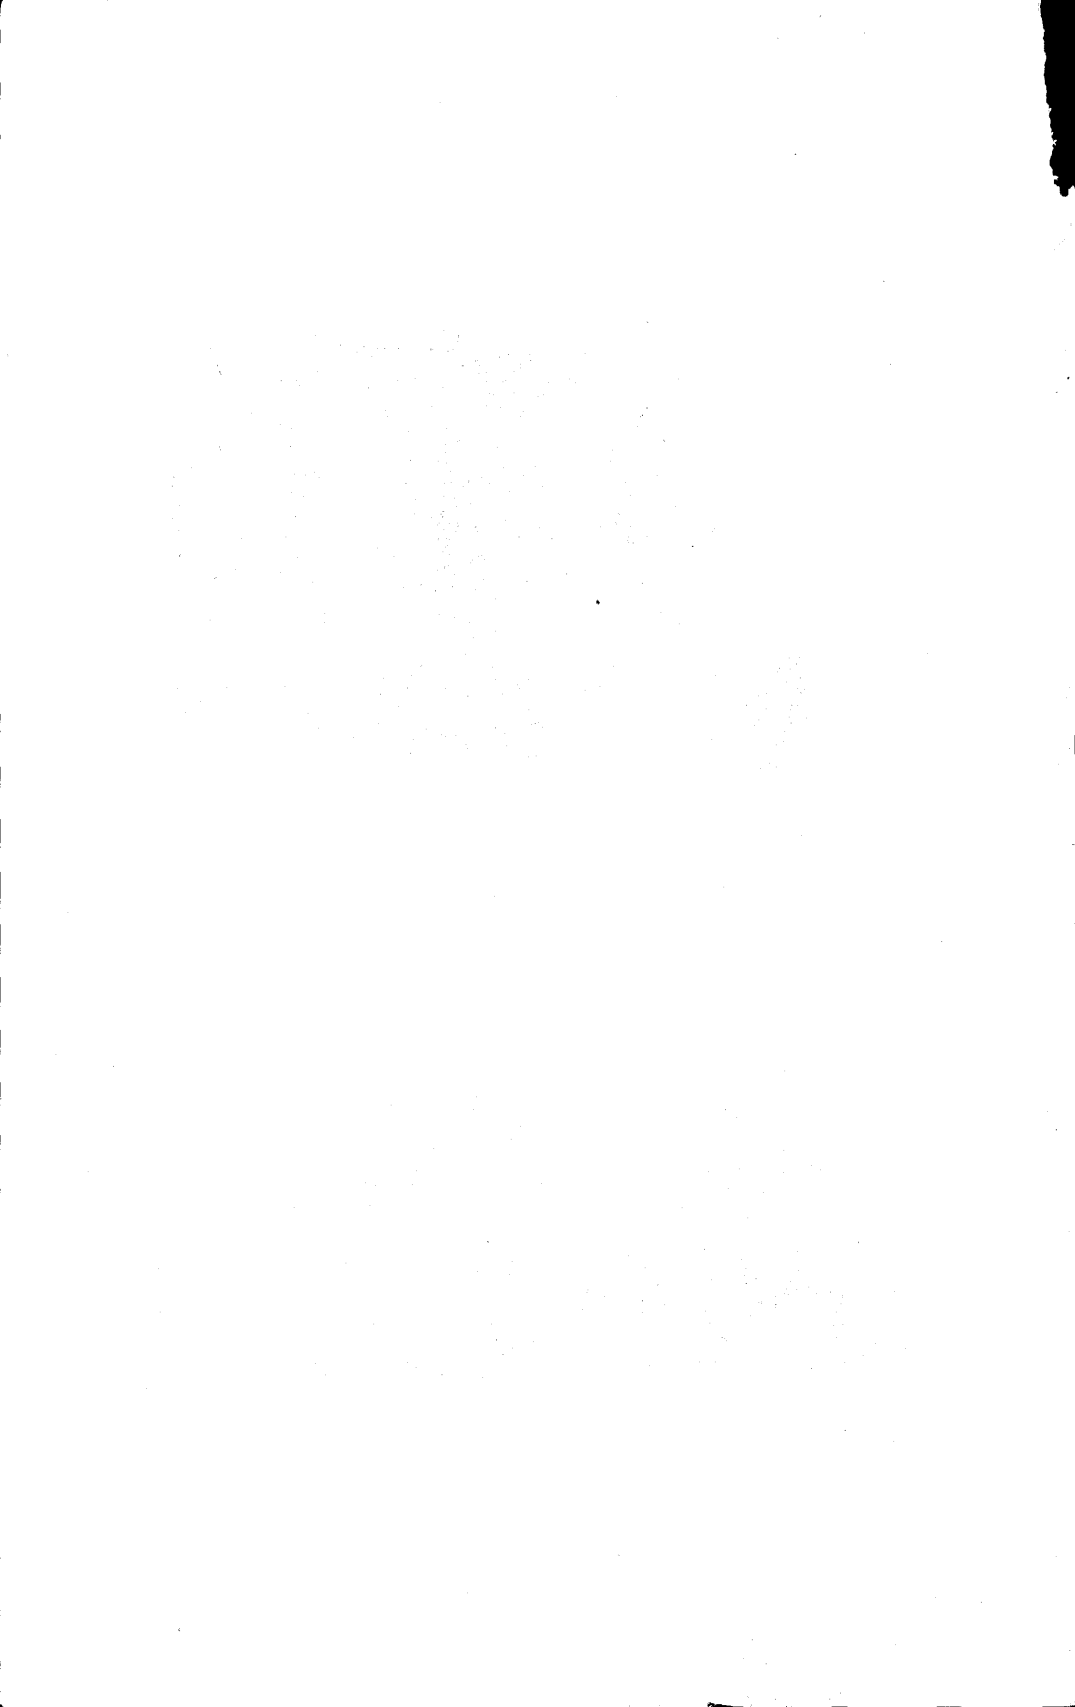

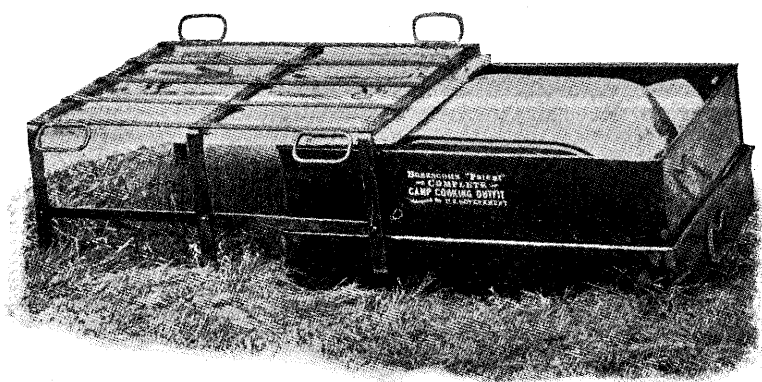

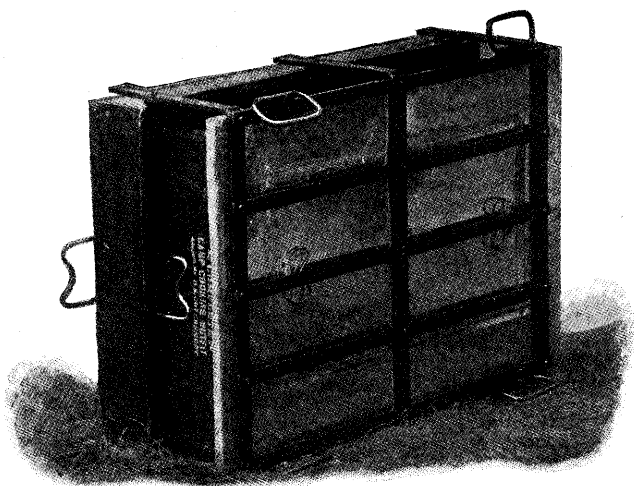

It was also recommended and received your approval that dress coats should be changed from double to single breasted as fast as practicable; many organizations have already made the change, while those who have not will undoubtedly soon do so.

The rule has also been established that no deviation of any kind from the uniform as prescribed in regulations will be authorized.

Under the law but one State uniform is issued to a soldier during his five years term of enlistment; this is notoriously inadequate, but the appropriation made by the Legislature for the support of the National Guard will not permit extra issues, and a larger appropriation is necessary to enable the soldiers of the State to appear properly and suitably dressed on all occasions. One pair of trousers, one blouse and one campaign hat cannot last five years, and the State should not expect men who give their time voluntarily to the State, to provide themselves with parts of the uniform.

SMALL ARMS PRACTICE.

Rifle and pistol practice has been encouraged this season as much as practicable.

For the first time officers have been required to practice firing with revolvers; and the troops armed with revolvers will hereafter be required to practice with them.

A complete system of instruction as to field and armory practice is in course of preparation.

The present decoration awarded by the State to marksmen, sharpshooters and expert marksmen being very unsatisfactory, a new decoration has been authorized to take its place, designed by Colonel I. F. Handy, Assistant Adjutant-General, which also provides for the recognition of the best marksman in a company. A sketch of the decoration is attached.

GRANT MONUMENT INAUGURAL PARADE.

The National Guard of the State was mobilized at New York city to take part in the Grant Parade on the occasion of the dedication of the tomb erected by the people to the memory of, and as a final resting place for the remains of General Ulysses S. Grant, April 27, 1897. The movement of the troops to and from the city of New York, their appearance on parade and their soldierly deportment was an object lesson of no small importance.

The service was rendered by officers and men voluntarily, the State paying only for subsistence and transportation. The expense incurred was $45,516.38, while the appropriation to defray these expenses was but $25,000.00.

SERVICE IN AID OF THE CIVIL AUTHORITY.

The State is to be congratulated that the service of its armed force was not required this year.

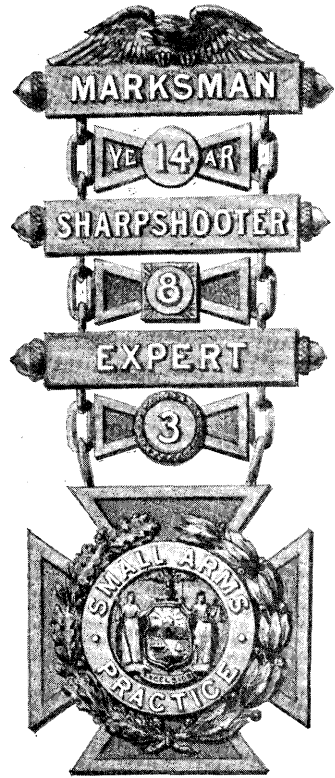

A call was made by the sheriff of Westchester county on the Fourth Separate Company; the Company was held in readiness, but its services were, eventually, not required.

CAMP SERVICE.

The Camp season this year opened on June 19th, and closed July 31st.

There were ordered on duty at the Camp,

The Seventh Regiment, from June 19th to 26th.

The Twelfth Regiment from June 26th to July 3d.

The Seventy-first Regiment from July 3d to 10th.

The Twenty-second Regiment from July 10th to 17th.

The Forty-seventh Regiment from July 17th to 24th.

The Seventy-fourth Regiment from July 24th to 31st.

The Tenth Battalion, from June 26th to July 3d.

The Sixth, Eleventh, Thirty-first and Fortieth Separate Companies from July 3d to 10th.

The Fourteenth, Sixteenth, Thirty-sixth and Forty-seventh Separate Companies from July 10th to 17th.

The Seventh, Twenty-first, Twenty-third and Thirty-second Separate Companies, from July 17th to 24th.

The First and Second Batteries, from July 24th to 31st.

The Separate Companies were organized in provisional battalions for service at the Camp and staff officers and non-commissioned staff officers allowed for them.

The routine of hours and service at the Camp prescribed in regulations was adhered to; drill and instruction was in accordance with experience of former years.

A band was furnished by the State from June 26th to July 24th.

The orders issued by the Commander-in-Chief, relating to the Camp tour, will be found among the orders issued this year, made part of this report. (G. O. Nos. 7, 9 and 10).

The following tabular statement will show the attendance of the organizations ordered there, at the Camp. The average attendance was 85.88 per cent.

FIELD SERVICE.

The Sixty-fifth Regiment, in place of being detailed for duty at the Camp of Instruction, was, at the request of its commanding officer, detailed for a tour of field service. This service took place from August 6th to 14th and was performed under the supervision of the commanding officer of the Fourth Brigade.

The service is reported to have been practical, instructive and creditable.

ARMORIES.

The Ninth Separate Company, at Whitehall, and the Twenty-ninth Separate Company, at Medina, are in need of armories; if the State desires to retain the services of these organizations proper accommodations should be provided.

All other organizations either have armories or they are in the course of construction, but there are several which require remodeling or rebuilding.

Many of the armories are provided with indoor rifle ranges, but quite a number have not this accommodation and it should be provided as early as practicable.

The Naval Militia.

ITS STRENGTH AND LOCATIONS.

September 30, 1896, the Naval Militia consisted of one battalion of four divisions and of one separate division; the battalion in New York city, the separate division at Rochester.

The strength of the Naval Militia September 30, 1896, was 25 officers and 383 enlisted men; aggregate, 408.

July 6, 1897, a second battalion of the Naval Militia, located at Brooklyn, consisting of four divisions, was organized and mustered in the service.

The strength of the Naval Militia September 30, 1897, was 33 officers and 494 enlisted men; aggregate, 527.

The Naval Militia consisting of two battalions and one division, Commander Jacob William Miller, of the First Naval Battalion, was appointed captain, and placed in command of the entire force, in accordance with the Military Code.

ARMS, ACCOUTREMENTS AND EQUIPMENTS.

The Naval Militia is armed with the Lee magazine rifle, caliber 45, and with suitable artillery for service afloat and ashore.

The armament of the Second Battalion is not yet complete, but will be completed as soon as it is provided with a vessel of war for quarters by the United States Navy Department, of which there is an early prospect.

The Buzzacott Military Cooking outfit has lately been supplied to each organization.

UNIFORMS.

The United States Navy Department having prescribed a new uniform, in a measure, for the United States Navy, and it being desirable that the Naval Militia of the State shall conform as far as practicable to the United States Navy, steps are being taken to revise the present uniform of the former and make it conform to that of the latter as much as circumstances will permit.

SUMMER TOUR OF SERVICE.

The summer tour of service of the Naval Militia commenced July 24th and closed July 31st, 1897.

The First Battalion performed this duty on board of vessels of the United States Navy, kindly placed at its disposal for instruction by the Honorable Secretary of the United States Navy.

The Second Separate Naval Division continued the work commenced last year opposite the canals in the vicinity of the Grass and Racket rivers.

The Second Battalion went into camp on Long Island, but on the 30th of July united with the First Battalion in evolutions in the vicinity of Gravesend Bay.

Subsequently the Second Battalion established a camp for some weeks (from August 2d to September 29th) near Gravesend Bay; this duty was in a measure voluntary.

The details of this service are given in the report of the commanding officer of the Naval Militia.

The annexed tabular statement gives the attendance at the regular summer tour:

The Second Battalion has no quarters at present, but it is expected that before long, the United States naval authorities will place a vessel at its service, to be moored at Brooklyn.

The Second Naval Division occupies the State Armory at Rochester, and has now a boat house at Charlotte, on Lake Ontario, built by the State, for the security of boats and property of this kind.

MILITARY ROAD FROM THE STATE CAMP TO NEAR HIGHLANDS STATION.

Work on this road, about half completed, was discontinued, last year, the appropriation having been exhausted. At its last session the Legislature appropriated $5,000; as it will cost over $30,000 to complete this road, no work has been done this year, the appropriation being too small to warrant commencing it.

War Claims.

Hon. Richard Crowley of Lockport is in charge of the prosecution of the claims of the State against the United States arising from the War of the Rebellion. His report is annexed.

Bureau of Records of the War of the Rebellion.

The responses to requests for information as to the record and services of volunteers of this State in the War of the Rebellion numbered this year over 6,000.

The work commenced four years ago, of transcribing, collecting and correcting the records of New York volunteers, binding the same in substantial shape for safe keeping and reference and filing the old records for preservation, has been continued, and the records of the men who served in the Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, Thirteenth, Fourteenth, Fifteenth, and Sixteenth Artillery, Twenty-first, Twenty-second, Twenty-third, Twenty-fourth, Twenty-fifth, Twenty-sixth, Twenty-seventh, Twenty-eighth, Twenty-ninth, Thirtieth, Thirty-first, Thirty-second, Thirty-third, and Thirty-fourth Batteries and the Marine Artillery have been completed.

The Bureau of Military Relics is still an object of interest to the many visitors to the Capitol.

ALBANY, December 24, 1897. }

Adjutant-General, S. N. Y.:

Sir.—I have the honor to submit the following report of the operations of this department during the past year, for the information of the Commander-in-Chief.

The inspections of all the organizations of the National Guard and of the arsenals, armories, camps and of the military property contained therein have been made by officers of this department as prescribed by the military code and regulations and in accordance with General Orders No. 2, c. s.. A. G. O.

Special reports have been submitted from time to time, as occasion demanded, and a detailed statement of the condition of each organization is transmitted herewith.

The report of Major Anthime Watson La Rose covering the inspections of all repairs and improvements to the camp of instruction, armories, arsenals and rifle ranges throughout the State; and of Major Frederick Ross Lee, covering the inspection of all uniforms and equipments, etc., purchased by the Chief of Ordnance are also transmitted.

The armories throughout the State were generally found to be in good order as to cleanliness at the time of inspection, but it is feared that the same degree of cleanliness and order is not maintained throughout the year, although it is believed they are never in very bad order. The general average of improvement in this particular has been very great.

There are now forty armories which are owned by the State and are to be kept in repair by the Chief of Ordnance. Many of these buildings are of such an age that there are many things about them which need renewing or repairing, and this will necessitate an increase in the amount of the fund set aside for that purpose if the buildings are to be kept in proper repair. All repairs that have come under the observation of this department during the past year seem to have been made in an economical manner and the funds have been expended for the repairs that were most needed at the time.

All the organizations of the National Guard are now fully equipped for active service and no delay would occur in mobilizing upon short notice by reason of want of quartermaster or other stores; uniforms, arms and accoutrements, all of good quality and suitable for active service.

The organizations of the Naval Militia were found to be in excellent condition and the reports of Captain Herbert L. Satterlee, A. D. C., who inspected the 1st Battalion, and of Lieutenant S. Dana Greene, chief of staff to Captain Miller, who inspected the Second Separate Naval Division, at Rochester, are transmitted herewith.

I heartily endorse the statements contained therein.

The 2d Battalion Naval Militia, which was mustered into service on the 14th day of June, 1897, was not formally inspected by any officer of this department after its organization, but its camp on the shore of Gravesend bay was visited on July 30, and some of its artillery and boat drill was witnessed. The battalion had already made good progress in its work.

I would respectfully recommend that a request be made for the detail of a suitable officer of the United States Navy to duty with the Naval Militia of this State, and that such detailed officer should be directed to report for duty to Captain Jacob W. Miller, commanding Naval Militia.

A suitable officer so stationed would be of great assistance to the Naval Militia and the work he could perform would be of great value. I would also recommend that steps be taken to procure a sufficient number of Lee rifles and equipments so that all the men in both battalions may be supplied therewith.

The medical department of the National Guard and Naval Militia are now fully equipped with all the necessary appliances and material for field service, and the hospital corps in nearly every organization was found to be efficient and interested in their work, so far as the inspecting officer could determine in the limited time that could be devoted to their inspection.

In many organizations it was discovered that the examination of members of the hospital corps had not been made with sufficient frequency, the medical officer having reported in many cases that members of their hospital corps had been ready for examination, for six months or more, but no opportunity to take the examination had been afforded them.

I would suggest the desirability of specifying what equipments members of the hospital corps should wear when in active service, as much confusion exists on this point at present.

The inspection of the books and records of the various organizations shows that much improvement has been made in this particular. Many organizations whose records were very incomplete in the past and of no use as records, have completed them and now only minor errors are discovered.

There are others, however, who, notwithstanding all the instruction that has been imparted to them on this subject during the last three years, still have the same errors and the same incomplete records. The attention of commanding officers has been called to this matter in every case.

A great improvement in the care of quartermaster's stores in the various organizations is noted this year in comparison with reports of previous inspections, and with but few exceptions the property of the State is well cared for.

A great variety of systems are in use for the arrangement of property and for keeping the books of the quartermaster's department in the different organizations and I would suggest the desirability of greater uniformity in those matters.

The following organizations may be mentioned as using a good system, viz.: Seventh, Eighth, Twelfth, Thirteenth and Twenty-third Regiments. Others are inaugurating systems of their own but no uniformity of system exists.

The only general adverse criticism that can properly be made as to the care of property is the statement that the straps of the packs, haversacks and canteens are becoming very dry and brittle, for want of oil; this defect was found to exist in nearly every organization. Commanding officers were cautioned by the inspecting officer to cause the straps to be properly oiled for preservation.

A great improvement in the fit of clothing is apparent throughout the guard, especially in the matter of blouses, and in most cases it is the result of more attention being given to the subject by commanding officers and quartermasters.

I would respectfully recommend that all mounted troops be supplied with overcoats of the same length and style as those issued to the cavalry; the signal corps and batteries being now supplied with the infantry overcoats.

During the past year officers of this department have inspected the drills of as many of the companies and battalions as the time at their disposal would permit.

In the inspection of the drills of a company the inspector requires the commanding officer to execute as nearly as the time and facilities will permit, all of the school of the soldier and company, including extended order; all the officers present are required to take command of the company during a portion of the drill.

At the conclusion of the inspection the officers are assembled by the inspector who reads to them the notes he has made during the drill, calls their attention to every error which he discovered, and explains the correct method of executing the movements.

He encourages officers to bring up all points in drill regulations or regulations which are not clear to them, in order that he may give them the correct interpretation on every point and explain to them the object of each regulation, in order to give them a complete understanding on all points. Afterwards a type-written copy of the notes made at the time of the inspection is sent to the company commander, through the regimental commander. Copies of all of the above notes are on file in this office.

Under this systematic criticism the improvement in the accuracy of the commands given and the uniformity and accuracy of the execution of the movements has been very marked, and we are assured by commanding officers that the work of inspecting officers in this line has been of the greatest assistance to them and to their organizations.

The drills of battalions of regiments have been inspected in the same way.

These inspections of drills have demonstrated the fact that only in a comparatively few of the regiments has a comprehensive schedule of the drills and instruction to be imparted been laid out by the regimental commander, for the government of the battalion and company commanders, in his regiment for the drill season, and wherever such a schedule has been laid out and followed during the drill season the results accomplished have more than proven the wisdom of such a course.

By the laying out of a schedule of drills and a proper supervision of the work of the companies by the field officers of the regiment much greater uniformity in the drill of the companies of the regiment is attained and more ground will be covered; and through the careful criticism of the inspecting officer and the field officers of the regiment, the company officers are encouraged to study and perfect themselves in their duties, which raises the general average of military knowledge to a very great degree.

All instruction should be imparted in such a manner as to convey a clear idea of the theory of the subject in hand as well as of the practical part of it, with a view to fit the enlisted men of the guard to be officers, as far as it is possible.

A very necessary part of the season's work, and one which is neglected in some of the organizations, is the officers' theoretical school. It is believed by many experienced officers that these schools and attendance thereat should be compulsory.

Instruction in extended order has been very generally neglected during the last year under the impression that the War Department would issue a new drill regulations near the end of the drill season, and that time spent on the present drill would be wasted. As a result, all drills in extended order were poor.

The inspections of the drills have called attention to the fact that with but few exceptions the companies are weak in the fire drill. This weakness consists not alone of a careless and inaccurate execution of the movements of loading and firing by the individual soldier, denoting a want of instruction and practice in those movements, but also of many wrong commands being given by officers.

In view of the great importance of this drill it is recommended that drill in loading and firing and the use of dummy and blank cartridges be included in the schedule of drills for a large portion of the drill season.

It is noted that companies which excel in the fire drill also excel in all their other work.

Many of the companies receive no instruction in guard duty except just previous to a tour of duty at the camp of instruction. As this is an important part of the work which the National Guard is called upon to perform when called into the service of the State, it is suggested that it should be included in the schedule of the work for each drill season.

During the year just passed an exchange has been made by the State with the United States Government of all the Remington rifles, cal. 50, which are owned by the State, for a like number of the newest model Springfield rifle, cal. 45.

No opportunity has yet been given to test the shooting qualities of the new rifle in any systematic manner, but such practice as has been had would indicate that it is a very superior weapon as regards accuracy of shooting, and from that point of view there is no doubt that the change will be an advantageous one.

At the inspection of the organizations made this year it was discovered that very few of the enlisted men of the guard know anything of the nomenclature of the parts of his rifle or had any knowledge of the mechanism of the piece, and in view of that fact I would suggest that instruction be imparted to each recruit that would enable him to name the most important parts of the rifle, the weight of bullet, charge of powder in the cartridge, etc., and to enable him to take his piece apart, sufficiently for cleaning, and to assemble the same.

A careful study of the personnel of the field, staff and company officers of the National Guard demonstrates the fact that the general average of military attainment is high and it is noticeable that the guard is steadily improving in that particular.

Too much praise cannot be given to the brigade examining boards for commissioned officers, for the thorough and careful manner in which they have conducted all the examinations of candidates for commissions, and much of the improvement noted above can be credited to their thorough work. The examining boards have taken a high standard for their examinations and when a candidate succeeds in passing the examination he has certainly demonstrated that he has sufficient military knowledge to make a good officer, and he will be successful as such, provided he has the natural faculty for commanding men which is so necessary a qualification for an officer.

It has been suggested that if candidates for commissions as captains and lieutenants of companies could be examined in a practical way by being required to drill a company and to be judged as to their efficiency by their work on the drill grounds, as well as by their theoretical knowledge, still better results would be secured.

The Sixty-fifth Regiment is the only organization which this year had extended field service. The regiment was in the field nine days, made three camps, marching in all about twenty miles.

An officer of this department visited the camp at Farnham, N. Y., August 9, 1897. The camp was found to be well laid out and erected, the policing was well done and the selection of the camp ground was excellent. The Quartermaster and Commissary Departments seemed to be very efficiently managed; the men being well fed and fed within the regulation rations. The details for special duty and for guard were cut down to the lowest possible point consistent with the proper service of the camp, and all available men went on drill both morning and afternoon. Too much time of the drill was devoted to the school of the soldier and other movements that can readily be taught in the armory, thereby using up valuable time which should have been used in movements which could not be taught in the armory. The discipline of the regiment throughout its tour is reported to have been very good.

I would respectfully refer you to the confidential report of Capt. E. E. Hardin, 7th Infantry, U. S. A., for the detailed criticism of the work of the regiment for the tour.

The experience of the Sixty-fifth Regiment this year and of other organizations which have gone upon field service in previous years, has demonstrated the fact that a properly conducted, well-considered tour of field service, under thorough supervision by carefully selected officers, is very beneficial as a method of instruction in the duties of a soldier in the field, and in giving commanding officers and their staffs practice and experience in handling the troops and in supplying all their needs.

A number of the organizations in the State have reached such proficiency in the close order drill, and in the work which can be taught in the armories and at State Camp, that if they are to make further progress in the military art, they should be selected for a tour of field service.

Organizations that are not proficient in close order drill should not be ordered on field service until they are ready for it.

In compliance with G. O. No. 7, A. G. O., I took station at Camp of Instruction from June 19, 1897, to July 31, 1897, to observe the drill and discipline of the troops and the compliance with orders and regulations. The detailed criticisms of the drills of the various organizations at camp were made by the drill inspectors and were presented to the post commander.

The work of the whole camp season was characterized by earnest and intelligent effort on the part of all the troops in camp and under the progressive system of instruction which has obtained at the camp for many years, every organization was much improved when it left the camp at the conclusion of its week tour of duty.

The policing of the camp was good throughout the camp season.

The transportation of the troops to and from camp was very efficiently handled and every organization that attended camp arrived there and reached its home station on its return practically on schedule time.

The Commissary Department was as efficient as it has been in the past, the meals being served on time, and the quantity and quality of the food was generally satisfactory to the men, at least no adverse criticism on this point was heard.

The storehouses in which the food supplies are kept were always found perfectly neat and clean as were the kitchen and bakery.

If the restaurant is to be maintained it will be necessary to thoroughly overhaul the building.

The closet facilities in the rear of the mess hall, for the use of the employes at the mess hall, are entirely inadequate for the purpose and should be enlarged and improved.

Some of the drains in and about the camp are now out of order and should be permanently repaired or rebuilt. The catch basins were originally built of plank and are now very much rotted; the main outlet of the sewerage system now empties into the bay about 200 feet from the shore, and it should be carried much farther from the camp if possible.

The grading and paving around the water supply faucets at the head of the company streets should be renewed in such a way as to prevent the surplus water from standing in the gutters and to carry it quickly into the drains.

The stabling facilities are entirely inadequate for the horses that are kept at camp through the entire season, and I would recommend that the barn should be enlarged so as to provide stalls for about twenty horses, together with the necessary cleaning rooms.

This would also afford room overhead for the storage of the hay which is cut on the camp ground and which is needed to forage the horses during the camp season, and room to store larger quantities of grain so that purchases could be made in a more economical manner.

The need of a larger drill ground is very apparent, especially in the extended order drill, and if possible something should be done to make more land available for this purpose.

The discipline of the troops in camp was as a rule excellent, occasional small infractions of the rule of discipline and military courtesy only were noticed and suggestions for the correction of these errors was always courteously and cordially received.

The artillery arm is now represented in the National Guard by only three batteries and according to the standards set by military authorities generally the force is not large enough when compared with the force of infantry now in the service.

The artillery service is one of the branches which it is hard to increase when trained men are needed, therefore, it would seem wise that instruction in that arm should be imparted in time of peace to as many men as possible.

I would recommend that, where there is good promise of securing the organization of good batteries, the project receive the encouragement of the authorities and when the state is offered the services of good officers and good men for this service, that the organizations be accepted and mustered into service.

Great care should be taken, however, in the selection of commanding officers and to see that the field for recruiting is ample.

Under par. 15 M. C., the Commander-in-Chief is authorized to appoint and commission one additional 2d Lieutenant to each separate company of infantry. This has been done in a number of the separate companies, and I would recommend that it be done in all cases where suitable and competent men can be found for the places. The reasons why this should be done are the same as those given when this provision was enacted into law, which are that when these companies are formed into battalions there may be a sufficient number of officers in the battalion to form a battalion field and staff and still leave with the companies the complement of officers contemplated in the military code.

In this way the separate companies can be formed into provisional battalions fully officered and there will be no necessity for detailing officers of the permanent regiments to duty with the separate company battalions, but would leave them with their own regiments which are entitled to all the effort and energy of their own officers. In other words it will enable the separate company battalion to be self sustaining and they will need no assistance from the officers of the regiments when on duty.

Major George P. Hilton, Inspector Third Brigade, has, under orders from the Brigade Commander, inspected nearly all the organizations in the brigade during the past year and his work has been of great value not only to the organizations but also to this department.

I desire to call attention to the special reports submitted by Colonel G. James Greene, Assistant Inspector General, on the condition of companies and regiments, and the capacity of officers, as developed at the time he inspected the drills of companies and battalions. So far as I have been able to observe these organizations, I approve of the estimates and criticisms he has made.

Tables have been prepared, and are submitted herewith, showing the average percentage present in the various companies during the last two years, the number of events or assemblages of the companies; and the number present and absent, together with the percentage, at the muster of 1897. From these tables it will be observed that in nearly all cases the attendance has been better this year than last. The figures were taken at the dates of muster and the number of events or assemblages varied considerably in the different companies on that account but the average would seem to indicate fairly the amount of duty performed by the individuals during the year.

The average attendance at muster was also greater in 1897, than in 1896.

Respectfully,

EDWARD M. HOFFMAN,

Inspector-General.

In the preparation of the camp for its occupancy by troops during the season of 1897, as required by section 559 of the Regulations, all possible economy was exercised, and only such work was done on the grounds and repairs made to the buildings as seemed absolutely necessary, the old bath house requiring the greatest outlay. The stairs from the dock to the camp ground, with considerable repairs, held out, but before another season must be entirely rebuilt. A new storehouse was erected to replace the old one which was utilized to enlarge the icehouse.

* Expenses of this character, and under appropriation for repairs, betterments, etc., for arsenal, armories, State camp, etc., have not heretofore been included in expenses of State camp.

The necessity, mentioned in my last report, for increased stable accommodations, for new buildings to replace some of the old dilapidated structures connected with the mess hall and kitchens and for closets for servants and employes, still exists, as the amount appropriated did not admit of the work being done this year.

I deem it very important that these improvements be made next year, and that the appropriations be increased sufficiently to provide for them and other necessary work and repairs.

The Roa Hook road, which was many times partly covered with water during the past season requires some considerable filling in, and the camp road should have some attention.

Respectfully,

BENJ. FLAGLER,

Chief of Ordnance, S. N. Y.

GOVERNOR'S MATCH.

The fifth competition for this trophy was held at Creedmoor, on September 17th, 1897, and was participated in by representatives of organizations in the First, Second, Third and Fourth Brigades and was won by Ordnance Sergeant John Corrie, Twelfth Regiment, with a score of 95 out of a possible 100.

ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S MATCH.

The third competition for this trophy was held at Creedmoor, on September 15th, 1897. Teams representing organizations in the First, Second and Fourth Brigades entered, and the trophy was won by the Thirteenth Separate Company team with a score of 129 out of a possible 210.

The following companies stand highest in their brigades in general figure of merit and have each been awarded a prize valued at $50.

BRIGADE.	Company.	General figure of merit.
First	Company H, Seventh Regiment	81.13
Second	Company B, Twenty-third Regiment	70.05
Third	Twenty-first Separate Company	72.34
Fourth	Thirteenth Separate Company	72.76

RECOMMENDATIONS.

Under the provisions of G. O. No. 4, officers were, for the first time, required to qualify with the pistol in the marksman class at forty-five and sixty-five yards. As these distances were experimental, and the result showed that eighty-three per cent. qualified as against seventy per cent. of the enlisted men with the rifle or carbine, I would recommend that the distance for this class with the pistol be increased to fifty and seventy-five yards. I would further recommend that signal corps and batteries be required to qualify as marksmen with the pistol, and that the enlisted men of cavalry organizations practice with both pistol and carbine in the marksman class, with pistol at twenty-five yards and carbine at two hundred and three hundred yards.

RANGES.

All the troops of the First and Second Brigades, with the First and Second Naval Battalions and the Fourth and Eleventh Separate Companies practiced at Creedmoor.

The Tenth Battalion, Sixth, Seventh, Twelfth, Twenty-first and Thirty-second Separate Companies practiced at Bath-on-Hudson.

The Sixty-fifth and Seventy-fourth Regiments and the Twenty-fifth and Twenty-ninth Separate Companies practiced at Tonawanda.

All the separate company organizations not included in the above have company ranges, except the Forty-eighth Separate Company.

The company ranges at Catskill, Hudson and Schenectady were unserviceable and the organizations practiced at Bath-on-Hudson this season.

The lease for the range at Watertown expired after the practice this season.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

I would recommend that the ranges at Schenectady and Hudson be rebuilt; the latter for the use of the Sixteenth and Twenty-third Separate Companies; that new ranges be constructed at Watertown and Oswego; this will give every separate organization an outdoor range. The roof over the east pit at Creedmoor will need to be renewed and a pistol butt should be constructed.

I would also recommend that a pistol butt be constructed at Bath and Tonawanda.

Respectfully,

W. M. KIRBY,

General Inspector of Rifle Practice, S. N. Y.

APPENDIX "D."

Annual Report of the Surgeon-General.

NATIONAL GUARD OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK.

SURGEON-GENERAL'S OFFICE,

UTICA, December 14, 1897.

Major-General C. WHITNEY TILLINGHAST, 2d, Adjutant-General
State of New York:

Sir.—In compliance with the regulations governing this Department I have the honor to submit the following annual report for the year 1897.

As noted in my last report the money appropriated by the Legislature has been expended for the new equipment of the Medical Department of the National Guard. This equipment is entirely new and is an improvement over all other equipments of this class. Reference is made to the ambulance, the litter and the medical and surgical chest.

Early in the year the equipment was distributed throughout the State. One ambulance was sent to each brigade, viz.: New York, Brooklyn, Albany and Buffalo and one was used at the Camp of Instruction, at Peekskill. The litters were distributed to the companies and larger organizations throughout the State. The medical and surgical chests were sent out as follows:

One for each regiment.....	13
One for each brigade.....	4
One for the "New Hampshire" (navy).....	1
One for each battalion.....	1

One for Camp of Instruction.....	1
One for Creedmoor.....	1
One for Troop "A".....	1
One for the artillery.....	1

Total.....	23

There being a balance of $46.81 from the special appropriation for the Medical Department, the following articles were purchased for the purposes of instruction at the Camp at Peekskill:

One blackboard, one set of White's anatomical charts, fourteen Esmarch's handkerchiefs, one box of assorted crayons, one eraser and one set of Esmarch's charts.

With this slight addition to our equipment for instruction, we feel that the Camp at Peekskill, with its beautiful glass case of modern instruments, its ambulance, the new litter, with its mechanical pillow support, the travois and the bicycle ambulance, which was used during this past summer for the first time, that we are well provided for any work, or any accident which may occur in the future.

THE SANITARY CONDITION OF THE CAMP AT PEEKSKILL.

In view of the fact that the sanitary condition of the Camp has been questioned, owing to a few cases of sickness, which we definitely located in some cases to error in diet, acting on the request of the Adjutant-General, the Surgeon-General made a careful investigation of the sanitary condition of the Camp, with the aid of his assistants. Col. N. S. Jarvis, Assistant Surgeon-General, and Medical Instructor for the Hospital Corps at the Camp, went over the ground carefully and reported his examination in the following words:

Water Supply.

"The water to the Camp comes from two sources; that for drinking purposes is derived from sixteen tube wells (Norton's device) and seems adequate, both as to quantity and palatable-ness. The locality in which these tube wells are situated does not show the possibility of contamination. The water intended for washing, to supply the bath tanks and closets, is derived from a small rivulet running along the western boundary of the plateau. By damming, a sufficiency of good water is obtained for the uses indicated.

Sewerage.

"The sewerage system of the Camp is mainly located in the western boundary of the plateau. The main sewer, after descending from the elevated ground, passes into a cove or bay called Amesville creek. The mouth of the sewer, I am told, is visible only at very low tide. It is a very interesting question to determine whether any sickness may result from the arrangement. When the immediate territory into which the sewer empties is repeatedly inundated by tide water, oxidation and chemical destruction is supposed to be the fate of organic matter. The rapid currents prevailing in the Hudson river would apparently reinforce the other features mentioned in the rapid removal of sewage. But the topical conditions here are not so favorable as would appear to the casual observer. A cove on the border of a deep and rapidly flowing stream is apt to receive much of the floating material carried down by the currents. Whether these counteract the power of the tides to remove the sewage from the Camp is the problem upon which hinges, to a large extent, the salubrity of the surrounding atmosphere. As the prevailing wind during the summer season sweeps over this cove, I am inclined to the opinion that there may be some cause for the complaints that have been uttered on this subject. Had I been a member of the board to select this camp site I should have given this feature of its vicinity grave consideration. There is another possibility to be considered in this connection: At night the heated atmosphere, which arises from the ground, condenses at the higher levels, and when the flats in this cove are uncovered by the fall of the tides the air condensing along them at night is swept by the process directly over the plateau on which the Camp lies.

“Of course, the only safe procedure to obviate the possible evils of such surroundings would be the excavation of the mains, so as to insure the carrying off of the sewage by the rapid currents and at a point towards Peekskill in order that it could not be swept back into Amesville creek. As such a plan seems impracticable just now there is but little to be done as a permanent remedy. I would, however, respectfully submit the following suggestions for your consideration:

“At a point near the base of the plateau secure the construction of a second precipitation pit. The solid material depositing in this pit and the one in the course of the main sewer near the brow of the hill should be cleaned thoroughly twice weekly. Precipitation and chemical destruction of the organic matter can be further hastened by the following chemical mixture: Chloride of lime, 1 pound; ferri sulphate, 1 ounce to each 500 gallons of sewage. Estimating the number of troops in Camp as 1,500 (including servants and other camp followers) and allowing 30 gallons to each man, covering all waste by flushing, bathing, etc., we would find that 30,000 gallons of sewage passes daily into Amesville creek. This would require, say 30 pounds of the above mixture to be thrown into each precipitation pit three times weekly, the solid deposits being removed in the intervals.

Surface Drainage.

“The surface water in the streets of the Camp is supposed to flow into surface drains connected with the main sewer. The angle of incline from the north and south towards the center of the western border of the plateau is supposed to be adequate to permit the removal of the surface deposit of rain and waste water. While the porous character of the soil would indicate absorption of large volumes of water, yet this alone cannot be counted upon.

Recommendations.

“I would, in conclusion, submit the following summary of suggestions: That the edges of the company's streets, upon which the company's and field officers' tents are placed, be so graded as to permit a fall of at least one-half inch to the foot; that the upper surface of the drains be sunk to meet the edge of the grade and that well paved gutters (Belgian blocks) be provided to encourage the rapid removal of waste water from the water troughs and rain water. It is my opinion that this can be done promptly and with little outlay. Otherwise I am convinced that the soil in the neighborhood of the troughs and depressions will be damp."

Col. Nelson H. Henry, Assistant Surgeon-General, made his investigation the same day independently, a synopsis of which is given as follows:

"The water supply I found to be good in quality, adequate in quantity and distributed to the best advantage.

Sewerage.

"It should be improved in character and increased in capacity so as to meet better the demand of good sanitation and the exigencies of special occasions. The surface drainage is inadequate to properly care for the down pour of unusual rainfalls, and the deep drainage could be improved by a readjustment of the arrangement and capacity of the sewers.

"I do not consider that there is reason to believe any existing system is of such unsanitary condition as to be a source of sickness to the Camp. The first question affecting this subject is the question whether the camp site is to be definitely pitched in the same place; whether the present arrangement of the streets and parade are to continue upon the present plan. If such is determined a more thorough system should be definitely decided upon and would be money necessarily well expended.

Surface Drainage.

"After a thorough grading, badly needed, the streets may continue, but the gutters should be paved and have sufficient fall to promptly relieve the heavy rainfalls; with our elevation there should be no necessity for any dip traps within the camp limits.

"I would recommend a flushing of the present system during dry weather, also that at the close of the camp season the ground of the site of the camp proper and the location of the cuts be harrowed.

"A complete and exact map of the sewerage system of the Camp should be made and careful record made of any change."

After a personal examination by the Surgeon-General and a review of the papers above quoted he is convinced that the defects incident to the sanitary condition of the Camp were carefully investigated, and while he is in accord with the main features of these reports he would most respectfully suggest that the State Engineer be requested to fulfill the indications for changes noted, and that he not only make a map of the drainage system and sewerage, but that any new change be also placed in like form as a matter of record.

He would furthermore recommend that this matter receive early attention in the spring.

THE INSTRUCTION OF THE HOSPITAL CORPS AT PEEKSKILL.

Colonel N. S. Jarvis, who for ten years was connected with the regular army, having been appointed Second Assistant Surgeon-General upon his resigning from the army, was detailed as Medical Instructor for the Hospital Corps at the State Camp at Peekskill. His ripe experience made him a most efficient and practical instructor and, perhaps, the best compliment which could be received came from officers who requested the privilege of remaining a second week after their duty had ended and from the fact that two Surgeon-Generals in this country visited the camp for the purpose of noting the methods of instruction which had been somewhat commented upon.

The following paragraphs from General Orders, Nos. 9 and 10, were issued from the Adjutant-General's office:

"V. Upon the recommendation of the Surgeon-General the course of medical instruction at the Camp of Instruction will embrace the following:

"Military courtesy, drill regulations for hospital corps, treatment of wounds, fractures, gun shot, shell and bayonet wounds, hemorrhage and its treatment, bandaging, antiseptic, resuscitation of the drowned, sun and heat stroke persons, the principles of nursing, the use of the most commonly employed surgical instruments, anaesthetic, preparation for operations, etc."

"1st. The medical instructor has charge of all pertaining to the instruction and service of the medical officers, hospital stewards and hospital corps men, under the supervision of the Surgeon-General and subject to the orders of the Post Commander.

"2d. On arrival at the Camp the medical officers of the organizations arriving, with the hospital stewards and hospital corps men of their respective regiments, battalions, companies and batteries, will report, under the orders of their commanding officers, at the post hospital, to the Surgeon-General, and in his absence to the medical instructor, for instructions.

"3d. The medical officers, hospital stewards and hospital corps men of the organizations on duty at the Camp are, for professional duties and instruction only, detached from their respective organizations, and will be for those purposes under the direction of the Surgeon-General and the medical instructor subject to the orders of the Post Commander.

"4th. The senior medical officer of the troops in camp will perform the duties of post surgeon, and as such he will have charge of the post dispensary, make the prescribed daily sanitary inspections (R. 594) and report thereon, be responsible for the proper keeping of the hospital and prescription book (O. D. 437-439) and render the consolidated report of the sick (R. 601, O. D. 440, 441) to the Post Adjutant at or before 8.30 a. m. each day; see also R. 114, 115 and 116.

"5th. The medical instructor may detail any of the other medical officers, not on other duty, to assist the post surgeon in his duties.

"6th. At or before sick call (R. 605) all the medical officers, hospital stewards and hospital corps men will report to the Medical Instructor at the Post Hospital.

"7th. The senior assistant surgeon of the regiment and the assistant surgeon of the battalion of separate companies will receive the sick of their respective commands at the Post Hospital at sick call, attend to and, if necessary, prescribe for them (R. 112, 597); make the prescribed entries in the post hospital and prescription book and the company sick report books (R. 112, O. D. 433-435) and render to their respective regimental and battalion adjutants the daily medical reports of their organizations (R. 601, O. D. 440, 441) as soon as possible after the sick call. These officers shall be known as the medical officers of the day, and when necessarily absent shall be replaced by other medical officers selected by the medical instructor.

"8th. All the other medical officers will observe the mode of procedure, and the medical instructor may detail any of them to relieve or assist the medical officers of the day and require them to perform the duties of the latter.

"9th. The medical instructor will assign the hospital stewards to duty at the post hospital, under his supervision or that of the post surgeon, to fill prescriptions, supervise the nurses and take charge of the hospital, hospital stores and property.

"10th. No prescription shall be filled unless signed by the medical instructor, the post surgeon or a medical officer of the day. All prescriptions shall be kept on file and be preserved.

"11th. The medical instructor will regulate the number of hospital corps men to be employed as nurses at the post hospital.

"12th. At 9.30 a. m. on Sundays (during the company inspections, R. 595), the Surgeon-General, in his absence the medical instructor, will inspect the hospital corps, each under its proper officer or officers, its equipments and appurtenances.

"13th. The medical instructor will detail one medical officer with a suitable number of hospital corps men to attend at guard mounting and each battalion on drill or parade.

"14th. The instruction of the hospital corps will commence on Mondays at such hours and places as will be indicated by the medical instructor with the approval of the Post Commander. All the medical officers and all the members of the hospital corps, not otherwise employed under orders, will attend the instruction; those absent without authority will be reported by the instructor to their regimental or battalion commander (R. 133, 600).

"16th. If practicable, a review of and examination in the instruction imparted will be held before the close of the tour of camp duty by the instructor or the Surgeon-General if present.

"17th. The post surgeon, or the officer acting as such, will not leave the post hospital, when troops change, until relieved by his successor.

"18th. Only the equipments provided by the State and the methods and books of instruction prescribed by the regulations or the Surgeon-General, are authorized to be used in Camp.

"II. The Post Commander will require the Post Quartermaster to place the post ambulance, ready for use, at the disposal of the Medical Instructor, from sick call until retreat each day.

"III. The Post Commander will detail a board to consist of the Medical Instructor and two other medical officers for the examination of the Hospital Corps men prescribed in R. 160, and so much of that paragraph as requires this board to be appointed by brigade commanders is hereby suspended as far as the organizations on duty at the Camp of Instruction are concerned. The Medical Instructor will communicate the result of this examination to the respective brigade commanders."

INSPECTION BY MEDICAL OFFICERS IN CAMP AT PEEKSKILL.

Each medical officer will make at least one sanitary inspection during his tour of duty.

Each medical officer will observe the mode of procedure in submitting reports of sick.

Each medical officer will be expected to present his detachment for instruction.

In reference to the sanitary inspection of the Camp, it is the opinion of the Surgeon-General that one thorough inspection by the Post Surgeon made in the forenoon is quite sufficient for each day.

The dispensary during the encampment was provided with a morning sick report, which formed part of the records of the Medical Department, in which was entered the name, rank and company of the sick and disposal of the same. The blanks furnished by the Post-Adjutant made it necessary for a dispensary book in which was entered the name, rank and treatment rendered each applicant for treatment. Both of these were filled out by the Hospital Steward, who received his instructions from the medical officer holding sick call. The Post Surgeon signed the morning sick reports. Each company provided itself with a company's sick book in which was entered, by the company's clerk, the name and rank of each soldier conducted to the hospital. The medical officer holding sick call examined each man as to whether his sickness was or was not acquired in the line of duty and signed his name to the report. Sick men were conducted by a non-commissioned officer to the dispensary, awaited the action of the attending medical officer and returned the book to the company. Medical officers attending sick call reported to the Post Surgeon instances of unnecessary delay in conducting a man at the sick call.

The arrangement of the tents by which the Medical Department was placed together proved to be very satisfactory. The Hospital Corps tents and the hospital tents were placed near the embankment where gentle breezes always prevailed, which were most refreshing to the sick and injured. These tents formed two streets, running parallel. In the adjoining blocks were contained the following tents: Dispensary tent, the instruction tent, the one for the various surgical instruments and appliances and those for instruction, and also one for the Medical Instructor. All of these proved most satisfactory and we hope that the same arrangement will be continued in the future.

It was a most notable fact that some of the regiments and organizations coming into camp with the new equipments had sadly neglected the chests and litters. This neglect was pointed out to them, and we trust that those guilty will have sufficient pride hereafter not to come into camp showing so little interest in their equipment. The Surgeon-General will not particularize on this occasion, but hereafter it must be understood that a regular inspection shall be undergone of every organization coming into camp with equipment, and that it will be reported upon regularly in the report of the Surgeon-General and not in a general way as it has been referred to on this occasion.

It is also the desire of the Surgeon-General that the equipment of those not coming into camp for a tour of duty shall also be inspected and reported, together with those in camp, in the regular annual report.

While on the subject of instruction it would be well to have the regulations changed so that hospital stewards shall have to undergo instruction and examination the same as the members of the Hospital Corps.

On July 12, 1897, at 2.15 p. m., during a thunder shower, lightning struck a tree near the Y. M. C. A. tent. A number of men were in the tent at the time, one man being killed and twelve injured. This was most unfortunate, but words seem inadequate to express our sorrow over an accident for which none of us are responsible.

It is with pleasure that it is announced that Major Lewis Balch, formerly surgeon of the Tenth Battalion, has been assigned to duty in the Medical Department and has reported to the Surgeon-General.

The following comments, made by the Surgeon of the Seventy-first Regiment, to the members of the regiment before starting for camp, are well worth regarding as a matter of reference:

"1st. That the men should provide themselves with the proper kind of boots or shoes, low heels, sole as broad as the foot when the weight of the body is resting upon it, and long enough to allow of the full play of the foot in walking; pointed shoes should not be worn.

" 2d. That the men should not wear collars or anything tight about the neck, and the rest of the clothing should be free and loose.

" 3d. That the men should wear a folded wet cloth in the crown of the fatigue cap or campaign hat when exposed to the intense heat of the sun.

" 4th. That the men should avoid the immoderate use of ice water, especially when overheated and at rest or when the body is commencing to cool; violent cramps, purging and vomiting are apt to follow in consequence, and immediate death has been known to occur.

" 5th. That the men should remember that moderately cold water is the most grateful to the stomach and allays thirst better than any other fluid; ale, beer and the spirituous liquors are the worst of all, and their use during the tour of duty in camp should be rigidly avoided.

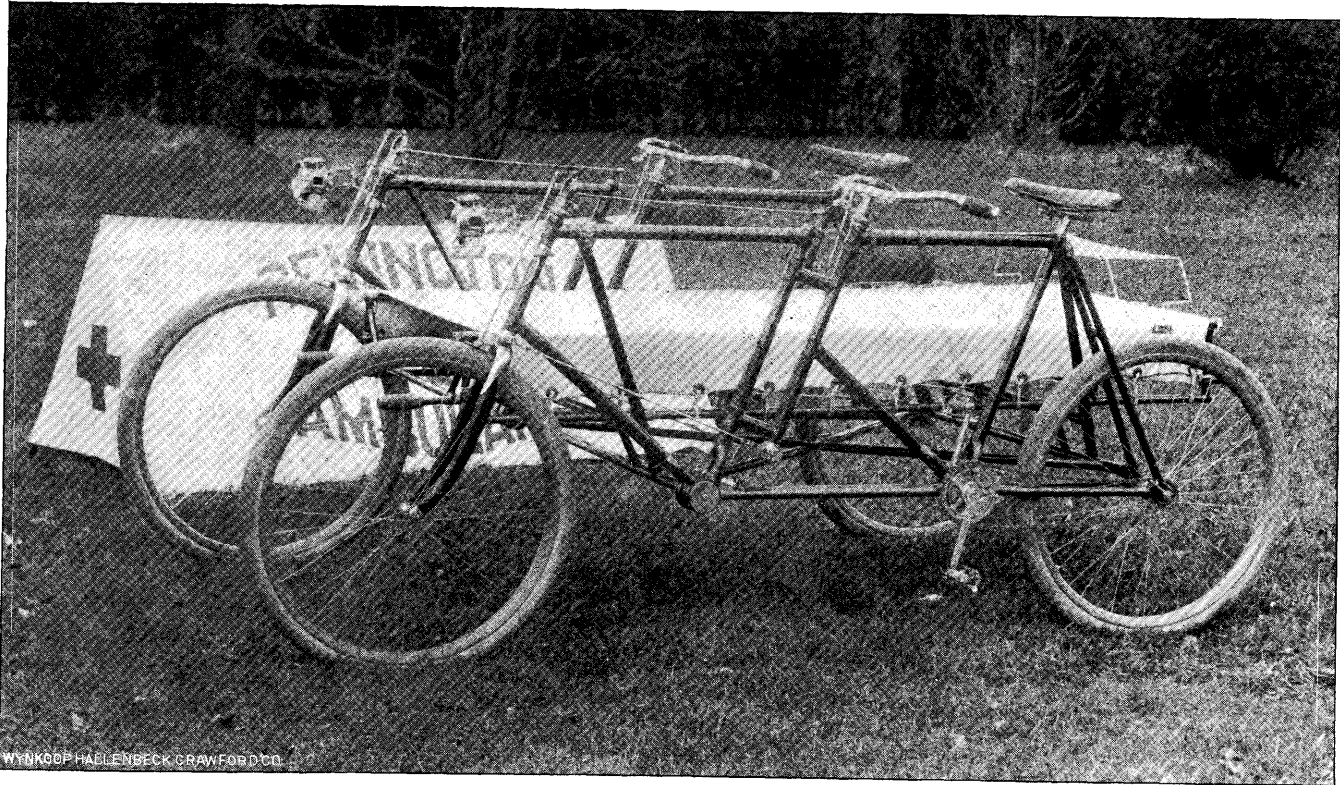

" 6th. That the men should avoid eating unripe fruit of all kinds.

" 7th. That the men should bathe daily; by so doing skin eruptions and chafing are prevented, or rendered less frequent. The feet should be carefully looked after and bathed; blistered feet will be less frequent if this is done. Sufficient time should be allowed for the feet to dry before putting on the stockings after bathing, as they are liable to be quickly blistered if active exercise is taken while the skin is still soft from the recent use of water and the stockings are damp. Cold baths should not be taken either immediately before or after a meal.

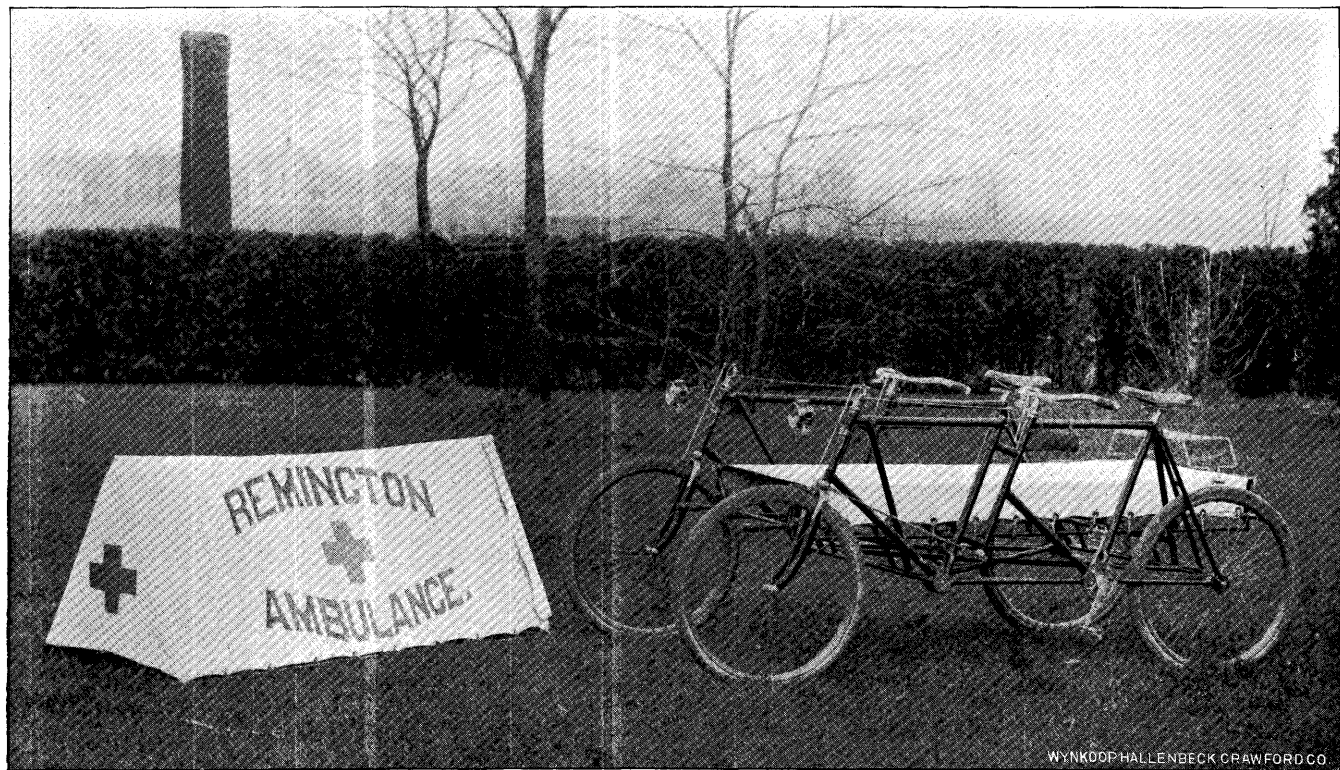

" 8th. That the men should remember that exposure to a draft (when overheated), which cools the body too suddenly, is exceedingly dangerous.

" 9th. That the men should wear their suits of underclothing on alternate days, thereby allowing each suit to become thoroughly dried and aired before being worn again.

" 10th. All who are unaccustomed to strong coffee are advised to dilute that served in camp largely with milk, otherwise they are liable to suffer from diarrhoea.

WYNKOOP HADL ENBECK CRAWFORD CO.

WYNKOPHALLENBECK CRAWFORD CO

"11th. That all members of this command who suffer from frequent attacks of looseness of the bowels should wear a light flannel band around the waist during their stay in camp.

"12th. That all members of this command wearing trusses should, before going to camp, see that they are in good repair and properly adjusted."

After an experience of two seasons at camp the Surgeon-General was deeply impressed with the fact that the best man who could be obtained for Medical Instructor was none too good for such a position. It is with extreme satisfaction that he is able to quote from a report of a surgeon of one of the regiments in reference to the satisfaction given by Instructor Lieutenant-Colonel N. S. Jarvis, which states, in part, that the thoroughly practical instruction given by the Medical Instructor soon made a vast improvement in his men and by the end of the week they were a well drilled lot of men, needing but another week's instruction to make them perfect. The good results of the drills proved conclusively that the detailing of a commissioned officer capable of instruction as medical instructor was a wise move in the right direction and calculated to accomplish a great amount of good; medical officers as well as members of the hospital corps should appreciate the advantages of the instructions given in camp and endeavor to profit thereby. The medical officer of the regiment, as well as members of the hospital corps thoroughly appreciated the patient endeavor of the Medical Instructor to make them familiar with the various drills. His manner of imparting the instruction was favorably commented upon by the men.

HOSPITAL CORPS CERTIFICATES.

It is stated in the regulations for the military forces that when a hospital corps man ceases to be a member of a regiment, battalion, troop, battery or separate company he shall receive from the Surgeon-General of the State, upon the recommendation of the medical officer and a commanding officer of his organization, as evidence of his special qualifications and ability to perform the duties of the corps, a certificate to that effect, and that the owner of any such certificate, as evidence of his continuous proficiency, may be examined at intervals of not more than two years by the Surgeon-General, or under his direction. Such certificates have for the first time been issued and it affords the Surgeon-General great pleasure to state that they will be given to those who are entitled to them.

The following announcement was made by Surgeon J. D. Emmet, to the hospital corps of the Sixty-ninth Regiment:

“ADVANTAGES OF MEMBERSHIP IN THE HOSPITAL CORPS.

“1. It teaches men to observe closely, to think quickly and to act wisely.

“2. It imparts knowledge which is of great importance and constant use every day and under all circumstances.

“3. It confers honor because it implies intelligence, greater knowledge and education.

“4. It is a position of great responsibility and trust because every member of this regiment, from the commanding officer down to the latest enlisted private, may find himself at any time, owing to accident, absolutely dependent upon members of the hospital corps not only for his physical comfort and escape from needless suffering but even for his life.

“5. When members of this corps have fully completed the course of instruction and have perfected themselves both in the theory and practice of the knowledge thus obtained, they will be entirely competent, with very little extra study, to obtain the diploma of a male trained nurse at any training school in this city. Such a diploma entitles a man to charge five dollars and upwards a day for his services.

“Therefore, the training in the hospital corps educates a soldier both in mind and body, makes him of great value to his regiment, enables him to render assistance to his fellow citizens in any emergency and, moreover, provides him with the means of obtaining an honorable and very lucrative livelihood, when his term of service has expired.”

The following represents the regular quota of the hospital corps:

Forty-four companies, 2.....	88
Thirteen regiments, 12.....	156
Five batteries, 2.....	10
Four signal corps, 2.....	8
One troop, 2.....	2
One squadron	6
Eighth Battalion	8
	<hr/> <hr/>

The following organizations have not reported personnel, etc.:

Regiment, 47th.

Companies, 14th, 17th and 47th.

Signal corps, 2d, 3d and 4th.

The following companies are deficient:

The 5th	1 man.
The 9th	1 man.
The 20th	1 man.
The 22d	1 man.
The 27th	has none.
The 31st	1 man.
The 40th	1 man.
The 48th	1 man.

If the organizations not reported were full they would make, with those already reported, a total of 280.

THE TOUR OF DUTY OF THE SIXTY-FIFTH REGIMENT.

Major A. H. Briggs, connected with this regiment, has expressed himself as much pleased with the experience of the Medical Department during the recent tour and he thinks practices of this sort are of the greatest value. We quote his words, as follows:

"The hospital quarters were located on a pleasant bluff overlooking Lake Erie, and consisted of five Sibley wall tents of the regulation size and pattern. The tents were pitched in the form of a crescent, facing the camp, with the lake in the rear. The whole hospital quarters were inclosed with a temporary hedge or brush fence and was entered through an artificial gateway of green. The tent on the right was the quarters of the medical officers. The next tent to the left was assigned as Ward No. 1. The next, or center tent, was used as the quarters of the hospital stewards and from which all dispensing was done. The fourth tent was set apart as Ward No. 2, and the fifth tent, or the one on the extreme left, was assigned to the hospital corps for quarters, etc. All medical supplies were kept in the hospital stewards' tents. The tents set apart as wards were each furnished with four cots, with suitable blankets, etc., with one small folding table in each ward. These tents were at no time used for any other purpose excepting as quarters for the sick or injured."

THE GRANT MONUMENT INAUGURAL PARADE.

The Surgeon-General is pleased to record the reports which have come to him from the various medical officers in the State who participated in the parade in New York city, on the 27th day of April, 1897, at which time the new ambulance, new medical and surgical chest and litter were used for the first time in public.

In one of the reports from an organization that participated in the parade the medical officer stated that "the new medical chest is a most excellent one, compact and complete. It offers the medical officer facilities for properly caring for any sick. It is the first time since I have had the honor to be in commission that the Medical Department has been adequately prepared to meet any calls that might be made upon it."

In reference to the dress for medical officers and the Hospital Corps on street parades it has been suggested, and it is thought with a great amount of truth, that medical officers and Hospital Corps men should go on parade in undress uniform; that they can not work to advantage in tight, padded dress coats and wearing helmets; that a medical officer should be accompanied by a hospital steward and a portion of the Hospital Corps, and walk or ride in the rear of each battalion. The usual custom on all street parades is to have the three medical officers ride with the regimental staff in front of the band. In this position they answer no purpose but to swell the staff attendance. Often in an emergency requiring their professional services, the medical officers may not only remain in ignorance of the entire occurrence, but are likely to be difficult to get at from their position at the head of the line, and thus the practical application of their medical services may amount to nothing.

It is well known that cases of sunstroke are apt to occur during marches of this kind, especially if they are of great length and the atmosphere very humid. It is considered wise, therefore, that a careful diet, both as to solids and fluids, should be observed for several days prior and during such service, and, as far as possible, to maintain regularity in the digestive functions. A canteen of barley water, cold tea or coffee is considered one of the best and most refreshing drinks, rather than spirituous liquors, which should not be allowed. Flannel shirts should be worn in preference to linen; and easy-fitting, broad-soled shoes in preference to pointed toes.

It would seem wise if the hospital steward of each regiment would ride in the ambulance, and that one of the medical officers of each regiment ride at the rear of his command to see that the sick and disabled men are properly cared for. Medical officers should discriminate between those who fall out on the march and are unable to continue, and determine whether they can care for themselves and return to their homes unattended, or whether they should receive assistance.

If a mounted soldier falls, two files of men from that side of the company nearest to which he may have been riding should go to his assistance; two of the men should care for the officer, one should tend his horse and the other should care for the rifles of his comrades.

Each driver of an ambulance should be furnished a pass authorizing passage through the column.

THE ASSOCIATION OF MILITARY SURGEONS OF THE UNITED STATES.

The Governor of the State very kindly named four of the members of the Guard as delegates from this State to the Convention which was held in Columbus, Ohio, May 25, 26 and 27, 1897. This was certainly a compliment to any member of the Guard and when such men are named they should, if possible, attend the convention. It is thought that attendance upon these conventions are of the greatest use to each and every member of the Medical Department. It would seem wise, however, in view of the fact that some of the medical officers might remain at home on account of the expense, if the State would pay for her delegates as does Massachusetts.

THE MEETING OF THE GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC AT BUFFALO
IN AUGUST, 1897.

The Surgeon-General was so deeply impressed with the efficient manner in which the Medical Department conducted its work at the meeting of the Grand Army of the Republic at Buffalo in August, 1897, that he requested Major A. H. Briggs to render him a report, outlining the methods employed for caring for the sick and injured, which he did in the following words:

“Camp Jewett was arranged to quarter 12,000 persons and this, of course, was the headquarters of the Medical Department. There were three emergency hospitals located in various parts of the city, each of which had two trained nurses who were paid for their services. All other services were voluntary.

“In order that the work need not be too great a burden on any one of the medical staff the tours of duty were made short and the day divided as follows:

“8 a. m. to 3 p. m., first day tour.

“3 p. m. to 10 p. m., second day tour.

“10 p. m. to 8 a. m., night tour.

“No difficulty was experienced in getting the best of medical services free of charge during the encampment, which lasted one week, the night work being mostly done by the younger members of the profession.

"Each one of the hospitals was fully equipped to meet any emergency required of it, having kitchen departments with stove, ice box, furniture and utensils necessary for the preparation of all food needed for any number of patients. Fresh milk, food and ice were supplied daily. The hospital at Camp Jewett consisted of nine tents and was equipped with cots, blankets and bedding.

"To give an idea of the general arrangement of these emergency hospitals it is stated that the Terrace Hospital consisted of five United States Army hospital tents, two of which were used for wards, one for stove and kitchen and another for the operating tent, and the fifth for the administration tent. The ward tents contained ten cots with blankets and bedding.

"The Wells Street Hospital had a nurses' room, dispensing room, kitchen, physicians' office and a large ward with room for sixty cots, etc.

"The hospital at Camp Jewett was, as nearly as possible, conducted as a military hospital. All medical officers who belonged to the National Guard wore their uniforms. The dispensing department was in charge, during the entire time of the hospital stewards of the Sixty-fifth Regiment N. G. N. Y., the entire hospital corps of the same regiment being on duty in uniform during the encampment. All work at this hospital as well as the others was rendered in a prompt and efficient manner.

"A careful record of every case treated was made and preserved. The record consisted of the following: Name, age, home address, Buffalo address, diagnosis, treatment, disposition of the case, remarks, etc.

"The total number of patients treated at Camp Jewett during the week was 315, of whom 36 were detained more or less of the time in the Camp Hospital. The total number treated at the Terrace Hospital was 121, most of whom were hospital cases. The total number in all treated at the Wells Street Hospital was 75, 60 of whom were hospital cases and were detained most of the time. The total of which is 511 cases.

"At the close of the encampment all the patients were well enough to leave for home in charge of their friends. No deaths occurred during the encampment."

Major G. W. York reported the following in regard to the ambulance service during the meeting of the Grand Army of the Republic at Buffalo:

"The ambulance service consisted of fifteen ambulance stations, covering a territory of about two miles along the route for marching, each one being equipped with a painted barrel, a bottle of whiskey, 25 pounds of oatmeal, 6 towels, 5 pails and from 15 to 25 tin cups. A red cross flag was used as a means of designation. Two or three young doctors or advanced medical students were placed in charge of each of these stations with instructions as to their duties. Each wore a red cross, which enabled him to pass the police lines. The streets were wired, except at crossings where these stations were located. Here they remained open for ambulance patrol and fire wagons. Ice was placed in the barrels before the parade, and the supply kept up through these open streets, as was also lunch for the men. Water and telephone service was had as near as possible to these stations. Each of these points was also supplied with a cot, which answered very well in place of a stretcher. The ambulance service was under the control of a central office."

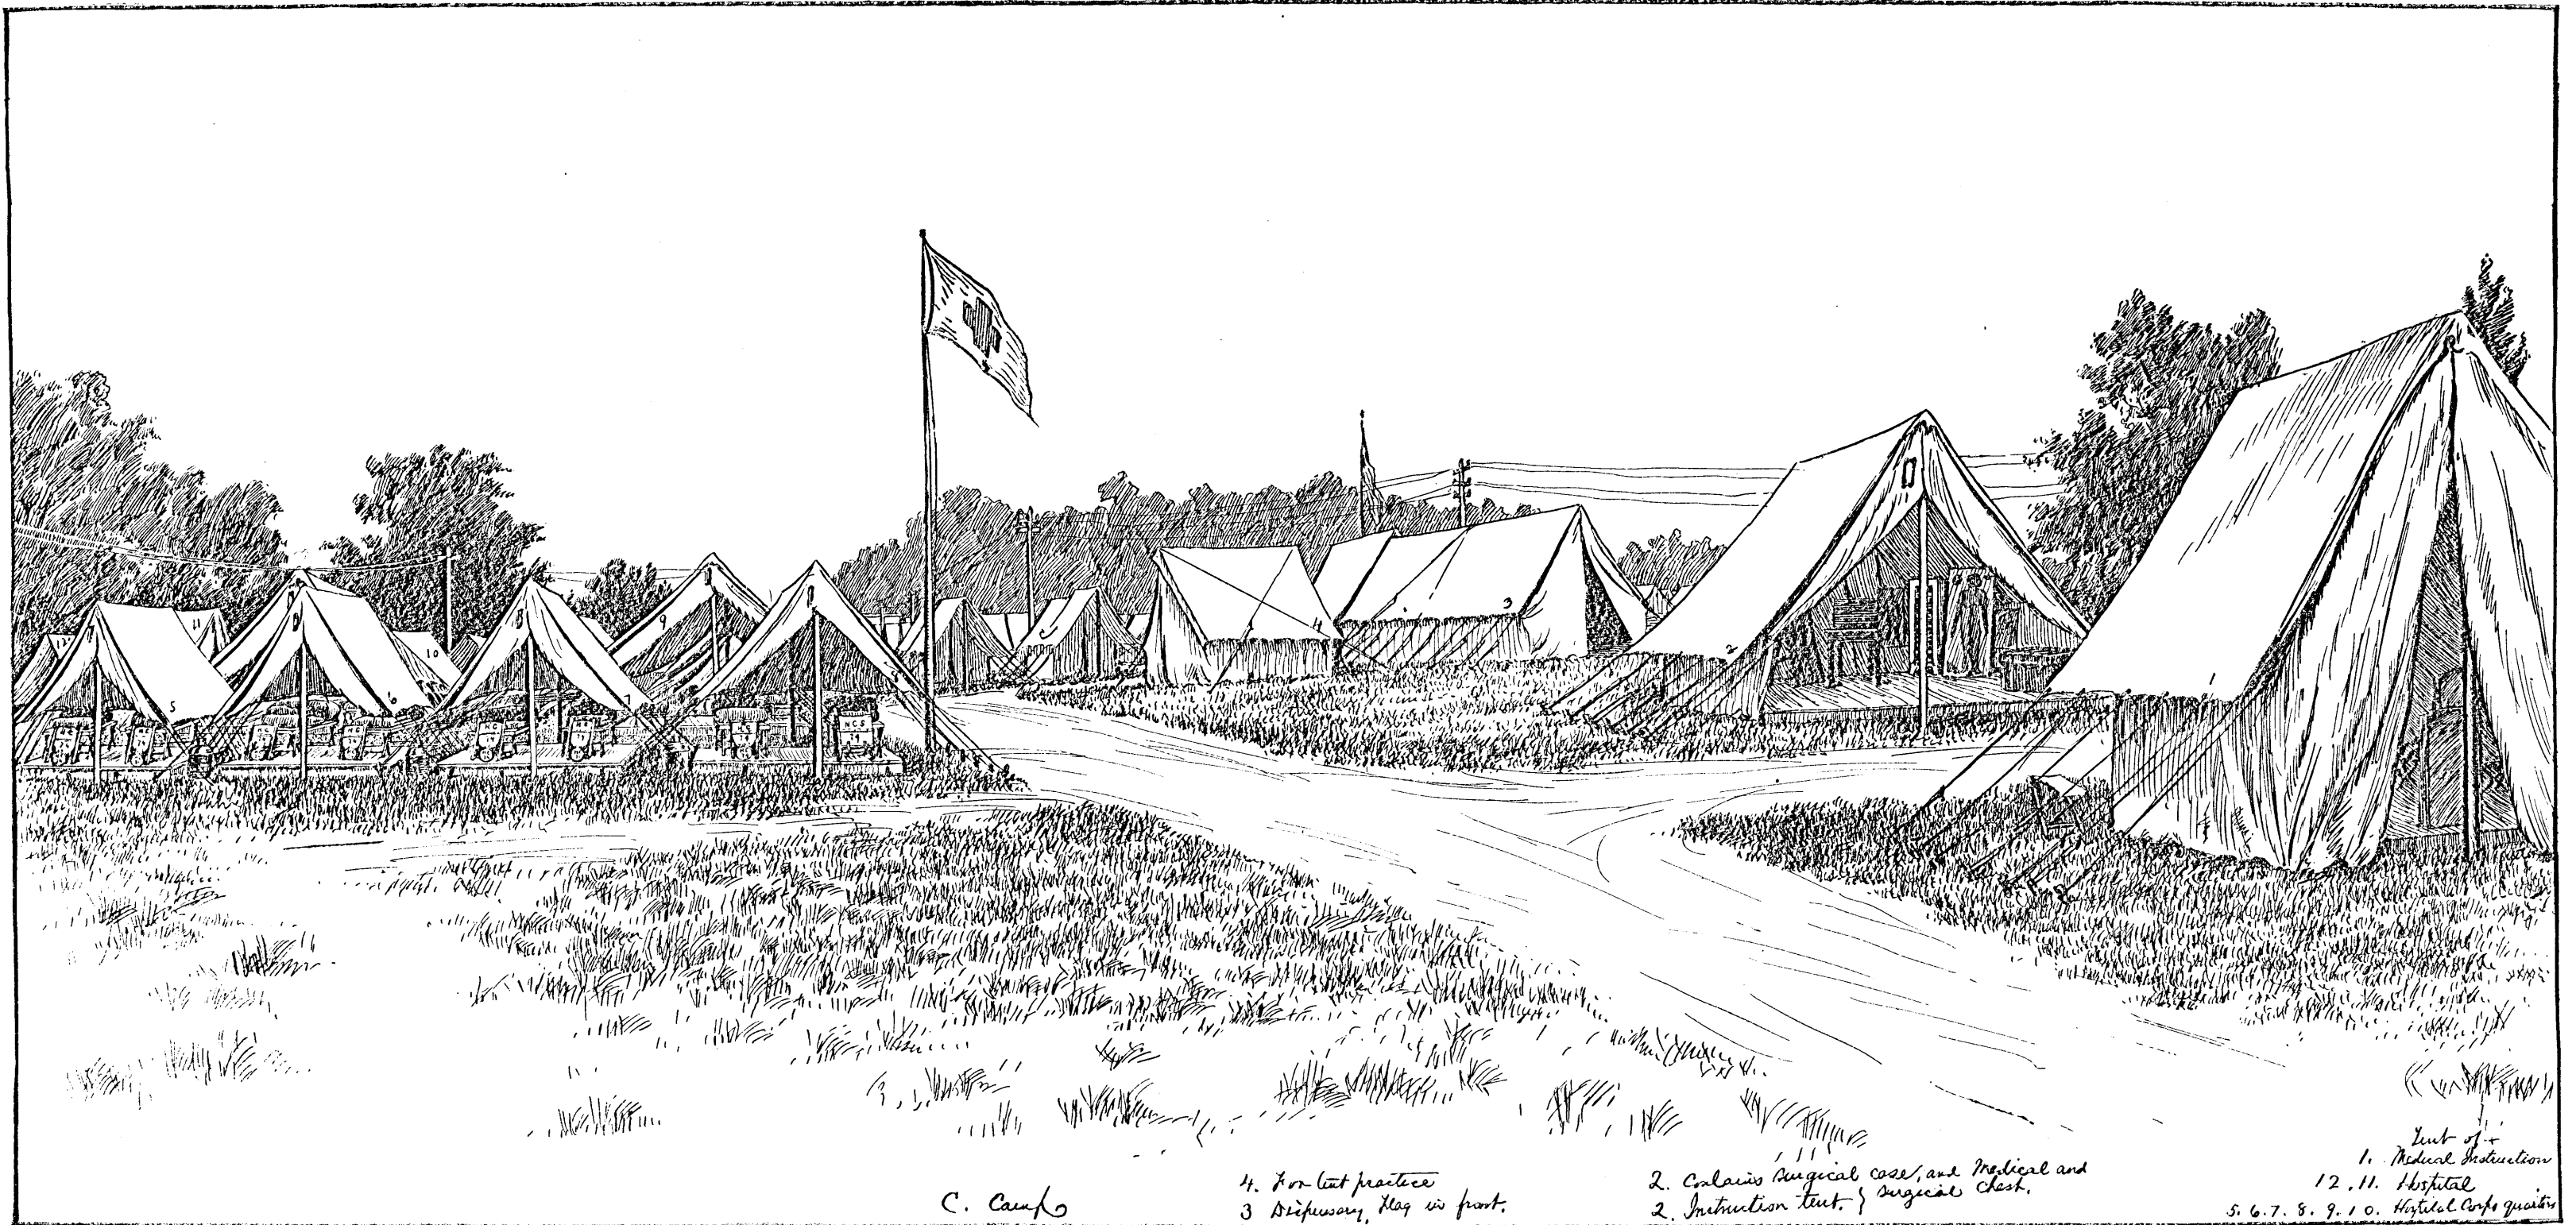

RECOMMENDATIONS.

It is recommended by the Surgeon-General,

First. That the regulations be so amended as to provide for the promotion of medical officers of separate companies after five years' service to the rank and pay of captains; and Second. That an annual inspection of the Medical Department and Hospital Corps detachments be made by competent medical officers, under the direction of the Surgeon-General, in a manner similar to that carried on by the Inspector-General.

The photographs of the arrangement of the Medical Department in camp and that of the bicycle ambulance, which proved itself so useful during the tour of inspection, it is believed will be of great interest to all.

HALL OF RECORDS,

BRIGADIER-GENERAL M. O. TERRY, Surgeon-General, N. G. N. Y.

Sir.—I have the honor to submit the following report of my observations upon the organization and equipment of the medical departments of the armies of Greece and Turkey made during a recent visit to Athens and Constantinople:

On July 28, 1897, I visited Athens, Greece. Armed with a card of introduction from the American minister, and accompanied by Dr. Achilles Rose of New York, who was spending the summer in Athens, and who acted as interpreter, a visit was made to the War Office, where we were most courteously received. Upon making known our desire to learn something of the organization and work of the medical department of the Greek army during the late war, we were referred to the Surgeon-General's office. We found that functionary installed in a 12 x 14 apartment, and, from the absence of evidences of system, we were in a measure prepared for what followed our inquiries. A most courteous and obliging young medical officer was assigned to our service, and our investigations commenced at once.

Very little information as to the organization of the medical corps or the methods of relief to the injured upon the field could be obtained. It was very evident that the outbreak of hostilities found the medical department of the Greek army as little prepared for the work at hand as the other departments. We had previously learned from some Red Cross nurses sent out from England, and who had just returned from the scenes of the recent conflicts in Thessaly, that there was practically no first aid near the actively engaged lines. As a result of this, many died from hemorrhage who, without doubt, could have been saved by simple provisional methods. The presence of the first aid organizations was practically forbidden. This was not denied at the Surgeon-General's office, and was confirmed by statements obtained from patients in the hospitals whom we afterward saw. According to the latter, five days elapsed, in some instances, between the reception of the injury and the first dressing.

It is probably true that the medical department was not only greatly hampered by absence of efficient organization, but by lack of proper facilities for carrying on the work as well. We were not able to obtain an inspection of a field outfit of instruments, and the failure of our efforts in this direction aroused the suspicion that there was very little in this line to show us. At one of the hospitals we were shown what would have been a fair outfit for a small civil hospital, with the statement that it had been the gift of a wealthy foreign lady who sympathized with the Greeks in their struggles against the Turks.

The English Red Cross Society furnished six surgeons. In addition to this a corps of trained nurses was sent out by the London Daily Chronicle. These did most efficient work. Besides this the German and French organizations furnished each a complete hospital outfit of 120 beds, with surgeons, assistants, and nurses.

The charge has been made that the Turks refused to respect the Geneva Cross. I am informed that this arose from the fact that the Greek irregulars employed the insignia to cover an attack upon the Turkish troops, and that, naturally enough, the latter were thereafter suspicious of the display of this emblem.

The rations of the Greek soldiers consisted mainly of bread and cheese. Camp sanitation is said to be almost unknown. Laxity in respect to the latter is not to be wondered at when it is considered that even the ordinary discipline of camp life is disregarded. Roll-call is more honored in the breach than in the observance, and drills, inspection, and review are almost unknown.

It is impossible to ascertain the mortality among those injured in battle. This arises partly from the absence of records available for the purposes of study, and partly from a disinclination on the part of the combatants to acknowledge serious losses. Judging from the impressions received, the opportunities for studying results of gunshot wounds and their treatment afforded by this conflict will be comparatively slight. As far as the available sources of information could furnish knowledge upon the subject, it was ascertained that 3,000 wounded were cared for in Athens. These were transported to the city from the districts where the fighting took place, partly by boat and partly by wheeled ambulances. No railroads were available for the purpose. Of these, about one-half were cared for in the Ecole Hypaxiomaticon and the Ecole Evelpidon, two government military schools of Athens which were converted into temporary hospitals for the purpose. The remainder were cared for in the Military Hospital and the Evangelical Hospital under Professor Galvani.

Nearly all operations were performed before the patients were brought to Athens, and, therefore, it is impossible to ascertain anything concerning the immediate mortality following these, or that occurring among those not operated upon. Those who survived the shock and hemorrhage, in both instances, as well as the transportation over mountain roads, were naturally the most vigorous subjects, and the most likely to recover.

A round of the hospitals occupied portions of two days. Most of the injured were suffering from gunshot wounds, and these from wounds inflicted by the comparatively heavy Peabody-Martini rifle ball. This arm seems to have been generally used by the Turkish troops. Here and there a smaller wound of entrance suggested a Mauser bullet, but these were few and not easy of identification. The Greek surgeon spoke with pride of two cases of gunshot wounds of the abdomen, one of which involved the liver, and which recovered without laparotomy. A shrug of the shoulders and a roll of the eyes were the only answers to the query as to how many had died following such injuries.

From the stories current of the fierceness of the Turkish cavalry charges it was expected that wounds from cutlass strokes and sabre thrusts would be presented. But one such was shown us. A Greek officer informed us that in no instance did a hand-to-hand conflict take place; hence the absence of this class of injuries. Only two cases of shell and shrapnel injuries were found.

Most of those shown were well on the road to recovery. In most instances there were evidence of suppurative action, although some surprisingly good results followed penetrating wounds of joints were exhibited. The first dressing consisted of iodoform gauze, cotton and gauze bandages wrung out in sublimate solution. Whenever the emergency would permit the surrounding parts were cleansed and shaved as a part of the treatment. In cases complicated by fracture the parts were supported by means of ready-made splints of French manufacture.

Most of the Greek military surgeons have received their education in part in Germany. The shortcomings of the medical department are due, not so much to lack of intelligence as to absence of system and organization, without which, in the face of the dire emergencies of war, the efforts of the highest order of talent or the brightest flashes of genius are doomed to disappointment and defeat.

In the beginning of the month of August of this year, I visited Constantinople and in response to a request tendered through our efficient chargé d'affaires in this city, Mr. Riddle, Muchir Theoket Pasha, the commander of the Second Turkish Brigade, in whose district the Yildiz Hospital, the largest military hospital in Constantinople is situated, detailed an adjutant to conduct me to the latter institution. While waiting for the horses to be saddled the Pasha invited me, with true Turkish hospitality, into the beautiful garden adjoining his headquarters from which point an extensive view of the Bosphorus, with Scutari in the distance is obtained. There I partook of a refreshing ice and a delightful cup of coffee. By the aid of German, of which the Pasha possessed some knowledge, and the Turkish and English of our dragoman I endeavored to obtain some information as to the actual number of troops on the Turkish side, as well as the losses sustained among those actually engaged. With characteristic Turkish caution, however, the Pasha was not disposed to talk very freely upon the subject, but from other sources it was learned that, of the 750,000 men which constitutes the war footing of Turkey, less than one-fifth were sent to the front. Certainly there are not less than 10,000 soldiers in Constantinople at the present time, as I had opportunity of estimating upon witnessing the ceremony known as the Selamik, or visit of the Sultan to the mosque, which takes place every Friday afternoon. At this ceremony the troops in Constantinople and vicinity are massed about the palace and mosque, which are only about 500 yards apart, the opportunity being thus afforded for the Sultan to come face to face with his troops upon this, the only occasion upon which the descendant of the Prophet and Ruler of the nation leaves the palace grounds.

Arriving at the hospital I was greeted most courteously by the Turkish medical officers. These, for the most part, have had the advantage of a training in France or Germany, and I had no difficulty in obtaining information as to the hospital buildings and their capacity.

The Yildiz Hospital is beautifully located upon an eminence overlooking the city, and is not far from the Sultan's palace of the same name. It consists of twenty-two pavilions, built of wood and lined with heavy sheathing-paper.

We were shortly joined by Djemil Pasha, who, although but 27 years of age, is the Surgeon-in-Chief of this large hospital. It is currently reported that this young man owes his exalted position to the fact that he is the son-in-law of a prominent and influential individual at the Sublime Porte.

From what I saw of his work in Constantinople, as well as the impression that he produced at Moscow, where he appeared as the representative of the Turkish Army Medical Department at the International Congress, I am convinced that, whatever influences were at work to secure his rapid promotion, he is largely deserving of the confidence that is reposed in him.

I learned that the hospital has ample accommodations for 1,000 patients. At the present time it contains between 800 and 900. I was informed that in the neighborhood of 3,000 soldiers have been treated here for injuries alone since the commencement of the war. With the natural desire to lessen the importance of their losses this may be taken as a low estimate, as this is the hospital in which was received the majority of those who survived the somewhat crude means of transportation frequently employed (donkeys and rough carts). The equipment for transportation purposes at the disposition of the medical corps consists of eight ambulances and 200 litters for the entire Turkish army. Many of the wounded were strapped on the backs of donkeys and mules, and conveyed in this manner for miles to the nearest railroad.

A tour of the grounds, including a well-shaded garden for advanced convalescents, was first made, escorted by the Surgeon-in-Chief and his staff, after which the pavilions were inspected in detail, and many interesting cases shown.

Two of the pavilions, until a few days ago, were under the care of Dr. Nasse, assistant to Bergmann, and a corps of surgeons and nurses of the German branch of the Red Cross Society. Upon the eve of their departure to return to their own country, they were entertained at dinner in the Yildiz Palace, at the close of which they received at the hands of the Sultan the gold medal and green ribbon military decoration, conferred upon those who had distinguished themselves in the performance of some especially valuable service to the Turkish government.

In the hospital mentioned there are two operating rooms provided in a special operating pavilion, one at each end of the building. One of these is used for aseptic cases, while the other is for septic cases. To the fact that the majority of the Turkish military surgeons receive an additional training in France or Germany is to be attributed the care exercised in regard to wound treatment. While this was not always ideal, yet such as it was it excited my surprise. There seemed to be an earnest desire, and in some instances an enthusiastic and well-directed effort, to comply with the requirements of modern aseptic work.

While the Turkish surgeons are strikingly conservative, sometimes to a fault, and energetic and ambitious operative attacks are not encouraged, yet this conservatism on the part of the operators is not the result of timidity. Djemil Pasha has twice sutured the axillary artery, after Murphy's suggestion, for injury of that vessel occurring in the course of the removal of secondary carcinomatous glandular masses in the arm-pit—a procedure requiring surgical courage and skill decidedly above the average. Almost all of the operations performed at the Yildiz Hospital were done by the native Turkish surgeons, a fact to which they called attention with pride.

Here, as at Athens, I was shown a large number of gunshot wounds of joints, particularly of the shoulder and elbow. Singular to say, these occurred, in a vast majority of cases, upon the right side. In many of the instances of joint injury secondary resection had been done, some of which were typical. Cases of amputation were conspicuous by their absence. The Turk is violently opposed to noticeable mutilation, and to this is to be attributed his abhorrence of losing a member. Of the twenty-two cases of traumatic destruction of the eye, enucleation had been positively refused in the larger number. Up to the present time none of these have developed sympathetic ophthalmia. In those in which the globe was removed in connection with operations upon the orbit, the authorities had at once supplied an artificial eye, of which the wearer was childishly proud.

The Turkish wounded were rather more severely injured, as a rule, than the Greeks. This is probably due to the fact that the latter were armed with the Gras rifle, which carries a large lead projectile. These were obtained from a supply representing the discarded weapons of the French army, and in many instances the pieces were shortened by sawing off the barrel after being purchased by the Greek government. When employed at short range, however, they were capable of considerable execution. That so many Turks were wounded at short range and in the head and the upper portion of the trunk, rather serves to contradict the stories of want of coolness, if not actual cowardice, of the Greek soldier, which are current. In justice to the Turk, it should also be stated that in no instance was a case observed in which the wound was received from behind.

A visit was made to the Haida Pasha Hospital, in Scutari, upon the Asiatic side of the Bosphorus. This is the hospital made famous as the scene of the labors of Florence Nightingale during the Crimean war. The Turkish authorities in charge seemed to evince some interest when reference was made to the work of this noble and self-sacrificing woman; although her labors were of inestimable value, not even a tablet commemorates her services. This is not to be wondered at, however, when one considers some of the peculiarities of the Turkish character. The average Turk lives only in the present. He puts the past behind him as soon and as far as may be, and devotes but little thought to the future. Only a short walk from the spot where Florence Nightingale won the love and admiration of the civilized world is to be found the largest Turkish cemetery about Constantinople, where lie the remains of many of the highest dignitaries, as well as warriors and statesmen, that Turkey has ever produced. For the soil of Scutari is considered as sacred ground. Here the Ottoman dynasty was founded, and from here Islamism spread itself in Europe. Many illustrious men, therefore, have been buried here. The condition of the place would disgrace the potter's field of the meanest hamlet in Christendom. The tombstones, many of which are painted green to indicate the grave of a descendant of Mahomet, are to be seen leaning in all directions in a shiftless, tumble-down manner, and many have fallen and lie half buried beneath the debris of broken-down branches of the cypress, the invariable accompaniment of a Turkish burial place. There is no railing about the place, and the dogs, idlers, and cattle rove about its three-mile area at will. That this was not due to the fact that it is no longer used as a cemetery was attested by the presence of a newly-made grave, the freshly-painted tombstone of which, surmounted by a carved turban in many folds, proclaimed the importance during life of its occupant.

I could not help contrasting this with the well-kept English cemetery within sight of the spot where I stood, in which lie buried many of the English officers who died here during the Crimean war.

The Haidan Pasha Hospital is now only occupied by convalescents, these being principally medical cases. Typhoid fever formerly prevailed here to a considerable extent, but since the water supply has been changed and water has been brought in casks from the mountains, it has been greatly lessened.

I was somewhat surprised to find that both Armenians and Greeks are serving at the present time in the Turkish army medical corps. It is a fact that only the faithful followers of the Prophet are allowed to fight under his banner, and to join its actual combatant rank and file.

The Turkish military medical officer has a special training, and this at the expense of the government. Upon passing his examination and receiving his commission he pledges himself to serve the government for twenty-six years, at the end of which time he may be pensioned. If for any reason other than actual physical disability this obligation is not fulfilled, he is forced to refund to the government the amount expended by the latter upon his education.

About one-fourth of the classes at the University of Constantinople are entered as medical students, or about 500 yearly. While at first glance this seems like a large class, yet it should be remembered, in this connection, that this is the only school in which medicine is taught in Turkey. There is a special department of military medicine, which, together with the regular course, covers six years. In the case of those intending to practice in civil life the examinations are conducted by a civil board, but those designed for the army or navy must pass an examination at the hands of a board of military surgeons.

A surgeon and an assistant surgeon are assigned to each battalion. In addition to these, medical cadets, who have attended two or more courses of lectures and demonstrations, are placed under the orders of the medical officers. These are selected from among those who have but a limited preliminary education, and who are not deemed of sufficiently promising material to do credit to the service in the higher grades. The medical cadet may, however, aspire to the latter, and occasionally succeeds in obtaining a commission. Usually, however, he spends his life in performing the most menial duties of the medical service, these including cupping, bleeding, tooth drawing, and such services as were demanded of the old-time barber-surgeon of the European armies.

The hospital corps consists of non-combatants enlisted for the purpose. Upon occasions of ceremony these parade as a separate organization. This corps corresponds in some respects to the ambulance corps of our National Guard. It is much below the latter in efficiency, for the reason that its members are not trained in rendering first aid to the injured. The brassard is a red crescent. The natural aversion of the Turk to anything in the shape of a cross forbids the adoption of the insignia of the Geneva Convention. The corps flag is a green field with a red crescent. The corps numbers 3,000 for the entire army, including hospital stewards, who must be regular graduates in pharmacy and pass a special examination before admission. The hospital corps is especially trained in the transportation of the wounded and care of the sick, but its members are not expected to render first aid, save of the simplest character.

The discovery of Roentgen has found its way into Turkey and been utilized by the medical department of its army. Several cases were shown in which missiles had been located by the aid of X-rays, and their removal successfully accomplished.

Respectfully,

GEO. R. FOWLER,

Surgeon Second Brigade, N. G. N. Y.

APPENDIX "F."

Report of Commanding Officer, First Brigade.

HEADQUARTERS FIRST BRIGADE, N. G. N. Y.,
PARK AVENUE AND THIRTY-FOURTH STREET,
NEW YORK, September 30, 1897. }

The Adjutant-General, State of New York:

Sir.— In accordance with O. D. 19, I have the honor to submit the following report of the condition of the First Brigade:

Movement of Troops.

On October 9, 1896, the brigade paraded for review by His Honor the Mayor of New York.

On April 27, 1897, the brigade took part in the Grant Monument Inaugural Parade.

Under G. O. No. 1, c. s., from these headquarters the several regiments of the brigade, Squadron "A," and the First Signal Corps were ordered for duty at Creedmoor for rifle practice.

The following organizations of the brigade were present at the State Camp of Instruction, in accordance with G. O. No. 7, A. G. O., c. s.: The Seventh, Twelfth, Twenty-second and Seventy-first Regiments and the First and Second Batteries.

A new company in the Seventy-first Regiment, "E," was mustered into the service of the State April 22, 1897. (S. O. No. 52, A. G. O., c. s.)

The strength of the brigade has increased since my last report, as shown by latest return, 27.

The condition of the brigade is excellent.

Respectfully,

LOUIS FITZGERALD,

Brigadier-General.

APPENDIX "G."

Report of Commanding Officer, Second Brigade.

HEADQUARTERS SECOND BRIGADE, N. G. N. Y., }
BROOKLYN, December 28, 1897. }

The Adjutant-General:

Sir.— In compliance with Par. 19, R. 11, I have the honor to submit this, the annual report of the Brigade Commander, Second Brigade, N. G. N. Y.:

During the past year the only occasions when the whole brigade assembled for duty were the Grant Monument Inaugural Parade in New York city, April 27th, and the parade on Decoration Day with the Grand Army of the Republic in this city. Reports of attendance for both occasions were forwarded to your office. On the occasion of the latter parade we had with us a battalion of the Fourth Maryland National Guard.

Incidentally I may mention that the Second Brigade always parades on Decoration Day with the survivors of the war for the Union and thus assists in paying tribute to the heroic dead of the Nation.

I may also mention that a provisional battalion, composed of details from the several organizations of this brigade, visited Washington and participated in the parade incident to the inauguration of President McKinley.

In October another provisional battalion formed under like circumstances visited the Nashville Exposition, and on "Brooklyn Day" paraded as escort to the mayor and citizens' committee from Brooklyn.

The strength of the brigade in detail is shown in the semi-annual report of September 30th.

Respectfully,

JAS. McLEER,
Brigadier-General.

APPENDIX "H."

Report of Commanding Officer, Third Brigade.

HEADQUARTERS THIRD BRIGADE, N. G. N. Y., }
ALBANY, November 30, 1897. }

Adjutant-General, S. N. Y., Albany, N. Y.:

Sir.—I have the honor to report that since my last annual report the Nineteenth Separate Company, located at Poughkeepsie, has been disbanded (S. O. 89, c. s., A. G. O.), and that the strength of the brigade on the 30th day of September was 149 commissioned officers and 2,897 enlisted men, aggregate 3,046.

On September 30, 1896, its strength was 149 commissioned officers and 2,793 enlisted men, aggregate 2,942.

The Tenth Battalion, the Sixth, Eleventh, Fourteenth, Sixteenth, Thirty-first, Thirty-sixth, and Fortieth Separate Companies were on duty at the Camp of Instruction this season.

The Fifteenth Separate Company received permission to enter upon a tour of camp duty September 4th, 5th, and 6th at Upton Lake, and its commanding officer reported the experience to have been satisfactory to him.

October 25th the commanding officer of the Fourth Separate Company reported that the sheriff of his county ordered him on duty to assist in the protection of property and to preserve the peace at Croton Dam; the services of the company were, however, not required and the command was dismissed next day.

The organizations are all in good and satisfactory condition; the Ninth Separate Company at Whitehall should be furnished with an armory.

Respectfully,

ROBERT SHAW OLIVER,

Brigadier-General.

APPENDIX "I."

Report of Commanding Officer, Fourth Brigade.

HEADQUARTERS FOURTH BRIGADE, N. G. N. Y., }
BUFFALO, N. Y., December 7, 1897. }

Adjutant-General, State of New York, Albany, N. Y.:

I have the honor to submit the annual report of the condition of the Fourth Brigade.

None of the commands of this brigade have been called to aid the civil authorities during the past year, and, with the exceptions mentioned below, have performed only their regular winter work in their armories.

The brigade has lost, by disbandment, two commands—the Fifth Battery, of Syracuse, and the Twenty-sixth Separate Company, of Elmira, which were mustered out pursuant to S. O. No. 87, G. H. s. 97. Notwithstanding this, the strength of the brigade is greater than last year. Total strength, September 30, 1896, 2,326; September 30, 1897, 2,371. In April, the entire brigade, with the exception of the Fifth Battery, took part in the Grant monument inaugural parade in New York. The State furnished transportation and subsistence. The officers and men served without pay, being absent from their business three days, owing to the long railway journey.

A provisional regiment was organized, composed of the First, Second, Eighth, Twenty-sixth, Twenty-ninth, Thirtieth, Thirty-fourth, Forty-first, Forty-seventh and Forty-eighth Separate Companies. Colonel Fox, of the Seventy-fourth Regiment, was detailed to the command. The Twenty-fifth and Forty-second Separate Companies were attached to the Seventy-fourth Regiment, and the Thirteenth and Forty-third Separate Companies to the Sixty-fifth Regiment, making three regiments of about 700 men each.

In New York, brigade headquarters were established in the headquarters of the First Brigade. The Sixty-fifth Regiment and the Second Battalion of the Provisional Regiment were quartered in the armory of the Seventy-first Regiment and Second Battery; the Seventy-fourth Regiment and First Battalion of the Provisional Regiment, in the armory of the Ninth Regiment. Every effort was made by the commanding officers and men of those organizations to make the commands comfortable.

The largest part of the brigade was transported to New York, and returned by the Erie Railway without an accident of any kind, and with good dispatch.

In the mobilization of the brigade in New York this year, the experience gained in 1889 was apparent, the arrangements for quarters and subsistence being much better. A few slight failures on the part of the contractor for subsisting the command are mentioned in the reports of the commanding officers of regiments forwarded herewith.

The Seventy-fourth Regiment and Forty-seventh Separate Company have performed tours of duty at the State Camp of Instruction.

August 6th to 14th, pursuant to instructions from General Headquarters, I accompanied the Sixty-fifth Regiment on the practice march, with Majors Ransom, Metzger, Wadsworth and Captain Smith of my staff. The practical and pecuniary results obtained proves that field work of this kind is of the greatest possible benefit. The experience gained on the march in 1895 was shown the first day, notwithstanding the great change in the personnel of the regiment since that time, and the improvement from day to day was very marked. The regiment makes and breaks camp well, understands the importance of the care of the feet, marches without straggling, and endures fatigue well and cheerfully.

In my judgment, had the armory instruction in the school of the soldier and squad been better, still better results would have been obtained.

The very full report of Colonel Welch is forwarded herewith.

Respectfully,

PETER C. DOYLE,

Brigadier-General.

APPENDIX "J."

Report of Commanding Officer, Sixty-Fifth Regiment, on Field Service.

HEADQUARTERS SIXTY-FIFTH REGIMENT, N. G. N. Y., }
BUFFALO, October 1, 1897. }

The Assistant Adjutant-General, Fourth Brigade, N. G., N. Y.:

Sir.—I have the honor to report as follows concerning the tour of field service of this command, performed pursuant to S. O. No. 110, A. G. O. s., 97, from August 6th to 14th, inclusive:

Upon receipt of information from General Headquarters that such service would be ordered, I proceeded to the selection of a line of march. The excellent behavior of the command during its tour in 1895 resulted in the receipt of numerous invitations to select particular routes; after carefully considering all of the invitations and suggestions offered I decided that the country bordering on the shore of Lake Erie presented the most advantageous features. It would seem difficult, if not impossible, to find a territory better suited for service of this character. Communication by rail with the home station was as rapid and frequent as could be desired; the roads to be used were good, with easy grades; all camps could be located in immediate proximity to the lake, thus assuring an inexhaustible supply of pure water; and finally, the character of the country is such as to offer every opportunity for evolutions in extended order without damage to property.

The schedule arranged contemplated a march from Buffalo to Farnham station, on the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railroad, by rail, a distance of twenty-six miles; thence by foot, three miles, to the Harrison and Shaw farms on the lake shore, en-camping for five days; thence by foot ten miles to the Ingersoll farm, encamping over night; thence by foot three miles to the farm of Colonel Albert J. Myer, encamping for three days; thence by foot one and one-quarter miles to Lakeview station, L. S. & M. S. R. R., and thence by train fourteen miles to home station.

To transport field equipage and baggage by rail involved so much handling and consequent loss of time and delay that the wagon train was ordered to report at 8 a. m., on August 5th, and a detail of non-commissioned officers and men to load the wagons and for duty as guard was ordered to report at the same time. The tour of 1895 demonstrated the fact that the ordinary wagons and vans used in city traffic were unfit for service on country roads. The courtesy of the commanding officers of the Tenth Battalion and the Seventh, Ninth, Eighteenth and Twenty-second Separate Companies permitted the use of the wagon boxes purchased by these organizations for their tour of service in 1895. The teams and running gear were procured from farmers residing in the towns in which the duty was performed. The result was eminently satisfactory, the expense being less and the service far better. The train and the horses for mounted officers left the armory in charge of Battalion Quartermaster Chapin, at 11.30 a. m., with a guard of thirty men, under command of Lieutenant Doorty, of Company B. Camp was made and train parked for the night at Angola; march was resumed at 7 a. m., on the 6th; on arrival at the camp site at 10 a. m., horses were saddled and sent to the station.

The regiment assembled for inspection at 8.15 p. m., August 5th, in "Field Uniform and Equipment," with exceptions noted in R. O. No. 46. The companies were inspected by the battalion commanders and company officers.

The command assembled at 8.25 a. m., August 6th, in uniform prescribed in R. O. No. 46; present, officers, 38; men, 508; band, 30; and left armory at 9.02 a. m., marching to Ellicott street, to Chippewa, to Main, to station, arriving at 9.28 a. m. The First Battalion entrained in four, the second in four and one-half minutes. Leaving Buffalo at 9.46 a. m., the train arrived at Farnham at 10.45 a. m. The First Battalion detrained in two, the second in two and one-quarter minutes. After a short wait for the horses for the mounted officers, the regiment moved at 11.02 a. m. As the distance to be covered was but three miles, the roads being good and the temperature moderate, I decided to make the march at the cadence step and without halt; this was accomplished with ease, and apparently no discomfort to the men.

Upon arriving in camp at 12.12 p. m., the command was formed in column of companies at half distance, and arms stacked, the wagons driven to the left of the column and unloaded, and tents pitched on the alignment made by the column of stacks. Company kitchens at left of column, sinks in rear of kitchens. Drills and regimental parade were omitted.

August 7th the companies were drilled in platoon movements in the morning. In the afternoon the regiment was consolidated in one battalion of four companies of thirty-two files, and drilled in platoon movements, the drill being divided between the lieutenant-colonel and the two majors.

August 8th, the regiment was reviewed by General Peter C. Doyle, at 8.30 a. m. The review was followed by company inspection, supervised by the battalion commanders and an inspection of the camp by the commanding officers; divine service at 11.30 a. m., conducted by Rev. George B. Richards, of the Church of the Ascension, Buffalo, Chaplain Lobdell being absent on leave.

August 10th, company drill in the morning in platoon movements, companies being consolidated into four commands. The regiment was drilled in platoon movements in the afternoon, formation same as August 7th. Heavy rains during the night prevented morning drills on August 9th. The companies were sent out for extended order drill in the afternoon, but were driven back by the rain in less than thirty minutes. The excessive amount of rain flooded the camp badly, and it was necessary to furrow the ground to drain the surface water. The rain continued with brief intervals during the night.

FOR PRACTICE MARCH

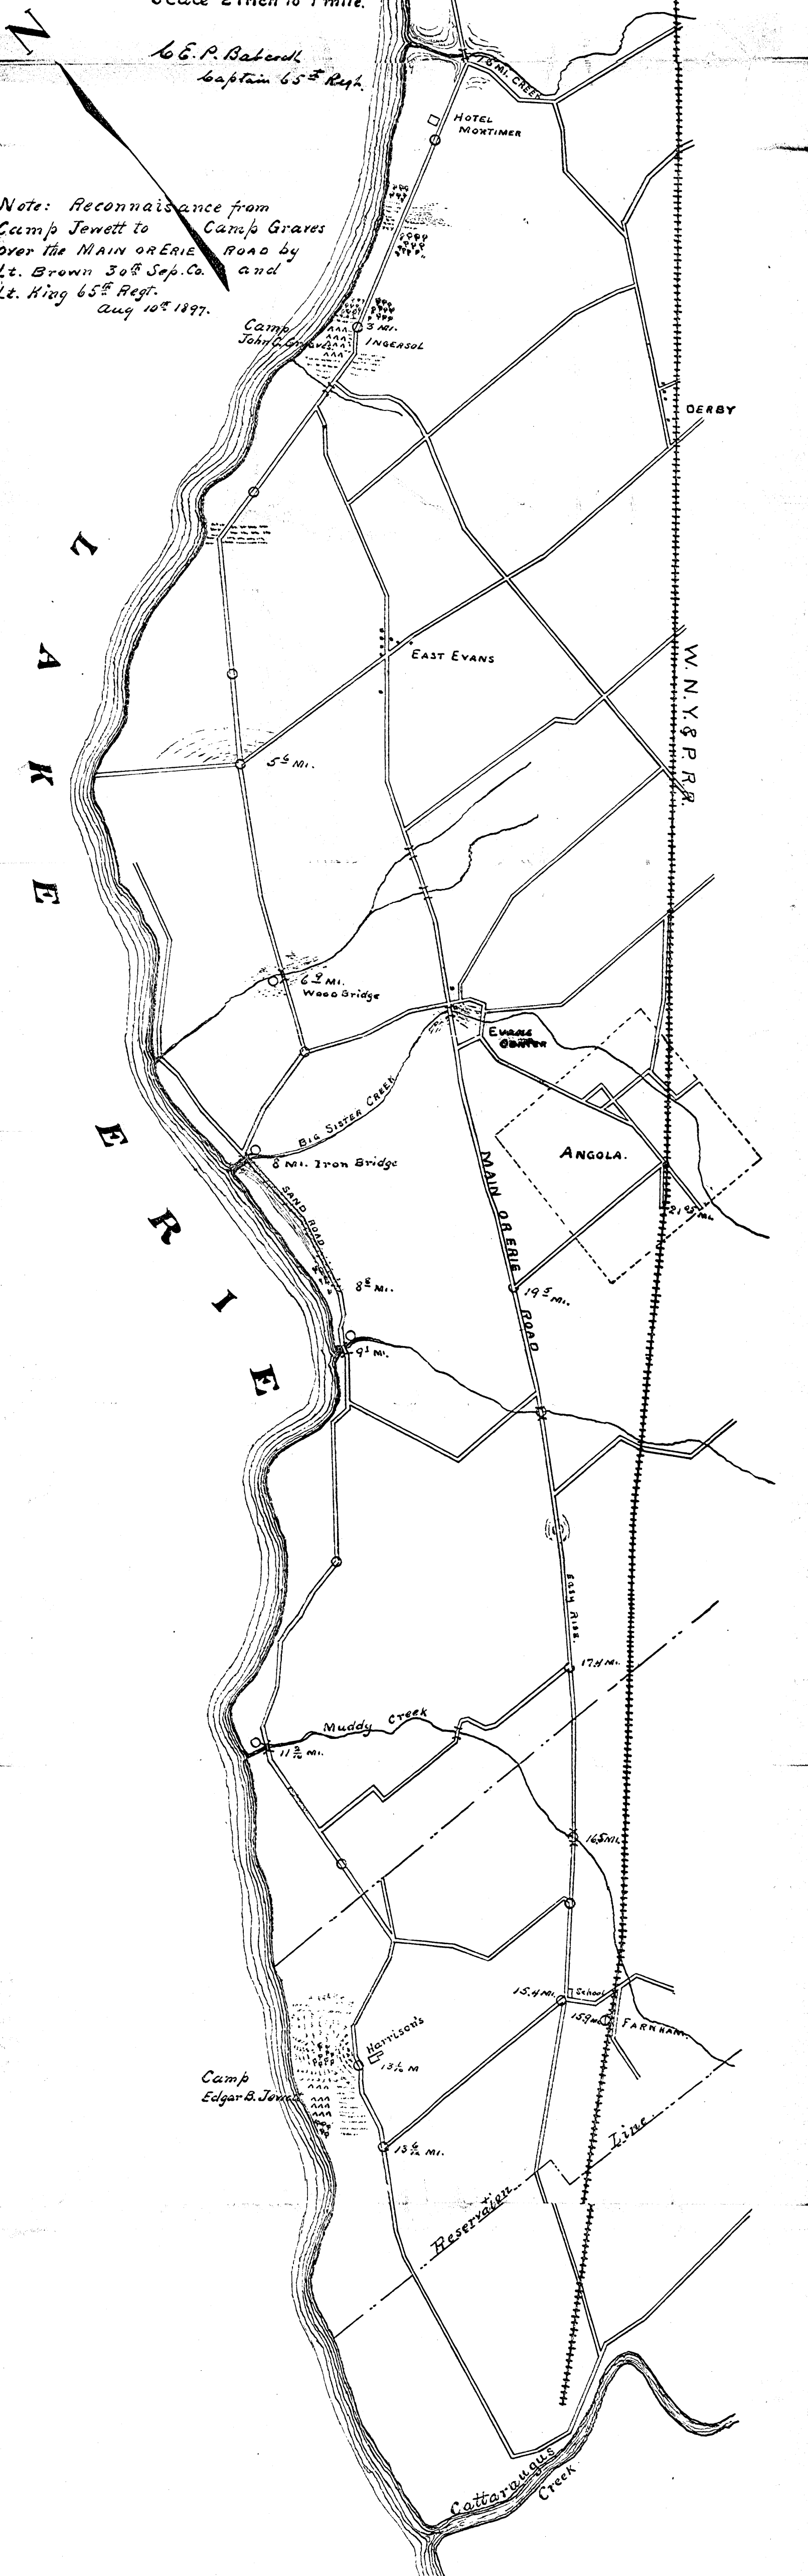

65TH REGT. N.G.N.Y.

AUG. 6th - 14th 1897.

Captain 65th Regt.

Note: Reconnaissance from Camp Jewett to Camp Graves over the MAIN OREGE ROAD by Lt. Brown 30th Sep. Co. and
Lt. King 65th Regt.
Aug 10th 1897.

On the morning of August 11th camp was broken in a drizzling rain; the condition of the ground was such that the breaking of camp was necessarily slow, and teams had to be doubled, in some instances trebled, to get the wagons to the road. General sounded at 7.15; the First Battalion reported ready at 8.37; the Second at 8.57; the last wagon reached the road at 9.40, and the regiment moved at 9.41 a. m. Owing to the condition of the roads I ordered the wagon train to move in advance, and on arriving at the road halted the regiment until 10.04; then marched until 11 a. m., at which time the head of the regiment had reached the train and the whole command was in an ideal spot for a rest directly on the shore of the lake. A halt of twenty-one minutes was made in order to allow the train to gain distance, marching at 11.21 the train was overtaken and the command halted at 12.02 p. m. At 12.14 Company D, under command of Lieutenant Louis L. Babcock, was sent forward as advance guard; the regiment followed at 12.26, and arrived at Camp John C. Graves at 1.27 p. m., the point of the advance guard arriving at 1.10. The train, which had drawn up on the side of road to allow the regiment to pass, was immediately driven in on the left of the regiment, which had formed in column of companies at half distance. The first tent was pitched in twelve minutes after arrival in camp and lunch was served in one hour. Drills were suspended for the afternoon.

August 12th, general at 8. a. m.; both battalions reported ready to move at 8.45. For this day's march a problem in minor tactics had been arranged. The Second Battalion, which moved at 9.05, with Company C as advance and Company D as rear guard, was given an hour's start, and directed to take position between Camp Graves and Camp Myer (the next station), and attack the train which was convoyed by the Second Battalion—Company F advance and the police guard rear guard. The First Battalion moved at 10.05 and was attacked about one mile from camp; the umpires awarded the advantage to the Second Battalion. The regiment reformed at 10.55 and moved directly to Camp Albert J. Myer, arriving at 11.39 a. m. Camp was pitched with kitchens on the right flank. In the afternoon, companies were drilled in extended order.

August 13th, companies were drilled in extended order both morning and afternoon.

August 14th, the First Battalion took position at the edge of the woods, about one mile from camp, and placed outposts; the advance guard of the Second Battalion moved from camp one hour later, the battalion following at proper interval, and attacking upon discovering the First Battalion. The attack was spirited and the defense equally so, the position occupied by the First Battalion being too strong to be carried by an attacking force of equal numbers; the umpires awarded the decision to the First Battalion.

The general sounded at 1.18 p. m.; at 2.15 the wagon train moved for Buffalo. The regiment assembled for parade at 4, leaving parade ground at 4.22, and marching direct to Lakeview station, arriving at 4.40 p. m. The First Battalion entrained in two, the second in two and one-half minutes; the train arrived at Buffalo depot at 5.25; the regiment detrained, formed column of fours and moved from the depot in three minutes, and marching over the same route taken when leaving, arrived at the armory at 5.56 p. m. The men were paid by the Paymaster-General of the State and dismissed.

I am gratified to report that the behavior of the command during the entire tour was excellent. The men evidently started with the intention of bettering the record of 1895, when but two complaints of a most trivial nature reached these headquarters; they succeeded, as no complaints were made, and, judging from the expressions of the residents of the country in which the duty was performed, the regiment would receive a hearty welcome should it return another season. I am satisfied that the tour was of great benefit to the command. The experience of 1895 was thoroughly utilized. In my report of that tour of duty I said "that the regiment learned more and the service was of greater benefit to its members, individually and collectively, than two tours of duty at the State Camp." The experience of this year justifies this statement in every particular. Notwithstanding the large percentage of recruits in the ranks, the absence of several officers, and the detail of five line officers from other commands, not one of whom had ever served with us until the duty began, the first camp of 1897 was pitched more rapidly and much better than the last in 1895.

As soon as officers and men became accustomed to their new environment, improvement was rapid and satisfactory; for the first time in the history of the command its members were afforded opportunity to practice extended order in a proper manner and to be taught the meaning of the drill, and the results were eminently satisfactory. Throughout the entire tour it was evident that the work was being performed with reasonable ease and little friction, and that nothing but lack of time prevented the command from attaining almost perfect condition.

Officers and men voluntarily waived pay for one day, thereby enabling the command to have eight working days in the field. In view of the rapid progress made during the last two or three days I recommend that commands ordered for field service in future have a tour of ten days. The increase in cost will be trifling, and will be much more than repaid by the large additional amount of instruction received.

The authority given for this tour of duty specified that the expense, exclusive of pay, should not exceed the expense of transporting the command from Buffalo to Peekskill and return; the cost of such transportation, based on the average number present for duty, would have been $4,808; exclusive of pay, the total expenses of the tour, including rations for the additional day, was $4,382.31. The regiment did much more work and, in my opinion, received twice the benefit it would have received from a tour at Peekskill, and the State saved over $500.

The affairs of the Quartermaster, Commissary and Medical Departments were well conducted, and I am satisfied that with the experience gained, the officers in charge of these departments are prepared for any ordinary emergency.

Owing to the unavoidable absence of several officers, First Lieutenants Ambrose M. Lock and Edward T. Donnelly, Eighth Regiment; Thurber A. Brown, Thirtieth Separate Company; and Second Lieutenant Charles W. Archibald, Twenty-fifth, and John A. Quigley, Second Separate Company, were detailed for duty during the tour. I am pleased to say that each of the gentlemen named performed the duties assigned him with credit to himself and his organization.

The regiment was again fortunate in securing the assistance of First Lieutenant James K. Thompson, Twenty-third Infantry, U. S. A., who volunteered his aid and advice from the day authority was given for the tour until its close. No officer in the regiment worked harder, and to his indefatigable work and untiring energy may be attributed many of the good results attained. In behalf of the regiment I desire to express my thanks to Lieutenant Thompson for his most valuable assistance.

The command is indebted in no small degree to Captain Edward E. Hardin, Seventh Infantry, U. S. A., who was detailed by the War Department to accompany the command, his consistent and continuous criticism and his kindly advice was of the utmost value, amply proven by the daily progress made.

I would respectfully recommend that if it is proposed to continue duty of this character, a sufficient supply of army wagons be purchased by the State to be loaned to organizations ordered for field service. It is not difficult to procure good teams and drivers, but it is practically impossible to obtain suitable wagons. Had it not been for the kindness of the commanding officers of the organizations named in this report, I would have been seriously embarrassed in the matter of transportation. I also recommend that regiments ordered for field service receive the same allowance for a band as made at the State Camp.

I am of the opinion that the forms of ration return now in use are not suited for duty of this character, and that they can be simplified and improved. I shall request the privilege of making a recommendation upon this subject and submitting proposed forms in the near future.

Copies of orders and circulars issued from these Headquarters concerning this tour, marked A, B, C & D, and a reconnaissance map of the line of march prepared by Captain Babcock, assisted by Lieutenants Brown and King, marked E, are herewith forwarded.

Respectfully,

S. M. WELCH, JR.,
Colonel.

HEADQUARTERS SIXTY-FIFTH REGIMENT, N. G. N. Y., }
BUFFALO, July 19, 1897. }

CIRCULAR No. 8.

Pursuant to orders from General Headquarters, S. N. Y., this regiment will be detailed for a tour of field service, from August 6 to 14, 1897 (inclusive).

The following is published for the information and guidance of the command:

Friday, August 6th, the regiment will march, by rail, to Farnham, detraining; thence by foot to Harrison farm on Lake Shore, where station will be taken until Wednesday, August 11th; thence to Ingersoll farm on Lake Shore, near Derby Station, where command will go into camp or bivouac for one night; thence to farm of Colonel Albert J. Myer, at Lake View, where station will be taken until Saturday, August 14th; thence by train to Buffalo. Pay for eight days will be allowed. The duty will embrace company and battalion drill in extended order, regimental drill in close order, grand guard, advance, rear and outpost guard and patrols.

The men will turn out in field uniform and equipment with such modifications as may hereafter be announced in orders.

Each enlisted man is advised to wear and carry, in addition to his uniform and equipments, the following articles: Two pairs shoes; two dark blue flannel shirts; two undershirts; two pairs each, drawers and socks; three handkerchiefs; two towels, toilet articles, housewife; shoes should have broad toes, with heavy sole and low heel; woolen socks should be worn, cotton socks not only wear out rapidly, but produce blisters on the feet.

The commanding officer directs attention to the fact this is the second time the regiment has been selected for field service — and this without an intervening tour at the State camp; that before we undertook the duty in 1895, it was freely predicted that the regiment could not be controlled and kept from depredations — the manner in which we performed our duty is a matter of record. The record was good. It can be improved if each officer and man will constantly remember that success cannot be attained unless he performs every duty required cheerfully and with alacrity, and that he must refrain from any act calculated to draw censure upon himself or his organization.

By order of Col. WELCH,
WALTER F. NURZEY,
Regimental Adjutant.

APPENDIX "K."

Report to War Department of Captain J. B. Burbank, Third United States Artillery.

WAR DEPARTMENT, ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE, }
WASHINGTON, October 2, 1897. }

To the Adjutant-General, State of New York, Albany:

Sir.—I have the honor to transmit, herewith, for your information a copy of a report on the condition of the National Guard of New York in 1897, rendered by Captain J. B. Burbank, Third United States Artillery, on duty with State troops.

Please acknowledge receipt.

Very respectfully,

ARTHUR L. WAGNER,

Assistant Adjutant-General in charge Military Information Division.

STATEMENT OF THE CONDITION OF THE NATIONAL GUARD, NEW YORK, IN 1897.

Authority: Captain James B. Burbank, Third Artillery, on duty at Headquarters N. G., S. N. Y.

Special details for State Camp at Peekskill, N. Y., June 19, to July 31, 1897, Col. J. C. Bates, Second Infantry, Captain E. E. Hardin, Seventh Infantry.

1. Official Designation of State Troops.

National Guard, New York.

2. Strength.

(a) Authorized, 15,000.

(b) Organized, 13,000.

Generals and officers of their staff, 39; cavalry, 337; artillery, 349; infantry, 12,110; special corps, 165; total, 13,000.

(c) Per cent. attending Camp, 86.67.

(d) Liable to military duty (latest estimate), 800,000; probable number fit for service, 560,000.

The Fifth Battery, stationed at Syracuse, N. Y., has been disbanded. They were equipped with obsolete material, and as it was impossible, under present conditions, to furnish them with the modern outfit, it was deemed proper to muster them out.

Two companies of infantry were also mustered out for cause, the Nineteenth, Third Brigade, stationed at Poughkeepsie and the Twenty-sixth, Fourth Brigade, stationed at Elmira.

CAPTAIN BURBANK.

3. Number, Organization and Stations of Brigades, Regiments, Battalions and Separate Companies.

There are no division organizations in the National Guard. There are four brigade organizations, as follows: First Brigade, General Louis Fitzgerald, headquarters, New York city; Second Brigade, General James McLeer, headquarters, Brooklyn; Third Brigade, General R. S. Oliver, headquarters, Albany; Fourth Brigade, General Peter C. Doyle, headquarters, Buffalo. The First Brigade is composed of the First Signal Corps, Squadron "A," three troops of cavalry, two batteries of artillery (First and Second), and the Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, Twelfth, Twenty-second, Sixty-ninth, and Seventy-first Regiments of Infantry, all stationed in the city of New York; aggregate about 5,090. The Second Brigade includes the Second Signal Corps, one troop of cavalry (C), one battery of light artillery (the Third), and the Thirteenth, Fourteenth, Twenty-third, and Forty-seventh Regiments and one separate company (the Seventeenth) of infantry, all stationed in the city of Brooklyn, except the separate company at Flushing, Long Island; aggregate about 2,863. The Third Brigade includes the Third Signal Corps, one battery of light artillery (Sixth) at Binghamton, Tenth Battalion of Infantry at Albany, and thirty separate companies of infantry, stationed as follows: Fourth, Yonkers; Eleventh, Mount Vernon; Twenty-fourth, Middletown; Fifth and Tenth, Newburgh; Fifteenth, Poughkeepsie; Fourteenth, Kingston; Sixteenth, Catskill; Twenty-third, Hudson; Twentieth, Binghamton; Thirty-third, Walton; Third, Oneonta; Thirty-sixth and Thirty-seventh, Schenectady; Seventh, Cohoes; Sixth, Twelfth and Twenty-first, Troy; Thirty-second, Hoosick Falls; Forty-sixth, Amsterdam; Twenty-second, Saratoga Springs; Eighteenth, Glens Falls; Ninth, Whitehall; Twenty-seventh, Malone; Fortieth, Ogdensburg; Thirty-ninth, Watertown; Twenty-eighth and Forty-fourth, Utica; and Twenty-first, Mohawk; aggregate about 2,861. The Fourth Brigade, General Peter C. (Map on file in Military Information Division to indicate locations of organizations as given above.) The present regiments are organizations of ten companies each, divided into two battalions of five companies each. Infantry companies consist of one captain, one first lieutenant, one second lieutenant, one first sergeant, one quartermaster-sergeant, four sergeants, eight corporals, two musicians, and with the minimum number of thirty-one and maximum of eighty-four privates. The separate companies of infantry are allowed by law an additional second lieutenant and have also each an assistant surgeon with rank of first lieutenant. A separate troop of cavalry or light battery consists of one captain, two first lieutenants, two second lieutenants, one first sergeant, one quartermaster sergeant, one veterinary sergeant, one guidon sergeant, four sergeants, eight corporals, four artificers, two trumpeters, and forty-eight minimum or eighty-four maximum privates, with an assistant surgeon with the rank of first lieutenant. The State Code authorizes the Governor to modify organizations to conform to any methods adopted in the Regular Army, now or hereafter, and to make all necessary changes to that end; also to increase the State forces beyond the standing strength of 15,000 "in case of war, insurrection, invasion, or imminent danger thereof." The Military Code of the State, as amended, states that no commission shall be issued to any officer in the National Guard, save to general officers, until the officer elected or appointed shall have passed a satisfactory examination before a board as to his knowledge of military affairs proportionate to the office to be held and his general knowledge and fitness for the service. General officers and commanding officers of regiments and battalions not a part of a regiment may nominate candidates to fill vacancies in the staffs and signal corps of their respective brigades, regiments or battalions. To each brigade there shall be one assistant adjutant-general of the grade of lieutenant-colonel (who shall be the chief of the brigade staff), one inspector, one engineer, one judge-advocate, one surgeon, one ordnance officer, one quartermaster, one commissary of subsistence, and one inspector of rifle practice, each of the grade of major, and, as the personal staff of the brigadier-general, two aides-de-camp of the grade of captain. Field and staff officers of a regiment are: One colonel, one lieutenant-colonel, and one major to each battalion; one surgeon-major, two assistant surgeons of the grade of captain; one regimental adjutant and one regimental quartermaster, each of the grade of captain; one commissary of subsistence, two battalion adjutants, and two battalion quartermasters, each of the grade of first lieutenant; one inspector of rifle practice of the grade of captain; one chaplain of the grade of captain; one regimental and two battalion sergeant-majors; one regimental and two battalion quartermaster-sergeants; one commissary sergeant; one ordnance sergeant; one hospital steward, and one assistant hospital steward for each battalion; one band leader or trumpeter, and one drum-major and two color bearers, each of the grade of sergeant. Should regiments be increased to twelve companies, the requisite number of additional officers of like grades will be appointed.

Amendments to codes passed at last session:

Section 14. Composition of a battalion.— Each battalion not part of a regiment, shall consist of not more than six nor less than four companies or batteries, one major, and a battalion staff of one adjutant, one quartermaster, one commissary of subsistence, and one inspector of rifle practice of the grade of first lieutenant, one assistant surgeon and one chaplain of the grade of captain, one sergeant-major and other non-commissioned staff officers as provided for a regiment; and whenever any regiment shall fall below eight companies, or batteries, it may be reorganized as a battalion, and the commander-in-chief may, in his discretion, retain or command the field officers of the regiment so reduced to a battalion. A squadron of cavalry, equivalent to a battalion, shall consist of not less than two nor more than four troops and it shall be allowed in addition to the above officers and non-commissioned staff officers, one assistant surgeon of the grade of first lieutenant, one veterinary surgeon, and in lieu of a drum-major, one signal sergeant.

Section 15. Company, troop and battery organization.— To each company, troop or battery there shall be one captain, one first lieutenant, and one second lieutenant, and one first sergeant and one quartermaster-sergeant, four sergeants, eight corporals, two musicians and thirty-one privates as a minimum, and eighty-four privates as a maximum. To each separate troop of cavalry and each battery of light artillery there shall be one captain, two first lieutenants, two second lieutenants, one first sergeant, one quartermaster-sergeant, one commissary sergeant, one veterinary surgeon, one guidon sergeant, four sergeants, eight corporals, four artificers, two trumpeters and forty-eight privates as a minimum and eighty-four privates as a maximum. To any battery of light artillery, or separate troop, battery or company, the commander-in-chief may appoint and commission an assistant surgeon of the grade of first lieutenant, and to each separate company one additional second lieutenant. No musician shall be allowed to a company attached to a regiment or battalion not a part of a regiment in which field music is organized pursuant to section twenty of this act.

CAPTAIN BURBANK.

4. General Officers—Number and Manner of Appointment.

Four brigadier-generals. Should major-generals be appointed, the consent of the senate is necessary. Brigadier-generals may be appointed by the Governor, or, should he so direct, they may be chosen by the field officers of the brigade and the commanding officers of troops, batteries, and companies not a part of a regiment or battalion, but in the brigade. No person is eligible for appointment or election, however, as a major or brigadier-general unless he has served five years in the National Guard; but service in the regular or volunteer forces of the United States shall be counted as service in the National Guard.

CAPTAIN BURBANK.

5. Brigade, Regimental, and Battalion Field and Staff—Number and Manner of Appointment.

Brigadier-generals and commanding officers of regiments, and battalions not a part of a regiment, may nominate candidates to fill vacancies in the staffs and signal corps of their respective brigades, regiments or battalions. No person shall be eligible for appointment or election as a brigadier-general unless he has served five years in the National Guard; but services in the regular or volunteer forces of the United States shall be counted as service in the National Guard. No person shall be eligible for appointment as a staff officer of any brigade, regiment or battalion not a part of a regiment, except judge-advocates, medical officers and chaplains unless he shall have served at least one year in the National Guard or Naval Militia of this State, or in the regular or volunteer forces of the United States.

6. Company Officers—How Selected or Appointed—Examination of.

Company officers are chosen by written or printed votes of officers and enlisted men of their respective companies and commissioned by the Governor after passing a satisfactory examination by a board as to their knowledge of military affairs proportionate to the office and their general knowledge and fitness for the service. They must be citizens of the United States and not less than 18 years of age.

CAPTAIN BURBANK.

7. Staff Department—Adjutant General, duties of—Medical Department, duties of—Other Staff Corps, duties of.

The staff of the Commander-in-Chief consists of 1 adjutant-general of the grade of major-general, who shall be the chief of staff and is charged with the general duties pertaining to that position in the regular army—he is also the auditor of military accounts, and all claims payable from the treasury of the State for military purposes are regularly audited by him and approved by the Governor as commander-in-chief before payment; 1 Inspector-General, and 1 Commissary-General who shall be Chief of Ordnance; 1 Judge-Advocate General who shall be a counselor-at-law of the Supreme Court of at least five years' standing; 1 Surgeon-General who shall be a graduate of some incorporated school of medicine and of at least five years' practice; 1 Chief of Engineers who shall have been educated as an engineer; 1 Chief of Artillery; 1 Quartermaster-General; 1 Paymaster-General; 1 Commissary-General of subsistence and 1 General Inspector of Rifle Practice, each of the grade of Brigadier-General; 6 Aides-de-Camp and 1 Military Secretary, each of the rank of Colonel. The Inspector-General, Surgeon-General, and Judge-Advocate Generals are charged with the duties performed by officers of like grade in the United States Army. The other chiefs of staff departments have but supervisory functions in peace times. The chiefs of staff departments, the aides-de-camp, and the military secretary of the Commander-in-Chief are appointed by each Governor and their commissions expire with the term for which the Governor appointing them shall have been elected.

CAPTAIN BURBANK.

8. Ambulance Corps and Hospital Corps—Organization, Equipment and Efficiency.

The hospital corps of the State consists of the hospital stewards of regiments, battalions and squadrons and of the men especially enlisted for or transferred from companies to hospital corps of organizations, to the number of 12 for a regiment, 8 for a squadron or a battalion not part of a regiment, and 2 for each separate or unattached troop, battery, company, and signal corps, and is in addition to the authorized strength of the organizations; a corporal is authorized for each little squad of 4 men. Each corporal and private is, in active service, required to carry a canteen of water, a knife, and, except where serving as an orderly, a hospital-corps pouch, the contents of which are substantially the same as that used in the regular service. The State regulations governing the corps have been recently modified and are published in General Orders No. 11, General Headquarters, State of New York, July 13, 1896.

No ambulance corps has as yet been organized and equipped. An experimental ambulance was attached to the hospital during the Peekskill camp. When the proper vehicle has been evolved it is proposed to furnish one to each brigade and keep one permanently at the State Camp.

CAPTAIN BURBANK.

In Camp.

Organized as in the Army. Equipment and efficiency excellent. Was drilled daily by and under the supervision of very efficient medical officers.

The hospital was well organized for efficient service. The sick list was small.

COLONEL BATES.

The men were equipped with litters, pouches and dressing packets, all of which were new and good. The hospital was fully equipped and an officer, Lieutenant-Colonel Jarvis, Assistant Surgeon-General, was detailed in charge of the instruction of the hospital corps and surgeons. There was a lack of uniformity in the instruction of the different corps, and it is intended to bring them into more uniformity by instruction in camp. A Remington bicycle ambulance, carrying a stretcher, was also on duty and was very useful in carrying off men who had been hurt, taken ill or overcome by the heat. It was very convenient and very much used. The rapidity with which two men with this machine respond to any call for assistance was remarkable. I do not think it would be of much use away from good roads, but one would be very useful at any military post or camp.

CAPTAIN HARDIN.

9. Signal Corps—Organization, Equipment, and Efficiency.

In each brigade of the State there is a signal corps consisting of 1 Captain, 1 First-Lieutenant, 1 Assistant-Surgeon (First-Lieutenant), and not exceeding 46 non-commissioned officers and privates. The chief signal officer for the Guard holds the rank of Major and exercises supervisory control over the entire force.

They are equipped with all the paraphernalia in use by similar corps in the regular army. They are properly organized and are in efficient condition. Of their capacity to perform any of the duties connected with their branch of the work with celerity and accuracy there is no possible doubt. Applicants for enlistment in this corps must furnish proof that they have been practical telegraphers, or civil, mechanical or electrical engineers, or that they have received instruction in these branches.

CAPTAIN BURBANK.

10. Regular Army Officer attached to Headquarters.

Captain James B. Burbank, Third U. S. Artillery.

11. Military or Advisory Board—Organization and Duties.

There is none.

12. Encampment—Regimental, Brigade, or Divisional—Period of Duration—Ground Owned by State—If so, Location—Regular Troops Encamped with State Troops.

All organizations of the Guard of the State are sent on alternate years—one-half each year—to the camp of instruction at Peekskill as regiments or provisional battalion of the separate companies, each command serving one week. The entire period of instruction this year was 6 weeks. The camp-ground is owned by the State, and, with the exception of its limited area, is a model in all respects. Aggregate attending camp 299 officers and 4,908 men. Although the reservation is too limited for proper exemplification of the extended order drill, it is in admirable condition and provided with everything but barracks and quarters necessary for a completely equipped military post.

Commands upon arrival find camp in complete order, mess-hall ready for use, and meals prepared, and instruction according to prearranged programme commences immediately.

No regular troops were on duty at the camp this year.

CAPTAIN BURBANK.

13. Mobilization—(a) Points of Concentration for Service in State—
 (b) Points of Concentration for Service out of State—(c)
Time required for Concentration for Service in and out of State—(d) Plans for Emergency—(e) Per cent. that would probably Turn Out for Sixty Days' Service.

(a) There are no defined points for concentration. As the State is traversed by railroads north and south, east and west (six being trunk lines), with a network of connecting branches, and as important towns of great manufacturing and commercial interests are distributed over its entire area, no points of concentration could be pre-arranged except as the result of immediate conditions. The organizations composing the Guard are widely and symmetrically distributed, the prepondering force (over one-half) being in New York and Brooklyn.

(b) It is believed, in the light of past experience, that the entire Guard with its field equipment could be concentrated at any point within state limits in 24 hours, if short previous notice were given, or in 48 hours if the call was unexpected. This is due to the extraordinary railroad facilities available.

(c) Same as (b).

(d) There are no plans for emergency except the general conditions of preparedness which exist in the entire force.

(e) About 80 per cent.

CAPTAIN BURBANK.

14. State Appropriations.

For the year ending October 1, 1897, $447,000; besides that a special appropriation of $30,000 for uniforms and equipments. Regular appropriation expended in payment, feeding troops, while en route, under orders and in camp, transportation, clothing, and ordinary incidentals connected therewith.

CAPTAIN BURBANK.

15. National Appropriations.

Thirty-one thousand fifty-four dollars and five cents, which amount the State draws in military stores and equipment from the Government.

CAPTAIN BURBANK.

16. Armament—Cavalry, Artillery, Infantry—Character and Conditions of.

Orders from the headquarters are now published and are being carried out which will result in the exchange of the Remington rifle and carbine now in the hands of the cavalry and infantry of the National Guard for the Springfield rifle and carbine, rod bayonet, pursuant to the law authorizing such exchange passed at the last session of Congress.

Cavalry has the regulation sabre and revolvers, latest model.

Artillery—First, Second and Sixth batteries (each) four breech loading rifles (3.2 in.) with latest model of carriages, harness and equipments. Third battery, 4 Gatling guns (cal.50). These four batteries have also light artillery sabres and latest model Colt's revolver. The armament of the cavalry and artillery is in excellent condition. Woven belts for cavalry and infantry are also ordered.

CAPTAIN BURBANK.

17. Equipment—Cavalry Artillery Infantry—Character and Condition of.

Cavalry same as in the regular army in good condition.

Artillery—First, Second and Sixth Batteries, new late army pattern.

Infantry—Merriam packs, haversacks and canteens, army pattern, good.

CAPTAIN BURBANK.

Uniform Clothing—Character and Condition of.

Clothing is made to order, by contract, under State supervision, color similar to U. S. uniform with the exception of the Seventh of New York city. No regular pattern of shoe has been adopted and no underclothing is issued by the State. Gray blankets furnished by the Government from State allowance of general appropriation. The double-breasted dress coats are being steadily changed to single-breasted, greatly improving the appearance of the men. Clothing generally in very good condition.

CAPTAIN BURBANK.

19. Horses, Owned or Hired.

Hired when needed. Some officers own their own mounts and are allowed to use them.

CAPTAIN BURBANK.

20. Ammunition.—(a) Character and Amount of, Actually in Hands of Troops. (b) Amount that could be Supplied on Arrival at Point of Concentration.

(a) In the armories of cavalry and infantry troops 20 rounds per man; Artillery, 200 rounds of shrapnel and percussion shell each, for 3.2-inch breech loaders; stored in State arsenal. In reserve at arsenal 600,000 cartridges, caliber .50, for Remington rifles and Gatling guns. (b) Many millions of small-arms ammunition could be supplied through purchase by the great cartridge-making companies of New York and Connecticut in a day.

CAPTAIN BURBANK.

21. Camp and Garrison Equipage.—(a) Tentage, etc. (b) Mess Outfits.

(a) The State has on hand and serviceable, 80 hospital tents, 1,100 wall tents, 700 conical wall tents and 150 A tents. No shelter tents on hand. (b) Each company, troop and battery, as well as the various headquarters, are supplied with a complete cooking outfit with mess furniture.

CAPTAIN BURBANK.

22. Property Accountability—Nature of—Are Regulations in Regard to, Strictly Enforced?

Commanders of regiments, battalions, separate companies, troops, batteries and corps are responsible for all public property in the possession of their commands. The regulations governing accountability are based upon those of the regular army and appear to be strictly enforced.

CAPTAIN BURBANK.

23. Subsistence—Rations—Component Parts of—How Furnished—How Prepared.

Component parts of the ration as established by the State regulations are substantially the same as the regular army ration, but about 25 per cent. larger. The subsistence department furnishes it through contracts when practicable. In emergencies rations are purchased by immediate commanding officers under regulations. In Camp of Instruction at Peekskill troops are fed by contract at a general mess hall, where all the facilities of a large hotel are provided for use of the contractors in supplying stated meals.

CAPTAIN BURBANK.

24. Pay and Allowances.

As laid down in the State military code (copy on file in Military Information Division of the War Department) and as amended by G. O. No. 12, Headquarters State of New York, Adjutant-General's office, August 30, 1897.

25. Stores.—(a) Purchase of. (b) Amount Required, in Addition to those now on Hand, to Enable the Command to take the Field for Sixty Days. (c) Medical Supplies.

(a) Stores for the use of the Guard are purchased on contract by the chief of ordnance of the State on requisitions by commanders approved by the adjutant-general. (b) * * * (c) The senior medical officer of each organization has on hand a small supply of field appliances, except ambulances. A system of complete equipment for field and hospital service, including ambulances, is now being prepared and will undoubtedly be furnished in the near future. In an emergency, supplies would be purchased in open market by each medical officer.

CAPTAIN BURBANK.

26. Drills and Ceremonies—(a) Number and Nature of. (b) Proficiency in. (c) Field Exercises.

(a) One annual inspection; five drills and parades, including inspection, muster, and the week of camp duty counting as one drill. These five drills are outdoor. In addition, twelve evening drills are made compulsory by law for all officers (except general and staff) and enlisted men. Commanders of organizations may order additional drills, parades and other forms of military instruction in their discretion (sec. 141, Military Code). These additional drills will average four per month through eight months of the year, for the entire Guard of the State. From observation of commands throughout the State I am deeply impressed with the zeal and efficiency which characterize all the work done in the various armories and the warm interest shown in the performance of all duties.

CAPTAIN BURBANK.

In Camp. During each week eighteen hours are devoted to drill, and seven parades and seven guard mountings are held. Proficiency ceremonies and close order drill, very good. But little attention seems to have been given to the extended order. Field exercises, as a rule, were not held. In a few instances troops were exercised as advance and rear guards; assumed attacks were repulsed, etc.; executed in very creditable manner. During the six weeks two reviews were held, one for the Governor and one for the Major-General commanding the camp. The ceremonies were all executed.

COLONEL BATES.

(a) Drill from 6.45 a. m. to 7 a. m. School of the company in close order. Platoon and company in extended order. Six drills for each organization.

Drill from 9.30 a. m. to 11.30 a. m., on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. School of the battalion in close order; three drills for each battalion. Thursday and Friday regimental drill, close order; two drills for each regiment. Battalion of separate companies drilled with the regiment, forming the Third Battalion.

(b). In the close order drills, the company, battalion and regimental drills varied from fair to excellent. Officers were very generally well posted. In the most of the organizations the presence of recruits somewhat marred the drills, but in no organization was the drill bad. Extended order drill was not good, and instruction in this part of the drill seems to have been neglected.

(c) No field exercises were held in camp. In the Seventh Regiment one day was devoted to instruction in advance guard and outpost duty. Two battalions marched out and were carefully and intelligently instructed and practiced in this duty. The duty was well done, and seemed to be thoroughly understood by the officers, and was rapidly learned by the men. In some other organizations theoretical instruction to a limited extent was given in these duties.

CAPTAIN HARDIN.

The Sixty-fifth Regiment, Colonel Welch, stationed at Buffalo, N. Y., made a practice march from that city, which included field exercises at their various camps. This march commenced August 6th, at 9 a. m., to August 13th. This is the second experiment made by this command in field work, with evidently most satisfactory results, judging from the unanimous testimony of all who accompanied the command as inspectors and assistants.

CAPTAIN BURBANK.

* * * * *

From report of Captain Hardin—Special detail for the practice march of Sixty-fifth Regiment:

21. Condition of camp and garrison equipage:

(a) Tentage.—Conical wall tents; one to three company officers, one to twelve men. In excellent condition.

(b) Mess outfits.—Meat cans, tin cups, knives, forks and spoons, tin plates, for each man. Buzzacott ovens, camp kettles for each company, in excellent condition.

23. Subsistence, rations, component parts of; how furnished; how prepared. According to table of rations given in State regulations.

Rations were purchased by the regimental commissary of subsistence, and by him issued to company messes daily.

Rations were prepared with the mess outfits furnished over open camp fires by men detailed for the purpose—all members of the companies. Meals were cooked and served with very creditable promptness, showing no lack of ability to properly feed the men.

26. Drills and ceremonies:

(a) Number and nature of:

Regimental parades, seven.

Regimental review, one.

Battalion inspection, one for each battalion.

Guard mounting, nine.

Battalion drill, two in close order, each battalion.

Battalion drill, one in extended order, each battalion.

Company drills, three close order each.

Company drills, four extended order each.

(b) Proficiency in, fair; great improvement made during the week.

(c) Field exercises.

1. Second Battalion left camp August 12th, one hour before the other battalion, with orders to take a position to attack First Battalion guarding wagon train en route. Upon firing one volley by either side everyone was to halt and umpire to decide.

First Battalion left camp with advance guards properly disposed. Owing to failure of flankers and advance guards to properly search the ground, the decision was given in favor of the attacking party—Second Battalion of the regiment.

2. First Battalion of the regiment was sent out August 14th to take up a defensive position with outposts. Second Battalion was sent out one hour later to find and attack First Battalion. Second Battalion carried out attack properly, but owing to strength of position, numbers being equal, decision was given in favor of First Battalion, the defense.

27. Personnel and discipline:

The personnel of the officers excellent—all are studious and intelligent, and thoroughly in earnest and anxious to learn all details of the profession. The men are willing to do as they are told. They are not educated men, and are not sufficiently well drilled in the school of the soldier to make them readily respond to commands.

Discipline, good. I saw no breaches of discipline and no bad conduct of any kind.

28. Theoretical instruction was given twice each day, on the drill, and field duties, and routine duties of the camp. Non-commissioned officers and privates detailed for guard were instructed each day on guard mounting and the duties of the guard.

28. Guard duty; how performed. Officers and non-commissioned officers well instructed? Sentinels well instructed? Any outpost duty?

Performed according to U. S. Manual of Guard Duty fairly well. Officers were well instructed. Non-commissioned officers and sentinels well instructed, but lacking experience. No outpost duty except for instruction. Each battalion posted outposts once for instruction.

30. Target practice: None held in camp.

One ambulance, U. S. Army pattern, owned by State, with the regiment on the march.

The regiment assembled at its armory, Buffalo, N. Y., August 5th, and was inspected by the colonel and majors. On August 6th, at 9 a. m., the regiment left its armory and marched to the Lake Shore depot, where it arrived at 9.35 a. m. Entered the cars very promptly, and left at 9.45 a. m. Arrived at Farnham at 10.50 a. m. Left Farnham at 11.05 a. m., and reached camp at 12.05 p. m., distance three miles, where the wagons which left Buffalo the day before were awaiting them. Camp was pitched, sinks dug, and lunch served at 2.30 p. m.

The camp was well made, the men showing result of training they had received two years ago, and also of some training given them at the armory.

The regiment remained in this camp until Wednesday, August 11th. Heavy rain fell on the 9th and 10th, interfering with drill, and losing two days of valuable time. On August 11th the regiment marched ten miles, to Derby; here camp was beautifully made in very short time. The march was conducted with advance guard properly disposed. On August 12th camp was struck, wagons properly packed, and the regiment ready to move in less than an hour from sounding the general. Sinks filled up and ground policed. Marched five miles and went into camp at Lake View. Great improvement was made in pitching each successive camp.

CAPTAIN HARDIN.

* * * * *

27. Personnel and Discipline.

The personnel of the Guard of this State, as a whole, may be classed as excellent. Close examinations, medical and otherwise, keep the various organizations free from undesirable elements, and in some organizations it would be hard to find their equal anywhere in respect to their moral, mental and physical attributes. A high standard of professional pride is evidenced in all quarters and but for the limiting condition of time a very high standard of efficiency would be attained.

CAPTAIN BURBANK.

In Camp.—Personnel, excellent. Discipline, very good. But little drinking and cases of drunkenness very rare. In most organizations the spirit is excellent and has a marked good effect on discipline.

COLONEL BATES.

The personnel of the various organizations varies very much, but is generally very good. The discipline is fair in the poorest organizations to excellent in the best. There was nothing in the conduct of any of the organizations to call for censure or harsh criticism. Orders were obeyed cheerfully, and generally promptly, and there was an entire absence of anything savoring of rowdyism or insubordination. There was, so far as I could see, no intoxication. The men were careful at all times to salute, and showed proper respect to all officers.

CAPTAIN HARDIN.

28. Theoretical Instruction.

Theoretical instruction is continuous throughout the year for officers and men at their various armories. Whenever desired lectures on the general operations of war were given by the officer on duty at headquarters.

CAPTAIN BURBANK.

In Camp.—Theoretical instruction was given to officers and non-commissioned officers in drill. This was done daily by commanding officers and included in each lesson the drill for the next day. Very little instruction was necessary in the drill-ground, the officers seeming to know what was to be done, when commands were given.

CAPTAIN HARDIN.

29. Guard Duty—How Performed—Officers and Non-commissioned Officers Well Instructed—Sentinels Well Instructed—Any Outpost Duty.

Guard duty excellent. Officers, non-commissioned officers and sentinels well instructed. Owing to the work of thoroughly competent instructors at camp, a uniform system obtains in the whole guard and the duty is well done.

COLONEL BATES.

Guard duty was performed strictly in accordance with the United States regulations for guards; it was generally very well performed. Officers and non-commissioned officers were well instructed, and the sentinels were well instructed, considering the limited amount of guard duty performed by the men.

CAPTAIN HARDIN.

30. Target Practice—Cavalry, Artillery, and Infantry—Range and Gallery—Any Held at Stations of Troops—Any Held in Camp—Quality of Instruction, System, and Classification.

There are three regular small-arm ranges in the State and under its control, used by the organizations of cavalry and infantry, within convenient distance. The largest and most complete is at Creedmoor, Long Island, to which the troops of the First and Second Brigades resort under regulations issued by the inspector of rifle practice; another at Rensselaerwyck, near Albany, used by portions of the Third Brigade, and the third near Tonawanda, on the Niagara river, for the use of troops in that vicinity. Besides these each separate company has its own range in cases where it is inconvenient to use the above-named. All armories in the State are provided with galleries with complete equipment for indoor practice. All members of the Guard are required to practice; records and qualifications of marksmen and sharpshooters are accurately kept on the Creedmoor system, and the majority are marksmen. In some regiments 100 per cent. have qualified as such. Forty rounds per man per annum is the official allowance of the State; many, however, purchase more on private account. Over three-quarters of the Guard are qualified experts, sharpshooters and marksmen.

CAPTAIN BURBANK.

In Camp.—None except the First and Second Batteries held a match for a prize (trophy). Each battery used two guns and fired from each gun five rounds of percussion shell and five of shrapnel at 1,000 yards. The accuracy was only fair.

COLONEL BATES.

31. Transportation—Railroad and River.

The extraordinary railroad facilities, for which the State is noted, combined with extensive water transportation, make it feasible to transport troops and material in any direction with speed and facility, and obviate the necessity for State provision for this purpose except where demanded by local conditions, which can be easily met.

CAPTAIN BURBANK.

32. Military Code—Date of, etc.—Do State Laws Provide for State Troops Being Called into Service of United States?

The present State Code was enacted May 4, 1893. Copies of orders amendatory are appended.

They do not.

CAPTAIN BURBANK.

33. Regulations—Nature and Date of.

State regulations are in their nature the same as United States Army regulations, governing the entire business economy of the State of New York. They were published and issued May 15, 1894.

CAPTAIN BURBANK.

34. Maps—Scales and Character.

Each brigade has at its headquarters maps of the cities and territory within its jurisdiction. No special map making is required; the State survey maps are so complete and elaborate as to preclude any necessity for work of this character by the military authorities.

CAPTAIN BURBANK.

35. Armories—Location and Description.

The armories of the National Guard organizations are of two classes: First, those built by the State; second, those built by county authorities. The law governing their erection and control is set forth in full in paragraphs 170, 173, 176, 177, 178, and 179 of General Orders No. 9, general headquarters, State of New York, June 2, 1896, publishing amendments to the Military Code. All regiments, battalions, squadrons, batteries, signal corps, and separate companies throughout the State have their own armories, varying in size to suit the necessities of the case. The regimental armories in size and completeness are splendid specimens of such structures; they are equipped with all the machinery necessary for the care of the command as to cooking, messing, bathing, and general administration; rifle galleries for indoor practice are also part of their equipment. The map of the State of New York, filed with the last report, in the Military Information Division of the War Department, shows the stations throughout the State of all these organizations.

CAPTAIN BURBANK.

36. Arsenals—Location and Description.

The State has but one arsenal, located at Seventh avenue and Thirty-fifth street, New York city. From this arsenal all stores are issued to State troops and camps, on orders from general headquarters.

CAPTAIN BURBANK.

37. Independent Commands within State.

The "Old Guard," of New York city, 100 men, and the "Albany Burgesses Corps," of Albany, 65 men. They receive no aid from the State, but are liable to be called into service by the Governor in case of riot or insurrection.

CAPTAIN BURBANK.

38. Recommendations.

As to the development of the Guard in professional knowledge and general efficiency from year to year is so manifest as to be beyond question, it is confidently believed that in the near future a broader field for the application of their professional attainments will be sought beyond the possibilities of the armory drill floor and the limited area allowed by the Camp of Instruction at Peekskill. As this spirit increases, which it is sure to do under the impulse of its desire for progress, a clean association with the regular service would be desirable for practical instruction and aid in carrying on field operations. No State is so well fitted as New York for manoeuvres on a large scale. The large numbers of the army stationed in and about it, the variety of its terrain and exceptional capacities for rail or water transportation, give opportunities for such work unexcelled in this country. It is to be hoped that the War Department will be ready to encourage and foster any expansion in this direction whenever the desire becomes manifest, as it has already in other States.

The practice march of the Sixty-fifth Regiment from Buffalo in August, a most positive success, not only from the technical results attained, but in its approval and enjoyment by all concerned indicates strongly the new and advanced spirit which is being born.

Units from each arm of the regular service equipped for the field, and conducting its own mess and camp service should be at each encampment as object lessons in that phase of the military economy which for many reasons the Guard has had few opportunities to properly study.

39. Remarks.

The lack of interest in the extended order is due primarily to the knowledge that the War Department has under consideration a revision of the drill and the general belief that material changes will be made, especially in the extended order. But I am told some of the higher officers of the Guard discouraged its practice as a waste of time, remarking "it was all very well for the Regular Army, but the Guard had no use for it, even for street fighting." I was sorry to learn that such view was held, as it seems to entirely lose sight of the strongest and best motive of action on the part of the Guardsman, that is, the desire to fit himself and others for the best service to his country in time of war.

Five years ago I had the pleasure of being with the troops of this State for several weeks, and though I was surprised then to find them in such good condition, I now see marked improvement. There can be no question that the State has in its National Guard a body of intelligent men, in well-drilled, well-disciplined organizations, ready to respond when called on for practical work, and to do efficient service.

COLONEL BATES.

Apart from the willingness to promote closer affiliations between the regular service and the National Guard, by bringing them together in field and camp, it is improbable that the general government can be of any especial immediate aid to the Guard. Under the stringent limitations as to time employed the amount of work performed is worthy of strong approval, and the zeal and intelligence thrown into the discharge of all military duties can but evoke admiration from those brought into immediate contact with the personnel of the Guard of this State. The adjutant-general and headquarters staff are well aware of the needs of the situation and are working intelligently and persistently toward a higher development. One emphatic want in the routine of yearly work is evident, that is, some field of action for staff officers and the opportunity, which they ardently desire, to learn and practice those onerous and important functions which so suddenly fall on them when necessity calls the Guard for duty. However, this want is profoundly appreciated and the fact of its appreciation is sound proof that the remedy will soon follow.

CAPTAIN BURBANK.

APPENDIX "L."

Report of Col. J. C. Bates, Second United States Infantry, on Camp Duty.

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y., August 10, 1897.

The Officer in Charge of the Military Information Division, War Department, Washington, D. C.:

Sir.—In compliance with instructions contained in your letter of June 19th, I have the honor to make the following report:

Upon receipt of telegraphic notice of the issuance of S.O. 140, C. S. W. D. A. G. O., I left Fort Keogh, Mont., June 18th, 1897, taking the first train, reached the State Camp near Peekskill, N. Y., June 21st, and reported to the Governor of New York by letter and in person to Major-General Tillinghast, Adjutant-General of the State and Post Commander at the Camp of Instruction. From that time until the close of the camp, July 31st, I was on duty there.

The numbers opposite the following subjects are those used in your letter above referred to.

8. Ambulance Corps: None. Hospital Corps: Organized as in the army. Equipment and efficiency, excellent. Is drilled daily by and under the supervision of very efficient medical officers.

The hospital is well organized for efficient service. The sick list was small.

9. Signal Corps: Not represented in camp this year.

12. Encampment: Regimental; one week for each organization; no regular troops.

See accompanying tabular statement marked "A."

16. Armament: Cavalry, none in camp. Artillery, 3.2 B. L. rifles, sabers and revolvers. Condition fairly good.

Infantry: The Remington rifle, which will probably be soon replaced by the Springfield, calibre .45. Condition: Not up to a proper standard; many are allowed to become rusty in camp, though I learn they are kept in fairly good condition in the armories.

17. Equipment: Cavalry, none in camp. Artillery, as required for regular batteries. Condition, fairly good. Infantry: Cartridge boxes with black leather belts, which will probably be soon replaced by the Web belt.

The Merriam pack, shelter tent, canteen and haversack. Character and conditions, good. Meat cans, knives, forks, spoons and tin cups, not being needed in camp of instruction, are kept at the armories.

18. Clothing: Very like that of the army, is in good condition and is owned by the State, with few exceptions. The Seventh Regiment has its own uniform and draws scarcely any clothing from the State.

The Twenty-second and Seventy-first Regiments use the State uniform and also some of their own.

19. Horses are hired by the State when organizations are ordered out. Probably 30 per cent. of the horses so hired are owned by members of organizations.

20. Ammunition: Infantry, quality, good; 20 rounds per man in hands of troops. Artillery, 25 rounds of shell and shrapnel with each battery. Quality, apparently good, though I was informed there was material difference in the weight of projectiles, that hurt their accuracy.

21. Camp and Garrison Equipage: Tentage, good. Mess outfits, none in camp.

23. At the camp excellent meals are furnished by contract. Rations. See par. 94, Regulations S. N. Y.

26. Drills and ceremonies: See Part. 9 G. O. 7. C. S. Gen'l Hd. Qrs. S. N. Y. and marked "B."

During the week eighteen hours are devoted to drill, and seven parades and seven grand mountings are held. Proficiency ceremonies and close order drill, very good. But little attention seems to have been given to the extended order. Field exercises as a rule, were not held. In a few instances troops were exercised as advance and rear guards; assumed attacks were repulsed, etc.; executed in very creditable manner. During the six weeks two reviews were held, one for the Governor and one for the Major-General commanding the camp. The ceremonies were all executed.

27. Personnel, excellent. Discipline, very good. But little drinking and cases of drunkenness very rare. In most organizations the esprit is excellent and has a marked good effect on discipline.

28. Theoretical instruction: Confined mostly to schools of instruction in guard duty and the drill; and in my opinion such instruction should be confined in camp to subjects closely connected with their practical work.

29. Guard duty, excellent. Officers, non-commissioned officers and sentinels well instructed. Owing to the work of thoroughly competent instructors at the camp, a uniform system obtains in the whole guard and the duty is well done.

30. Target Practice: None in camp, except that the first and second batteries held a match for a prize. Each battery used two guns and fired from each gun five rounds of percussion shell and five of shrapnel at 1,000 yards. The accuracy was only fair.

The State owns an ambulance for each brigade and one for the camp at Peekskill.

38. Recommendations: First. That more attention be given to the extended order drill.

Second. That a considerably larger percentage of the command in camp attend drill.

Third. That instruction be given in advance and rear guards, outposts, reconnaissance, scouting, the making of itineraries, brief reports of information obtained by reconnaissance and scouting, simple map-making and map-reading, etc.

39. Remarks. The lack of interest in the extended order is due primarily to the knowledge that the War Department has under consideration a revision of the drill and the general belief that material changes will be made especially in the extended order. But I am told some of the higher officers of the Guard discouraged its practice as a waste of time, remarking it was all very well for the regular army, but the Guard had no use for it, even for street fighting. I was sorry to learn that such view was held, as it seems to entirely lose sight of the strongest and best motive of action on the part of the guardsman—that is, the desire to fit himself and others for the best service to his country in time of war.

More than one hundred more men would be available for drill if the old and new guard were required to attend. Should the guard be mounted at 3 or 4 p. m., and relieved at reveille it would not involve very severe duty to have all guards attend drill, but one guard would miss parade and there need be no falling off from the high standard attained in guard duty. The hours for policing camp and other necessary fatigue could be so fixed as not to interfere with drill or ceremonies.

Five years ago I had the pleasure of being with the troops of this State for several weeks, and though I was surprised then to find them in such good condition, I now see marked improvement. There can be no question that the State has in its National Guard a body of intelligent men, in well drilled, well disciplined organizations, ready to respond when called on for practical work, and to do efficient service. I wish to make acknowledgment of the marked and unvarying courtesy with which I was treated while on this duty.

Respectfully submitted,

J. C. BATES,
Colonel Second Infantry.

APPENDIX "M."

Report of Capt. E. E. Hardin, 7th U. S. Infantry, on Field Service of 65th Regiment.

WEST NEW BRIGHTON, S. I.,

August 18, 1897.

Major-General C. WHITNEY TILLINGHAST, 2nd, Adjutant-General
State of New York, Albany:

General.—In compliance with your verbal request I have the honor to submit the following confidential report of the march made by the Sixty-fifth Regiment.

The regiment was inspected at its armory August 5th at 8 p. m. The wagons had been loaded and sent out on the road to Farnham on the 5th and arrived there on the 6th, about the same time the troops arrived. At 9 a. m. on the 6th the regiment formed and marched to the Lake Shore depot, and entrained in about five minutes, a very creditable performance. The men were equipped with campaign uniforms and carried their packs with blanket, poncho and overcoat.

Arriving at Farnham on the Lake Shore railroad at 10.50 the regiment promptly detrained and at 11.05 started on the march for the camp, three miles distant. The regiment made the three miles in one hour, marching at attention with music playing. This was not the proper manner of conducting the march, but seeing the slackness of the drill in the regiment, I thought the march made in that manner would be a good drill for the men, and therefore I did not criticise that point and do not do so now. I think the departure from the usual manner of marching was a good thing under the circumstances.

Arriving at the camp at 12.05 the regiment formed in column of companies and stacked arms, the columns of stacks forming the alignment for the company streets. The wagons were then unloaded and tents pitched.

Lieutenant J. K. Thompson, Twenty-third United States Infantry, superintended the making of camp and it was very well made and for a first attempt very quickly. The kitchen fires were made on a line and opposite company streets. Sinks further back also on a line. The remainder of the day was spent in policing the camp. The ground being covered with loose hay, rendered it dangerous to have fires and made the policing very necessary. During the stay in this camp the sinks were covered with fresh earth twice a day, garbage was thrown into holes dug near the kitchen fires which holes were also covered twice a day with earth. All holes and trenches were filled before leaving camp. Saturday, the 7th, the companies were drilled in the school of the company from 8 to 10 a. m. and after drill officers' school was held until 11. The drills were very poor; officers commands poorly given. From 2 to 4 p. m. the battalions were drilled by the majors, and at 5 o'clock regimental parade was held. The formation of the line at parade was not good. At 6 p. m. guard was mounted very poorly, but under instruction. After dinner officers school was held by the Colonel and Lieutenant-Colonel for an hour. Lieutenant Thompson and myself, being asked to do so, criticised the drills and ceremonies.

The meals were furnished promptly, were ample in quantity and good in quality. The officers messed together and have a neat serviceable mess outfit.

August 8th. Regimental review for General Doyle followed by battalion inspection. School for officers and school for the non-commissioned officers detailed for guard.

In the afternoon Lieutenant Thompson and I took the officers out of camp and practiced them in giving commands which had a very good effect on the commands for the rest of the week. In the evening regimental parade and guard mounting, with some improvement in both ceremonies.

August 9th. Company drills 8 to 10 a. m. Part of this drill had to be devoted to the dressings and other matters, which should have been learned in the armory. In the afternoon the regiment in 4 companies of 32 files drilled as a battalion in platoon movements. Parade and guard mounting in the evening with improvement in both. Officers school at 10 a. m. and 8 p. m.

August 10th. It rained the night of the 9th and very hard on the morning of the 10th; no drill was had in the morning. In the afternoon the companies went out for extended order drill, but violent rain drove them in. Rained again very hard the night of the 10th. In the afternoon of the 9th, furrows were made with plows, which carried off part of the water, but still the camp was very wet in the morning of the 11th.

August 11th. The muddy condition of the ground made it necessary to put double teams on the wagons to get them to the road, about half a mile from camp, so that the regiment did not get away on its march until 9.40 a. m., and it was again delayed by the wagon train after reaching the road, and finally got started on the road at 10.08, and marched steadily until 11.05, and then rested 25 minutes to allow the wagon train to pull through some heavy sand. Started again at 11.30 and marched until 12.08, After resting 10 minutes an advance guard was sent out properly disposed and the regiment followed at the proper distance, and arrived in camp with the wagon train at 1.30 p. m. Camp was pitched and luncheon was served in about one hour.

Sinks were dug. The march of $10\frac{1}{2}$ miles was made in 2 hours and 53 minutes without the slightest inconvenience to the men, notwithstanding all their shoes must have been wet from nearly two days continuous rain. They were in mud part of the way and were caught in a hard shower on the road. Parade was held and guard was mounted in the evening. Officers school was held and the problem for the next days march was given out and discussed.

August 12th. Camp was broken, wagons packed and the camp ground was policed, sinks filled up and the regiment ready to march promptly. The work was well and quickly done. The Second Battalion, under Major Haffa, was sent out with one hour's start, with orders to take a position to attack the First Battalion under Major Parsons, convoying the train. After an hour's start the First Battalion, with the wagon train, started. Captain Babcock's company as advanced guard. Each man was supplied with one round of ammunition, and the orders were that upon either side, thinking it had the advantage of position, it would fire one volley, when every one would halt and the companies would decide which side had the advantage. Captain Babcock's advance guard was properly disposed, flankers well out and apparently very vigilant — but flankers and advance guard all passed a company of the Second Battalion posted a short distance from the road in an orchard, and the flank of the main body of the First Battalion was thus exposed, while it was at the same time under fire from the main body of the Second Battalion in front — the decision was, therefore, given for the Second Battalion. The regiment went into camp about noon, at Colonel Myer's place. This camp was made very rapidly and very regularly, and luncheon was served promptly. In the afternoon the companies drilled in extended order and regimental parade was held. Guard was mounted. Much improvement was shown in both ceremonies.

August 13th. The companies were drilled morning and afternoon in extended order. Parade and guard mounting in the afternoon.

August 14th. The First Battalion took up a position, with outposts and was attacked by the Second Battalion — making a good extended order drill for both battalions, one in the attack and one in the defense. They were both very well done. At 1 o'clock the general was sounded, camp struck and wagons packed. In the afternoon regimental parade was held and then the regiment marched to the Lake View depot and took the train for Buffalo, marching about one and one-half miles. Arriving at Buffalo the regiment marched to its armory.

I went on this march with very grave doubts as to the value of such marches for the New York National Guard; but I have no hesitation in saying that the march was a complete success, and I believe the regiment improved more in the time it was out than it would have done in a tour at Peekskill.

The regiment should have been much better drilled when it started than it was; had it been well drilled the advantage of the march would have been more apparent and the amount of instruction greater. I believe the officers realize this fact, and that they will exert themselves hereafter to make more use of the time allotted to the drill in the armory.

Lieutenant J. K. Thompson, Twenty-third Infantry, was of great assistance to the regiment, instructing them in all matters of military detail as well as drill. He tells me the regiment shows great improvement over the march two years ago. All suggestions and corrections made by Lieutenant Thompson and myself were accepted in good part and every effort was made to learn. The quartermaster's and subsistence departments were excellently administered by Captain Wilson, Regimental Quartermaster, and Lieutenant Jackson, Commissary.

The ground worked over was fine for such work; in fact, I could hardly imagine a better place for such work.

The conduct of the men was excellent. A canteen was open all the time, during proper hours, and I did not see a man drunk or under the influence of liquor.

Owing to the improvement which has been made in the guard, I am inclined to think more authority than has heretofore been given colonels in the summer camps might be put in their hands.

While the system of instruction by competent officers should be continued, I think the self-reliance and ability to command, so necessary to colonels, should also be cultivated to as great an extent as is compatible with the best instruction of the men.

I wish to express to you my thanks for the courteous and friendly treatment received by me at the hands of the officers, both at Peekskill and in the Sixty-fifth Regiment.

Very respectfully,

E. E. HARDIN,

Captain, Seventh Infantry, U. S. Army.

Report of Commanding Officer, Naval Militia.

HEADQUARTERS NAVAL MILITIA, N. Y. }
NEW YORK, October 20, 1897. }

The Adjutant-General, State of New York, General Headquarters, Albany, N. Y.:

Sir.—I have the honor to submit the following report for the year ending September 30th, 1897:

The organization of the Naval Militia remained the same as last year, until June 14th, when the Second Naval Battalion was mustered in at the Twenty-third Regiment Armory, Brooklyn. The requirements of Par. 282 M. C. having thus been complied with, a captain of the Naval Militia was appointed, and I had the honor of receiving my commission on July 14th. Mr. Wm. Butler Duncan, Jr., was commissioned as commander of the First Naval Battalion on June 22d, and Lieutenant W. H. Stayton as commander of the Second Naval Battalion on July 12th. I annex Commander Duncan's report to me (Appendix A), also the report of the board of officers of the U. S. S. Massachusetts and Texas relative to the tour of duty (Appendix B). I would especially draw your attention to Part II of that report. It is gratifying to note the commendation of the board, and to see the growing efficiency of the First Naval Battalion under an officer of Commander Duncan's wide experience and intelligence. The recommendations of the board have formed the subject of correspondence with the Naval Department, and it is confidently expected that they will be carried out during the coming year. The Assistant Secretary of the Navy has informed me that no consistent effort will be spared to promote the efficiency of the Naval Militia.

The Second Naval Battalion, almost immediately after its organization, was ordered upon a summer tour of duty, making a cruise in cutters on Long Island Sound. It participated in a joint review with the First Naval Battalion on Friday, July 30th, at Fort Hamilton. The Assistant Secretary of the Navy, after the review, visited the camp of the battalion, and expressed his approbation of the exercises. They were carried out with a precision rarely seen among new recruits, showing that Commander Stayton had brought to his command all the talent for getting work out of new men for which he has always been noted. It is to be regretted that his arduous labors in organizing a new battalion, without an armory, have prevented him from forwarding to these headquarters a detailed report of the cutter cruises of the summer. It is of vital importance that the Second Naval Battalion be at once provided with an armory by the city, or that the government supply a ship for that purpose. Steps are being taken to supply this deficiency, and the subject will be taken up in a subsequent special report.

The continued progress of the Second Separate Naval Division, in all branches, has been most marked. Its discipline is excellent, its knowledge of naval matters improving, and its prompt attention to office work commendable. I annex the report of Lieutenant Walbridge (Appendix C). In addition to this report, I have received a voluminous one from him, accompanied with explanatory maps and charts, all relating to his summer tour of duty. These show that the Second Separate Naval Division fully understands the importance of the work committed to its charge, and also prove the necessity of having other divisions on the Great Lakes which will emulate the example set by the Rochester officers and seamen. The excellent service performed by Ensign J. J. Leary is mentioned by his commanding officer. Appendix D is a portion of the report of Lieutenant J. B. Murdock U. S. Navy, on the summer tour of duty of the Second Separate Naval Division. The omitted paragraphs reflect in no way upon the efficiency of the division. The report of Lieutenant S. Dana Greene, although dated since the close of the State year, is included (Appendix E), as circumstances prevented these headquarters from making an annual inspection prior to September 30th.

The members of the captain's staff are tabulating the summer information, and working on proposed changes in the naval militia law and regulations. The organization of an engineer corps will be submitted to you before the meeting of the Legislature. The battalions will not be prepared to man steam vessels until each has an engineer division, consisting of 2 commissioned officers, 5 machinists, 4 oilers, 4 water-tenders and 25 firemen.

The alterations in the ratings of enlisted men of the navy, and of their uniform, have delayed reports on these subjects, but the regular service having about settled these points, they will receive the immediate attention of these headquarters.

I would recommend that the law be altered to permit first, second and third-class seamen with corresponding rates of pay when on duty. It does not seem right that a new recruit should have the same rating as a man of five years' standing, and the different grades would excite interest and esprit de corps. I would also recommend that the chief of staff of the captain be given the rank of commander, and that a few petty officers be allowed on the staff, for clerical work and for tabulating the information notes, which are becoming voluminous and are of much value.

It is now generally recognized by all the naval militias of the country, as well as by the Navy Department, that the State organizations will, in the event of war, be called upon to do duty as a part of the "second line of defence." They must, therefore, be thoroughly instructed in the protection of State waters. This can only be accomplished by having a government torpedo boat permanently stationed in the harbor of New York, so that the commands can become expert in the handling of such vessels and their torpedoes, under the guidance of a regular officer, familiarizing themselves with local surroundings and coast defence. By your permission I have communicated with the Navy Department on this most vital subject, and am assured by the Hon. Assistant Secretary of the Navy that the matter has his earnest consideration. The recommendation of the board of officers, relative to small modern vessels for the summer cruises will also probably be carried out.

I am indebted to Capt. C. F. Goodrich, President of the War College, to Lieut. J. H. Gibbons, U. S. N., and to Capt. H. L. Satterlee, of the staff of the Commander-in-Chief, for much valuable assistance.

Surgeon H. H. Butts, of the First Naval Battalion, is to be commended for the development of his department. It is now considered second to none other in the State.

The thanks of the Naval Militia are due to Col. A. C. Smith, of the Twenty-third Regiment, to Capt. F. T. Leigh, of the Second Signal Corps, and to the Citizens' Committee of Brooklyn, for their assistance and efforts in the formation of the Second Naval Battalion.

Respectfully,

J. W. MILLER,

Captain.

APPENDIX "A."

NEW YORK, September 9, 1897.

Captain J. W. MILLER, New Pier 36, N. R., New York City:

Sir.—In accordance with your orders, I beg to submit a report of the operations of the First Naval Battalion of New York since I took command on June 29, 1897.

The only duty performed by the First Naval Battalion since that date has been the tour of duty afloat from July 24th to 31st on the U. S. ships Massachusetts and Texas. The command assembled on board the "New Hampshire" on July 24th, at 1 p. m., and immediately embarking on the navy-yard tug, were transported to the ships lying at Tompkinsville. The Second and Third Divisions under my command were detailed to the U. S. S. Massachusetts; the First and Fourth Divisions, under command of Lieut.-Commander Kent, were detailed to the "Texas."

Immediately on getting on board the men and officers were given their stations. They became part of the regular ship's company and did duty as such. The ships got under way and proceeded out to sea by Sandy Hook to Fisher's Island, and anchored there at 10 a. m., July 25th. The routine for the week was as follows:

Sunday, July 25th, p. m.: Boat liberty.

Monday, July 26th, 9.30 to 10.30: Stations and great gun drill.

10.45 to 11.45: Stations and great gun drill.

2.00 to 4.00: Boat drill.

Details went on board the torpedo boat Ericsson for instruction in torpedoes.

Tuesday, July 27th, 9.30 to 12.00: Sub-calibre practice.

2.00 to 4.00: Collision drill, fire drill, arm and away boats.

9 p. m.: Search lights, torpedo boat attack.

Wednesday, July 28th: Infantry drill in a. m. Battalion formed, but did not land on account of weather. Got under way and proceeded towards New York.

Thursday, a. m.: Target practice at sea with 6-inch and rapid fire guns.

Thursday, p. m.: Ran into New York, anchoring at Gravesend bay.

Friday, a. m.: Inspection on board ship by the Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

Friday, p. m.: Battalion landed at Fort Hamilton and together with the Second Battalion were reviewed by the Assistant Secretary.

Friday, 5 p. m.: Boat drill under oars.

Saturday, a. m.: Embarked on navy-yard tug, were transferred to the "New Hampshire" and dismissed at 12 m.

I consider that the cruise for the men was a great success, and think that they learned a great deal as to their duties and the routine of ships; but I think that the officers of the Naval Battalion would accomplish a great deal more if more responsibility were thrown on them and if they were allowed more to do with the handling of the ship; and I would recommend that a smaller class of ship be assigned to such cruises, as in these large ships it is impossible for our officers to have any command where so large a proportion of the regular crew remain on board.

Respectfully,

W. B. DUNCAN, JR.,
Commander.

APPENDIX "B."

Part I of this report, pertaining to organization, armament, equipment, etc., of this organization has been furnished the Board by Commander W. B. Duncan, Jr., commanding the First Battalion.

In connection with this subject we beg leave to bring to the notice of the Department, that upon the statements of the officers of the Naval Militia, this information has been already furnished the Department upon several occasions, and since this organization is not liable to change in many respects, we recommend that this class of information be omitted from future reports.

PART II.

On Saturday, July 24th, 10 officers and 123 men were embarked on board the "Massachusetts," 80 members of her crew and 25 marines having been transferred to the "Vermont" to make room for the naval militia. The naval militia were at once assigned to divisions and messes, and their hammocks stowed. The ship proceeded immediately to sea, and the work of the militia commenced. During the passage of the ship to Fisher's Island Sound, the militia performed all the deck duties of the regular crew, and the officers were put on watch, seniors on the deck and juniors as junior officers of the watch, both standing with regular officers. The ship arrived in Fisher's Island Sound on Sunday morning, and a regular system of drills and exercises commenced, but was materially interfered with by bad weather.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday forenoons were given up to great guns, torpedo instruction, boats and sub-calibre practice, the drill periods lasting from 9.30 to 10.30, 10.45 to 11.30, and 2 p. m. to 4 p. m. During the day and evening the signal corps was constantly exercised, transmitting messages to and receiving them from the "Texas." The men kept the anchor watch at night. The ship went to sea on Wednesday afternoon and stood south to within five miles of Sandy Hook Lightship, and on Thursday forenoon had target practice with the 6-inch battery and the 6-pounders.

The ship anchored in Gravesend bay Thursday afternoon. Friday afternoon was given up to a review of the naval brigade on shore by Assistant Secretary Roosevelt; the battalion disembarked on Saturday morning about 10 a. m. During the whole week that this battalion has been on board, the men have performed their duties with intelligence, zeal, and with creditable spirit. They seem to be of good physique, and no sickness of any kind occurred. The uniform very closely conforms to the navy pattern; a white sweater, however, being worn under the blue shirt. When clean this produces a natty appearance, but, being conspicuous, materially detracts from the appearance of the men, when soiled. It is not adapted to use on board ship. The uniform of the petty officers is nearly the same as the naval uniform, but the rating badges and corps badges are different. In the handling of boats under oars and sails the men did remarkably well, and showed good training. The sub-calibre practice was fair, considering the number of new men in the battalion and the limited amount of practice they had.

The signal corps of this battalion deserves special commendation. They sent and received messages with rapidity and precision, and are familiar in a high degree with all methods of signalling. The signal officer, Lieutenant Anderson, is an expert and an enthusiast; and has reached a remarkably high degree of proficiency in the training of his corps which would be a credit to any vessel in commission. The target practice could only be estimated with the eye, as no shots were recorded or plotted; the smoke interfered in a measure with good practice. Taking things into consideration, the practice was fair, some shots being remarkably good and some going very wild. The officers of the battalion are well posted professionally, and would soon become familiar with the routine of a war vessel, and be able to carry it out. The men, notwithstanding the sphere from which they were enlisted and their limited opportunities for adapting themselves to ship life, its duties and routine, would be of great value to the Navy in time of war, but are better adapted for service in harbor defense vessels than for the active life on board a sea-going vessel.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

The organization of this battalion of New York militia, being that of a ship's company, its efficiency and progress in training would be greatly advanced if it were possible to allow them the use of a vessel of the cruiser type for their summer drills, when the whole battalion could be embarked together.

If such a cruiser be available, only a small part of the regular crew should be kept on board and the militiamen required to perform all the duties outside of the engine room.

The officers of the battalion should be assigned to regular watches and required to manage the ship and carry out the routine so far as safety and reasonable care of government property will allow.

The regular officers of the watch should only take charge in emergency, and should act as advisers and instructors. Under the present system the officers of the militia are too much afraid of giving trouble or interfering with the routine or upsetting some custom, to make the watch duty of any great value. They should be furnished with the routine and made to carry it out even if mistakes are made. Such a cruise, if even for a week, would be of far greater value to them from a professional standpoint, than double the time spent under present conditions.

Battleships with their heavy guns and hydraulic and other mounts which require experts, even in the regular service, are not adapted for the duties of the militia. They have too little berthing space and require the battalions and divisions of the militia to be split up and separated from their own officers, as was the case this cruise of the "Massachusetts."

Both the officers and men of this battalion of New York militia as well as those of the Massachusetts militia, still speak of the great benefit derived from a week spent on board the "San Francisco."

Such a cruise is ordinarily adapted for the purpose of instruction. The naval militia should have more torpedo work if possible. If the Department could allow them the use of one of the torpedo boats for a day at a time, at intervals, it would be of great benefit to them.

T. M. POTTS,

U. S. S. "TEXAS," FIRST RATE,
NAVY YARD, NEW YORK, August 7, 1897. }

Sir.—The board appointed by you to report upon the condition and efficiency for service of the detachment of naval militia recently ordered on board of this ship, respectfully submit the following report:

Character and scope of drills and instructions: The officers and men had the same duties to perform, at sea and in port, as were required of the officers and men of the same grades belonging to the regular ship's company; officers had watch and division duty; men had watch duty, wheel, lookouts, signal watch, boat duty, messenger watch, orderly duty, and assisted in cleaning ship. The detachment was drilled and instructed at the main and secondary batteries and at target practice with the same, in boats under oars and sail, and in small arms and signals, and instruction was given in the Whitehead torpedo, including practice with the same and disassembling. Small details were instructed on board the "Ericsson;" no instruction on shore.

Manner of performing duties: The officers and men performed all their duties with intelligence, zeal and alacrity, showing great willingness to learn, and commendable knowledge for men of so little experience.

Personnel—Class of men composing organization: This battalion is composed of manufacturers, professional men, and clerks. Their professional (naval) knowledge is slight—only what has been acquired since enlistment; a large proportion, however, are familiar with small boatwork on the waters adjacent to New York. None have served in the Navy. About ten have served in the merchant marine.

Discipline: The discipline of the organization was excellent.

Target practice: Target practice was had with the 6-inch B. L. R. of the main battery and with all classes of the secondary battery, and sub-calibre practice with the 12-inch B. L. R. The shooting was fair to good.

Charts: Are officers familiar with? Has the organization performed boat reconnoissance work in local waters? All the officers were more or less familiar with charts. The senior officers handled them with an air and aptitude of old acquaintance. The organization has performed boat reconnoissance work in local waters, and is now engaged in the same work.

Signalmen: The battalion has for signal work 1 signal officer, 1 chief quartermaster and 5 chief petty officers, designated as signalmen of the first class; 6 expert signalmen; 22 qualified signalmen, and 17 fair signalmen who have not yet qualified. Signalmen are detailed from the divisions for instruction, and return to them when qualified. Instruction is progressive in character. Examination for qualification includes ability to read fifty mixed characters in three minutes with flag (no errors allowed); ability to read yardarm signals and Ardois with rapidity; familiarity with the Very and the international codes; ability to read heliograph and flash lantern signals, whistle and bell signals, and to make the heliograph alignments. Expert signalmen are required to go into telegraphy, telephony, and elementary navigation. The equipment of the signal corps has already been stated. The efficiency of the signalmen on board of this ship was excellent.

Automobile torpedoes: Two officers have taken the course with the torpedo class at the torpedo station. One Whitehead torpedo has just been loaned to this battalion, and is on board the "New Hampshire."

Recommendations and remarks: We are of the opinion that the annual cruise of one week is entirely too short, and should be of at least two weeks duration. Also, though it would be impracticable to have the entire force at sea for longer periods, we would suggest that the officers be attached to the various ships for periods of a month or more each year.

SECOND SEPARATE NAVAL DIVISION, N. Y.,

Captain J. W. MILLER, Commanding Naval Militia S. N. Y., New York:

Sir.—I have the honor to report that the 2nd Separate Naval Division has conducted its weekly drills for instruction in infantry at the State armory in Rochester, during the winter of 1896 and 1897, and continued its drills through the spring and summer in boat and signal work at the naval division armory, at the Lake, up to the date of their annual inspection and muster, which occurred September 23d.

The rifle practice took place on the range October 1st and 2d.

Total number of drills, 39; number of men recruited, 14; number of honorable discharges, 7; number of dishonorable discharges, 4.

Respectfully,

E. N. WALBRIDGE,

Lieutenant.

APPENDIX "D."

NAVAL WAR COLLEGE, U. S. NAVAL STATION,
 NEWPORT, R. I., August 7, 1897. }

Sir.—I respectfully submit the following report of the annual encampment of the Second Separate Naval Division of New York.

Having been detailed to accompany the command, I joined it at Rochester, N. Y., on July 23d. The division was ordered to assemble at its armory at Charlotte at 4 p. m. of Saturday the 24th. It there embarked in a small steamer, and started at 8 p. m. for Massena Point. A dinghy was hoisted in on deck, and two cutters were taken in tow, all regular men-of-war boats. Rough weather was experienced on Lake Ontario; but the boats in tow made good weather of it, and Ogdensburg was reached about noon of the 25th. It was then ascertained that the steamer could not run the Long Sault Rapids, and on Sunday a delay was made at Ogdensburg until 4 a. m. of the 26th, when the steamer got under way, and reached the camping ground at Massena Point about 11 a. m. Camp gear and stores were at once landed, and the remainder of the day spent in pitching camp. * * * *

The division had three officers and fifty-one men in camp, and two officers and nine men absent. The discipline was good, and the behavior of the men excellent. All work was cheerfully performed and valuable experience obtained. The allotted time of one week for the encampment admitted of only four days' actual work in camp. Much better results could be obtained if a full week could be passed in camp, with an extra allowance of time necessary for the transportation of the command.

There is perhaps no one organization of the naval militia having so large a field of usefulness open for it in the line of reconnoissance of territory, acquirement of local knowledge, and of existing and possible naval resources as the Second Separate Naval Division. The absence of any other division on the western frontier of New York, practically extends their territory from the Niagara river to the St. Regis, including the whole shore of Lake Ontario and all American territory bordering on the St. Lawrence. I endeavored to impress the importance of this feature on both officers and men, and found them very appreciative of the situation. Much can be done in acquiring knowledge of reconnoissance work by short trips into the country from Rochester, and leisure time spent in this way would greatly increase the usefulness of the command in its annual summer work. In view of the importance of work of this character, I recommend that a plane table be obtained, and some of the men trained to its use.

None of the officers or men of the command have had any naval experience. A large portion, however, have been at some time connected with yacht clubs, and have attained considerable efficiency in handling small boats. During the last year an armory, or boat house, has been built by the State at Charlotte, at the mouth of the Genesee River, which is well equipped and easy of access. This armory provides for the accommodation of all the boats, and furnishes room for slinging hammocks, so that many of the command sleep there during the summer, practising with boats in the morning or evening. The time allotted, one evening a week, is, of course, too short to perfect the boats' crews in rowing. The efficiency of the command is greatly promoted by the location and conveniences of this armory, which tempt the men to the water in their leisure hours.

The uniforms of the division are well made and in good condition. The government property loaned to the command is well cared for, and in condition for immediate use.

It would probably be easy to obtain a commanding site on a bluff overlooking Lake Ontario near the present armory, on which to mount a gun on a naval carriage, and familiarize the men with heavy gun practice. A twenty-pounder or thirty-pounder Parrott B. L. R. would secure instruction and enable target practice to be carried on advantageously over the lake, thus establishing what might prove a valuable school of artillery practice. The location of the armory on the water front also offers great facilities for work with boat artillery, and the possibility of the usefulness of the command as marine artillery is so great as to suggest the advisability of special attention being paid to that branch of drill.

Very respectfully,

J. B. MURDOCK,

Lieutenant, U. S. N.

The Assistant Secretary of the Navy, Navy Department, Washington, D. C.

APPENDIX "E."

HEADQUARTERS NAVAL MILITIA, NEW YORK,
NEW YORK, October 13th, 1897. }

Captain J. W. Miller, Commanding Naval Militia, New York:

Sir.—1. In compliance with your instructions I proceeded to Rochester N. Y., on the 22d of September, and reported to the Inspector-General of the State to assist in the inspection of the Second Separate Division. The inspection was held at the boat house of the division which is located on the east bank of the Genesee river, about one third of a mile from where the river empties into Lake Ontario.

2. The force of the division, at the time of the inspection, consisted of one lieutenant commanding; one lieutenant, junior grade; two ensigns.

One assistant surgeon (rank of ensign) and sixty-five enlisted men. There were present at the inspection five officers and sixty enlisted men, or about 93 per cent of the full strength of the division.

3. The appearance of the officers and men at the inspection was very good. The men's uniforms showed signs of hard service, the result of three cruises on men-of-war, but they were clean. Several of the men wore tan colored or rather non-regulation shoes, but, with this exception, the command made an excellent appearance. The accoutrements were not in very good condition. Belts were not varnished and brass mountings were not polished. I did not inspect the small arms (Lee magazine rifles) as the Inspector-General had already done so.

4. After inspection, I witnessed the following exercises: Infantry drill, one platoon; artillery drill, one piece; getting out and manning boats; exercise in boats under oars; signalling, wig-wag; lowering of colors at sundown.

5. Both officers and men were prompt and snappy in giving and executing orders; and the petty officers were very efficient in their own work and in directing the men. At infantry drill, the men were fairly steady in ranks, but there is room for considerable improvement in this direction. The men handled their arms and executed the manual very well. The artillery drill was excellent, although the command was not provided with cutlasses and revolvers for the lower members at the piece. The signal work was good, but there is room for improvement. There are, at present, only about half a dozen signal men in the division. This number should be doubled at least, and the commanding officer intends to give the matter careful attention this coming winter.

6. Before referring to boat exercises, it will be well to refer to the boat house itself. This is a frame building, built on a dock. The ground floor is devoted to the storage of boats and to ammunition rooms; the second floor to men's locker rooms, excellently arranged, and with ample washing and closet facilities, and the third floor, to store rooms, which have open latticed partitions to permit of free circulation of air. On the roof is a tower some 12 feet high, on which it is intended to mount a search light. It affords an excellent signal station. The doors of the boat house are about 20 feet from the edge of the dock. At the edge, two heavy swinging davits are mounted for hoisting in and out boats. A mast has been erected near the edge of the dock, with a lower boom extending out over the water, regularly equipped with boat's pennants and Jacob's ladder. All boats, after being lowered into the water, are hauled out to the boom and manned from there. There is a top-mast and a top correctly fitted, and the lower shrouds, leading to the top, are rattled down on one side.

The floor of the boat house will accommodate six boats, which are carried on cradles. Overhead there are two rails running to the doors of the house, on which travel sliding chain tackles. To get a boat out it is only necessary to hoist it clear of its cradle with the tackles, run the tackles to the door, on their rails, and land the boat on another cradle (on rails) on the dock. This cradle is pushed to the edge of the dock, the heavy davits swung inboard, falls hooked on, boats hoisted, davits swung out, and boat lowered to the water and hauled out to the boom. The entire arrangement of the boat house, including the space for the storing and handling of boats, masts, and davits, is admirable, and can be taken as a model by any naval militia division similarly situated. I suggest that plans and photographs of the boat house be furnished the commanding officers of the First and Second Battalions of this State, as well as the brigade headquarters and the Naval Department.

7. The boats were exercised under oars, in command of their coxswains, by signal from the boat house. I watched the exercise from the division steam launch. The boats were taken to the mouth of the harbor (the harbor is formed by two breakwaters running out into the lake about half a mile and about a third of a mile apart) against a fresh N. E. breeze and a choppy sea. The signals were read and answered promptly, and the evolutions were well executed except as to the distances between boats. Considering the fact that it was the first time the boats had been out for such exercise without a commissioned officer in each boat, the drill was a most creditable one.

8. The boats (five in number besides the steam launch) were in excellent condition, clean, and neatly painted, but the boat boxes are not as yet fitted out. The commanding officer of the division will attend to this matter during the winter. The steam launch belonging to the division is manned and operated entirely by men of the division, and appears to be in excellent condition both as to hull and machinery.

9. During the past summer the men have been in the boats a great deal, parties frequently going out for two or three days, and sometimes a week. In this way the men have become well accustomed to handling the boats in the open lake, both under sails and oars. I was anxious to take the boats out in the lake under sail, but the time available did not permit. * * * *

10. In closing this report I desire to state that, in my opinion, the work accomplished during the past five years by Lieutenant Walbridge, in organizing and maintaining his division in Rochester, is creditable in the extreme, and shows that he possesses executive ability and aptitude as an officer, of a high order. He has no ex-naval officers in his command to assist in organizing it on a naval basis, or instructing petty officers and men in the customs and usages of the naval service; he has not been near any naval station or naval vessel (except on three summer cruises of a week each) where his officers and men could see practically what they have studied theoretically; he has not even had the advice and assistance of regular naval officers from time to time as we have had in New York and other seaports. Notwithstanding all these difficulties and drawbacks, he has steadily progressed in his work until he now has a naval militia division which will compare favorably in efficiency with any in the State service, while the facilities which he has procured for boat work, etc., are not equalled by any other similar organization with which I am familiar. The division has at present a force of sixty-five men only, as already stated. This is due to the fact that Lieutenant Walbridge has been weeding out the poor men and keeping only the good ones. He expects to have a full complement of eighty-five men by next spring.

11. Every facility was afforded me for inspecting the command and its quarters, and all questions asked were answered promptly and intelligently.

Respectfully,

S. D. GREENE,

APPENDIX "F."

The Navy Department, in an order dated Washington, October 18, 1897, appointed a board for the purpose of considering the coast signal stations for naval defense, composed of the following named officers: John Schouler, Commander, U. S. Navy, senior member; C. H. Harlow, Lieutenant, U. S. Navy, member; John H. Gibbons, Lieutenant, member; Frank B. Anderson, Lieutenant and Signal Officer, Naval Militia, N. Y.

As a result of the deliberations and conclusions of the above board, the following special order is hereby promulgated for the information and compliance of the New York Naval Militia.

HEADQUARTERS OF THE NAVAL MILITIA, N. Y. }
November 11, 1897. }

{ Special Orders, }
 { No. 12. }

The Navy Department having thoroughly tested the capabilities of a naval homing pigeon service as an adjunct to the efficiency of the United States Navy, and being desirous of enlisting the co-operation of the Naval Militia of the United States in a scheme for coast signal stations for naval defense, in which this service will play a very important part, the following order is issued for the information and guidance of commanding and other officers of the Naval Militia of the State of New York:

1. The Navy Department has established cotes at a number of naval stations, and recommendations have been made by a naval board for the establishment of cotes at selected life saving stations along the Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific coasts, the radii of the flights to intersect one another.

2. For the purpose of training the Naval Militia in the use of this valuable adjunct to naval signalling, it is suggested that cotes be established at the headquarters of the First and Second Battalions and of the Second Separate Naval Division.

3. Commanding officers should make arrangements to forward pigeons by express to various vessels, to be released at stated distances within the radius of the flight of each cote, and forms will be furnished by the staff signal officer for reports on the results of the different flights.

4. In deciding upon the "proper times" for releasing the birds, officers should be guided by the following well established facts: (a) Birds will not fly at night, in rain, fog or heavy mist, nor can they be expected to fly against a very strong wind; therefore, they should never be released at night, in fog, rain or heavy mist, nor later than 4 to 5 p. m. if fifty miles distant from the cote. Calculations should be made on the basis of twenty-five miles per hour to time the arrival of the bird at its cote before sundown, weather conditions to be favorable. (b) Food is one of the factors used to develop the homing qualities of the bird. A bird is believed to fly faster towards his cote if hungry. To this end, food should be taken away from the birds about three hours before tossing. Water should never be denied them.

5. The cotes should be cleaned daily and the floor kept covered with sand. Watering tins should be filled frequently with fresh, clean water, and the feeding trough filled to meet the requirements of the flights.

6. Blank message forms can be purchased (the staff signal officer will furnish specifications), and each bird should be provided with an aluminum message holder. These message forms are cut to a size which, if folded properly, will exactly fill the holder. To fold:

(a) Bring bottom edge to coincide with top. (b) Then bring lower fold to coincide with line just above the words, "If this bird be captured," etc. (c) Complete the fold. (d) Throw the right edge to about the end of the word "position." (e) Fold once again to same distance. (f) Turn down the left edge, roll naturally tight and insert in holder. The holder is clamped to the leg that has no band on it, cap of holder up. The bird, if held back down, with a handkerchief laid over its head, will remain perfectly quite, but care must be observed in handling not to be unduly rough, and especially not to break the wing or tail feathers.

7. Messages should always be sent in duplicate. If important, in triplicate or quadruplicate. A hard pencil and carbon sheets render this very easy. The exact hour and minute of tossing and the weather conditions, as called for on the forms, should be carefully filled in.

8. The stubs of the blank message forms, besides the information called for, should contain a digest of the message sent and room enough should be left for a memorandum of the times of arrivals. They should be mailed at completion of voyage to the pigeon's home station. The blank, "No. of birds tossed," should contain not only the number of birds tossed, as, for example, 3, but also their band numbers, e. g., 7A10, 7B81, etc.

9. The staff signal officer shall obtain and furnish all signal officers with a copy of the regulations for the care, etc., of homing pigeons, which will give many hints about the care to be taken of them and also how to distinguish the age of the birds and the cote to which they belong; he will also furnish a message holder with a message as it should be, to serve as a guide.

10. A circle struck with a radius of 150 miles from the cote as a centre, will be regarded as the extreme radius of flight of that cote, and care should be taken never to release birds except when within their arc of flight and under conditions likely to make the flight successful. When sending the birds out for experiment, send them in baskets, and make arrangements to have the baskets returned promptly, by express or otherwise.

11. Signal men.—The beginning of the drill season should be devoted to giving the signal recruits a thorough knowledge of the army and navy signal code and its application to the various appliances commonly used, diversifying the drill so as not to tire the men. It is suggested that the flag be used first, then the Ardois, navy numeral code, Very's night signals and the international code. Heliograph and search light drills will furnish valuable training and prove of interest to the men. Provision should be made for more exercise with the "winker" light, as it might prove of inestimable value in an emergency, and especially if receiving messages from a fleet.

12. Commanding officers should encourage the enlistment of at least one expert telegrapher in each division, and the signal officers should encourage all men showing an aptitude for this method of signalling to persevere until they become expert. Arrangements should also be made so that expert signalmen could have an opportunity to familiarize themselves with telephony, line construction and the care of batteries.

13. It has been recommended that the life-saving stations which are selected as "Coast signal stations" be fitted with four-armed semaphores, in order that they may communicate with each other and with the ships at sea by means of the army and navy signal code, and with the distant signals given in section 1, part 3 of that code book, and that they use the Very night signals for signaling after dark. For this reason signal officers will construct semaphores which can be used with both codes and instruct their men in the use of them. All officers and men are requested to send the staff signal officer specifications of a good practical semaphore that can be constructed for a reasonable amount.

More importance must be given to the Very night signal drills and over longer ranges. International code books should be given members as well as letters to be used with this system.

Reports of extreme visibility of signals with various apparatus, giving condition of weather, etc., should be forwarded to the brigade headquarters at the end of each season.

14. Subsidiary stations should be established for flag and heliograph signalling, in order that communication may be kept up with the life-saving stations and conveyed inland to the nearest available means of telegraphing or telephoning to New York and Washington, keeping in mind that the outer stations may be destroyed or have to be abandoned through the efforts of an enemy. Stations selected should be thoroughly tested and studied and reports as to their characteristics sent in to the staff signal officer.

15. The telephone and telegraph systems of the State must be given earnest study and the routes of trunk lines and submerged cables charted. Arrangements should be made with the various companies to notify you of all changes and additions to their systems, and plans should be formulated for the rapid connection of all important stations (life-saving and subsidiary) with the long distance telegraph and telephone systems of the country. This work is most vital and should receive earnest attention. Blue prints of the systems of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company have been handed these headquarters, and arrangements are in progress for obtaining the postal telegraph cable and trunk line systems, also the Western Union and the private signal system of the Long Island Road.

16. The staff signal officer has requested $500 per annum to pay mileage and subsistence of the men sent by the different organizations to establish these stations and to gather the information necessary to carry out the signal work entrusted to the New York Naval Militia.

17. The Navy Department will have completed in a few weeks a boat drill book containing, besides tactical signals, about one thousand general signals, and the probabilities are that this book will be issued to the Naval Militia.

18. Boats.—Distinguishing pennants should be assigned to the boats and the present cumbersome system abolished. Signal officers will forward a list of the boats belonging to each organization, designating the division to which each boat is assigned. Steam launches should have masts ready for stepping, and be fitted with a stout signal yard, about eighteen inches long, mortised to each mast head, and provided with sheaves or single block at each end, halliards rove off and proper cleats arranged for belaying them.

19. Owing to the contemplated changes in the flags of the navy numeral signal code, it has been found necessary to delay the work on a signal text book for the use of the Naval Militia.

By command of Captain Miller.

FRANK B. ANDERSON,

Signal Officer, Naval Militia.

APPENDIX "O."

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 14, 1897.

To the Adjutant-General of the State of New York, Albany, N. Y.:

Sir.—By order of Governor Morton, as Commander-in-Chief, dated January 15, 1896, I was appointed agent for the State of New York to take charge of the prosecution of the war claims of the State against the United States, and entered upon such duties at Albany and Washington.

After an examination into those claims and in April, 1896, I submitted to the Governor and to the Adjutant-General of the State a written proposition relative to them and their prosecution, and my compensation therefor, which was approved and accepted April 22, 1896.

This proposition and acceptance and my report to your predecessor, dated April 13, 1896, are on file in your Department, as well as my report to Governor Black and yourself bearing date January 14, 1897.

For the purpose of giving a brief understanding of these claims and of my action therein, I beg leave to state that, at the close of the War of the Rebellion, the United States was indebted to the State of New York, for charges and expenses incurred by the State for enrolling, subsisting, clothing, arming, equipping, paying and transporting its troops employed in aiding to suppress the insurrection against the United States, in the sum of many millions of dollars. Congress authorized the payment of such indebtedness upon proper vouchers to be filed and passed upon by the proper accounting officers of the treasury department, by an act entitled "An act to indemnify the States for expenses incurred by them in defense of the United States," approved July 27, 1861 (12 Stat. at large, p. 276), and by resolution declaratory of that act approved March 8, 1862 (Id., p. 615).

Under that act the State has presented to and filed with the treasury department of the United States, between May 22, 1862, and December 30, 1893, claims, in twelve separate installments, aggregating $7,396,219.80.

The State has been paid thereon, down to August 17, 1892, the sum of $6,310,528.77, leaving a balance due at that date of $1,075,691.63.

The last payment, before my appointment in 1896, was August 17, 1892. Since my appointment there has been paid thereon the following sums:

June 19, 1896.....	$5,567 48
June 26, 1896.....	144,114 90
	<hr/>
Making.....	$149,682 38
	<hr/> <hr/>

Leaving a balance due of $926,009.25.

This balance unpaid, consists as follows:

The Legislature of our State, by chapter 456 of the Laws of 1862, passed April 23, 1862, authorized the issue of bonds bearing interest in the amount of $1,500,000, to raise and equip troops. The bonds were issued and the interest paid on them amounted to $65,624.24. On December 24, 1891, in the eleventh installment of claims of the State against the United States, this claim, properly certified by the Governor and Comptroller of our State, with the papers and vouchers relating thereto, was filed with the proper accounting officer of the treasury department, at Washington.

Action has been taken upon the same during this year, but has not yet been concluded and decided.

The Department called for certain other proofs than those filed in 1891, and I went to Albany and procured the same from the Comptroller's office and filed the same with the accounting officer of the treasury department. I expect final action upon it in January next.

The balance of the other claims consists of claims heretofore filed, a portion of which have been rejected, but the larger part of which have been only suspended, and not finally disposed of. An explanation of them would be voluminous and unnecessary at this time.

During the last year of the late administration, with its deficiency of revenues to defray current expenses of government, the treasury department was very loath to audit claims which it could put aside.

I hope and believe that under the present administration better results will be attained, especially if the Secretary of the Treasury can be induced to change the present rules relating to these claims.

I intend to ask him to do so, and believe I can persuade him to see the justice and propriety of doing so. There is also a movement on foot, if the Secretary should decline to change existing rules, to ask Congress, by a general act, to authorize the payment of these claims. Several other states have similar claims, namely: Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Ohio, California and Nevada, and I think unity of action on the part of the representatives from those States and ours can be secured.

I expected to get into the deficiency bill of the last session of Congress, expiring March 4, 1897, an item of $17,282.99, conditionally allowed by the accounting officers of the treasury department and certified by the Secretary of the Treasury to the President of the Senate, being certain items contained in the first and second installments which had theretofore been suspended, but the failure of that and certain other appropriation bills of that session, and the refusal of the extra session, commencing last March, to take up any of these matters, prevented me from doing so.

It was said by Senators and Representatives having charge of appropriation bills when this refusal was made to insert this and similar items at the extra session, that they would favor a general act of Congress to settle and pay all these war claims at this session of Congress.

I have drawn such a bill, and, if necessary, will have the same introduced in each house in January.

In addition to the foregoing claims, our State has also a claim for $42,798.87, for customs duties paid by the State on arms imported in 1863. This claim is not embraced in any of the twelve installments of claims filed by our State. The treasury department refuses to allow it on the ground that it has no power to do so, claiming that the law under which it could allow it, expired by limitation, before it was presented. I have all the original vouchers of such payment now, not being able to find them for a long time, and will draw and have introduced a bill providing for its payment.

I have during this year given all necessary attention to the prosecution of these claims, and believe that during the present session of Congress satisfactory results will be attained. I am now here engaged in their prosecution and intend to remain here so long as I can accomplish results favorable, to our State. I remain,

Yours respectfully,
(Signed) RICHARD CROWLEY,
State Agent.

II. Edward Earl Britton is appointed Assistant Adjutant-General S. N. Y., ranking as Colonel from January 1, 1897, and assigned to duty as Aide-de-Camp on my staff.

III. The Adjutant-General being by law the chief of the staff of the Commander-in-Chief, all officers of that staff will perform their prescribed duties under his direction.

IV. The Adjutant-General being by law also the auditor of all military and naval accounts, no officer will incur any expense on account of the State, except as expressly provided in the regulations, without having first the sanction of the Adjutant-General.

V. All reports of an official nature are the property of the superior to whom they are addressed, and must be considered confidential until their publication, in part or in full, is authorized by him.

VI. Officers seeking legislation on military or naval matters must obtain the approval of the Adjutant-General before approaching the Legislature.

VII. A permanent board on the subject of uniforms and equipments and all matters relating thereto, consisting of the Adjutant-General, the brigade commanders, the senior commanding officer in the Naval Militia and the senior assistant adjutant-general of the State, is hereby constituted, to convene at the call of the Adjutant-General and to submit its conclusions and recommendations from time to time for my action.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, STATE OF NEW YORK,
 ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
 ALBANY, January 20, 1897.

{ General Orders, }
 No. 2. }

I. The indorsement or commendation of subordinates by their commanding officers for preference or promotion is proper.

The indorsement or commendation by subordinates of their superior officers or others, by whose subsequent action or influence their own standing might be affected, being so unmilitary and objectionable that it deserves condemnation, is hereby positively prohibited.

II. The annual inspections and musters will take place on such dates and hours as the Inspector-General may select, and such uniform will be worn as he may specify in his notice of the dates selected.

All State property, except that worn and carried by the men present at the inspection, will be arranged conveniently for inspection at such time, before or after the muster, as the Inspector-General may direct; and the latter will at the same time verify the property presented, with the account of property charged to the commanding officer, for which purpose the Chief of Ordnance will furnish him with the necessary information.

III. The Inspector-General is appointed a board of survey, to examine, at the time of the annual inspection and muster of an organization, into the responsibility of the commanding officer for public property which has been damaged, but not by fair wear and tear, or which has been lost and destroyed. Commanding officers will, at the time, be prepared to submit proper evidence to the board (R. 244 and 245).

IV. The Inspector-General is authorized at the annual inspection and muster of a command, to inspect such public property as may be submitted to him by commanding officers as unserviceable and make such recommendations regarding it as he may deem proper.

The Inspector-General is directed to inspect the drills of organizations at such times and in such manner as he may deem proper.

VI. Acts appropriating means to pay accounts, require them to be itemized; the Military Code, the Regulations and the Comptroller require the same, and time will be saved by compliance with this by all concerned. Items charged in an account should be supported by receipts if it be practicable to obtain them. Attention is called to O. D. 105.

VII. The following staff appointments, made since the issue of G. O. No. 1, c. s., are published for the information of all concerned, and the officers named will be obeyed and respected accordingly: Colonel Frederick Phisterer, Assistant Adjutant-General, S. N. { General Orders, }

I. The Commander-in-Chief having approved the recommendations submitted to him by the board on uniforms and equipments, constituted in paragraph VII, General Orders No. I, c. s., from these headquarters, at its session January 30, 1897, they are herewith promulgated for the information of and observance by all concerned:

1st. The State uniform for enlisted men of the National Guard shall consist of a dress coat, dress hat, campaign hat, fatigue cap, blouse, trousers, and when needed leggins, overcoats and ponchos.

2d. Such regiments and battalions as desire at their expense to provide their own dress uniform may do so, subject to the approval of the Commander-in-Chief, and in that case shall not receive from the State dress coats nor dress hats.

3d. The articles mentioned above shall be as now prescribed in regulations, and no deviation shall be allowed; that the dress coats shall be changed as fast as practicable from double to single breasted coats.

4th. That the Buzzacott military cooking outfit be obtained for issue to organizations as fast as the disposable means will permit.

5th. That first and quartermaster-sergeants of infantry companies be armed with the rifle, and that the swords, throgs and revolvers and holsters issued heretofore to them be returned to the Chief of Ordnance.

6th. That hereafter when colors are to be issued to regiments and battalions, they shall consist of one United States and one State color, each of the dimensions prescribed for the colors carried by regiments of the United States Army.

7th. That the changes requested in the uniform of the Naval Militia, which request is now on file in the Adjutant-General's office, are adopted and approved by the board.

II. The dimensions of colors carried by regiments and battalions will hereafter be five feet six inches fly, four feet four inches on the pike, which will be nine feet long, including spear-head and ferrule; the union will be two feet six inches long.

III. Chapter 229, Laws of 1896, is herewith published for the information of the military and naval forces of the State:

Section 1. Section forty of chapter six hundred and seventy-eight of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-two, known as the State Law, is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Section 40. Description of the arms of the State and the State flag.—The device of arms of this State, as adopted March sixteenth, seventeen hundred and seventy-eight, is hereby declared to be correctly described as follows:

Charge. Azure, in a landscape, the sun in fess, rising in splendor or, behind a range of three mountains, the middle one the highest; in base a ship and sloop under sail, passing and about to meet on a river, bordered below by a grassy shore fringed with shrubs, all proper.

Crest. On a wreath azure and or, an American eagle proper, rising to the dexter from a two-thirds of a globe terrestrial, showing the North Atlantic ocean with outlines of its shores.

Supporters. On a quasi compartment formed by the extension of the scroll.

Dexter. The figure of Liberty proper, her hair disheveled and decorated with pearls, vested azure, sandaled gules, about the waist a cincture or, fringed gules, a mantle of the last depending from the shoulders behind to the feet, in the dexter hand a staff ensigned with a Phrygian cap or, the sinister arm embowed, the hand supporting the shield at the dexter chief point, a royal crown by her sinister foot dejected.

Sinister. The figure of Justice proper, her hair disheveled and decorated with pearls, vested or, about the waist a cincture azure, fringed gules, sandaled and mantled as Liberty, bound about the eyes with a fillet proper, in the dexter hand a straight sword hilted, or, erect, resting on the sinister chief point of the shield, the sinister arm embowed, holding before her her scales proper.

Motto. On a scroll below the shield argent, in sable, excelsior.

State Flag. The State flag is hereby declared to be buff, charged with the arms of the State in the colors as described in the blason of this section.

Section 2. This act shall take effect immediately.

IV. Upon enlisting or re-enlisting for five years, a man is entitled to the State uniform, which is expected to last the term of his enlistment. By taking proper care of uniforms and advantage of the provisions of R. 206, a large number of commanding officers, it is understood, have provided their men with two pairs of trousers and even two blouses, and what one regiment or company can do, others ought to be able to do also. Amendments of the Military Code in the past two years have increased the allowances for a regiment by $1,250; for a battalion by $250; for a signal corps by $200; it is not only proper, but it is expected, that organizations will devote part of this money as well as the larger part of the fund derived under M. C. 126 to uniforming purposes, if extra uniforms be needed. The regular annual appropriation for the support of the National Guard and Naval Militia provides for one uniform only, and extra issues cannot be made from it, especially as the appropriation has not been increased to make up for the enlarged allowances now to be paid from it by law.

V. Commanding officers to whom revolvers, holsters, swords and throgs have been issued for the first and quartermaster-sergeants of their respective commands will without delay return them to the chief of ordnance.

VI. In abstracts and accounts bills have been received made by commanding officers as creditors for furnishing supplies to their respective commands; such bills being manifestly improper, and their legality questionable, they will not be audited hereafter.

VII. Appointments, promotions and other changes; not reprinted, inasmuch as the register contains them all.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief,

C. WHITNEY TILLINGHAST, 2ND,

Adjutant-General.

{ General Orders, }
 No 4. }

I. The following rules for rifle practice, submitted by the General Inspector of Rifle Practice, are approved and promulgated for the observance of all concerned. They will supersede R. 492 to 505:

1st. Rifle practice is one of the most essential parts of the instruction of the soldier. Thorough and detailed instruction in the composition of the piece, in taking it apart and reassembling it, aiming and sighting drill, should be imparted in the recruit squad; followed with careful coaching, by practice on the armory range, in individual and volley firing, succeeded finally by out-door practice, supervised with the same care.

2d. Practice in armory ranges will be under the charge of an Inspector of Rifle Practice, or an officer detailed for the purpose. Practice on out-door ranges will be conducted under the orders of Brigade Commanders and in accordance with the rules prescribed herein, but under the supervision of Inspectors of Rifle Practice, the senior of whom will be in charge of the range, and will be consulted by the commanding officers of the troops practicing as to the arrangements necessary for the success of the practice.

3d. All line officers must make themselves familiar with the use of the rifle, with the system of instruction adopted as well as with all orders and regulations for carrying out the practice at the ranges.

4th. All officers and enlisted men of organizations armed with rifles or carbines are required to practice at the ranges, band leaders, drum majors and enlisted musicians excepted. General and general staff officers will be permitted to practice.

5th. At least one officer of a company will be present with any part of it on duty at the range, and certify on the score cards as to identity of the men practicing; a field officer will take command of all detachments of two or more companies, and firing will not be permitted to proceed without the presence of a medical officer. It shall be the duty of the officers in charge, either on the field or armory ranges, to see that after practice no cartridges are left in the hands of the men or in the rifles, but that they are all collected and turned in to the proper person.

6th. United States army standard targets, "A," four by six feet, and "B," six by six feet, will be used, and four "A" and six "B" targets will be allowed for each target frame on the range. In armory ranges, if possible, the targets should be provided with a false bull's-eye, relatively located for one, two and three hundred yards, that the recruits may become accustomed to the adjustment of the sights for the various distances by practice.

7th. Ball ammunition will be allowed, for the rifle or carbine, at the rate of fifty rounds for each officer and enlisted man; for the revolver at the rate of thirty rounds for each officer of the command.

8th. The actual cost of transportation, in no case to exceed fifty cents, will be allowed to and from the range on the day of practice, for each officer and enlisted man, provided the distance to the nearest range is more than three miles.

9th. Requisitions for targets, ammunition and transportation, will be made direct on the Chief of Ordnance, who is hereby authorized to fill the same as above provided.

10th. Officers and enlisted men required or entitled to practice at the ranges will be classified as follows:

Marksman. The first stage of this practice will be on an A target; for officers with the army revolver, cal. 38, at twenty-five yards; for enlisted men with the rifle or carbine, at one hundred yards, standing, five consecutive shots; those who make upward of fifteen with the rifle or revolver, and fourteen with the carbine, will shoot in the second stage.

Second stage will be on an A target, for officers with the revolver, at forty-five and sixty-five yards; for enlisted men, at two hundred yards, kneeling or sitting, and at three hundred yards, prone, five consecutive shots at each distance. Those failing to make fifteen at the shorter distance will not be permitted to shoot at the longer distance. A score of thirty, for enlisted men of the Naval Militia of thirty-one, for those armed with carbines of twenty-seven, or upwards, will constitute a marksman and entitle the maker to the marksman's decoration.

Sharpshooter. This practice will be on a B target for officers and enlisted men of organizations armed with the rifle, at five and six hundred yards, prone, five consecutive shots at each distance. Those failing to make twenty at five hundred yards will not be permitted to shoot at six hundred yards. On ranges where six hundred yards cannot be obtained (which must be certified to by an Inspector of Rifle Practice), and for those armed with carbines, ten consecutive shots at five hundred yards, prone, will be required. A score of forty-two, for the Naval Militia of forty-three, and for those armed with carbines of forty, or upwards, will constitute a sharpshooter and entitle the maker to a sharpshooter's decoration.

Expert. This practice will be on a B target for officers and enlisted men at seven and eight hundred yards, any position, five consecutive shots at each distance. Those failing to make twenty at seven hundred yards will not be permitted to shoot at eight hundred yards. A score of forty, for the Naval Militia of forty-one, or upwards, will constitute an expert and entitle the maker to the expert's decoration.

11th. For the class practice the men will be formed in squads and the practice will commence on the day ordered, at each firing point under competent non-commissioned officers or duly designated instructors, and will be continued through the markman's class by all present without reference to the scores recorded, except that no one shall practice at any distance until he has qualified at the preceding distances. Only the minimum amount of instruction or coaching may be given and that only in words, and the instructor or coach must under no circumstances come in contact with the man or his piece while he, the man, is in the act of firing. No man shall be permitted to shoot for a second or higher score in any class in which he has qualified; the record must stand on the first qualifying score made.

12th. Officers and enlisted men failing to qualify in any of the classes may be allowed to shoot again provided time will permit; where two distances are required to make a qualifying score, no portion of the score made at the shorter distance will be allowed after two practices at the longer distance, except in the expert class where three practices will be allowed at the longer distance.

13th. Marksmen, sharpshooters and experts shall each receive a decoration from the State of the kind approved by the Commander-in-Chief and according to the pattern deposited with the General Inspector of Rifle Practice. This decoration may be worn on the dress or undress uniform.

14th. Volley Firing. This practice will be on a B target, two of which should be attached to rough board fences located six feet apart, for a firing party of over twenty men. On the completion of the firing in the marksman's class, volley firing will be taken up. The men will be formed in single rank, and will fire ten rounds as follows: Fire by squad (section, platoon or company) at one hundred yards standing, two volleys; at two hundred yards kneeling, four volleys; at three hundred yards kneeling, four volleys.

15th. Figure of merit. The percentage made in volley firing of the possible aggregate score of the entire volley shooting strength of the company (present and absent) added to the percentage of the entire class shooting strength of the company (present and absent), qualifying as marksmen on the day of the volley firing and the sum thereof divided by two shall determine the figure of merit for the year.

16th. The General Inspector of Rifle Practice will notify the commanding officers of brigades whose troops practice at Creedmoor of the days when the range there will be at their service and they will notify him of the organizations ordered to practice on such days. The General Inspector of Rifle Practice will also notify the commanding officers of the third and fourth brigades of the dates when the practice of their several organizations can be supervised and they will notify him of the dates and organizations ordered to practice. Commanding officers of the third and fourth brigades may assign such supplementary practice days as in their opinion may be necessary. Practice for the year will close on November first and no score made after that date will be allowed.

17th. Rifle teams of organizations competing for prizes offered by the State shall be composed only of members of the organization who shall have been such for the preceding year, and who during that time shall have performed at least sixty per cent. of all duty required of the organization. One-third of the members of a successful team shall be debarred from again competing for the same prize for the next three years.

II. In making requisitions for rifle and carbine ammunition this season commanding officers will take as a basis the strength of their respective commands on the 31st day of this month. The requisition should set forth the strength of the command.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief,

C. WHITNEY TILLINGHAST, 2ND,

Adjutant-General.

Grand Marshal, will turn down One Hundred and Sixteenth street around Columbia College buildings to Amsterdam avenue, and north through that avenue to Manhattan avenue, where an aid will direct them to the street that leads to their pier. Amsterdam avenue must be kept open for the passage of troops so that there will be no delay in reaching the boats. "Troops destined to Third avenue, Lexington avenue and the New York Central railroad, One Hundred and Tenth street station, will keep on down the east roadway of the Boulevard until reaching One Hundred and Tenth street, thence east through One Hundred and Tenth street, which they will follow until they reach their destination.

"Commands desiring to take the Ninth and Sixth avenue elevated and the Columbus avenue cable will keep on down the east roadway of the Boulevard to One Hundred and Fourth street, and through that street to their destination.

"No halting of columns will be made in the east roadway of the Boulevard. Commands desiring to rest after passing in review before the Grand Marshal must turn into the west roadway of the Boulevard below One Hundred and Tenth street before halting, and leave room for columns of fours to pass them while at rest in the west roadway of the Boulevard."

{ General Orders, }
 { No. 14. }

General Frederick Townsend, of this city, departed this life to-day at his summer home at Luzerne.

General Townsend entered the military service of the State in 1855, as Captain of an independent company, to-day Company "B" of the 10th Battalion, and was appointed Colonel of the 76th Regiment, Militia, August 21, 1856.

He was promoted to be Adjutant-General of the State, January 1, 1857, and re-appointed January 1, 1859. During those two terms of service, the practical and serviceable reorganization of the uniformed militia of the State was effected mainly through his well-directed efforts.

Immediately upon leaving the office of Adjutant-General he became the Captain of a new company, the present Company "A" of the 10th Battalion.

At the breaking out of the War of the Rebellion, he was active in organizing volunteers and became Colonel of the Third Regiment of volunteer infantry, which regiment he took to the field and in command of which he took part in the engagement at Big Bethel, Va., June 10, 1861.

Subsequently he resigned the colonelcy of this regiment and accepted the appointment of Major of the 18th U. S. Infantry, and was engaged for some time in mustering volunteers in the United States service. In August, 1861, he joined his regiment, which was being organized at Columbus, Ohio, and with its 2d Battalion took the field in December, 1861; commanding this battalion and at times the two battalions of the regiment in the field, he took part in the skirmish at Pea Ridge, Miss.; the siege of Corinth, Miss.; the skirmish near Springfield, Ky.; the battles of Perryville, Ky., and Murfreesboro, Tenn., and the skirmish at Eagleville, Tenn. Shortly after the battle of Murfreesboro, General Rosecranz selected him to carry his report of, and colors captured in, that battle to Washington. Later in 1863, he was appointed

Acting Assistant Provost Marshal General and placed in charge of the Northern District of this State. October 20, 1864, he was promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel in the 9th U. S. Infantry, and March 26, 1868, he resigned from the regular army. For his services during the war the President and Senate appointed him Lieutenant-Colonel in the U. S. Army by brevet for gallant and meritorious service at the battle of Murfreesboro; Colonel U. S. Army by brevet for meritorious and faithful service in the recruitment of the armies of the United States, and Brigadier-General U. S. Army by brevet for faithful and meritorious services during the war.

He re-entered the military service of the State as Brigadier-General of the 9th Brigade July 2, 1878, and January 1, 1880, was for the third time appointed Adjutant-General of the State, holding this office until December 31, 1882. During these three years he continued the work and plan conceived by him in 1857, wisely reduced the strength of the National Guard, established a permanent camp of instruction and procured a state uniform for the troops, laying by his—often unaided—efforts the foundation for the present efficiency of the National Guard.

General Townsend's name has for years been and will continue to be a household word in the military family of the State, the highest renown that can be awarded to his work, which has already borne such satisfactory fruit.

Officers of the National Guard and the Naval Militia will wear the prescribed mourning for thirty days; the picture of General Townsend in the office of the adjutant-general will be draped in mourning for the same period; flags on armories will be placed at half staff and this office closed on Tuesday the 14th inst., the day of the funeral of the man so thoroughly deserving the respect and admiration of those who at any time came in contact with him, who at all times proved himself a faithful servant of the State and the Nation, and whose zeal and devotion are worthy of imitation.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief,

C. WHITNEY TILLINGHAST, 2ND,

Adjutant-General.

{ General Orders, }
 { No. 17. }

I. The following opinion of the Judge Advocate General rendered by him to the Commander-in-Chief under date of October 6, 1897, is published, for the information, not only of those immediately concerned, but of all the National Guard and Naval Militia of the State:

I have examined and return herewith the papers relating to charges preferred by Second Lieutenant George C. Butcher, Co. F, Forty-Seventh Regiment, against Captain M. J. Colligan and Private H. A. Wellington of the same company.

The charges first preferred against Captain Colligan accuse him of "conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman and conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline in appropriating to his own use the funds of his company," and five instances are specified in February, April, May, June and July, 1896, in which he collected from members of his company various sums ranging from fifty cents to three dollars and eight-five cents and aggregating ten dollars and eighty-five cents.

From the reports of the C. O. Second Brigade and C. O. Forty-Seventh Regiment it appears that Captain Colligan did collect these sums of money as charged and did not pay the same into the company treasury until after Lieutenant Butcher had formally preferred charges. There was an interval of a year between the time Captain Colligan collected the money and the date he paid it over to the company.

On June 14, 1897, Captain Colligan was present at a meeting of the company which adopted resolutions prefaced by various recitals relating to the failure of the Captain to pay over the moneys referred to and to the action taken by Lieutenant Butcher in preferring charges against him. The fact that these resolutions were introduced by Private Wellington and that Captain Colligan was present at the meeting where they were adopted appears in the report of the C. O. Second Brigade.

The opening words of these resolutions are, "Whereas, it has become known that charges have been preferred against Captain M. J. Colligan commanding Co. F, Forty-Seventh Regiment, by Second Lieutenant George C. Butcher of the same company." A correct statement of the nature of the charges is next given. It is then declared that the charges were preferred "without the knowledge of Co. F," that the money is the property of the company, that the Captain was never informed by the financial secretary, treasurer or committee of the company that he was indebted to the company, that having been absent four months on furlough he was not aware he was indebted to the company, and that immediately on learning of his indebtedness on his return he paid the same to the treasurer. After these recitals come the statements: "Therefore, be it resolved that we, the members of Co. F, Forty-Seventh Regiment, condemn the action taken by Second Lieutenant George C. Butcher in preferring the above charges, as being uncalled for and against the wishes of the members of this company; and be it further resolved that we, the members of Co. F, Forty-Seventh Regiment, having implicit confidence in Captain M. J. Colligan, deeply deplore the action taken by Second Lieutenant George C. Butcher; and be it further resolved that copies of these resolutions be forwarded to the daily press, to Col. J. G. Eddy of the Forty-Seventh Regiment and to Captain M. J. Colligan."

That these resolutions with the recitals were published in the daily press appears by the report of the C. O. Second Brigade, and a clipping from the Brooklyn Daily Times of June 17th, attached to a communication addressed to you by Lieutenant Butcher, shows the form they appeared in in that paper.

Immediately after the publication of the resolutions in the daily press, Lieutenant Butcher forwarded a formal charge against Captain Colligan of conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline with specifications averring that the resolutions were adopted with his full knowledge and consent and that he should have prevented their adoption and publication.

At the same time a similar formal charge was preferred by Lieutenant Butcher against Private Wellington with specifications alleging that he introduced the resolutions, moved their adoption and so acted, knowing them to be false, for the purpose of misleading the members of the company and the public.

In view of some statements by Lieutenant Butcher in his communications I deem it proper to direct attention in the outset to the principle that courts-martial are not necessarily to be ordered because charges have been preferred or offences committed. An officer who prefers a charge has no right to insist on the appointment of a court to dispose of it and this principle goes so far that an accused officer cannot claim, as of right, a trial by a Military court (Simmons Ct. M. Sect. 368; 1 Code M. F. 177). The underlying reason for the rule is that courts-martial are merely instruments to enable the Commander-in-Chief to maintain discipline and the question of their appointment rests in his sound discretion (1 Winthrop, M. L. 54).

Recurring now to the charges first preferred against Captain Colligan—those growing out of his collection of company funds—it is plainly stated in the report of the C. O. Forty-Seventh Regiment, that he is “fully convinced” that the charges are made “more in a spirit of malice than from a desire to seek justice.” While this consideration is not controlling, it is entitled to weight in view of the facts relating to this charge as they appear in the papers now before me. The gravamen of the accusation is that Captain Colligan “appropriated” the company’s funds to his own use. There is nothing to show any false statements or reports as to the possession of the moneys, nor does it appear he neglected to pay them over to the proper officer of the Civil Association on demand. Some facts of this kind are usually presented in like cases to show a criminal intent. They are lacking in the presented instance and while the Captain’s conduct is open to criticism the case is not one where a trial by court-martial is necessary, and I recommend that no court be appointed.

The charges growing out of the passage and publication of the resolutions adopted by the company remain to be considered.

These resolutions are clearly within R. 7, which prohibits “deliberations or discussions among military men conveying censure towards others in the military service and all publications of a personal nature relating to official transactions between military men.”

The resolutions in so many words “condemn the action taken by Second Lieutenant George C. Butcher in preferring the above charges.” This is a distinct censure on his action in a purely military and official capacity, and the resolution expressly contemplates its publication in the public press and its transmission to the C. O. Forty-Seventh Regiment.

Such conduct is entirely at variance with all rules of military discipline and it is especially remarkable that the officer then under charges should have been present when these resolutions were passed and have given his tacit approval to so improper an act.

The C. O. Forty-Seventh Regiment states, in his report, that these resolutions were adopted at a meeting where "two-thirds of the company were present and the only vote against the resolution was that of Lieutenant Butcher." This is not, therefore, a case where a single member or a few members, have acted improperly, but it is an instance where a large percentage of the membership of an organization has shown a marked ignorance or willful disregard of the fundamental principles of discipline. The company as a whole must, therefore, accept the responsibility for the action so taken.

In my opinion the facts presented by the papers submitted are such that all the circumstances should be considered together and the case should be disposed of as a whole and as affecting the entire company organization. Looking at the situation in this light I recommend that no courts be ordered on any of the charges.

To prevent any misconception of such action and to make plain the position of the Commander-in-Chief, I recommend that Captain Colligan and the members of Co. F, Forty-Seventh Regiment, be notified that while the Commander-in-Chief has seen fit not to order any general court-martial, yet to prevent any misinterpretation of this action he expresses his strong disapproval of the conduct of Captain Colligan and of the members of Co. F, Forty-Seventh Regiment, with reference to the resolutions adopted by the company criticising an officer for performing a strictly military and official act in preferring against another officer charges which at the time the resolutions were passed were under investigation by superior authority. The action of the company is a violation of the explicit language of R. 7, forbidding "deliberations or discussions among military men conveying censure towards others in the military service and all publications of a personal nature relating to official transactions" and is entirely at variance with the requirements of military duty and discipline and is most discreditable to the company as an organization. By neglecting to interfere to prevent the passage of the resolutions although present at the meeting adopting them, Captain Colligan has shown himself singularly forgetful of his duty and responsibility as a commanding officer.

Some such explicit statement formally signified to the parties referred to will, in my opinion, answer the requirements of the case.

II. The Commander-in-Chief fully concurs in the opinion rendered by the Judge Advocate General, and accordingly dismisses the charges preferred, but calls attention to the fact that violations of R. 7 cannot be excused on any grounds whatsoever; that they show a want of discipline and a great lack of true soldierly qualities and spirit; that the regulations prescribe means of redress, if any one deem himself wronged, and that hereafter violations of the letter and spirit of R 7, will receive the treatment which they deserve.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, STATE OF NEW YORK,

ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE,

ALBANY, November 1, 1897.

{ Circular, }
 { No. 1. }

The following adaptation of the Manual of Arms for the service magazine rifle, caliber 30, to the Springfield rifle, caliber 45, and modifications of the Infantry Drill Regulations otherwise and of the Manual of Guard Duty, based on the Drill regulations and modifications approved by the Secretary of War, are published for the guidance of and observance by the National Guard. Paragraphs 44 to 105 will be substituted for paragraphs 44 to 113, and paragraphs 142 to 150b for paragraphs 142 to 150 of the Infantry Drill Regulations.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief,

C. WHITNEY TILLINGHAST, 2ND,

Adjutant-General.

INDIVIDUAL INSTRUCTION WITH ARMS.

44. The recruit should, as soon as possible, be taught the use of the rifle, its care and preservation.

When fair progress has been made in the individual instruction without arms, the recruit will be taught the manual of arms; instruction without arms and that with arms alternating.

Part of each drill with arms should be devoted to marching.

45. The manual of arms is explained for double rank, but for the instruction of recruits it is first executed in single rank, omitting reference to the rear rank.

At the command Fall in, the recruits, usually not exceeding four, assemble (Par. 20, D. R.) pieces at order arms.

The piece shall not be carried loaded except when specially ordered.

46. To prevent accidents, the chamber will be opened (Par. 60) whenever the squad is first formed, and again, just before being dismissed. This rule is general.

47. The cadence of the motions is that of quick time; the recruits will at first be required to give their whole attention to the details of the motions, the cadence being gradually acquired as they become accustomed to handling their arms.

Before requiring recruits to take a position or execute a motion for the first time, the instructor will execute the same for illustration; after which he will cause them to execute it by themselves, then to execute it together at command.

The movements relative to the cartridge, fixing and unfixing bayonet, adjusting sight, breaking and forming stack, are executed with promptness and regularity, but not in cadence.

48. Being at a halt, the movements are, for the purpose of instruction, divided into motions and executed in detail; in this case the command of execution determines the prompt execution of the first motion, and the commands, Two, Three, etc., that of the other motions.

To execute the movements in detail, the instructor first cautions: By the numbers; all movements divided into motions are then executed as above explained until he cautions: Without the numbers; or commands movements other than those in the manual of arms.

MANUAL OF ARMS.

GENERAL RULES.

49. First.—In all positions of the left hand at the balance (center of gravity, bayonet unfixed), the thumb clasps the piece except in present arms and load, in which two positions the thumb is extended along the stock; the sling is included in the grasp of the hand.

Second.—In all positions of the piece “diagonally across the body,” the positions of the piece, left arm, and hand, are the same as in port arms.

Third.—In resuming the order from any position in the manual, the motion next to the last concludes with the butt of the piece about three inches from the ground, the left hand above and near the right, steadying the piece, fingers extended and joined, forearm and wrist straight and inclined downward.

Fourth.—The piece is habitually carried with the hammer at the safety notch.

50. The recruit being in the position of the soldier, the instructor will first cause him to place his piece in the following position.

POSITION OF ORDER ARMS.

The butt rests evenly on the ground, barrel to the rear, the toe of the butt on a line with and touching the toe of the right shoe, arms hanging naturally, elbows near the body, right hand holding the piece between the thumb and fingers, the first two fingers in front, the others in rear.

51. Being at order arms: 1. Present, 2. ARMS.

Carry the piece in front of the center of the body with the right hand, barrel to the rear and vertical, grasp it with the left hand at the balance, forearm horizontal and resting against the body. (Two) Grasp the small of the stock with the right hand.

1. Order, 2. ARMS.

52. Being at order arms: 1. Port, 2. ARMS.

In the instruction of the recruit, to prevent interference with or apprehension by the man on his left especially when bayonets are fixed, care should be taken in coming to the position of port arms, and like positions of the piece, that the muzzle be not swung to the rear nor dropped farther to the left than necessary for taking the position.

Being at port arms: 1. Order, 2. ARMS.

Let go with the right hand, lower and carry the piece to the right with the left hand, regrasp it with the right just above the lower band, back of hand to the front, let go with the left hand, lower and turn the piece with the right, bringing the barrel to the rear, butt about three inches from the ground, and hand near the thigh; steady the piece in this position with the left hand above the right, fingers extended and joined, forearm and wrist straight and inclined downward. (Two) Lower the piece gently to the ground with the right hand, drop the left by the side, and take the position of order arms.

53. Being at present arms: 1. Port, 2. ARMS.

Carry the piece diagonally across the body and take the position of port arms.

Being at port arms: 1. Present, 2. ARMS.

Carry the piece to a vertical position in front of the center of the body, barrel to the rear, and take the position of present arms.

54. Being at order arms: 1. Right shoulder, 2. ARMS.

Raise and carry the piece diagonally across the body with the right hand, lock plate to the front, grasp it at the balance with the left hand, palm up, thumb clasp the piece; carry the right hand quickly to the butt, embracing it, heel between the first two fingers, the thumb and fingers closed on the stock, the barrel sloping to the left and crossing opposite the junction of the neck with the left shoulder; left forearm resting against the body, the piece, left arm, and hand, being in the same position as at port arms. (Two) Raise and place the piece on the right shoulder, barrel up, trigger guard in the hollow of the shoulder, the right elbow against (or near) the side, the right hand retaining its grasp of the butt, the hand directly in front of the elbow; at the same time slip the left hand, fingers extended and joined, down to the breach block. (THREE) Drop the left hand by the side.

Care should be taken in the instruction of recruits that in the position of right shoulder arms the right hand is kept directly in front of the elbow, which insures steadiness of the piece on the shoulder, sufficient elevation of the muzzle to prevent interference with the men in the rear rank, and uniformity of appearance in the position of the piece.

Being at right shoulder arms: 1. Order, 2. ARMS.

Press the butt down quickly with the right hand and throw the piece diagonally across the body, grasp it with the left hand at the balance, the position of the left arm, hand, and piece, being the same as in port arms, the right hand retaining its grasp on the butt. (Two) Let go with the right hand, lower and carry the piece to the right with the left hand, at the same time regrasp the piece with the right just above the lower band, back of hand to the front, let go with the left hand, lower and turn the piece with the right, bringing the barrel to the rear, butt about three inches from the ground, and hand near the thigh; steady the piece in this position with the left hand above the right, fingers extended and joined, forearm and wrist straight and inclined downward. (THREE) Lower the piece gently to the ground with the right hand, drop the left by the side, and take the position of order arms.

55. Being at port arms: 1. Right shoulder, 2. ARMS.

Change the right hand to the butt, heel between the first and second fingers, thumb and fingers closed on the stock, and place the piece on the right shoulder, barrel up, trigger guard in the hollow of the shoulder, the right elbow against (or near) the side, the right hand directly in front of elbow; at the same time slip the left hand, fingers extended and joined, down to the breech block. (Two) Drop the left hand by the side.

Being at right shoulder arms: 1. Port, 2. ARMS.

Press the butt down quickly with the right hand and throw the piece diagonally across the body, lock plate to the front, grasp it with the left hand at the balance, as in port arms, the right hand retaining its grasp at the butt. (Two) Change the right hand to the small of the stock, and take the position of port arms.

56. Being at right shoulder arms: 1. Present, 2. ARMS.

Press the butt down quickly with the right hand and throw the piece diagonally across the body, lock plate to the front, grasp it with the left hand at the balance, as in port arms, the right hand retaining its grasp of the butt. (Two) Change the right hand to the small of the stock and take the position of port arms. (THREE) Carry the piece to a vertical position in front of the center of the body, barrel to the rear, and take the position of present arms.

Being at present arms: 1. Right shoulder, 2. ARMS.

Take the position of port arms. (Two) Change the right hand to the butt, heel between the first and second fingers, thumb and fingers closed on the stock, and place the piece on the right shoulder, barrel up, trigger guard in hollow of the shoulder, the right elbow against (or near) the side, the hand directly in front of elbow, at the same time slip the left hand, fingers extended and joined, down to the breech block. (THREE) Drop the left hand by the side.

RIFLE SALUTE.

57. Being at right shoulder arms: Carry the left hand smartly to the small of the stock, forearm horizontal, palm of the hand down, thumb and fingers extended and joined, forefinger against the piece. (Two) Drop the left hand by the side.

The first motion of the salute is made six yards before passing the officer, holding the hand at the small of the stock until the salute is acknowledged or the officer passed.

Indoors the salute is made from the position of order arms; carry the left hand smartly to the right side, forearm horizontal, or nearly so, palm of the hand down, thumb and fingers extended and joined, forefinger against piece. (Two) Drop the left hand to the side:

The rifle salute is prescribed for individual soldiers with arms, except sentinels, who salute by presenting arms.

THE RESTS.

58. Fall out, Rest, and At ease are executed as without arms.

On resuming the attention take the position of order arms.

59. Being at order arms: 1. Parade, 2. REST.

1. Squad, 2. ATTENTION.

Resume the order, the left hand quitting the piece opposite the right breast.

60. To dismiss the squad.

The instructor commands: 1. Port, 2. ARMS, 3. DISMISSED.

When the instruction has progressed to include loading, to insure that no cartridge is left in the chamber, the instructor commands: 1. Port, 2. ARMS, 3. OPEN CHAMBER, 4. CLOSE CHAMBER, 5. DISMISSED.

After closing the chamber the hammer is brought to the safety notch.

61. Being at order arms: 1. Fix, 2. BAYONET.

Execute parade rest, then grasp the roughened end of the bayonet with the thumb and forefinger of the right hand, slip the left hand to the spring button, thumb and forefinger resting on the roughened ends; press the button, draw out the bayonet, at the same time releasing the pressure on the spring, which will automatically catch the bayonet; resume the position of order arms.

62. Being at order arms: 1. Unfix, 2. BAYONET.

Execute parade rest, then grasp the roughened end of the bayonet with the thumb and forefinger of the right hand, slip the left hand to the spring button, thumb and forefinger resting on the roughened ends, press the button, push in the bayonet, at the same time releasing the pressure on the spring, which will automatically catch the bayonet; resume the position of order arms.

63. If marching, the bayonet is fixed or unfix in the most expeditious and convenient manner, and the piece returned to the position in which it was when the order to fix or unfix bayonet was given.

64. Being at order arms, bayonet fixed: 1. Charge, 2. BAYONET.

Half face to the right, carrying the right heel six inches to the rear and three inches to the right of the left heel, at the same time raise the piece with the right hand inclining the barrel to the front, grasp it with the left at the balance, back of hand down, thumb clasping piece, elbow against the body, grasp the small of the stock with the right hand and bring the point of the bayonet to the height of the chin, right hand supporting the stock firmly against the front of right hip, the body inclining slightly forward.

1. Order, 2. ARMS.

Face to the front, at the same time let go the piece with the right hand and lower it to the right side with left hand, regrasp it with the right just above the lower band, back of hand to the right, and lower the piece, bringing the butt about three inches from the ground and hand near the thigh; steady the piece in this position with the left hand above the right, fingers extended and joined, forearm and wrist straight and inclined downward. (Two) Lower the piece gently to the ground with the right hand, drop the left by the side, and take the position of order arms.

65. Being at port arms, bayonet fixed: 1. Charge, 2. BAYONET.

Half face to the right, carrying the right heel six inches to the rear and three inches to the right of the left heel, and at the same time bring the piece to the position of charge bayonet.

To resume port arms: 1. Port, 2. ARMS.

Face to the front, at the same time take the position of port arms.

66. Being at right shoulder arms: 1. Charge, 2. BAYONET.

Press the butt down quickly with the right hand and throw the piece diagonally across the body, lock plate to the front, grasp it with the left hand as in port arms, the right hand retaining its grasp of the butt. (Two) Change the right hand to the small of the stock. (THREE) Half face to the right, carrying the right heel six inches to the rear and three inches to the right of the left heel, and at the same time bring the piece down to the right side and take the position of charge bayonet.

Being at charge bayonet: 1. Right shoulder, 2. ARMS.

Face to the front and at the same time take the position of port arms. (Two) Change the right hand to the butt, heel between the first and second fingers, thumb and fingers closed on the stock, and place the piece on the right shoulder, barrel up, trigger guard in the hollow of the shoulder, the right elbow against (or near) the side, the hand directly in front of the elbow, at the same time slip the left hand, fingers extended and joined, down to the breech block. (THREE) Drop the left hand to the side.

POSITIONS KNEELING AND LYING DOWN.

67. The movements of kneeling, lying down, and rising are first taught without arms; they are executed as with arms, except that in the position of kneeling the right hand rests on the right thigh, and in moving to and from the lying position the right hand is placed on the ground; in the position lying down the forearms are against each other on the ground, left arm in front.

68. At the command kneel, lie down, or rise, the hammer will be brought to the safety notch if not already there. This rule is general.

69. Being at order arms: KNEEL.

70. Being at the order kneeling: RISE.

Rise and take the position of order arms; the rear-rank men covering their file leaders.

71. Being at the order kneeling: LIE DOWN.

Each front-rank man places the right knee against the left heel. (Two) Draw back the left foot and place the knee on the ground; place the left hand well forward on the ground and lie flat on the belly, thus inclining the body about thirty-five degrees to the right; the piece is lowered at the same time with the right hand, toe resting on the ground barrel up, muzzle off the ground, left hand at the balance, left elbow on the ground, right hand at the small of the stock, opposite the neck. This is the position lying down.

The rear-rank men move back thirty-six inches in the most convenient manner without rising, and lie down as prescribed for the front rank.

72. Being in the position lying down: RISE.

73. Being at the order standing: LIE DOWN.

Each front-rank man takes the position of order kneeling, except that the right knee is placed against the left heel. (Two) Draw back the left foot and place the knee on the ground; place the left hand well forward on the ground and lie flat on the belly, thus inclining the body about thirty-five degrees to the right; the piece is lowered at the same time with the right hand, toe resting on the ground, barrel up, muzzle off the ground, left hand at the balance, left elbow on the ground, right hand at the small of the stock opposite the neck.

The rear-rank men step back thirty-six inches and lie down as prescribed for the front rank.

74. Being in the position lying down: KNEEL.

Place the left hand on the ground and raise the body on the knees; draw up and place the left foot by the side of the right knee, raise and place the piece in the position of the order kneeling; the rear-rank men take the position of the order kneeling and then move forward thirty-six inches in the most convenient manner without rising.

TO LOAD.

75. The recruits are at first taught to load and fire without using cartridges; after a few lessons they should use dummy cartridges, and when well instructed, the drill may close with a few rounds of blank cartridges.

76. No cartridges will be used, except when indicated by the words with dummy (blank or ball) cartridges, preceding the command LOAD. This rule is general.

77. Being in line, standing at the order: 1. Squad, 2. LOAD.

middle of the interval to his right and in line with the left heel of his front-rank man; the front-rank men half face to the right; both ranks then carry the right heel six inches to the rear and three inches to the right of the left heel, turning the toes of both feet slightly inward, and raising at the same time the pieces with the right hand and dropping them into the left at the balance, muzzle at the height of the chin, left elbow against the body, small of the stock at the waist and right hand grasping the small of the stock. (Two) Lower the muzzle, barrel sloping downward at an angle of about twenty-five degrees, and look toward the chamber, half-cock the piece and open the chamber; (slip the cartridge box, if worn, to the right hip and open), take a cartridge between the thumb and first two fingers and place it in the bore; press it home, close the chamber, carry the right hand to the small of the stock and the eyes to the front, at the same time raising the muzzle to the height of the chin. This position is designated for reference as that of load, the piece being loaded and the hammer at the half cock.

If kneeling the position of the piece is similar—the left forearm rests on the left thigh, the left hand grasping the piece at the balance and the muzzle is at the height of the chin.

When lying down in double rank the rear-rank men do not load.

78. The piece being in the position of load, that is with the hammer at the half cock, is brought to the ready by the command:

1. Squad, 2. READY.

At the second command cock the piece with the right thumb and return the hand to the small of the stock.

79. Being in any position, pieces loaded: 1. Draw, 2. CART-RIDGE.

Take the position of load, if not already there (position of load includes half cocking the piece), open the chamber gently to avoid complete ejection of the cartridge from the chamber, take and return cartridge to box or belt, close chamber, bring hammer to safety notch, and carry the right hand to the small of the stock.

80. Pieces loaded, and being in the position of load or at the ready, to order arms: 1. Order, 2. ARMS.

At the command order bring the hammer to the safety notch, at the command ARMS take the position of order arms, the front-rank men similarly as from charge bayonet; the rear-rank men raise the muzzles of their pieces (to clear the front-rank men), step back and cover their file leaders, at the same time bringing the piece to the position of order arms.

If kneeling, both ranks take the order kneeling.

If sights are raised (par. 89) they should be laid down at the first command.

81. Cartridge boxes, if used, are closed after executing the order, order kneeling, position lying down, or cease firing (par. 147).

82. Being at the ready: AIM.

Each rear-rank man aims through the interval at the right of his file leader, and inclines slightly forward, to advance the muzzle of his piece beyond the front rank. When lying down in double rank, the rear-rank men do not aim nor fire.

83. In aiming kneeling, the left elbow rests on the left knee, point of elbow in front of kneecap.

84. FIRE.

Press the finger against the trigger; fire without deranging the aim, and without lowering or turning the piece.

85. LOAD.

Lower the piece to the position of load, and load.

86. The exercise is continued by the command: 1. Squad, 2. READY, 3. AIM, 4. FIRE, 5. LOAD.

87. If the instructor does not wish the pieces to be reloaded after firing, in place of the command LOAD he commands: 1. Order, 2. ARMS.

At the command Order, bring the piece to the position of load, eject the empty shell by opening the chamber, close the chamber, bring the hammer to the safety notch, lower the sight leaf, if raised, and carry the right hand to the small of the stock; at the command ARMS take the position of order arms, the front-rank men similarly as from charge bayonet; the rear-rank men raise the muzzle of their pieces (to clear the front-rank men) step back and cover their file leaders, at the same time bringing the piece to the position of order arms.

If kneeling both ranks take the order kneeling.

88. To accustom the recruits in the position of aim, to await the command FIRE: 1. Recover, 2. ARMS.

At the command Recover, withdraw the finger from the trigger; at the command ARMS, take the position of load, the piece being retained at the ready.

In recovering arms when kneeling or lying down, the piece is brought to the position for loading kneeling, or lying down, respectively.

89. When the recruits are thoroughly instructed in the adjustments of the sight and the principles of aiming as laid down in the "Firing Regulations for Small Arms," they will be required to aim, using the graduations of the rear sight corresponding to the distances indicated. For this purpose the instructor commands: 1. At (so many) yards, 2. Squad, 3. READY, 4. AIM.

At the first command both ranks take the position of load and adjust the sight with the right hand.

The instructor assures himself by careful inspection that each man sets his sight at the range indicated; when satisfied that the subject is fully comprehended, he will exercise the men in aiming at a designated object. For this purpose he commands: 1. At that tree (or At.), 2. At (so many) yards, 3. Squad, 4. READY, 5. AIM.

At the first command, both ranks take the position of load and fix the eyes on the object indicated; at the second command adjust the sight and immediately fix the eyes upon the object again.

90. The distance announced in the command should be, as nearly as possible, the true distance of the object indicated.

The men should be practiced in aiming at objects above and below them.

91. Being at order arms: 1. Open, 2. BOXES.

Steady the piece by grasping it with the left hand just below the stacking swivel, forearm against the body; open the box with the right hand and resume the order.

In a similar manner each man, as his box is inspected, closes it and resumes the order.

92. Being at order arms: 1. Inspection, 2. ARMS.

At the command ARMS, bayonets are fixed and cartridge boxes, if worn, opened.

Each man, as the inspector approaches him, executes port arms, open chamber (returning right hand to the small of the stock).

The inspector takes the piece with the right hand, grasping it just below the lower band, back of hand down (the man dropping the hands by the side), inspects it and hands it back in the position in which received. The man receives it with the left hand at the balance, closes chamber, brings the hammer to the safety notch, resumes port arms, comes to order arms, and unfixes bayonet.

As the inspector returns the piece the next man executes inspection arms, and so on through the squad. Should the piece be inspected without handling, the man closes chamber, brings the hammer to the safety notch, grasps the piece with the right hand at the small of the stock, comes to order arms and unfixes bayonet, when the inspector passes to the next man, who immediately executes inspection arms.

93. The inspection of the arms begins on the right, after which the inspector may pass in rear and inspect boxes, if worn, from left to right.

Boxes are closed as soon as inspected.

STACK ARMS.

94. Three pieces only are used in making a stack; pieces not so used are, in this connection, termed loose pieces.

Preparatory to stacking arms, the squad must have counted fours and must be in line at the order.

95. 1. Stack, 2. ARMS.

At the command Stack, each even number of the front rank raises his piece with the right hand, grasps it with the left at the upper band, and rests the butt between his feet, barrel to the front, muzzle inclining slightly to the front and opposite the centre of the interval on his right, the thumb and forefinger raising the stacking swivel; each even number of the rear rank then passes his piece, barrel to the rear, to his file leader, who grasps it between the bands with his right hand and throws the butt about twenty-eight inches in advance of his own and opposite the middle of the interval, the right hand slipping to the upper band, the thumb and forefinger raising the stacking swivel, which he engages with that of his own piece; each odd number of the front rank raises his piece with the right hand, carries it well forward, barrel to the front, the left hand guiding the stacking swivel, engages the lower hook of the swivel of his own piece with the free hook of that of the even number of the rear-rank; he then turns the barrel outward into the angle formed by the other two pieces and holds the butt about four inches above the ground and six inches in front of the line of the toes.

At the command ARMS, each odd number of the front rank lowers the butt of his piece to the ground.

The stacks being formed, the pieces of the odd numbers in the rear rank are passed to the even numbers in the front rank, who lay them on the stacks. The pieces of the guides and the file closers are laid on the stacks at the same time.

Each man on finishing handling pieces, takes the position of the soldier.

The instructor may then rest or dismiss the squad, leaving the arms stacked.

On assembling, the men take their places in rear of the stacks.

96. 1. Take, 2. ARMS.

At the command Take, the loose pieces are returned by the even numbers; each even number of the first rank then grasps his own piece with the left hand, the piece of his rear-rank man with his right hand, grasping both between the bands; each odd number of the front rank grasps his piece in the same way with the right hand.

At the command ARMS, each odd number of the front rank disengages his own piece by raising the butt from the ground and then turning the piece to the right, detaching the piece from the stack; each even number of the front rank disengages and detaches his piece by turning it to the left, and then passes the piece of his rear-rank man to him, and all resume the order.

Unless care is taken by the odd number to hold and place the butt of his piece in front of the line of the toes, there is danger that the front sight will be caught and bent by the ramrod of the piece of the even number on turning the piece to make or break the stack.

Should any four have numbers two and three blank files, number one rear-rank will take the place of number two rear-rank in making and breaking the stack; the stacks made or broken, he resumes his post.

97. Being in single rank, arms are stacked and taken on the same principle as in double rank; at the preparatory command number three steps back and covers number two; numbers two and three execute what has been explained for the even numbers of the front and rear rank respectively; number three then resumes his place; number one uses his piece as explained for the odd number of the front rank. The piece of number four is passed as explained for the odd numbers of the rear rank.

Like precaution as in double rank should be used in making and breaking stack to avoid injury to the sights.

98. The following positions of the piece are intended mainly for use in extended order and route marches. Whenever the commands for any of these are given, the piece will be shifted in the most convenient manner, but for desirable uniformity in the method of carrying the piece from the right shoulder to the left shoulder and return when in close order, the method therefor is prescribed in paragraph 48.

99. 1. Trail, 2. ARMS.

The piece is grasped with the right hand just above the balance, right arm slightly bent, barrel up, muzzle inclined slightly to the front.

When it can be done without danger or inconvenience to others, as on the firing line, the piece may be grasped at the balance and the muzzle lowered until the piece is horizontal; a similar position in the left hand may be used in like case.

100. Being at right shoulder arms:

1. Left shoulder, 2. ARMS. Press the butt down quickly with the right hand and bring the piece to nearly a vertical position without lowering it, grasp it with the left hand at the small of the stock and carry and place the piece on the left shoulder, barrel up, trigger guard in the hollow of the shoulder; replace the right hand at the butt with the left hand heel between the first and second fingers, thumb and fingers closed on the stock, elbow near the body, hand directly in front of the elbow, and drop the right hand by the side.

1. Right shoulder, 2. ARMS. Press the butt down quickly with the left hand and bring the piece to nearly a vertical position without lowering it, grasp it with the right hand at the small of the stock, and carry and place the piece on the right shoulder, barrel up, trigger guard in the hollow of the shoulder; replace the left hand at the butt with the right hand, and take the position of right shoulder arms.

101. 1. Sling, 2. ARMS.

The right arm is passed between the rifle and the sling which rests upon the shoulder, piece in rear of shoulder, muzzle down and barrel to the rear; right hand steadying the piece.

On route marches the piece may be slung on either shoulder. The gun sling should never be so tightly drawn that it can not be readily adjusted.

102. 1. Secure, 2. ARMS.

The piece is held in the right hand at the balance, barrel down, sloping downward and to the front; right hand supported against the front of the right hip, upper arm against the stock. A corresponding position in the left hand may be used.

103. When the recruits are first exercised in marching with arms, the instructor orders the pieces in position before putting the squad in march, and before passing from quick to double time; he also causes the recruits to be at quick time at the right shoulder before ordering the halt.

104. When the marchings and the manual of arms are thoroughly understood, the following general rules govern:

(1) If at the order, bring the piece to the right shoulder at the first preparatory command for marching.

(2) A disengaged hand in double time is held as when without arms.

(3) If at the right shoulder, left shoulder, trail, or port arms, bring the piece to the order on halting; the execution of the order to begin immediately after halting.

(4) When the facings, side step, back step, alignments, open and close ranks, taking intervals, distances, and assembling from bayonet exercise, are executed from the order, raise the piece to the trail while in motion and resume the order on halting.

When this applies to other movements it is therein stated.

105. In the battle exercises, or whenever circumstances require, the regular positions of the manual of arms and the firings may be ordered without regard to the previous position of the piece; such movements as are not in the manual will be executed without regard to motions or cadence.

FIRINGS.

142. The post of the instructor is three paces in rear of the squad, but in actual firing he places himself where he can best make himself heard and at the same time observe the effect of the fire; the objective should be in plain view and so designated as to be easily distinguished by all.

After exercises in firing, before dismissing the squad or passing to other instruction, inspection will be made to insure that no cartridge is left in chamber.

143. The commands for firing are the same whether the squad be standing, kneeling, or lying down. The commands for kneeling or lying down precede the commands for firing.

144. At the first preparatory command for firing, the squad being in line standing, both ranks take the position of load as prescribed in paragraph 77, and the cartridge box, if worn, is slipped to the hip and opened; at the command indicating the distance, the sights are adjusted; the cartridge box is closed and replaced after executing cease firing (par. 147).

VOLLEY FIRING.

145. The squad being in line fronting the object to be fired upon, pieces loaded: 1. Fire by squad, 2. At (such an object), 3. At (so many) yards, 4. Squad, 5. READY, 6. AIM, 7. FIRE, 8. LOAD.

To fire another volley at the same object, but with a new line of sight: 1. At (so many) yards, 2. Squad, 3. READY, 4. AIM, 5. FIRE, 6. LOAD.

To fire another volley at a new object: 1. At (such an object), 2. At (so many) yards, 3. Squad, 4. READY, 5. AIM, 6. FIRE, 7. LOAD.

146. The object and range will be indicated in the preparatory commands for all kinds of fire, as illustrated in the preceding examples.

If the object be at a considerable angle to the front of the squad, the instructor will change the front of the squad so as to face the object.

The commands are given at sufficient intervals to allow them to be executed as prescribed. The command fire is given when the pieces appear to be steady.

These rules are general.

TO CEASE FIRING.

147. CEASE FIRING.

Take the position of load, if not already there, draw the cartridge, or eject the empty shell by opening the chamber, close the chamber, bring the hammer to the safety notch, lower the sight leaf, if raised, and take the order, order kneeling, or the position lying down, as the case may be. If standing, the rear-rank men step back and cover their file leaders, taking the order as prescribed in paragraph 79.

148. The command (or signal) cease firing is always used to stop the firing of whatever kind, and may be given at any time after the first preparatory command for firing, whether the firing has actually commenced or not.

This rule is general.

TO FIRE AT WILL.

149. 1. Fire at will, 2. At (such an object), 3. At (so many) yards, 4. Squad, 5. READY, 6. COMMENCE FIRING.

At the command commence firing each man independently of the others takes careful aim at the object, fires, loads, and continues the fire as rapidly as is consistent with taking careful aim at each shot. The men should be taught to load rapidly and to aim deliberately.

150. 1. CEASE FIRING, 2. LOAD.

The firing will stop; at the second command pieces not already there will be brought to the position of load, and those not loaded will be loaded.

This is intended to interrupt the firing, for the purpose of steadying the men, to change to another method of firing, or to retain the pieces loaded for the time being, in which latter case the instructor should direct the hammers to be brought to the safety notch.

RAPID FIRE.

150a. This fire is employed under usual conditions for ranges within which the trajectory is comparatively flat, and the firing should be very effective. 1. Rapid fire, 2. At (such an object), 3. At (so many) yards, 4. Squad, 5. READY, 6. COMMENCE FIRING.

At the command indicating the distance, if 600 yards or less, the sights will be laid; the firing is executed as the firing at will, but with as great rapidity as will admit of effective aiming at the object.

If firing at will, to begin rapid fire: 1. Rapid fire, 2. COMMENCE FIRING, when rapid fire is taken up.

Instructions in the rapid fire should not be given until after the fire at will is well executed.

DRILL REGULATIONS.

1. The position of carry arms and commands for coming to or from the same will be omitted in the regulations wherever occurring.

2. The method for the rifle salute prescribed by paragraph 57 of the modified Manual of Arms, will be substituted for that of the Drill Regulations for the individual salute with arms, the piece being brought to the right shoulder, if not already there, preparatory to saluting.

3. At the formation of the company (par. 187), when the first sergeant, before calling the roll, brings the company to the right shoulder, the rear rank, at the command right shoulder, ARMS, not only executes the change of arms but also falls back to thirty-six inches distance; when the roll call is completed the first sergeant brings his piece to the right shoulder and the rear rank closes again to facing distance, and it is the duty of the fileclosers to see that the latter movement is promptly and properly executed, the men having received proper instructions originally. No command will be given to open or close the ranks in this case. The first sergeant then faces about to salute and to report the result to the captain. At parade, at commands by the adjutant: 1. First sergeant, 2. Front and center, etc., first sergeants bring the piece to the right shoulder at the command First sergeant and retain it there until they return to their posts; at guard mounting on marching details to the parade ground, first sergeants keep the piece on the right shoulder on halting the details, and until they take post behind their supernumeraries.

4. At guard mounting, non-commissioned officers of the guard bring the piece to the right shoulder at the command non-commissioned officers by the adjutant for bringing them to the front and center, and retain the piece on the shoulder until they take posts.

5. Paragraph 259: Strike out the word "carry" and insert instead the words "right shoulder" (or order)."

6. At formations of the battalion, regiment, etc., paragraphs 260; 371, etc.; at reviews, paragraph 690, etc., parades, paragraphs 733, etc.; guard mounting, paragraph 720; color guard and escort of the color, paragraphs 499 and 754; escorts of honor, paragraph 758; funeral escort, paragraphs 759, 761 and 767, arms are presented from the order; at reviews they are returned from the present to the order; at formation of the battalion and at parades they may be brought from the present to the order or to the right shoulder; at guard mounting they are brought from the present to the order or to the right shoulder, respectively, according as the direction by the officer of the day is to march the guard in review or to its post, paragraphs 720 and 725; by the color guard, and escort of the color, paragraphs 499 and 754, they are brought from the present to the order; by an escort of honor, paragraph 758, from the present to the right shoulder; at funeral ceremonies from the present to the right shoulder if the escort is to march as indicated in paragraph 759, but if not to march at once—as indicated in paragraphs 761 and 767—from the present to the order.

7. At guard mounting the old guard awaits the approach of the new guard at the order, and presents arms from the order; the arms of the new guard are brought from the right shoulder to port arms when its head is opposite the left of the old guard, and to right shoulder arms as soon as its rear has passed the right of the old guard, arms being brought to the order upon halting in accordance with the general rule. The old guard is brought to order arms after the new guard has passed. The new guard having been dressed, arms are presented (par. 726) by both guards from the order and returned to the order from the present.

8. The detachments of the old guard having come in and formed on its left; the old guard is moved forward (par. 728) with the guide to the right, arms at the right shoulder, and brought to port arms after the command four right, and to right shoulder arms after having passed the new guard, the latter standing at present arms while the old guard is passing.

9. At reviews each company is brought to port arms by command of its captain "at the point indicated," (paragraph 667), and the right shoulder arms is resumed, successively by companies, when about fifty paces beyond the reviewing officer.

10. Paragraph 666 is modified to read as follows:

A non-commissioned officer in command of a company retains his post on the right of the right guide when the battalion is in line; he has the post of the captain when the battalion is in column.

At parade, before bringing the company to parade rest, he brings his piece to the right shoulder, steps two paces to the front and faces to the left; having given his commands he faces to the left, steps to his place in rank, comes to the order, faces about and comes to parade rest. At inspection, when ranks are open, his post is on the right of the right guide.

In exercises in the manual, non-commissioned officers commanding companies or platoons, and non-commissioned officers acting as non-commissioned staff officers of a battalion and armed with a rifle, execute only the order and parade rest; in rendering honors, the present and order; while marching, the right shoulder and port.

When passing in review, a non-commissioned officer commanding a company or platoon executes the rifle salute; when commanding a company or detachment separate from a battalion, or other command, on passing the colors or any person entitled to compliment, he salutes in the same manner, first bringing his command to port arms.

11. Being at the order or carry: 1. Present, 2. SWORD (or arms). (Par. 489.)

At the command present, raise and carry the sword to the front, base of hilt as high as the chin, and six inches in front of the neck, edge to the left, point six inches further to the front than the hilt, thumb extended on the left of the grip, all the fingers grasping the grip.

At the command sword, lower the sword, point to the front and near the ground, edge to the left, hand by the side, thumb on left grip, arm extended.

In rendering honors with troops, officers execute the first motion of the salute at the command present, the second motion at the command arms; enlisted men with the sword drawn execute the first motion at the command arms.

12. 1. Order, 2. SWORDS (or arms). (Par. 490.)

Drop the point of the sword to or near the ground, edge down, thumb on back of grip.

Being at the present sword, should the next command be order arms, officers execute order swords; if it be right shoulder arms they execute carry swords.

MANUAL OR GUARD DUTY.

73. Strike out the words "1. Carry, 2. ARMS," wherever they occur.

75. Strike out the words "carry" and insert instead the word "ORDER."

Sixth line: Strike out the words "a carry" and insert instead the words "the order."

77. Fourth line: Strike out the words "a carry" and insert instead the words "port arms."

78. Third line: Strike out the words "and carry."

79. Second line: Strike out the words "a carry" and insert instead the words "the order."

103. Third line: Strike out the words "a carry" and insert instead the words "to attention if not already at attention."

Eighth line: Strike out the words "carry and."

104. Second line: Strike out the words "a carry and" and insert instead the word "the."

145. Fourth line: Strike out the word "carry" and insert "right shoulder."

146. Fourth line: Strike out the words "a carry or" and insert instead the word "the."

214. Strike out the words "a carry" in the second line and insert instead the words "right shoulder," and in the seventh line insert before the word "Both" the words "At the command Post" (see par. 147), and strike out the word "carry" and insert instead the words "right shoulder."

Twelfth line: Strike out the words "a carry" and insert instead the words "right shoulder."

Paragraph 242 and other paragraphs containing references to the salute by sentinels of infantry, or cavalry armed with the carbine if dismounted, are modified to conform to rules as follows:

The salute by sentinels will be made by presenting arms; to salute, the sentinel halts, if infantry, brings his piece to right shoulder arms, if not already there, if cavalry with carbines, to the carry and faces outward as the person or party entitled to salute arrives within about thirty paces.

If the officer approaches along the post, the present will be given when the officer arrives at a distance of about six yards. If he passes in front of the sentinel, but not along the post, he is saluted just before he passes the sentinel's front. If he cross the post, he is saluted just before he crosses.

The sentinel will remain at the present until his salute is returned, or until the person saluted has passed.

If the officer passes in rear of his post he is not saluted, but the sentinel stands facing outward until the officer has passed.

A sentinel at port arms engaged in conversation, executes present arms directly from the position of port arms.

A sentinel in a sentry box armed with a rifle or carbine, upon the approach of an officer will stand at an order and present arms therefrom as the officer passes.

246. Fourth line: Strike out the words "a carry" and insert instead the words "right shoulder."

Fourth line from end of page: Strike out the words "a carry" and insert instead the words "port arms."

298. The rule prescribing the rifle salute as that for sentinels when in charge of prisoners at work, is modified only by the change in the manner of making the rifle salute by such sentinels.

327. This paragraph is to be omitted.

COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF.

FRANK S. BLACK, OF TROY,

Governor of the State.

Headquarters at Albany.

Staff of the Commander-in-Chief:

Armory, Park avenue and Sixty-seventh street, New York city.

Companies A, B, C and D were organized during the excitement created by the firing of British at American vessels off Sandy Hook in April, 1806, as the first, second, third and fourth companies, and June 25th they were officially recognized by the State as part of the uniformed militia of the State, and attached to the battalion of artillery commanded by Major Andrew Sitcher. April 5, 1807, the battalion, in the organization of the Third Regiment of New York Artillery, became its Second Battalion. When war with England became imminent in 1807, these four companies, with other volunteers, were temporarily organized as a regiment, commanded by Colonel Peter Curtenius, and remained thus detached until April 20, 1809. In 1812 the Third became the Eleventh Regiment of Artillery, the four companies remaining the Second Battalion. August 25, 1824, the Battalion was named "Battalion of National Guards" (its distinctive name until, in 1862, the Legislature appropriated it for the uniformed militia) and in December, 1824, the fifth company was organized, and Captain Stevens' company, of the Eleventh New York Artillery, transferred to it as the sixth company. In January, 1825, the battalion was transferred to the Second New York Artillery. October 1, 1825, the battalion was detached and organized as a separate and independent battalion, and during the month the seventh company was organized. May 4, 1826, the organization of the eighth company was completed, and May 6th the battalion was organized into a regiment, the Twenty-seventh Artillery. April 17, 1838, a troop of cavalry was admitted to the regiment, which, in 1861, became the ninth company. In 1843 the State furnished the regiment with arms, it having heretofore provided them itself. July 27th the designation of the regiment was changed to Seventh Regiment. In April, 1849, an engineer corps was organized, which, in 1861, became the tenth company. The regiment was frequently ordered to hold itself ready for service, and did active service for the United States, the State and New York city, as follows: In United States service from September 15 to December 15, 1812; from September 2 to December 2, 1814; from April 19 to June 3, 1861; from May 26 to September 5, 1862; from June 17 to July 21, 1863. In support of State or municipal authority: Execution of James Reynolds, November 19, 1825; at the election riots, April 10, 1834; abolition riot, July 11 to 12, 1834; great conflagration in New York city, December 17, 1835; stevedore riot, February 24, 1836; flour riots, February 6 and March 6, 1837; anti-rent war, December 9 to 10, 1839; Croton water riot, April 22 to 23, 1840; fire in New York city, July 19 to 21, 1845; Astor place riot, May 10, 12 and 14, 1849; police riot, June 16, 1857; dead rabbit riot, July 5, 1857; Quarantine war, January 3, 1859; preserving order at camp of Spinola Brigade, September 12 to 19, 1862; draft riots, July, 1863; Orange riots, July, 1871; labor riots, July, 1877, and at Brooklyn during motormen's strike, January, 1895.
