APPENDIX B

HEADQUARTERS NEW YORK NATIONAL GUARD

NEW YORK, December 31, 1925.

Subject: Annual Report.

To: The Adjutant General of the State, Albany, N. Y.

In accordance with paragraph 905, Regulations for the Military Forces of the State of New York, the following report is made of the present condition of the New York National Guard and of operations during the calendar year 1925, together with recommendations for future action.

1. General.—The New York National Guard is in very satisfactory condition and marked improvement in many respects has been made during the past year. The most gratifying features of the year have been the stabilization of strength and an improvement in average attendance even over the satisfactory figures of 1924. We have also made progress towards the desired concentration of our troops in fewer field training camps, as recommended in previous reports. The question of armory housing has not yet been satisfactorily provided for and merits early consideration.

2. Strength.—The strength of the Guard is 21,834. This is 119 less than the final figures for 1924, but this fact, immaterial in itself, is also accounted for by the fact that the Militia Bureau, in the interests of economy, has directed us to keep our strength down to the minimum; in fact this bureau may in the near future require us to still further decrease our strength. The figures for the year have varied only between a low of 21,578 in January and a high of 22,427 in August, an unusually small range, and our percentage of attendance throughout the year has been higher on the average than in any recent years. The stabilization in strength and improvement in attendance are two of the most gratifying features of the year.

3. Organization.—As stated in last year's report, all of our units are now federalized and all units required of us are now organized. We are the only State in the Union of which the above can be said. Matters are not in a completely satisfactory condition in all organizations. The 369th Infantry, 102nd Ammunition Train, 101st Signal Battalion and 102nd Engineers are below desired standard in strength and drill attendance and in some respects also in training. These organizations, together with some scattered units of other troops, will receive special attention and drastic action will be taken if improvement is not shown. We still have three unassigned troops of Cavalry and three regiments of Infantry which are "attached" to existing Brigades. A more definite assignment than the above would be desirable if it can be arranged for with Federal authorities. I am also far from convinced of the necessity of the existence of "Trains" in a peace time organization. They are difficult to recruit and difficult to maintain. They could, if maintained in a skeleton form, be quickly organized in time of need, and the effort now expended upon them could be directed into channels more productive of good to the State.

Three important changes in command have occurred. The sudden and most regrettable death of Brigadier General William O. Richardson of the 52nd Field Artillery Brigade caused a vacancy which was filled by the appointment of Colonel Robert W. Marshall, formerly commanding the 105th Field Artillery. The vacancy caused by the resignation of Colonel Arthur W. Little of the 369th Infantry has been temporarily filled by the assignment of Colonel William A. Taylor, S. C. and D., to command that regiment. Colonel William Ottmann has succeeded Colonel Nelson B. Burr in command of the 212th Artillery, Anti-Aircraft.

4. Service in Aid of Civil Authorities.—Again I am able to report that there have been no calls upon the Guard for services in aid of the civil authorities during the past year. In every way this is a very fortunate condition of affairs.

5. Training.—The number of troops who received field training was in excess even of the very satisfactory 1924 figures; 20,015 officers and men actually attended field training, a percentage of 89.15, which is far in excess of any previous figures. Thirteen organizations had over 90 per cent present, as compared with 9 in 1924 and 5 in 1923. Ten regiments paraded a strength of over 1,000, as compared with 7 in 1924 and 5 in 1923. Only four organizations fell below 80 per cent in attendance and only two of these were below 75 per cent. No unit was debarred from field training on account of insufficient strength.

Several changes were made in camp assignments. Fort Ontario was prepared and opened to us for the first time and was attended by the 212th and 244th regiments of Coast Artillery. The 27th Tank Company performed a very instructive tour of duty at Camp Meade. The 258th Field Artillery was again sent to Fort Eustis, Va., but it is hoped to transfer them to Fort Ontario in 1926. The usual Infantry and Special Troops were sent to Camp Smith at Peekskill, the Cavalry to Fort Ethan Allen, Vt., the Field Artillery (less 258th F. A.) to Pine Camp, N. Y., and the 245th Coast Artillery to Fort H. G. Wright, N. Y. We have been assured that still further concentration will be possible in 1926.

Small arms qualifications were much ahead of previous years; 4,772 officers and men received qualification medals or bars for some weapon; 1,399 qualified with the rifle, 1,709 with the pistol, 147 with the automatic rifle, 970 with the machine gun, 361 with the one pounder and stokes mortar, 148 with the bayonet and 18 with the saber, mounted. I desire especially to call attention to the fact that 1925 has produced our first qualifications with the automatic rifle, bayonet and saber and that a highly creditable number of qualifications were secured with all three weapons. Our State and organization rifle and pistol teams also had good success in the New York State Rifle Association matches at Camp Smith in June and in the National matches at Camp Perry in September. A Field Firing Problem for selected platoons from each Infantry battalion was also introduced at Camp Smith and was most successful, creditable and instructive.

While the general course of field instruction was similar to that of 1924 great progress was made in field tactical problems. Some twenty miles of rough troop roads were laid out in the new Van Cortland terrain at Camp Smith, the country was mapped, and each regiment was given company, battalion and finally a regimental problem in field work. In these problems the improvement of Headquarters companies in communications and of staffs in command and staff work was marked.

All Infantry regiments were again rated on their field training. Ratings were not published, but were given confidentially to all brigade and regimental commanders. They were very close and except in two instances above the mark which had been set as "satisfactory."

The work of the auxiliary arms at other camps was also good, and received high commendation from U. S. Army instructors. The troops sent to Fort Ontario were especially pleased with conditions at that Post and with the possibility of future development.

The Riot Battalion of the New York City Police again performed a two weeks' tour of training at Camp Smith in June, and under the supervision of New York National Guard officers specially assigned to that duty had a most instructive and satisfactory tour, a distinct advance in many respects over their 1924 record.

Armory training has progressed favorably along well-established lines. What has been designated as a "Candidates School" has been established for the instruction of specially selected enlisted men who desire to become commissioned officers. This school should be of great value if properly supervised and conducted.

In organized athletics the 27th Division Special Troops won the championship in baseball, the 105th Infantry in basketball and the 51st Machine Gun Squadron in polo. Armory soldier boxing was taken up by several new organizations.

6. Permanent Plant.

a. Armories.—While considerable repair work has been done on armories, we have not yet made progress in new construction some of which is greatly needed. I trust that attention can be given to this at a very early date. The units named in my 1924 report should receive the earliest possible attention together with several others whose needs are only slightly less pressing than those indicated.

b. State Camp.—Construction is progressing well at the State Camp at Peekskill and is in accordance with the general plan made and approved two years ago. A concrete floor has been laid in the swimming pool and that pool is now entirely completed except for possible sodding and tree planting in its vicinity. Several hundred yards of concrete roads were put in around the Recreation Hall and warehouses. The East Camp was finished, a number of improvements made to the Post Hospital and Recreation Hall, a civilian camp constructed and the Post Headquarters Camp greatly improved. A new pistol range was built utilizing the former 300-yard butts and a large icehouse sufficiently in excess of average needs to provide for any emergency is ready to be filled this winter. As has been mentioned before many new roads have been opened in the new Van Cortland property and by next year every part of this ground will be available. Much progress was made in landscape gardening and all buildings were newly painted, and it is felt that this camp, now known as "Camp Smith," presents a thoroughly creditable and well-cared-for appearance. The negotiations for the purchase of the Wallace Pond property unfortunately fell through. This property is very desirable and with the addition of a small holding which has been offered to us from the Eddlestine tract would round out the reservation in very satisfactory shape. It should be kept in mind for future purchase.

c. Pine Camp.—Much new construction has been done at Pine Camp and still more has been authorized for 1926. This will soon be a first class training ground for mounted troops. Beyond this, however, I believe that Pine Camp can be made most useful to us for training infantry and combined forces of all arms. I shall cover this point more fully in my recommendations to follow.

d. Fort Ontario.—The Federal government has prepared a regimental camp and rented firing points at Fort Ontario, near Oswego, N. Y. It is intended to develop this as a Coast Artillery camp. It is well situated and adapted to this purpose and even in its first year was very satisfactory to our troops.

7. Dress Uniforms.—For the first time since the war one of our regiments has adopted and worn a distinctive dress uniform. The 107th has equipped themselves with a special gray uniform similar to the old uniform which was characteristic of this organization for so many years. They wore the new uniform at several ceremonies in the city and at evening formations in camp. Dress uniforms are also being procured by the 165th and 71st regiments of Infantry and are being discussed by a number of other units. I believe that a distinctive uniform for ceremonies strengthens the esprit de corps of an organization and that the adoption of such uniforms should be encouraged in all units that can make the necessary financial arrangements.

8. Distinctive Insignias.—The distinctive insignias recently authorized by the War Department are being prepared by all organizations; specifications have already been approved for many and the insignias have already been manufactured and are being worn by several of our regiments.

9. Recommendations.—The recommendations made in my 1924 report are still important and should be given attention. In addition to those the most important requirement of the New York National Guard at present is the preparation of some camp and adjacent terrain where combined camps of all arms can be established and where combined problems can be worked out. We already have such a spot available in Pine Camp and comparatively little extra construction would be needed. My idea is that we absolutely need at this camp the skeleton camp (water, latrines and bathhouses, with a few administration buildings) for an additional brigade of Infantry. Valuable as our Peekskill camp is, we have reached the point where we must progress beyond the facilities that it can offer, in addition to which, troops which go to the same place year after year become routined, "stale" and dissatisfied. It is imperative to provide them occasionally with some radical change. Pine Camp should be prepared to annually provide facilities for at least a reinforced brigade.

10. Conclusion.—In submitting this final report before taking up my new duties as Comptroller of the City of New York I wish to express my deep appreciation of understanding, cooperation and support which have been given to the New York National Guard and to myself by the Governor of the State and by the Adjutant General of the State during my term as Major General commanding. I also wish to speak of my appreciation of the loyalty and support of the commissioned and enlisted personnel of the National Guard of the State throughout my term of office.

I believe that New York State has a well-organized, efficient and dependable National Guard today and, moreover, I also believe that with continued cooperation and loyal support it is capable of and ready for still further progress and efficiency.

CHARLES W. BERRY,
Major General.
