REPORT.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, STATE OF NEW YORK,

ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE,

ALBANY, January 1, 1891.

Hon. DAVID B. HILL,

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.

SIR.—I have the honor to submit the annual report of this office, for the year ending December 31, 1890, as follows:

NATIONAL GUARD.

The National Guard now comprises fourteen regiments, one battalion and forty-five separate companies of infantry, five batteries of artillery, one troop of cavalry and three signal corps.

Companies F and I of the Twenty-second Regiment were disbanded October tenth.

A company of infantry was mustered into the service at Rochester, May nineteenth, designated as the First Separate Company, and attached to the Fourth Brigade.

A company of infantry was mustered into the service, at New York city, December ninth, attached to the Twentysecond Regiment, and designated as Company F of that regiment.

The quarterly returns of the thirtieth September, ultimo, show that on that date there were in service 751 officers and 12,992 enlisted men, making an aggregate of 13,743, officers and men.

ARMS, EQUIPMENTS AND UNIFORMS.

Four new 3.2-inch breech-loading, steel guns have been received from the United States government, and issued to Wilson's Second Battery. The caissons, battery wagon, forge and hammer, for which requisition was made at the same time, have not yet been supplied. Requisition has also been made for another complete field battery, and it is proposed to require for a third battery without further delay.

There is reason to believe that the United States government having partially determined on the caliber, will soon adopt a new small arm for the army. As soon as this is done the State should promptly replace the "Remingtons" with which the guard is now armed with new rifles of the pattern prescribed by the government.

In the matter of arms, equipments and uniforms, attention is requested to former reports from this office. It should be said, however, that more overcoats and blouses are absolutely needed, and a special appropriation ought to be made to supply them.

PAY.

There were in camp this season:
Officers and enlisted men, who received pay	5,067
Band musicians, or equal to that number, had each regiment brought its own band	209
Total	5,276
Add to this, seven artillery detachments of sixteen each	104
Orderlies and clerks at Post headquarters	6
	5,276
Or allowing for men, who did not stay long enough to be	• entitled to pay	5,300

The average percentage of attendance was 83.12, a very satisfactory attendance; the attendance of the Thirty-sixth, Thirty-third, Forty-sixth, Twenty-seventh and Twenty-first Separate Companies, First Brigade Signal Corps and the Sixty-fifth Regiment is especially commendable; the attendance of the Twenty-first Separate Company was 100 per cent through its entire tour; the comparatively small attendance of the Ninth Regiment is excusable, inasmuch as it was ordered to camp out of its regular tour and somewhat unexpectedly to the command.

Geneva.—For Thirty-fourth Separate Company, appropriation $25,000, chapter 83, Laws of 1890.

BUREAU OF RECORDS OF THE WAR OF THE REBELLION.

The passage this year of additional pension bills by Congress greatly increased the number of calls for information, etc., made upon this bureau, the responses sent out by it, without taking into account personal calls, numbering 14,977, instead of 8,310 last year. The methods and system prevailing in the bureau enabled this increase of work to be accomplished without additional clerical force.

LEGISLATIVE APPROPRIATIONS.

The following appropriations were made at the last session of the Legislature for military purposes:

For expenses of the National Guard, $400,000.

For repairs and betterments of arsenals, armories, rifle ranges and State camp belonging to the State, $12,000.

To purchase the Rensselaerwyck rifle range, $6,500.

For services and expenses in prosecuting war claims of the State against the United States, $5,000.

For pensions, $7,712.39.

For the erection of an armory at Geneva, $25,000.

For the erection of an armory at Malone, $25,000.

For the erection of an armory at Utica, $25,000.

Reappropriations of amounts heretofore appropriated, or of balances thereof, were made for armories at Cohoes, Hoosick Falls, Jamestown, Middletown, Mohawk, Olean, Poughkeepsie, and the armory park at Syracuse.

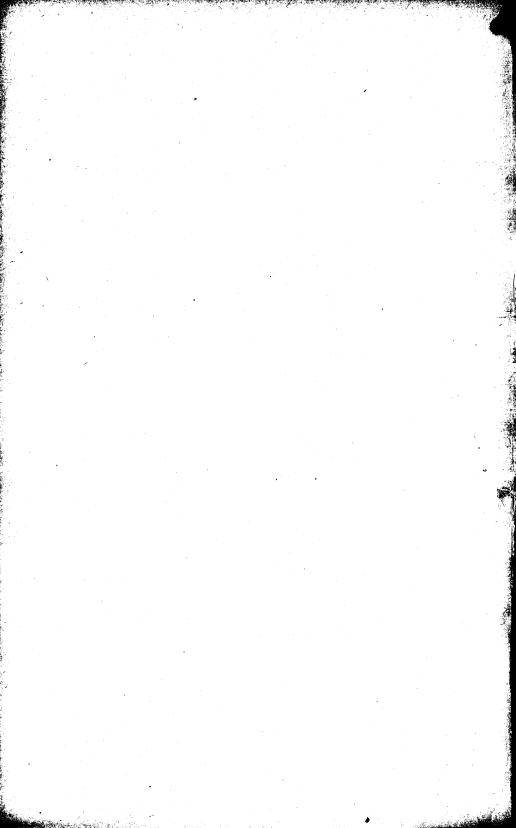

The following reports and appendices accompany and are made a part of this report:

OFFICIAL REGISTER

OF THE

NATIONAL GUARD, STATE OF NEW YORK
DECEMBER 31, 1890.

Errors and omissions should immediately be reported to the Adjutant-General.

Only the highest brevet rank is given, and that only when the officer has not attained the full rank.

The numbers placed after the names of general and departmental staff officers on pages 6 to 21 indicate the number of the brigade with which they are on duty.

REPORT ON STATE CAMP.

St. Francis Barracks, St. Augustine, Fla., September 13, 1890.

To the Inspector-General, U. S. Army, Washington, D. C.:

General.—In obedience to paragraph 6, Special Order No. 108, current series, from Headquarters of the Army, and letter of instructions from your office dated June 20, 1890, I have the honor to forward the following report of my inspection and observation of the several organizations of the National Guard, State of New York, on duty at the Camp of Instruction at Peekskill, N. Y., during the period extending from July 5 to August 23, 1890:

The camp was opened on the 5th of July, in accordance with General Orders Nos. 13 and 17, current series, from General Headquarters State of New York, and constituted a military post, with Major-General Josiah Porter, the Adjutant-General of the State, in command.

Detachments of artillery, consisting of about sixteen men from Wilson's, Rasquin's and Wendel's light batteries, were in camp from week to week. These detachments were commanded by non-commissioned officers. They were neat, soldierly bodies of men. They drilled and practiced with two light twelve-pounders; fired the morning and evening guns and such salutes as were ordered by the post commander. Their camp was a model of neatness.

Everything in camp had been prepared for the reception of the troops, and when the Ninth Regiment and Company A, cavalry arrived, the routine of duties, as prescribed by Orders No. 1, Head-quarters, Camp of Instruction, was immediately entered upon. The tents had been pitched; there was an ample supply of camp equipage on hand; and a new mess-hall and kitchen, which had been built since last year's encampment, was in excellent working order. This new mess-hall is capable of seating 1,000 men comfortably, and the kitchen, in which the cooking is done by steam, is a model of neatness and dispatch.

CLOTHING.

The clothing was of the State pattern — black and white helmets; double-breasted dark-blue uniform coats; light-blue, white duck and white flannel trousers; forage caps; gray overcoats and dark-blue blouses. The clothing is well adapted for field and garrison service and was always kept in good order by the men.

ARMS AND EQUIPMENTS.

The arms are Remington rifles, caliber .50, with ordinary bayonet. The Frazier patent cartridge-box, with a capacity for twenty rounds of ammunition, is used. It is carried on a black leather waist-belt. The company of cavalry was armed with sabers and breach-loading carbines. The arms were always kept by the troops in a clean, serviceable condition.

The troops were supplied with knapsacks, canteens and haversacks, all of the old pattern. The old glazed knapsack is not of much service, but it looks better than a "clothing bag."

There was ample tentage of good quality (nearly new) for about 1,200 men. The tents were supplied with portable cots, mattresses, camp-stools, wash-basins, pails, tin cups and candlesticks. Good, serviceable red blankets of uniform size, were issued to the troops while in camp. These articles were always kept in a thoroughly clean condition.

THE STAFF DEPARTMENTS.

Colonel Joseph G. Story, Assistant Chief of Ordnance of the State, was post quartermaster, post commissary and post ordnance officer. The camp was laid out, the tents pitched and everything put in order before the arrival of the troops on July 5th. This was done by hired laborers, working under Colonel Story's direction. Upon the arrival of the troops the camp equipage and utensils were transferred by Colonel Story to the regimental and battalion quartermasters, who receipted for the property. Upon the departure of these troops from camp on the following Saturday the property was duly accounted for and returned to the post quartermaster, and so on from week to week during the camping season. I did not hear that any of the articles were lost and I consider the system a very good one.

The troops were rationed by contract. Returns of the troops were made by company and detachment commanders; these were forwarded through regimental and battalion commanders to post headquarters for approval and orders. The returns were made for meals, so that if a man were to be absent from breakfast, dinner, or supper, the State would not have to pay for the meals not eaten. The post adjutant examined these returns carefully, approved them when correctly made out, and directed the post commissary of subsistence to have the number of meals called for ready at the appointed time. The meals were substantial and well prepared; the troops were marched to the mess-hall at the times appointed, and the greatest decorum prevailed during the meal hour. Colonel Story, the post commissary, was invariably present at the mess-hall at meal hours. The system worked remarkably well.

The troops were transported to and from camp, under contracts made by the Chief of Ordnance (acting Quartermaster-General) with steamboat and railroad companies. They arrived and departed at the hours named in the schedule. There was some little trouble caused one week by the strike on the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad, but it was quickly overcome, the troops being only delayed a few hours in arriving and departing. The quartermaster's department was well arranged throughout, and the whole machinery of transportation worked smoothly and pleasant.

The National Guard of the State can be mobilized and placed in condition for active service in a very short time.

The ordnance department provided and issued blank cartridges to the infantry for battalion and skirmish drills, blank cartridges, for light twelve-pounders, to the artillery detachments for salutes, and the morning and evening gun. Colonel Story was kept very actively employed in attending to all the duties connected with these departments; but in transporting, subsisting and taking excellent care of troops in camp, I can safely say that he has few equals and no superiors.

Brigadier-General J. M. Varian, Chief of Ordnance of the State and acting Quartermaster-General and Commissary-General of Subsistence, had charge of all these departments. He made frequent visits to the camp and overlooked and inspected everything appertaining to them. I do not think he had any cause for complaint of the manner in which the duties of the department were conducted.

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

Brigadier-General Joseph D. Bryant, Surgeon-General of the State, had charge of the medical department. He made weekly visits to the camp. The department was well organized and thoroughly efficient. The regimental and other surgeons and assistant surgeons were careful and prompt in the discharge of their duties; they were relieved weekly. There was very little sickness in camp. The surgeons and assistant surgeons were required to inspect the camp and the ground in its vicinity daily, and report its condition in writing to the post adjutant. The kitchen, mess-hall, bath-houses, drains, and latrines had to be critically inspected and their condition reported.

Major Nelson H. Henry, surgeon Twelfth Regiment, had charge, during the camping season, of the instruction of the hospital corps and litter-bearers; he instructed by lecture and by litter-drill on the camp ground. He is a very efficient officer.

PAY DEPARTMENT.

The troops in camp were paid each week by Colonel Frederick Phisterer, acting Assistant Adjutant-General of the State, who was also post adjutant. The pay-rolls were made out and submitted to the post adjutant for verification. The officers and men were paid by check, and the payments were carefully and rapidly conducted.

INSPECTOR-GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT.

Brigadier General Thomas H. Barber, Inspector-General of the State, formerly an officer of the First U. S. Artillery, had charge of this department at the camp this year. He made weekly visits of two or three days to the camp, when he inspected it thoroughly. There was no regular inspection of the troops in camp. Colonel Thomas H. McGrath, Assistant Inspector-General of the State, inspected the camp and its surroundings daily. He inspected the streets, tents, clothing, cots, blankets, pails, etc.; nothing, in fact, escaped his notice. Colonel McGrath is an exceedingly painstaking and thoroughly competent inspector. The police of the camp was simply perfect during the whole camping season.

TARGET PRACTICE.

There was no target practice in camp. This practice is conducted at the home ranges, and is, I was informed, carefully attended to. Nothing is permitted to interfere with the week's practical instruction in drills and recitations at the camp. The New York city and Brooklyn troops have their target practice at the Creedmoor range, and the other regiments and companies have target ranges of their own. Brigadier General Charles F. Robbins is general inspector of rifle practice of the State.

Instruction.

Orders, No. 1, Headquarters, Camp of Instruction, directed that the troops in camp should have two drills a day, Sundays excepted. The company drills were before guard mounting, and the battalion drills from 9.30 A. M. to 11.30 A. M.

The company drills were nearly all devoted to skirmishing, and the battalion drills were, as a rule, only in such movements as could not be executed in the armories and in skirmishing. Great improvement was made from day to day by all the troops in camp, and the drills were generally very well conducted.

Colonel Phisterer, the post adjutant, and Captain F. L. Holmes, Twenty-third Regiment, were detailed as inspectors of drills. They were always on the ground during drill hours, and made daily reports in writing to the post commander setting forth any mistakes or inaccuracies observed at the drills. These reports were sent by the post adjutant to the commanding officers of the regiments and battalions, in order that the mistakes might be corrected and the inaccuracies rectified. A great deal of good was done by these reports, and a decided improvement in drill was shown from day to day.

Schools of instruction was held by commanding officers of regiments and battalions every afternoon (Sundays and Fridays excepted) for the officers and non-commissioned officers of their commands, and much useful information was imparted in this manner. Colonel Phisterer, in addition to his other duties, always assembled the first sergeants and the non-commissioned staff officers, as soon after their arrival in camp as possible, and instructed them in the routine of their duties, and in the manner in which their office work should be conducted. Everything connected with reports, returns, etc., was thoroughly explained to them, and they were permitted to ask questions upon any subject connected with their duties. These lectures were exceedingly interesting and instructive.

One afternoon, during the week the Sixty-ninth Regiment was in camp, a very instructive drill took place. All the non-commissioned officers of the regiment were assembled and drilled as shirmishers and guides by Colonel Phisterer and Captain Holmes, the inspectors of drills. The drill was as nearly perfect as possible, and the result was plainly apparent at the battalion drills of the regiment next day. I think it was the most instructive drill of the season.

Guard duty was generally very well performed; but, as a good many of the men were in the first year of their enlistment, they could not learn enough in a single tour to properly fit them for its performance. These men consequently made mistakes, but they were always willing and anxious to learn. Captain N. B. Thurston, Twenty-second Regiment, instructor in guard duty, who is a thoroughly competent and energetic officer, instructed the guard at the guard tents, and was on hand day and night, visiting and instructing the sentinels, non-commissioned officers, and officers of the guards. Captain Thurston has a thorough knowledge of Kennon's Manual of Guard Duty, and he has also a wonderful aptitude for imparting the information contained in it to the officers, non-commissioned officers, musicians and privates of the guards. A great deal of attention was paid to guard duty in the camp this year.

DISCIPLINE.

The conduct of the troops, while in camp, was excellent. The men were quiet, obedient and respectful, and responded with alacrity to the orders of their officers. The quiet that prevailed in camp at all times, but particularly between tattoo and reveille.

was remarkable. There was no drunkenness, noise or tom-foolery of any kind. Military courtesy was strictly observed. The officers and men were required to wear their uniform in camp, and when they appeared upon the parade ground, outside the company streets, their blouses had to be buttoned.

In illustration of the good discipline of the New York State troops in camp this year, I shall relate the following circumstances: A man named Dunphy, a saloon-keeper in Peekskill, N. Y., built and opened a shanty for the sale of whiskey, rum, beer, etc., upon the margin of the State camp ground. As the sale of all spirituous liquors, wine, ale or beer in camp had been forbidden by the Governor of the State, a question arose as to how this villainous whisky shop of Dunphy's just outside the camp and in full view of the whole command, should be dealt with. It did not take Major-General Porter, the post commander, long to decide the question. He issued, caused to be read to each company, and posted on the bulletin-board at the head of each company street, Orders No. 3, from Headquarters, Camp of Instruction, forbidding all officers and men from entering the place referred to. The strict obedience paid to this order by the troops was remarkable; in only a very few instances, so far as I was able to observe, was the order disregarded; and the few men (five or six) who disobeyed and were found in the whisky shop were promptly tried by court-martial and punished pretty severely. After the publication of the order referred to, and until the close of the camp, I never saw an officer or soldier in Dunphy's saloon, although I frequently (some days six or eight times) passed close to the building, the "bar" of which was fully exposed to view. When it is considered that nearly 800 officers and men, from all parts of the State, were in camp each week, and that only five or six men were found to have violated this order during the seven weeks of the camping season, I think this obedience and good conduct speaks volumes in praise of the discipline of the New York National Guard.

GENERAL REMARKS.

The dress parades and guard mountings of the various commands were had at the hours prescribed in orders, and were, during the whole season, very creditably executed. Some regiments and provisional battalions were a little better than others, but at the close of each week very little difference could be noted.

The Governor of the State made one visit to the camp this season, and reviewed the troops present. The ceremonies incident to his visit were well performed, and the detachment of artillery fired the salute in honor of his visit. I noticed that the time for the review on this accasion was so arranged as not to interfere with any of the drills or exercises of the day.

Troop A, Cavalry, organized April 2, 1889, in New York city, made its first appearance in camp this year. It is a well selected, soldierly body of men, and its captain, Charles F. Roe, formerly an officer of the Second United States Cavalry, is well fitted by education and experience to command it. The men sit their horses in cavalry style and ride well; they have, apparently, a natural fondness for the service, and endeavor to excel in it. They were well equipped, and their horses, which, I was informed were hired for the week, were well groomed, fed and watered by the men. On the first, second and third days of the week the horses were easily alarmed and frightened by the music, etc., but on the last days they did not seem to mind it much, not even when the troops were firing blank cartridges at drill. This troop did a good week's work in camp.

The military appearance of all the troops was very good. The Thirty-second Separate Company, from Hoosick Falls, was, I think, the best organization in camp this year. It is a superb body of men, well set up, well drilled and disciplined. The Twenty-first Separate Company, from Troy, was the largest one in camp, having three officers and 100 men present. The Forty-sixth Separate Company, from Amsterdam, had four officers and ninety-three men present. This company, organized September 6, 1888, presents a fine military appearance, and is a well-drilled organization. Indeed, all of the separate companies in camp this year were fine, soldierly bodies of men, well drilled and disciplined. The Sixty-fifth Regiment, from Buffalo, made great progress during its week in camp. This regiment skirmishes beautifully, and its officers seemed to have perfect control of it. The Ninth regiment, from New York city, is a fine body of men. The Sixty-ninth Regiment, from New York city, made great improvement during its week in camp, although nearly forty per cent of the men, as I was informed, were in the first year of their enlistment. It presents a fine military appearance, and the men were soldierly and teachable. The Fourteenth Regiment, from Brooklyn, did good work during its tour of duty. The Thirteenth Regiment, from Brooklyn, paid a great deal of attention to grand guard duty, advanced and rear guards, and patrols. The officers are enterprising and indefatigable, and the men yield a willing obedience to their orders.

I may here remark that some of the regimental and separate company officers (captains and subalterns) were not well posted in their duties. They knew very little about the management of the men upon the drill ground, and were not well set up or instructed. It would be well if these officers could be sent before the examining boards for re-examination as to their qualifications for command.

During the seven weeks of the camping season the weather was exceedingly fine; it rained a little during the last week, but the drills and exercises were not suspended.

Major-General Josiah Porter, Adjutant-General of the State, was, as I have already stated, the commanding officer of the camp. I have, in former reports, set forth that it was mainly to General Porter's high executive ability and distinguished qualifications for command that this camp has been the means of bringing about a uniform system of instruction for the National Guard of the State. During the strike on the New York Central Railroad, while General Porter was absent for a few days attending to his military duties at Albany, it was plainly noticeable that matters did not work quite smoothly in camp; but upon his return to his command he at once rectified the mistakes that had been made and placed everything in good working order.

Colonel Phisterer, the post adjutant, is peculiarly fitted for the duty. He is an army officer of long service and experience. He was ably assisted throughout by Captain J. S. Shepard, of the Twenty-third Regiment, an officer of few words but of extensive knowledge and ability. The adjutant's office was a model one.

In concluding this report, I desire to offer my sincere thanks to General Porter and staff for their courtesy and kindness to me during my visit to the State camp.

I am, general, very respectfully, your obedient servant.

R. H. JACKSON,

Lieut.-Colonel Fourth Artillery, Bvt. Brig.-Gen. U. S. Army.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, STATE OF NEW YORK:

GENERAL ORDERS

Adjutant-General's Office, Albany, March 7, 1890.

The classification, order of duty, and general regulations for instruction in armories and on the range, prepared by the General Inspector of Rifle Practice, are published for the guidance and observance of all concerned.

Instruction in Armories.

Commanding officers of companies will see that the enlisted men of their respective commands receive the necessary preliminary instruction in rifle practice, and where possible, that they have gallery practice, before they are sent to the ranges.

SIGHTING.

1. A sand bag for each squad will be placed on a rest, which may be a table, a tripod or a stack of arms, and so arranged that the bag will be about four and one-half feet from the ground.

The men will be formed in single rank, and in squads not to exceed ten in each.

The instructor will then flatten the sand bag with the back of his hand, lay a full-cocked rifle on it, aim at some small object at as great a distance from it as the drill-room will permit (a wafer on the wall for instance), and explain to the men the following simple rules:

The sights should not incline to the right or left.

The line of sight should be taken along the center of the notch of the rear-sight, and the top of the front-sight. The latter should cover the middle of the mark aimed at. The eye should be fixed on the mark and not on the front-sight. Particular attention should be paid to this rule, as beginners are apt to fix the eye on the front-sight and not on the mark, which prevents the latter from being distinctly seen, and greatly increases the difficulty in aiming.

2. The instructor will also explain the different kinds of sight, viz.:

Fine sight. — When the point of the front-sight is just seen through the notch of the rear-sight, the effect of which is to shoot low.

Full sight.— When the whole of the wedged-shaped portion of the front-sight is displayed through the notch on the rear-sight, the effect of which is to shoot high.

Half sight. — When but half the front-sight is seen.

3. At times during this drill, the leaf of the rear-sight should be required to be raised.

AIMING.

- 1. Come to the position of ready, and raise the leaf of the rearsight.
- 2. Raise the rifle smartly in front of the right shoulder to the full extent of the left arm, without moving the body, head or eye; the arms to move close to the body; barrel nearly horizontal and pointing a few inches below the mark; the eyes fixed upon the forefinger inside the trigger guard; both elbows inclined downward.
- 3. Press the piece smartly with both hands against the hollow of the shoulder, which must neither be allowed to give way nor pressed forward or raised to meet it; the left elbow at the same time being brought as far under the rifle as is possible without assuming an unnatural position; the right elbow slightly raised, being nearly square with the right shoulder; the center (or rather the upper than lower) part of the butt to be pressed firmly against the shoulder with the left hand without touching the collar-bone, the top of the butt being as nearly as possible even with the top of the shoulder; the forefinger will be placed around the trigger like a hook, but without pressing it; the head and body will be kept perpendicular the whole time, no attempt being made to look through the sights.
- 4. Close the left eye and incline the head to the right over the small of the stock so that the right eye may quickly perceive the coincidence of the rear and front sights, and the object aimed at.
- 5. Raise the head, look squarely to the front and bring the piece smartly to the first position.

Practicing in aiming will be continued until the men aim quickly and correctly from the shoulder, after which they should be taught how to discharge the arm by pressing or squeezing the trigger, and especially to avoid a pull or jerk in so doing.

The instructor will also give such further instructions as his experience may suggest.

Instructions on the Range.

Classification.

The third class consist of all who do not appear on a range for practice.

The second class consists of all present for practice, without reference to qualifications in previous years, and the practice in this class will be at 100 yards standing, on a No. 3 target.

The first class consists of those who have made a score of fifteen points or upwards in the second class, and the practice in this class will be at 200 yards kneeling or sitting, and at 300 yards prone; each upon a No. 3 target.

Marksmen.

A score of thirty or upwards in the first class constitutes a marksman, and entitles the maker to receive the State decoration.

Sharpshooters.

This class consists of marksmen who at 500 and 600 yards, prone on on a No. 2 target, make an aggregate score of forty-two or upwards, and they shall be entitled to a silver bar.

On ranges where 600 yards can not be obtained, which fact must be certified to by the General Inspector of Rifle Practice, a score of forty-two or upwards in ten consecutive shots at 500 yards will be required.

All officers and enlisted men who practice, must shoot through the regular classes, and are prohibited from shooting for a second or higher score in a class in which they have already qualified. The record must stand upon the first qualifying score made.

General Practice.

(a.) The practice will commence with class firing in squads, under a competent non-commissioned officer, or other duly designated instructor, at each firing point, and the whole under the supervision of an Inspector of Rifle Practice, subject to the orders of the commanding officer presents.

Five consecutive shots will be fired at each distance.

The practice will be continued to the end by all present without reference to the scores recorded, except that those who fail to qualify in the second class will be restricted to two shots for practice at each of the higher ranges, i. e., 200 and 300 yards, and marksmen who fail to make eighteen at 500 yards will not shoot at 600 yards.

In regular class practice no officer or enlisted man will be permitted to fire more than five consecutive shots, except as authorized in the second section under the head of sharpshooters, at any one distance on the same day, except the necessary sighting shots to ascertain elevation, windage and the condition of pieces, which may be fired by officers or well-instructed men, under the inspection or approval of an Inspector of Rifle Practice. Trial practice between classes will not be permitted.

At the first distance of either class (i. e., at 100 or 200 yards), a score of fifteen or upwards will qualify; second practice may be allowed to such men as fail to qualify at either distance (as above), provided time will permit; but third practice will not be allowed in any case.

In regular practice each enlisted man will shoot with the piece issued by the State, and brought by him on the ground, unless the same is declared imperfect by an Inspector of Rifle Practice. In that case the man may shoot with the nearest approved piece in the ranks.

(b.) Volley Firing, Five Rounds.—Firing in ranks at 100 yards shall then be taken up in the following order, the squad or company being formed in single rank:

Fire by squad (or company), three rounds.

Fire by squad (or company), kneeling, two rounds.

(c.) Firing as Skirmishers.—The troops shall be exercised as skirmishers from 325 to 100 yards and return; firing, on the advance, one round at 300 yards, one at 200 yards, and one at 100 yards; and, on the retreat, one round at 150 yards, and one at 250 yards; great care being taken by each commanding officer that the men are deliberate and cautious, that no accident may happen. Officers should use discretion and tact, varying the drill according to their ground and targets, deploying men and taking such distances as targets and range will allow; each body of troops to be so divided that no more may be exercised at one time than can be readily handled on the range, a No. 2 target being used.

As soon as the last (fifth) shot is fired, assemble on the right (or left), thus leaving the front uncovered, so that the second squad or company may deploy; during this time the marking can be done.

General Instructions.

Officers.—A sufficient number of commissioned officers must accompany all parties for rifle practice, to command and instruct the men. At least one officer of a company will be present with any part of it on duty, and a field officer will take command of all the detachments of two or more companies.

In practice officers shall shoot first, then non-commissioned officers, then privates, on such targets as may be assigned to their companies.

The responsibility of officers on the range is great. Officers should be proficient in the use of the rifle, and able to apply armory instruction in the field. The men will be instructed as much as possible while waiting their turns to shoot, and especially in aiming and position drill, for which a competent instructor should be detailed in each company. They should be taught how to blacken their sights and how to fix the correct elevation and windage before going to the firing points.

Surgeons.—Commanding officers will detail a surgeon (provided the organization has one attached to it), to accompany any party ordered out for rifle practice, and the duty should not proceed without the presence of such officer.

Wooden targets for volley, and (where needed) for skirmish firing, should be erected without expense to the State on each range. A simple fence painted to represent the necessary lines or divisions, or a frame covered with paper or muslin painted, if backed by a mound sufficient for safety, will suffice. No. 2, iron targets, may be used for skirmish drill, but must not be used for volley firing.

Front sight covers of such pattern as may be easily detached will be allowed in practice for the marksman's decoration, but they must not be permanently attached to the rifle.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

Major-General and Adjutant-General.

Seventy-fourth Regiment, at Bay View, July 18, 19, 21 and 24.

General officers and officers of the general staff will be assigned dates for practice upon application to the General Inspector of Rifle Practice.

If, from lack of target accommodation or other good reasons, any organization should need another day to complete its practice, the commanding officer will make application to the General Inspector of Rifle Practice, who is authorized to assign an additional or different day or days if, in his opinion, it be necessary.

II. PRELIMINARY PRACTICE:

Previous to the dates specified above in paragraph I, each organization will have such practice, on the usual ranges, as its commanding officer may order, particularly in the second class, qualifications in which only will be allowed; and the range at

CREEDMOOR

Will be open on April 28, 29, 30, May 1, 2, 3, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, for all organizations of the First and Second Brigades; also the Fourth and Eleventh Separate Companies.

The range at

BAY VIEW

On May 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24 for the Sixty-fifth and Seventy-fourth Regiments.

And the range at

RENSSELAERWYCK

On May 19, 20, 21 for the Tenth Battalion.

On May 16, 23 for the Sixth Separate Company.

On May 22, 26 for the Seventh Separate Company.

On May 16, 23 for the Twelfth Separate Company.

On May 16, 23 for the Twenty-first Separate Company,

These practices will be under charge of the commanding officer, or an officer designated by him. The scores at other ranges than Creed-moor must be kept in duplicate, one copy to be retained by the commanding officer, and the other to be forwarded, within five days after the practice, to the General Inspector of Rifle Practice, and the officer present at the practice to certify, on honor, on the score cards, to the correctness of the scores made.

III. Ammunition will be furnished on the range on practice days at Creedmoor, by the General Inspector of Rifle Practice, who is authorized to make requisition for the necessary supply direct on the Chief of Ordnance. Commanding officers of organizations which do not practice at Creedmoor will make requisition for the necessary supply of ammunition direct on the Chief of Ordnance, State Arsenal, corner of Seventh avenue and Thirty-fifth street, New York city, at the rate of fifty rounds per officer and enlisted man in service on the thirty-first day of March instant; and, in addition, at the rate of twenty rounds per man for each officer and enlisted man participating in preliminary practice.

IV. The State prize will be competed for at Creedmoor as usual. The brigade prizes will be competed for under such conditions as shall be ordered by the commanding officers of brigades. A prize of a value not to exceed fifty dollars will be awarded the company in each brigade having the highest general figure of merit. Attention is called to R. 372, the last clause of which applies to the successful teams of 1887, 1888 and 1889.

V. Practice for the season will close November eighth next, and no scores made after date will be recognized. Field practice books, fully written up, must be sent to the General Inspector of Rifle Practice, No. 18 Coenties slip, New York city, on or before November 15, 1890.

VI. Members of the National Guard in uniform (coat or blouse, cap and belt), may practice under such supervision and with such competent instructors as the General Inspector of Rifle Practice may direct. AT CREEDMOOR.

July 2, 23; August 13; September 3; October 8, 22.

AT RENSSELAERWYCK.

June 7; July 5; August 9; September 6; October 25.

AT BAY VIEW.

June 14; July 5; August 9; September 6; October 25.

The General Inspector of Rifle Practice is also authorized to arrange for practice upon such dates as may be most convenient, on various ranges of the Third and Fourth Brigades, and scores made upon such days at 200 and 300 yards, of thirty or over, may qualify for the marksman's decoration, and at 500 and 600 yards, of forty-two or over, for the sharpshooter's bar; and scores made in any class at a regularly authorized Rifle Association match in which the full military conditions, including uniform, are observed, will be recognized as official: provided they are, in the opinion of the General Inspector of Rifle Practice, deserving of it.

These practices will not, however, excuse absence from the general practice, nor will the scores so made be used in computation of figure of merit, which will be based upon results of the day designated for general practice.

The General Inspector of Rifle Practice will arrange the necessary details of the practice.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

Of the Sixth. First Lieutenant Harry C. Baum, Assistant Surgeon, Forty-first Separate Company.

Of the Seventh. First Lieutenant Philip Heldrich, Assistant Surgeon, Thirtieth Separate Company.

Of the Eighth. First Lieutenant William M. Bemus, Assistant Surgeon, Thirteenth Separate Company.

IV. The commanding officers of the separate companies, ordered in camp, will report at once by mail to the commanding officer of the provisional battalion of which they are to form a part, and furnish the names and dates of rank of their officers and non-commissioned officers, and such other information as may be desired by him.

V. The commanding officers of the First and Second Provisional Battalions are authorized, each, to select two competent officers of suitable rank and five non-commissioned officers to serve with them, respectively, as Adjutant, Quartermaster and Commissary of Subsistence, Sergeant-Major, Quartermaster-Sergeant, Color-bearer, Provost-Sergeant and clerk.

The commanding officers of the Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh and Eighth Provisional Battalions are authorized, each, to select one competent officer of suitable rank, and three non-commissioned officers to serve with them, respectively, as Adjutant, Sergeant-Major, Colorbearer and clerk; the non-commissioned officers should, however, be taken, if practicable, from the respective battalions.

The names of the officers and non-commissioned officers thus selected, if not from their own provisional commands, will as soon as possible be reported to the Adjutant-General for detail.

VI. The following general regulations for the government of the Camp of Instruction, when occupied by troops, are published for the information and guidance of all concerned, and the attention of all officers is specially called to them:

1. The camp is constituted a military post, and will be conducted in accordance with the rules provided for the government of military posts and these regulations.

The Post Commander will prescribe in orders the hours and calls of service and the duties to be performed; and the military exercises to be executed and practiced in camp shall consist of such tactical movements as can not be carried out in armories, of the skirmish drill, and of schools of theoretical instruction for officers and non-commissioned officers; but no reviews will be authorized except by orders from this office.

He will prescribe the amount of camp and garrison equipage and blank ammunition to be issued to the troops in camp.

2. No men shall be taken to camp who are not already sufficiently well drilled to take part in the prescribed exercises, nor any men (those re-enlisted or taken up from dropped, excepted) who have been enlisted within sixty days of the beginning of the camp tour of their respective companies.

3. Theoretical instruction in guard duty should be imparted to non-commissioned officers and privates by their respective company commanders before entering the camp. Instruction as to the general routine and duties of soldiers in camp should also be imparted in the same manner.

4. The Chief of Ordnance, as such, and as acting Quartermaster-General and acting Commissary-General of Subsistence, will cause the Camp of Instruction to be prepared in time for its occupancy by troops. He will provide and keep on hand at the camp the necessary quartermaster and ordnance stores, and, after consultation with the Surgeon-General, the necessary medical stores and supplies; he will provide by contract for the furnishing of cooked meals to the troops in camp, and will see that the meals are properly and promptly furnished, well cooked, of wholesome quality and sufficient quantity; he will furnish the necessary transportation to officers and enlisted men, ordered there, to and from the camp; and he will exercise in camp a general supervision of all public property not by law and regulations in the care of others, the mess arrangements and the public buildings and grounds.

Transportation for troops to the camp will be furnished, as far as practicable, in such manner that they will arrive at the camp not later than 3 o'clock, P. M., of the day ordered, and the Chief of Ordnance will report to the Post Commander the arrangements made by him as to the time of arrival at and departure from, the camp of the organizations ordered there.

- 5. The Surgeon-General is charged with the general supervision and direction of the medical service at the camp, and is authorized to select one competent person, who shall have charge, under his direction, of the medical stores at the camp, and who shall receive for his services transportation, rations and the pay allowed by law to hospital stewards.
- 6. The Paymaster-General is charged with the payment of the troops, and will take the necessary measures to pay each person entitled thereto on the last day of the tour of his organization in camp.

The pay-rolls, in duplicate, will be prepared before going into camp by entering on them the name of each officer and enlisted man of the organization, with date of rank of officers and date of enlistment of the men. In camp credit will be given for the day, after retreat of such day, excepting the last two days, and the rolls fully completed, signed and amounts carried out, will be handed to the Paymaster-General as early before the close of the tour as possible, to enable him to pay the troops before their departure from camp. If practicable, the pay-rolls should be signed by the officers and enlisted men before coming into camp, but they must be signed, at the latest, on the first Sunday in camp. Special attention must be paid to the signatures, so that they correspond letter for letter, with the names as entered on the pay-rolls. Initials standing for names are not sufficient.

Pay will be allowed to officers and enlisted men present for the days on which the regiment or company arrives at, and departs from, the camp; and for such other days of the tour during which they are present, at least from guard mounting in the morning until after retreat or dress parade in the evening, providing their whole stay in camp does not consist simply in coming to camp on Saturday and spending Sunday there, or staying but one day, and returning on Friday to depart again on Saturday.

7. Commanding officers of regiments, battalions, batteries and separate companies, and officers specially detailed, if not traveling with troops, will at once, upon notice of detail for camp service, make requisition for proper transportation of men and baggage from their station to the Camp of Instruction, direct on the acting Quartermaster-General, the Chief of Ordnance, State Arsenal, Thirty-fifth street and Seventh avenue, New York city. Commanding officers will specify the exact number of men, as nearly as possible, for whom transportation is required. On arrival in camp, or as soon thereafter as practicable, commanding officers of troops arriving by railway transportation will settle their transportation account with the acting Quartermaster-General, the Chief of Ordnance. Transportation will be allowed for one servant for the officers of each company and the field and staff of a battalion, and for three servants for the field and staff of a regiment. Transportation will not be allowed for officers or enlisted men, other than that provided for their respective organizations, except in the cases of officers or men specially detailed.

Horses for field officers will be furnished by the Post Quartermaster, and transportation or forage will not be allowed for any other

On the journey to and from, and the march into camp, the senior officer will command the troops present, and before leaving their stations commanding officers will telegraph to the Post Commander ("The Post Adjutant, Camp of Instruction, Peekskill, N. Y.") the strength of their commands, servants separately.

8. Surgeons of regiments and assistant surgeons of separate companies detailed for camp service, if traveling with troops, will each make timely requisition through their immediate commanding officers, for a hospital knapsack, with medical stores and instruments, upon the acting Quartermaster-General, the Chief of Ordnance, to whom they will return such knapsack immediately upon the arrival of their regiment or companies at their regular stations. 26

9. Upon arrival in camp, commanding officers of regiments, battalions and detachments, and officers specially detailed, will at once report for instructions to the Post Commander, and regimental and battalion commanders will at the same time submit requisitions for the necessary quartermaster stores for the approval of the Post Commander.

10. Commanding officers of regiments and battalions will direct their respective senior medical officer to report, on arrival in camp, for orders and instructions to the Surgeon-General. The senior medical officer in camp will perform the duties of Post Surgeon, and within ten days after his return from camp, will, on Form 72, prepare and forward a report of his tour of service, through his regimental commander, to the Surgeon-General.

The hospital steward of the regiment in camp, or, if there be none, a suitable person selected by the Surgeon-General, will act as post hospital steward. Such person, or hospital steward, must have passed an examination before the State Board of Pharmacy, and be licensed as a druggist, according to the laws of the State; and regimental and battalion hospital stewards not so examined and licensed will not be recognized by the State, or permitted to act as hospital stewards. Regimental and battalion commanders ordered to camp duty, whose hospital stewards do not meet these requirements, will at once report the fact to these headquarters.

11. Regimental and battalion commanders, on arrival in camp, will direct their commissaries of subsistence to report for duty while in camp, to the Post Commissary of Subsistence, without being, however, relieved from duty with their regiments or battalions.

A ration will consist of early bread and coffee, breakfast, dinner and supper. Ration returns will be prepared by the company commanders each day, immediately after retreat or dress parade, covering all the rations received by their respective commands during the day; the officers and men present at breakfast will each be credited with one day's ration for that day, and to this number will be added the number of meals received by men joined subsequent to breakfast. Adjutants will perform the duties of a company commander for the field, staff, non-commissional staff and band.

Company returns will be consolidated the same evening by regimental and battalion commanders, who will deliver the consolidation to the Post Commander; at the close of the tour, these officers will deliver to the Post Commander a consolidated return, in duplicate, of all the rations received, which will be the voucher upon which the Chief of Ordnance will pay the contractors. Commanding officers of troops coming from distant stations should see that their commands are properly provisioned for the journey.

Rations will be allowed for the authorized number of servants.

12. Commanding officers of regiments, battalions and companies are, and will be, held responsible for the correctness of returns and reports rendered by them.

There should be a well-instructed clerk to relieve the first sergeants of, or to assist them in, the clerical duty. In each company the first sergeant or the clerk should keep a list for each day on which to place the name of every man arriving or leaving, and the hours of his arrival or departure during the day; this list will be found of great value to them in making the ration return, crediting the pay after retreat, and preparing the report book next morning.

The report book must show the condition of the company at the time the report is made, and the remarks are to explain all the alterations which may have occurred since making the last report.

Within ten days after the close of the camp tour, commanding officers of regiments and battalions will make reports to the Adjutant-General of the general management of their command and the results obtained.

- 13. The State service uniform and equipments will be worn as issued; on drill, fatigue, and when off duty the fatigue coat, R. 835, may be worn. White helmets may be worn by regiments, batteries and signal corps. In the case of battalions composed of separate companies, if permission to wear white hemlets is desired, application must be made by the battalion commander.
- 14. The following books and blanks, furnished by the State, are required in camp:

By regimental and battalion commanders, forms 8, 56, 70.

By surgeons, forms 71, 72.

By company commanders, forms 9, 56, 69.

And the attention of all officers is especially called to R. 134, 135 170, 179, 180, 376, 387, 412, 473, 475, 477, 478, 479, 773.

VIII. The following rules must be strictly observed:

Persons not connected with the administration of the post, or not being members of an organization in camp, will not be permitted in the camp after tattoo.

The sale of all spirituous liquors, wine, ale or beer, and all huckster and auction sales are prohibited.

No ale, beer, wines or spirituous liquors will be used in camp, except upon the prescription of a medical officer of the post.

Fire-works, illuminations and other out-of-place performances, will not be permitted.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, STATE OF NEW YORK:

ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 14.

ALBANY, May 22, 1890.

I. The amendments to the Military Code passed by the Legislature of the State of New York, and contained in chapter 360 of the Laws of 1890, are hereby promulgated for the information and government of all concerned.

II. Sections 62, 64, 94, 103, 104, 117, 119, 120, 123, 126, 139 and 140 have been amended so as to read as follows:

§ 62. The expenses of erecting, altering, repairing, enlarging or renting armories, purchasing land for the location of armories, and for providing camp stools and chairs of a sufficient number, the necessary apparatus, fixtures and means for heating, lighting, ventilating the same, and water and wash closets in such armories, and for properly preserving the arms, equipments, uniforms and records kept therein, by the construction of suitable lockers, closets, gun racks, desks and cases shall be a portion of the county charge of each county within the bounds of which is located any arsenal or armory occupied by the national guard, and shall be levied, collected and paid in the same manner as other county charges are levied, collected and paid; but no money shall be appropriated for decorating any armory erected or rented under the provisions of this act, nor for any other purpose, to be paid out of the moneys thus levied and collected, except for the said purchase, erection, renting, alteration, enlargement, repair and furnishing of such armories, unless the necessity for such expenditure shall have been examined into and certified to as necessary by the auditing board of the respective organizations. In the city and county of

New York, the demands of commandants of regiments, battalions, batteries, or troops, for suitable armories, or for alterations or enlargement and furnishing of armories, as hereinbefore provided, shall be made to a board hereby created consisting of the mayor, the two senior ranking officers in command of troops of the national guard in said city and county, the president of the department of taxes and assessment and the commissioner of public works, who shall consider such applications, and if they approve, shall make their recommendations to the commissioners of the sinking fund who, if they concur in such recommendations, shall specify the sums to be appropriated for such purchase, rental, erection, enlargement, alteration or furnishing of armories, including suitable accommodations for division and brigade headquarters, which sum shall be inserted by the comptroller in his departmental estimate; and the board of estimate and apportionment is hereby authorized and directed to include such sums in the final estimate for the tax levy for the next ensuing year; or said commissioners of the sinking fund may, from time to time in their discretion, direct the comptroller of said city to issue bonds or stocks of the mayor, aldermen and commonalty of the city of New York, redeemable in not less than ten, nor more than twenty years from the date of issue, in such amounts as shall be necessary to provide such sums or any part thereof, and the mayor and comptroller of said city are hereby authorized to sign said bonds, which shall bear interest at a rate not exceeding three per centum per annum, and shall not be disposed of at less than the par value thereof, and it shall be the duty of the clerk of the common council of said city to countersign the same and to affix the seal of the city thereto, and the proper authorities of the city and county of New York are hereby authorized and directed to caused to be raised upon the estate, real and personal, subject to taxation in the city and county of New York, such sums of money as may be required to pay the interest on the said bonds and redeem them at maturity. The title to any property acquired under this act through the approval of the commissioners of the sinking fund, shall be vested in the mayor, aldermen and commonalty of the city of All armory buildings in said city shall be erected and all alterations, enlargements and furnishing thereof shall be made and done under the direction and supervision of the board created by this section. but all work which is necessary to do, and all material which it is necessary to purchase in and for such erection, alterations, enlargements and furnishing shall be done and procured under contract made at public letting-pursuant to the general provisions of law as to public contracts in the city of New York, contained in sections fifty-nine, sixtyfour and sixty-five of chapter four hundred and ten of the laws of eighteen hundred and eighty-two, entitled "An act to consolidate into one act, and to declare the special and local laws affecting public interests in the city of New York." The comptroller is hereby authorized and required to pay, on the requisition of the said board, the amount certified from time to time to be due, in such manner as he shall direct, and the amount appropriated shall not be exceeded in incurring expenditures under this provision. The said commissioners of the sinking fund may also, in their discretion, appropriate any plot or plots of land belonging to the said city and not already appropriated to some other public use, as locations on which armory buildings may be erected. All repairs to armories in the city of New York, certified to be necessary by the auditing boards of the organizations occupying the same, shall be made under the provisions of law now existing for repairs of public buildings in said city.

§ 64. The commanding officer of each regiment, battalion, troop, battery or company, shall appoint an armorer who shall, under his direction, take charge of the armory or places of deposit of his regiment. battalion, battery or company, and of all uniforms, arms and equipments and other property which shall have been issued under the provisions of this act therein deposited, and to discharge all duties connected therewith as shall be from time to time prescribed by such commanding Where two or more companies, with or without a battery or batteries, are quartered in the same armory or arsenal, there shall be but one armorer for all such organizations, who shall be appointed by the senior line officer therein quartered. In the several cities of the state, the senior line officer occupying any armory or arsenal may also appoint a janitor whose special duty shall be to care for said armory, the repair and cleanliness of the same, and the furniture and fixtures, and in armories heated by steam, he may appoint an engineer to have charge of the heating apparatus. And in cases where the size of such armory or arsenal renders it necessary to employ additional help to insure the proper care and cleanliness thereof and of the property therein deposited which necessity and the amount of additional help required, shall be certified by such officer, and the commanding officer of the brigade within whose district such armory or arsenal is located, he may appoint laborers not to exceed two in number, who shall perform such duties in and about such armory or arsenal as shall be prescribed by said commanding officer. If less than eight companies or companies and batteries are quartered in the same armory or arsenal, but one janitor shall be so appointed, who shall also have charge of the heating apparatus, and but one laborer. Such persons so appointed shall receive a compensation for the time actually and necessarily employed in their duties, to be fixed by the commanding officer appointing such persons, as follows: When employed in armories or arsenals located in the various cities, armorers, janitors and engineers not to exceed four dollars per day, unless the city has a population of less than two hundred thousand, in which case such compensation shall not exceed three dollars per day, and two dollars per day in the armories not located in cities; laborers not to exceed two dollars per day; which compensation, as certified to by the commanding officer appointing such persons under the provisions of this section, shall be paid monthly, and shall be a county charge upon the county in which said armory or arsenal is situated, and shall be audited, levied, collected and paid in the same manner as other county charges are audited, levied, collected and paid. A commissioned officer shall not be eligible for appointment to and shall not hold the position of armorer, janitor, engineer or laborer in any arsenal or armories.

§ 94. All officers detailed to serve on any board or commission ordered by the commander-in-chief of * any court of inquiry, courtmartial or delinquency court ordered by proper authority in pursuance of any provision of this act shall be paid a sum equal to one day's pay for field duty, for each day actually employed in said board or court, or engaged in the business thereof, or in traveling to and from the same. A meeting and adjournment only shall not be considered a day of actual duty. Except as hereinafter specified, the sum in no case shall exceed ten days' pay and actual traveling expenses, and subsistence, unless upon application of the judge advocate of a courtmartial or the presiding officer of a delinquency court for the trial of commissioned officers, the commander-in-chief, or in case of such delinquency court, the commander-in-chief or officer ordering such court, has authorized said court to sit for a longer period than ten An officer detailed to serve on the court established by section one hundred and four of this act shall be paid for each day actually employed therein, engaged in the business thereof or in traveling to and from the same, and traveling expenses and subsistence when said court shall be held at a place other than the city or town of his residence. To every marshal appointed to any such court shall be paid two dollars for every day actually employed in the execution of the duties required of him, except the time occupied in the collection of fines and dues, and to every other marshal appointed by any other court established by this act, shall be paid two dollars for every day not exceeding ten actually employed in the execution of the duties required of him, excepting the time occupied in the collection of To each marshal shall be paid twenty-five per centum upon all fines, penalties and dues collected by him, which percentage shall be taxed by the officer issuing the warrant for the collection of such fines, penalties and dues, and by him added to the amount to be collected by said warrant, and indorsed thereon, and shall be collected and received to his own use by said marshal or by any sheriff or other officer to whom said warrant shall be delivered for collection, and mileage or actual necessary traveling expenses while engaged in executing any process, mandate or order of the court. The same to be paid in like manner with other military accounts; but no marshal shall receive any fees from any person served, except said percentages and mileage where the mandate shall be a warrant; but when the session of the court exceeds ten days he shall receive two dollars additional for every day of such actual extra session. All compensation and expenses of courts established by section one hundred and four of this act shall · paid as therein provided.

§ 104. The commanding officer of each regiment or battalion shall appoint a delinquency court, to consist of one commissioned officer of his command, for the trial of enlisted men of his command. The commanding officer of each brigade shall in like manner appoint a delinquency court for the trial of enlisted men in such troops, batteries, separate companies and signal corps as are under his direct command. The commander-in-chief may, in like manner, appoint a delinquency court or delinquency courts for the trial of enlisted men of any organization or organizations not herein provided for. Any officer so detailed may be relieved from the duties of such courts at any time by the officer appointing him or his successor in office, and another officer detailed as such court. Proceedings pending before such court shall not abate or be discontinued by reason of such relief and new detail. and any officer so detailed shall have full power and authority to do and perform all acts necessary to complete any proceedings pending before the court to which he was appointed, and to carry into effect any judgment, mandate, order or process made or issued by said court, previous to such relief and new detail. A delinquency court, so appointed, shall be permanent and continuous. Its sessions shall be held at such times and in such places as may be most convenient for the prompt disposition of the business of the court within the discretion of the officer constituting the same. The officer constituting such court may appoint, and at any time remove, a clerk thereof, who shall receive a reasonable compensation, to be fixed by such officer with the approval of the officer appointing such court. It shall be the duty of the commanding officer of every regiment or battalion, every company attached to a regiment or battalion, and of every battery, troop, separate company and signal corps, to make return to the delinquency court, appointed for, or having jurisdiction over the enlisted men of his command, as herein provided, of all delinquents in his command, whereupon said delinquents must be forthwith summoned to appear before such delinquency court, at the time and place designated in the summons. Each organization, returning delinquents for trial by said court, shall audit and pay out of its military fund, in the same manner that other military accounts are audited and paid, the compensation and necessary expenses of the officer holding said court, and the clerk and marshal thereof, and the actual necessary expenses of said court for the time such court shall be engaged in the trial of delinquents in said organization and the necessary business connected therewith. The proceedings and sentence of such court, shall, from time to time as may be convenient for the prompt disposition of its business, be delivered to the officer ordering said court, or his successor in command, who shall approve or disapprove the same within fifteen days thereafter, and shall notify the delinquent of his approval or disapproval thereof, and from the sentence of any such court imposing a fine or penalty for any delinquency, the person tried may appeal within ten days after the notification of the fine or penalty, and the officer ordering the court, or his successor in command, may remit or mitigate such penalty or fine.

N. G., S. N. Y.,

President of said Court.

The papers constituting the judgment-roll and the warrant shall each and all be prima facie evidence of the facts therein, or therein stated, before all courts. The jurisdiction of the courts established by this act shall be presumed, and the burden of proofs shall rest with the person seeking to oust any of said courts of jurisdiction in any matter or proceeding whatever.

- § 119. Every commissioned officer may be tried by general court-marshal* for the following offenses:
 - 1. For unmilitary or unofficer-like conduct.
 - 2. For drunkenness on duty.
 - 3. For neglect of duty.
- 4. For disobedience of orders or any act contrary to the provisions of this act, or to the provisions of the regulations for the government of the National Guard.
- 5. For refusing to grant a discharge to an enlisted man when entitled to the same.
 - 6. For oppression or injury of any under his command.
- 7. For a combination or attempt to break, resist or evade the laws or lawful orders given to a person, or advising any person so to do.
 - 8. For insult to a superior officer in the line of military duty.
- 9. For presuming to exercise his command while under arrest or suspension.
- 10. For neglect or refusal, when commanding officer, to order out the troops under his command when required by law or lawfully ordered by his superior officer.
- 11. For neglect or refusal to make a draft or detachment when legally ordered to do so.
- 12. For parading the troops under his command on days of election, contrary to law.

^{*} So in the original.

- 13. For receiving any fee or gratuity for any certificate.
- 14. For neglect, when detailed, to drill and instruct a command, to make complaint for neglect or violation of duty, as provided by law, or for any other neglect for which a commanding officer would be liable.
- 15. For neglect or refusal to march, to make a draft, or for disobedience to an order, in case of rebellion or insurrection, as provided by law.
- 16. For refusal or neglect to obey a precept or order to call out the National Guard, or militia, or an order issued in obedience thereto, or advising any officer or soldier to do the like.
- 17. For making a false certificate, account, or muster or parade return.
- 18. For conduct unbecoming an officer and gentleman, or for conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline. On conviction of any of the above named offenses, such officer may be sentenced to be cashiered, and shall thereby become incapacitated from holding any military commission, fined to any amount not exceeding one hundred dollars, or reprimanded, or to all or either of such fines and penalties.
- § 120. Every commissioned officer may be fined by a delinquency court for non-attendance, without excuse, at any drill, parade, encampment, meeting for instruction, or other duty ordered by competent authority, not more than ten nor less than five dollars for each day of such non-attendance or delinquency. Absence for a day or any part thereof shall constitute a delinquency.
- § 123. Every enlisted man who shall, without proper excuse, be absent from, or in any other respect be delinquent at any drill, parade, encampment, meeting for instruction, or other duty ordered by competent authority, shall be fined by a delinquency court for enlisted men not more than five nor less than one dollar for each day or part thereof of such absence or other delinquency.
- § 126. The president of any court-martial or delinquency court may appoint by warrant, under his official signature, and at any time remove, one or more marshals, each of whom shall, before entering upon his duties, execute a bond to the state in the penal sum of one thousand dollars, with sufficient sureties, to be approved by the president of the court appointing him, for the faithful performance of his duties and the prompt payment of all moneys collected by him. And the marshals so appointed shall, when required, not only perform the usual duties as such marshals, but shall also execute any process, mandate or order lawfully issued by such president or court, and perform all acts and duties by this act imposed on and authorized to be performed by any sheriff, marshal or constable. Any bond given as herein provided shall be prosecuted, for breach of the conditions thereof, in the name of the people by a judge advocate, under direction of the judge advocate-general, and all moneys recovered shall be paid to the military fund of the organization or organizations injured.

§ 139. The field, staff and company officers of any regiment or battalion and members of any troop, battery, company or signal and telegraph corps may organize themselves into an association, of which the commanding officer shall be president, and by a vote of two-thirds of all their members, form by-laws, rules and regulations, not inconsistent with this act, and which shall conform to the system prescribed in general regulations, and be submitted to the judge advocate-general for his approval, and such by-laws, rules and regulations shall be binding upon all commissioned officers and enlisted men who are now or may hereafter be commissioned or enlisted therein; but they may be altered in the manner provided for their adoption, from time to time as may be found necessary.

§ 140. For violations of the by-laws, rules and regulations provided in the last preceding section, commissioned officers may be tried by courts-martial; enlisted men offending may not only be tried by delinquency courts, but may be expelled from the troop, battery, company or signal and telegraph corps to which they belong, by a vote of the majority of all its members, and upon such action of the company being confirmed in orders by the commander of the regiment or battalion, and in case of a troop, battery or signal and telegraph corps, or of a company not a part of a regiment or battalion, by the commander of the brigade or division to which it is attached, the name of such person shall be stricken from the roll of such troop, battery, company or signal and telegraph corps, his certificate of membership shall be surrendered and canceled, and he shall cease to be a member of such troop, battery, company or corps, and his time of service in said troop, battery, company or corps shall not be allowed under the provisions of this act.

III. Paragraph 624 of the regulations is amended to read as follows:

624. In order to enable all cases referred to a court-martial to be tried by it before its final adjournment, the order convening a court-martial should be read * * * for the trial of A B, "and such other persons or cases as may be brought before it," or * * * for the trial of "such persons or cases as may be brought before it."

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 23.

Adjutant-General's Office, Albany, October 6, 1890.

I. Before a general court-martial, which convened at the armory of the Twelfth Regiment, New York city, pursuant to S. O. No. 45, c. s., from these headquarters, and of which Colonel Heman Dowd, Twelfth Regiment, is president, there were arraigned and tried:

Case I.—Captain Stephen P. Ryan, Company G, Sixty-ninth Regiment.

Charge I.— For Neglect of Duty.

Specification 1.

In this, that Captain Stephen P. Ryan, without excuse, failed to appear at the armory at the regular drill of Company G, Sixty-ninth Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., which drill was duly ordered by the Colonel of the said regiment by Order No. 87, dated October 1, 1889, a copy of which is hereto annexed, and which said order was duly served, and of which the said Captain Ryan had due notice, and the said Captain Ryan further failed to have any commissioned officer present at such time in his absence, which neglect on the part of the said Captain Ryan caused the members of said company to be dismissed without instructions.

This at the armory of the Sixty-ninth Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., Third avenue and Seventh street, in the city of New York, January 23, 1889.

Specification 2.

In this, that Captain Stephen P. Ryan has failed since March 20, 1889, to report attendance at company drills within twenty-four hours after each drill, as directed by Order No. 1 issued by order of Colonel Cavanagh, dated January 1, 1889, which said order was duly served on Captain Ryan, and that such duty was required, he having had due notice.

This at the armory Sixty-ninth Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., Third avenue and Seventh street, New York city, on —1889, October 3, 10, 17, 24, 31; November 7, 14, 21, 28; December 5, 12, 19, 26—1890, January 2, 9, 16, 23, 30; February 6, 13, 20; March 6, 13, 20, 27; April 3, 10, 17, 24.

Specification 3.

In this, that Captain Stephen P. Ryan has failed to comply with Order No. 96, 1889, dated November 13, 1889, which said order was duly served on the said Captain Ryan, and of which he had due and timely notice, failing to turn into the quartermaster of said regiment the forty-five gray overcoats as directed by said order, or to comply with the notice duly served on him, dated April 23, 1890, or to in any way account for the said overcoats as directed by said order or notice, a copy of said order and notice being hereto annexed.

CHARGE II.—FOR DISOBEDIENCE OF ORDERS.

Specification 1.

In this, that Captain Stephen P. Ryan, without excuse, failed to appear at the armory at the regular drill of Company G, Sixty-ninth Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., which drill was duly ordered by the Colonel of the said regiment by Order No. 87, dated October 1, 1889, a copy of which is hereto annexed, and which said order was duly served, and of which the said Captain Ryan had due notice, and the said Captain Ryan further failed to have any commissioned officer present at such time in his absence, which neglect on the part of the said

Captain Ryan caused the members of said company to be dismissed without instructions.

This at the armory of the Sixty-ninth Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., Third avenue and Seventh street, in the city of New York, January 23, 1890.

Specification 2.

In this, that Captain Stephen P. Ryan has failed since March 20, 1889, to report attendance at company drills within twenty-four hours after each drill as directed by Order No. 1, issued by order of Colonel Cavanagh, dated January 1, 1889, which said order was duly served on Captain Ryan, and that such duty was required, he having had due notice.

Specification 3.

In this, that Captain Stephen P. Ryan failed to comply with order No. 96, 1889, dated November 13, 1889, which said order was duly served on the said Captain Ryan, and of which he had due and timely notice, failing to turn in to the quartermaster of said regiment the forty-five gray evercoats as directed by said order, or to comply with the notice duly served on him dated April 23, 1890, or to in any way account for the said overcoats as directed by said order or notice, a copy of said order and notice being hereto annexed.

CHARGE III.— FOR CONDUCT TO THE PREJUDICE OF GOOD ORDER AND MILITARY DISCIPLINE.

Specification 1.

In this, that Captain Stephen P. Ryan, without excuse, failed to appear at the armory at the regular drill of Company G, Sixty-ninth Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., which drill was duly ordered by the Colonel of the said regiment by Order No. 87, dated October 1, 1889, a copy of which is hereto annexed and which said order was duly served, and of which the said Captain Ryan had due notice; and the said Captain Ryan further failed to have any commissioned officer present at such time in his absence, which neglect on the part of the said Captain Ryan caused the members of said company to be dismissed without instructions.

Specification 3.

In this, that Captain Stephen P. Ryan has failed to comply with Order No. 96, 1889, dated November 13, 1889, which said order was duly served on the said Captain Ryan, and of which he had due and timely notice, failing to turn in to the quartermaster of said regiment the forty-five gray overcoats as directed by said order or to comply with the notice duly served on him, dated April 23, 1890, or to in any way account for the said overcoats as directed by said order or notice, a copy of said order and notice being hereto annexed.

CHARGE IV.—Acts Contrary to the Provisions of the Military Code, Sections 57-59.

Specification 1.

In this, that Captain Stephen P. Ryan has failed to comply with order No. 96, 1889, dated November 13, 1889, which said order was duly served on the said Captain Ryan, and of which he had due and timely notice, failing to turn in to the quartermaster of said regiment the forty-five gray overcoats as directed by said order, or to comply with the notice duly served on him dated April 23, 1890, but still retains the same, which said overcoats had been duly delivered to the commanding office of said Company G, or to in any way account for the said overcoats as directed by said order or notice, a copy of said order and notice being hereto annexed.

To which charges and specifications the accused, Captain Stephen P. Ryan, Company G, Sixty-ninth Regiment, pleaded as follows:

Charge I.

To the first specification, "Not guilty," down to and including the words "due notice." To the rest of the specification the accused demurs, as not stating facts sufficient to sustain the charge, and as alleging conclusions based upon no allegations of fact.

• To the second specification the accused demurs, on the ground that the specification, as a whole, does not allege facts sufficient to constitute the charge; so much of order No. 1 as requires reports within twenty-four hours being in excess of the requirements of the Military Code and Regulations, and is justified by no military emergency, so far as shown by the specification. (See section 594 of the Mil. Code.) Also, because the Order No. 1, upon its face, does not specify the drills which the regimental commander has power to make compulsory, and is in excess of his authority, and, therefore, void, under section 365, subdivision 2 of the regulations.

Also, that it does not specify or show what extra drills beyond the twelve are compulsory under company by-laws.

To the third specification the accused demurs to so much of the specification as ends at the words "April 23, 1890," on the ground that, upon its face, it does not sustain the charge.

The accused also demurs to the remainder of the specification, as alleging a conclusion not supported by order No. 96, referred to, and being part of the specification, i. e., it does not follow, as matter of military law, that an omission to turn in forty-five overcoats or to pay forty-five cents each for them is necessarily neglect of duty, there being no allegation that said overcoats are now or ever were in the custody of Captain Ryan, and no allegation as to their value.

Also, that if such facts had been alleged, the failure to account is not an offense subjecting the officer to military punishment, but to a civil suit for double damages, under section 57 of the Military Code; also, under paragraph 798 of the Regulations. Neither order nor notice required Captain Ryan to account for the overcoats.

To the charge, "not guilty."

Charge II.

To the first specification: The accused demurs on the ground that the specification does not sustain the charge, it not appearing that Order 87 attached to the charges does not order Captain Ryan to attend any drills, nor does it order him to have a commissioned officer present in his absence.

He demurs to the remainder of the specification, ending with the word "instructions," as alleging a conclusion and not facts.

To the second specification: The accused demurs on the ground that the specification does not sustain the charge, in that there is no allegation that the dates mentioned in the specification were the dates of the company drills of Company G.

Also, that the order is illegal and not within the requirements of the Military Code and Regulations, and a failure to comply therewith does not constitute the military offense of "Disobedience of orders." It is no military offense to disobey a void order.

To the third specification: The accused demurs on the ground that the specification and Order No. 96 do not disclose sufficient facts to constitute an offense, and that the non-compliance therewith does not constitute the military offense of "Disobedience of orders."

Also, that there is nothing in the order or notice requiring the accused to account for said overcoats.

To the charge, "not guilty."

Charge III.

To the first specification: Not guilty, down to and including the words "due notice." To the rest of the specification the accused demurs as not stating facts sufficient to sustain the charge, and as alleging conclusions based upon no allegations of facts.

To the second specification: The accused demurs on the ground that the specification as a whole does not allege facts sufficient to constitute the charge; so much of Order No. 1 as requires reports within twenty-four hours being in excess of the requirements of the Military Code and Regulations, and is justified by no military emergency so far as shown by the specification. (See § 594 of the Mil. Code.)

Also, that it does not specify or show what were drills beyond the twelve are compulsory under company by-laws.

To the third specification: The accused demurs to so much of the specification as ends with the words, "April 23, 1890," on the ground that upon its face it does not sustain the charge.

The accused also demurs to the remainder of the specification as alleging a conclusion not supported by Order No. 96 referred to, and being part of the specification, i. e., it does not follow, as matter of military law, that an omission to turn in forty-five overcoats, or to pay forty-five cents each for them, is necessarily neglect of duty, there being no allegation that said overcoats are now or were ever in the custody of Captain Ryan, and no allegation as to their value. Also, that if such facts had been alleged, the failure to account is not an offense subjecting the officer to military punishment, but to a civil suit for double damages under section 57 of the Military Code, also under paragraph 798 of the Regulations. Neither order nor notice required Captain Ryan to account for the overcoats.

To the charge, "not guilty."

Charge IV.

To the first specification: The accused demurs on the ground that it does not state facts sufficient to constitute the offense charged.

- 1. There is no allegation that the accused ever received the forty-five overcoats. While it is true that the specification says they were delivered to the commanding officer of Company G, the time of the delivery is not alleged, nor is the accused named as the commanding officer of Company G at that time.
- 2. There is no allegation that the accused did not require the members of his company to retain them and return them as required by section 57 of the Military Code.

3. The allegation that he was required to "account" for them is not sustained by Order No. 96.

4. Because the Military Code, section 57, makes such an offense a violation of that section a civil offense, rendering the accused liable to answer before a civil court for double the price or value of the military property he should have received, to be sued for and collected in the name of the people of the State, by the Judge Advocate-General, and, therefore, the accused is amenable to a civil and not to a military court, and this court has no jurisdiction to try him.

To the charge, "not guilty."

FINDING.

The court having maturely considered the evidence adduced, finds the accused, Captain Stephen P. Ryan, Company G, sixty-ninth Regiment, as follows:

Charge I.

Of the first specification, "not guilty."

Of the second specification, "guilty," except the dates "October 3, November 7, 28; December 5; January 2, 30; February 6; March 6, April 3, 10, 24," and of such excepted dates "not guilty."

Of the third specification, "guilty," except the words "which said order was duly served on the said Captain Ryan and," and of such excepted words "not guilty."

Of the charge, "guilty."

Charge II.

Of the first specification, "not guilty," the demurrer of the accused being sustained.

Of the second specification, "not guilty," the demurrer of the accused being sustained.

Of the third specification, "guilty," except the words, "which said order was duly served on the said Captain Ryan and," and of such excepted words, "not guilty."

Of the charge, "not guilty."

Charge III.

Of the first specification, "not guilty."

Of the second specification, "guilty," except the dates "October 3; November 7, 28; December 5; January 2, 30; February 6; March 6; April 3, 10, 24," and of such excepted dates "not guilty."

Of the third specification, "guilty," except the words "which said order was duly served on the said Captain Ryan and," and of such excepted words, "not guilty."

Of the charge, "guilty."

Charge IV.

Of the specifications, "guilty," except as to the words "which said order was duly served on the said Captain Ryan and," and of such excepted words "not guilty."

Of the charge, "not guilty."

SENTENCE.

And the court does, therefore, sentence him, Captain Stephen P. Ryan, Company G, Sixty-ninth Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y. to be reprimanded by the Commander-in-Chief of the National Guard, State of New York in general orders, and to be fined the sum of $100.

The court is thus lenient because of the generally careless and negligent way in which official duties are performed by the officers of the Sixty-ninth Regiment, as shown by the evidence in this case.

Case II.—Captain Charles A. DuBois, Company F, Twenty-second Regiment.

CHARGE I.— UNMILITARY AND UNOFFICER-LIKE CONDUCT.

Specification.

In this, that on the 30th day of May, 1890, between 11 and 12 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, the said Captain Charles A. DuBois, being then in actual command of a company of the Twenty-second Regiment N. G. S. N. Y., which company was then a part of a detachment of such regiment, uniformed, armed and equipped, under command of Lieutenant-Colonel William V. King of such regiment, which detachment was then being transported in the cars of the Manhattan elevated railroad, in the city of New York, on its return to the armory of such regiment from a parade and review, did, without permission, at the corner of Fifty-ninth street and Ninth avenue in said city, with the company under his command, acting under his command and by his direction, leave the said detachment, and when ordered and directed by the said Lieutenant-Colonel William V. King, commanding such detachment, to re-enter such cars with his company and rejoin such detachment, did willfully disobey such order and direction, and did, in defiance and disobedience thereof, persist in leaving such detachment with the company under his command.

Charge II.—Disobedience of Orders. Specification.

In this, that on the 30th day of May, 1890, between 11 and 12 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, the said Captain Charles A. DuBois, being then in actual command of a company of the Twenty-second Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., which company was the a part of a detachment of such regiment, uniformed, armed and equipped, under command of Lieutenant-Colonel William V. King of such regiment, which detachment was then being transported in the cars of the Manhattan elevated railroad in the city of New York, on its return to the armory of such regiment from a parade and review, did, without permission, at the corner of Fifty-ninth street and Ninth avenue in said city, with the company under his command, acting under his command and by his direction, leave the said detachment, and when ordered and directed by the said Lieutenant-Colonel William V. King, commanding such detachment, to re-enter such cars with his company and rejoin such detachment, did willfully disobey such order and direction, and did, in defiance and disobedience thereof, persist in leaving such detachment with the company under his command.

CHARGE III.— CONDUCT TO THE PREJUDICE OF GOOD ORDER AND MILITARY DISCIPLINE.

Specification.

In this, that on the 30th day of May, 1890, between 11 and 12 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, the said Captain Charles A. DuBois, being then in actual command of a company of the Twenty-second Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., which company was then a part of a detachment of such regiment, uniformed, armed and equipped, under command of Lieutenant-Colonel William V. King of such regiment, which detachment was then being transferred in the cars of the Manhattan elevated railroad, in the city of New York, on its return to the armory of such regiment from a parade and review, did, without permission, at the corner of Fifty-ninth street and Ninth avenue in said city, with the company under his command, acting under his command and by his direction, leave the said detachment, and when ordered and directed by the said Lieutenant-Colonel William V. King, commanding such detachment, to re-enter such cars with his company, and rejoin such detachment, did willfully disobey such order and direction, and did, in defiance and disobedience thereof, persist in leaving such detachment with the company under his command.

To which charges and specifications the accused, Captain Charles A. DuBois, Company F, Twenty-second Regiment, pleaded as follows:

Charge I.

To the specification, "not guilty."
To the charge, "not guilty."

Charge II.

To the specification, "not guilty."

To the charge, "not guilty."

Charge III.

To the specification "not guilty." To the charge, "not guilty."

FINDING.

The court having maturely considered the evidence adduced finds the accused, Captain Charles A. DuBois, Company F, Twenty-second Regiment, as follows:

Charge I.

Of the specification, "guilty," except the words "willfully" and "defiance and" and "persist in leaving," substituting for the word "leaving" the word leave, and of such excepted words, "not guilty." Of the charge, "guilty."

Charge II.

Of the specification, "guilty," except the words "willfully" and "defiance and "and "persist in leaving," substituting for the work "leaving" the word leave, and of such excepted words, "not guilty."

Of the charge "guilty."

Charge III.

Of the specifications, "guilty," except the words "willfully" and "defiance and" and "persist in leaving," substituting for the word "leaving" the word leave, and of such excepted words, "not guilty." Of the charge, "guilty."

SENTENCE.

And the court does, therefore, sentence him, Captain Charles A. DuBois, Company F, Twenty-second Regiment, to be reprimed by the Commander-in-Chief of the National Guard, State of New York, in General Orders, and to be fined the sum of $100.

The court regrets that no legal punishment can be imposed more severe than the sentence inflicted, without resorting to cashiering or dismissal.

Case III.—First Lieutenant Thomas A. Patteson, Jr., Company D. Seventh Regiment.

CHARGE — CONDUCT UNBECOMING AN OFFICER AND GENTLEMAN.

Specification No. 1.

In this, that First Lieutenant Thomas A. Patteson, Jr., Company D, Seventh Regiment, First Brigade, N. G. S. N. Y., maliciously composed, signed, preferred and forwarded to general headquarters a charge against Captain Austin E. Allen, of Company D, Seventh Regiment, dated December 13, 1889, containing false and defamatory matter, as follows, to wit:

"That Captain Austin E. Allen, Seventh Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., did, without my consent and during my absence from the armory, open my locker and search in the pockets of my uniform and did abstract and appropriate certain papers therein contained.

"This in D company room, in Seventh Regiment armory, on the night of December 2, 1889." That the said charge was injurious to, and has caused great injury to the reputation of, said Captain Austin E. Allen as an officer and gentleman.

Specification 2.

That since the 2d day of December, 1889, at divers times and places and to divers persons, and in the presence and hearing of Adjutant Willard C. Fisk and Second Lieutenant Oscar Mussinan, the said First Lieutenant Thomas A. Patteson, Jr., of Company D, Seventh Regiment, First Brigade, N. G. S. N. Y., has maliciously spoke concerning Captain Austin E. Allen, of Company D, Seventh Regiment, the false and defamatory words as follows: That he, Captain Allen, did, on the evening of December 2, 1889, search in the pockets of said Lieutenant Patteson's uniform and, without his consent, abstract and take therefrom letters and certain papers, or words to like effect, in substance charging said Captain Allen with the crime of theft; whereby the said Captain Austin E. Allen was greatly injured in his reputation as an officer and a gentleman.

That at such times mentioned the said Captain Austin E. Allen was commandant of Company D, of which company said Lieutenant Thomas A. Patteson, Jr., was first lieutenant.

To which charges and specifications the accused, Lieutenant Thomas A. Patteson, Jr., Company D, Seventh Regiment, placed as follows:

To the first specification to the charge, "not guilty."

To the second specification to the charge, "not guilty."

To the charge, "not guilty."

FINDING.

The court, having maturely considered the evidence adduced, finds the accused, First Lieutenant Thomas A. Patteson, Jr., Company D, Seventh Regiment, as follows.

Of the first specification to the charge, "guilty," except as to the word "maliciously," and as to such excepted word, "not guilty."

Of the second specification to the charge, "guilty," except as to the word "maliciously," and as to such excepted word, "not guilty."

To the charge, "not guilty," but guilty of conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline.

SENTENCE.

And the court does, therefore, sentence him, First Lieutenant Thomas A. Patteson, Jr., Company D, Seventh Regiment, to be reprimanded by the Commander-in-Chief of the National Guard of the State of New York, in general orders.

II. The proceedings, findings and sentences in the foregoing cases having been duly approved, are now promulgated.

III. It appears from the proceedings of this court that Captain Stephen P. Ryan, of the Sixty-ninth Regiment, failed to comply with the orders of his regimental commander, and, in fact, with the regulations issued for the guidance and government of the National Guard. Captain Ryan has been in the service long enough to know that the duty of every officer, and especially so of the commanding officer of a company, is to obey the orders he receives promptly at the designated time; that if such orders be not duly served, if military business is not properly conducted in his regiment, it is his duty to report the fact to his commanding officer so that the error may be rectified. If officers systematically disobey orders, they can not expect to maintain discipline in their own commands.

IV. The court has ordered Captain Charles A. DuBois, Twenty-second Regiment, to be reprimanded. The Commander-in-Chief calls the attention of Captain DuBois especially to the part of the proceedings of the court wherein it regrets that no legal punishment can be imposed by it more severe than the sentence inflicted, without resorting to cashiering or dismissal, and does not deem it necessary to add anything to it.

V. In the case of First Lieutenant Thomas A. Patteson, Jr., Seventh Regiment, the Commander-in-Chief hopes that an officer of Lieutenant Patteson's intelligence will see that conduct of the nature of which he has been found guilty tends to destroy the harmony and morale which should pervade a military organization.

VI. Captain Stephen P. Ryan, Sixty-ninth Regiment, and Captain Charles A. DuBois, Twenty-second Regiment, will be released from arrest when their fines are paid; First Lieutenant Thomas A. Patteson, Jr., Seventh Regiment, is hereby released from arrest, and will, without delay, report to his commanding officer for duty.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

JOSIAH PORTER,

Major-General and Adjutant-General.

Official:

J. S. McEwan, Colonel and Assistant Adjutant-General.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, STATE OF NEW YORK:

ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE,

General Orders Albany, October 6, 1890.

I. Before a general court-martial, convened at the armory of the Seventy-first Regiment, New York city, pursuant to S. O. No. 37, c. s., from these headquarters, of which Captain Henry C. Aspinwall is president, were arraigned and tried:

Case I.—Private Edward Borstleman, Company D, Twenty-second Regiment.

CHARGE I. — FOR DISOBEDIENCE OF ORDERS.

Specification 1.

In that the said Edward Borstleman, on the 12th day of June, 1890, at Creedmoor, in the State of New York, did willfully absent himself from his company, to wit, Company D, Twenty-second Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., and the said regiment while on duty, and did absent himself from volley firing and skirmish drill on the said 12th day of June, 1890, without having obtained permission or leave so to do from the commanding officer of his company, to wit, Captain Bartlett, who was then and there present and in command of the said company, and contrary to the orders which are always enforced while any company or regiment is on duty.

Specification 2.

In that the said Edward Borstleman, an enlisted man in Company D, Twenty-second Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., did on the said 12th day of June, 1890, at Creedmoor, in the State of New York, culpably and negligently abandon, throw away or lose certain property of the State of New York, to wit, one rifle or piece, and that he did not return the said rifle or piece to the armory of said regiment, contrary to the orders which are always enforced, that no enlisted man shall abandon or throw away or negligently lose his rifle or piece.

Specification 3.

In that on the said 12th day of June, 1890, at Long Island City, in the State of New York, the said Edward Borstleman did willfully desert his company, the said Company D, Twenty-second Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., and the said regiment, and did leave the said company and the said regiment without having obtained permission so to do from the commanding officer of his company, Captain Franklin Bartlett, who was then and there in command of the said company, contrary to the orders which are always enforced, that no enlisted man shall leave his company, when under arms, without having obtained permission so to do from the commanding officer of the said company.

CHARGE II. — FOR CONDUCT PREJUDICIAL TO GOOD ORDER AND MILITARY DISCIPLINE.

Specification 1.

In that the said Edward Borstleman on the 12th day of June, 1890, at Creedmoor, in the State of New York, did willfully absent himself from his company, to wit, Company D, Twenty-second Regiment, N. Y., and the said regiment while on duty, and did absent himself from the volley firing and skirmish drill on the said 12th day of June, 1890, without having obtained permission or leave so to do from the commanding officer of his company, to wit, Captain Bartlett, who was then and there present and in command of the said company.

Specification 2.

In that the said Edward Borstleman, an enlisted man in Company D, Twenty-second Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., did on the said 12th day of June, 1890, at Creedmoor, in the State of New York, culpably and negligently abandon, throw away or lose certain property of the State of New York, to wit, one rifle or piece, and that he did not return the said rifle or piece to the armory of said regiment.

Specification 3.

In that on the said 12th day of June, 1890, at Long Island City, in the State of New York, the said Edward Borstleman did willfully desert his company, the said Company D, Twenty-second Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., and the said regiment, and did leave the said company and the said regiment without having obtained permission so to do from the commanding officer of his company, Captain Franklin Bartlett, why was then and there in command of the said company.

Charge III.— For Disrespect to his Superiors. Specification 1.

In that the said Edward Borstleman on the 12th day of June, 1890, at Creedmoor, in the State of New York, did willfully absent himself from his company, to wit, Company D. Twenty-second Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., and the said regiment while on duty, and did absent himself from the volley firing and skirmish drill on the 12th day of June, 1890, without having obtained permission on leave so to do from the commanding officer of his company, to wit, Captain Frank Bartlett, who was then and there present and in command of the said company, and was therein guilty of disrespect to his superior, to wit, Captain Franklin Bartlett, the commanding officer of his said company.

Specification 2.

In that the said Edward Borstleman, an enlisted man in Company D, Twenty-second Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., did on the said 12th day of June, 1890, at Creedmoor, in the State of New York, culpably and negligently abandon, throw away or lose certain property of the State of New York, to wit, one rifle or piece, and that he did not return the said rifle or piece to the armory of said regiment, and was therein guilty of disrespect to his superior, to wit, Captain Franklin Bartlett, the commanding officer of his said company.

Specification 3.

In that on the said 12th day of June, 1890, at Long Island City in the State of New York, the said Edward Borstleman did willfully desert his company, the said Company D, Twenty-second Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., and the said regiment and did leave the said company and the said regiment without having obtained permission so to do from the commanding officer of his company, Captain Franklin Bartlett, who was then and there in command of the said company, and was therein guilty of disrespect to his superior, to wit, Captain Frank Bartlett, the commanding officer of his said company.

CHARGE IV .- FOR DRUNKENNESS ON DUTY.

Specification 1.

In that the said Edward Borstleman, an enlisted man in Company D, Twenty-second Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., on June, 12, 1890, at Creedmore, in the State of New York, and at Long Island City in the State of New York, when on duty with his said company and said regiment, was drunk.

PLEA.

Charge I.

To the first, second and third specifications, demurrer on the ground that the facts stated in the specifications are not sufficient to sustain the charge; and on the further ground that, having been charged with drunkenness while on duty, he can not be tried for disodedience of orders.

To the charge, "not guilty."

Charge II.

To the first specification, "not guilty."
To the second specification, "not guilty."
To the third specification, "not guilty."
To the charge, "not guilty."

Charge III.

To the first, second and third specifications, demurrer on the ground that the facts stated are not sufficient to sustain the charge of disrespect to his superior.

To the charge, "not guilty."

Charge IV.

To the specification, "not guilty." To the charge, "not guilty."

FINDING.

Of the first, second and third specifications, first charge, demurrer sustained.

Of the first charge, "not guilty."

Of the first specification, second charge, "guilty."

Of the second specification, second charge, "guilty," except the words "throw away or lose," and of such excepted words, "not guilty."

Of the third specification, second charge, "guilty," except the words "throw away or lose," and of such excepted words "not guilty."

Of the second charge, "guilty."

Of the first, second and third specifications, third charge, demurrer sustained.

Of the third charge, "not guilty."

Of the specification, fourth charge, "not guilty."

Of the fourth charge, "not guilty."

SENTENCE.

And the court does, therefore, sentence him, Private Edward Borstleman, Company D, Twenty-second Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., to be reprimended in orders by the officer commanding the Twenty-second Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., and to be fined the sum of ten dollars.

Case II.—Private Joseph F. McDonald, Company D, Twenty-second Regiment.

Of the third charge, "not guilty."

SENTENCE.

And the court does, therefore, sentence him, Private Joseph F. McDonald, Company D, Twenty-second Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., to be reprimanded in orders, by the officer commanding the Twenty-second Regiment, and to be fined the sum of ten dollars.

II. The proceedings, findings and sentences in the foregoing cases, having been duly approved, are now promulgated. The commanding officer of the Twenty-second Regiment will carry out the part of the sentences relating to reprimands.

CIRCULAR) No. 1. Adjutant-General's Office,
Albany, January 9, 1890.

According to information received at this office there is reason to believe that there are already instances of the improper use of the new overcoats recently issued.

Officers, especially commanding officers, are reminded that they are responsible for the proper use of public property intrusted to them, and should not permit it to be used by persons or organizations other than those belonging to the National Guard, or for other than military purposes.

It would be in the interests of officers accountable for property, to make application for leave to turn in such property as they can not, by reason of insufficient accommodations or otherwise, properly care for.

The loss of public property, frequently without sufficient reason or excuse, although it is now much less than formerly, is still a matter of very serious consideration to the State. The new overcoat is more likely than other parts of the uniform to be taken from the armory and misused and lost. If it appears that the new overcoats are to follow in the way of the old gray overcoats and disappear, they will be called in from the organizations which have shown a lack of proper care of the property issued to them, and held until such time as they are actually needed for service.

OPINIONS OF THE JUDGE ADVOCATE-GENERAL.

168 NASSAU STREET, NEW YORK, June 12, 1890.

He Adjutant-General, S. N. Y.:

Sir.—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of the enlistment paper of Richard Ryan, Company G, Eighth Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., a minor, with the consent of one Cornelius Ryan, as guardian, which was referred to me for my opinion. An examination of the papers shows that Cornelius Ryan is not legally appointed guardian of Richard Ryan, or in fact guardian at all. From the communication of Captain Oates it appears that at the time Richard Ryan signed his enlistment paper Cornelius "assumed the guardianship" in the presence of two witnesses. In other words, stood as a sort of sponser for Richard. This is not the guardianship contemplated by the Military Code, and I am of the opinion that the enlistment in this case does not comply with the law.

I have the honor to remain, very respectfully yours.

CLIFFORD A. H. BARTLETT,

Judge Advocate-General, S. N. Y.

168 NASSAU STREET, NEW YORK, June 12, 1890.

The Adjutant-General, S. N. Y.:

Sir.—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of the enlistment paper of William I. Clark, Company C, Eighth Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., a minor, with the consent of his step-father, William Smith, thereon indorsed and which was referred to me for my opinion.

I do not think this enlistment paper complies with the law. A step-father does not come within the definition of a "parent." A parent within the meaning of the law is one related by consanguinity, and a step-father is simply a connection by marriage. A parent is one who is connected by blood; a step-father is one connected by marriage. A parent is the father or mother of the child; a step-father is the step-father and nothing more.

I have the honor to remain, very respectfully yours.

CLIFFORD A. H. BARTLETT,

Judge Advocate-General, S. N. Y.

168 NASSAU STREET, New York, June 12, 1890.

The Adjutant-General, S. N. Y.:

Sir.—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of the enlistment paper of John J. McElhenney, Company C, Eighth Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., a minor, with the consent of his uncle thereon, who signed as guardian, and which was referred to me for my opinion, as to whether such consent is sufficient. I am of the opinion that it is not sufficient. The Military Code provides that no person under the age of twenty-one years shall be enlisted or re-enlisted without the consent of his parent or guardian. This provision is to insure that the individual entering upon the contract of military service with the State shall be capable of making a legal contract. An uncle does not come within the terms parent or guardian, and the word "guardian" means a legally constituted guardian and not a person with whom the minor dwells or who might chance to be his custodian.

I have the honor to remain, very respectfully yours.

CLIFFORD A. H. BARTLETT,

Judge Advocate-General, S. N. Y.

168 NASSAU STREET, NEW YORK, June 12, 1890.

The Adjutant-General, S. N. Y.:

Sir.—I have the honor to acknowledge a communication from General Headquarters requesting my opinion as to whether a captain can compel compliance with an order directing the members of his company to attend a memorial service of the Paulist Fathers Church on Sunday.

The attendance required was evidently one of a religious nature. It did not relate strictly to military duty or to funeral honors paid to It was an order to attend a service at a sectarian church and while such attendance was in itself probably unobjectionable to the majority of the command, it should be induced by persuasion and not by compulsion. The reluctance with which even the military authorities have always shrunk from in any way bringing the subject of religion into the army is illustrated by the fifty-second article of war, which says, "it is earnestly recommended to all officers and soldiers diligently to attend divine service." Certainly no language could be more discriminating. It is not a command neither is it a It is only an earnest recommendation - a suggestion which leaves the determination whether or not to attend divine service entirely within the discretion of the officers and soldiers. once, however, decided to attend divine service, the officer and soldier subjects himself to military discipline and he is liable to be punished for any misbehavior or breach of discipline committed while attending divine service in the same manner as at other times. shall or shall not attend divine service is a matter to be determined by each individual according to his conscience and for failure to attend, I am of the opinion, the absentee can not legally be fined.

I have the honor to remain, very respectfully yours.

CLIFFORD A. H. BARTLETT,

Judge Advocate-General, S. N. Y.

STATE OF NEW YORK:

Office of the Judge Advocate-General,
CITY HALL, BROOKLYN, December 16, 1890.

Major-General Josiah Porter, Adjutant-General State of New York:

Sir.—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of the communication of Captain Michael Auer, commanding the Fifth Battery, N. G. S. N. Y., dated December 6, 1890, requesting my opinion upon this statement:

"The National Guard are on duty and under orders from the sheriff to perform certain services. They are directed by General Headquarters to stop operations pending an investigation by General Headquarters as to the necessity of calling out the National Guard by the civil authorities. Does that action on the part of the military authorities relieve the civil authorities from the responsibility of paying the bills contracted under the call of the sheriff for troops?"

Section 79, Military Code, is framed to afford the aid of the National Guard to the civil authorities in cases of a breach of the peace, tumult, riot, resistance to the process of this State or imminent danger thereof. To this end the chief civil executive authority of a county or city is empowered to call upon the commandant of the National Guard, stationed in said county or city or adjacent thereto.

The civil officer is to determine, in his discretion, whether an emergency, specified in section 79, Military Code, exists, or whether there is imminent danger thereof.

If he so determine, his summons to the local commandant of the National Guard is imperative, and it becomes the duty of that officer to order out the whole or such part of his command as may seem to him adequate to aid the civil authorities in preserving the peace or enforcing the law. Neither the approval nor sanction of the Commander-in-Chief, or of any other authority, is prerequisite to the validity of the call of the sheriff (or mayor), for that official in such emergencies is clothed with absolute initiatory power.

Emergencies demand prompt action. The purpose of the statute might be thwarted or defeated if there could be no valid assembly of the military force until such time elapsed as might necessarily be consumed in laying the situation before the Commander-in-Chief for his approval of the call of the civil authorities or of the order of the local military authority based upon the call. If such sanction or approval were prerequisite it would not be the sheriff, but the Commander-in-Chief who determined that the breach of the peace, etc., existed, and who called for aid to the civil authorities. If this were so, section 79 need have no place in the Military Code, inasmuch as it is already provided therein that the Commander-in-Chief shall have power in case of insurrection, invasion or breaches of the peace to order the National Guard into active service (sec. 77, M. C.), and all of the crises in section 79, Military Code, may be described by the general term "breaches of the peace." Indeed such is the leading term of description therein employed.

This interpretation of section 79 is strengthened by the provision of that section that "it shall be the duty" of the local commandant to to order out his command or a part thereof upon receiving the call from the sheriff (or mayor), and the further provision that such officer "shall immediately report what he has done and all the circumstances of the case to the Commander-in-Chief."

The latter provision clearly indicates that the function of the Commander-in-Chief is review, not preliminary approval.

Section 96, Military Code, contains this expression: "All officers and enlisted men of the National Guard while on duty and assembled therefor pursuant to the order of the sheriff of any county or the mayor of any city in case of riot, tumult, breach of the peace, resistance to process or whenever called upon in aid of the civil authorities, etc.," and so indicates that the Legislature intended that the call of the sheriff (or mayor) should in effect be an order for the assemblage of the National Guard, stationed within his county (or city) or adjacent thereto.

For these reasons I am of opinion that if the sheriff of the county, determined that there was a breach of the peace, tumult or riot, or resistance to process of this State within his county or imminent danger thereof, and called for aid upon the commandant of the National Guard, stationed therein or adjacent thereto, and if in response to that call, the said commandant ordered out in aid of the civil authorities, the military force under his command or any part thereof, such assembly was authorized by the Military Code.

I am of opinion that such military forces are entitled to the compensation fixed by section 92, Military Code, and the necessary expenses incurred in subsisting, quartering and transferring them from the time that they were on duty or assembled therefor by the order of their immediate commandant based upon the call of the sheriff, so long as they remain on duty or assembled therefor, (sec. 95 M. C.), but not beyond the time that the order was transmitted from general headquarters "stopping operations."

Such compensation and expenses are a county charge to be fixed, levied and raised pursuant to section 95, Military Code.

I have the honor to remain, very respectfully yours.

ALMET F. JENKS.

Brigadier General and Judge Advocate-General, S. N. Y.

REPORT OF THE INSPECTOR-GENERAL.

STATE OF NEW YORK:

Inspector-General's Department, Albany, December 14, 1890.

To the Adjutant-General, S. N. Y., Albany, N. Y.:

SIR.—In compliance with section 20, Military Code, and paragraph 589 of the regulations, I have the honor to submit my report for the current year.

The report of the musters and inspections made by the Assistant Inspector-General is incorporated herein.

The aggregate strength of the National Guard of the State, exclusive of General and Brigade Headquarters, at the yearly muster and inspection, was as follows:

Artillery Infantry	103
O 1	35
Signal corps
Total, 1890	13,426
Aggregate strength of 1889	13,832
Aggregate strength of 1889
Loss

A circular from the Adjutant-General's office, stating the standard by which the State troops would be judged at the annual muster and inspection, was forwarded to each company commander. The result was beneficial. Many companies in which soldierly appearance was formerly the exception, have reached, or nearly reached, the degree of neatness and military bearing required.

At attention there is still, in some instances, talking and unsteadiness in ranks. This serious breach of military deportment will be closely observed and reported.

The soiling of the floors of the armories by the use of tobacco during inspection and muster has been practically stopped. There were a few cases reported this year, noticeably in the Ninth and Sixty-ninth Regiments.

The inspections of the Third and Fourth Brigades, with the exception of the Tenth Battalion, were completed May twenty-second.

The inspections of the First and Second Brigades, with the exception of those organizations that were under orders for the State Camp of Instruction, were completed on June twentieth.

The inspections of the organizations that were at camp belonging to the First, Second and Third Brigades were completed November nineteenth.

THE STAFF CORPS.

The general staff of the National Guard of the State consists of one Major-General, the Adjutant-General, ten Brigadier-Generals, Heads of Departments. The Commander-in-Chief has authority to appoint officers, indefinitely, from the rank of Colonel down, in these departments, seven Colonels aides to the Commander-in-Chief.

The Adjutant-General, Inspector-General, Chief of Ordnance, Surgeon-General, Judge Advocate-General, and Inspector of Rifle Practice, are in charge of the working departments. Their duties are continuous and important.

The duties of the Paymaster-General and Chief of Artillery are occasional:

The departments under the direction of the Commissary-General and the Quartermaster-General have no functions. Chief of Engineers may be called upon for the performance of duty pertaining to his department. Of the seven Colonels designated as aides, two have continuous and important duties.

The State troops can be used only in two capacities:

First. When mustered into the United States service; they would then pass under the administration of the War Department.

Second. As a force to repress civil disorder within the limits of the State and as an adjunct to the civil authority. In the latter case, the department of the Chief of Ordnance is equipped with the necessary machinery for transportation, subsistence, etc., and authority to meet all emergencies. It practically has its subordinates in the quartermasters and commissaries of regiments, and quartermaster and commissary sergeants.

The code should be so amended as to abolish superfluous departments on the expiration of the term of service of the present incumbents; to reduce the rank of the heads of those departments in which the duties are comparatively light, and the rank of the aides, with the exception of two, should be reduced and their number curtailed.

A limit should be placed upon the number of assistants in the several departments and their rank should be prescribed. The highest rank, the just reward of long and faithful military service, should be sparingly conferred, and then only upon officers of experience and merit. Its indiscriminate bestowal is detrimental to the best interests of the State.

The action of the present State authorities in the elimination of many unnecessary officers of high rank has had a salutary effect.

THE SIGNAL CORPS.

The Signal Corps of the First and Second Brigades were on duty at the State Camp of Instruction and performed their work most creditably. Daily practice was had in day and night signaling.

Detachments were sent to distant and elevated points, topographical maps of the country beyond the outer stations were drawn, descriptions of the topography were transmitted to the main camp, where maps of fair accuracy were made, and every means was resorted to, to make the duty interesting as well as instructive. Stations were established in woody and difficult country.

I respectfully recommend the study of topographical signs and map-making, and the continuance of the study of military telegraphy and all that pertains thereto, and the use of the heliograph. No increase of the Signal Corps beyond the development of the present organizations is necessary. Instruction of the regiments and companies in signaling, throughout the State, should, where practicable, be given.

This branch of the service is fortunate in the zeal of its officers.

THE ARTILLERY.

The Second Battery is the only one of the five batteries of the State that has the new three and two-tenths inch guns. It has made itself familiar with their mechanism and has used the pieces with intelligence. The other batteries have made some slight changes towards improvement, and one in the reverse direction. Details will be found on the muster-rolls.

Attention is again invited to the very unsuitable armory and surroundings of the First Battery.

The detachments from the different batteries on duty at the State Camp of Instruction were models of neatness and soldierly conduct.

No recommendation is offered for the improvement of the artillery of the State beyond that suggested in last year's report.

I respectfully recommend that some of the machine guns, as they pass out of use by the batteries, be turned over to the infantry regiments and battalions.

The artillery of the State is not in as satisfactory condition, as far as its own arm is concerned, as could be wished. This is the result of want of opportunity and not of want of desire for improvement.

THE CAVALRY.

The cavalry of the State consists of Troop A. During the detail of this command at the Camp of Instruction it acquitted itself with credit. The officers and men have entered the National Guard with a determination to acquire a thorough knowledge of their duties and of military customs.

They have accomplished much in their short service, and have manifested a prompt and willing obedience to orders and to the regulations.

No effort should be spared in the training of this command to raise it to the highest standard of military proficiency, and to instruct it in all the fundamental details of the profession of arms. Being recently organized, it has no erroneous traditions to combat.

THE INFANTRY.

The forty-five (45) separate companies throughout the State are in a satisfactory condition, with a few exception. Steps have been taken within the last six months to raise the standard of proficiency of those that have fallen below that required by General Headquarters, and good results will follow.

A number of these organizations have reached a high state of efficiency. They are commanded by able officers and the men are, in the main, self-respecting, good citizens — the only material from which good soldiers can be made.

The commands are generally large, and are in many cases drilled in battalion as well as in company movements.

The formation of battalions from these companies in camp, under command of the ranking captain, was successful.

I respectfully recommend that each separate company carry a guidon on all occasions of ceremony, with the number of the organization and its station thereon.

Captains of separate companies should bear in mind in passing beyond the schools of the soldier and of the company to battalion movements that promptness and vigor are absolutely essential.

Theoretical instruction should be given in the class-room; long and tedious explanations on the drill-ground, protracted intervals between movements and the constant repetition of the same movement without sufficient reason, are demoralizing to officers and men, and make what might be of interest and a pleasure a dull, wearisome task.

Field officers ordered to supervise company drills should correct errors and give instruction where required. Their presence on the drill-ground as inactive spectators is not sufficient.

The regiments of infantry are not all in a good condition; but reports of their neatness and soldierly bearing at the annual inspection and muster show in many cases an improvement within the last year.

The regiments during the past season in camp were subjected to a more rigid inspection.

The Ninth Regiment was fair; showed an improvement and a desire to raise itself to the required standard.

· The Thirteenth Regiment was good.

The Fourteenth Regiment was poor, both in discipline and in tactical instruction.

The Sixty-ninth Regiment was poor, both in discipline and in tactical instruction.

The Sixty-fifth Regiment was good.

The Thirty-second Regiment, which was not at the Camp of Instruction, was found, at the armory inspection and muster, to be in bad condition.

I respectfully recommend that it be mustered out of the service. The improvement looked for during the past year not having occurred.

ARMORIES, ETC.

I have the honor to respectfully invite your attention to the tables annexed to this report. It will be observed that the capital invested by the State in armories, etc., amounts, approximately, to $5,174,751, not including the value of the Seventh Regiment armory, of the two rifle ranges, and of the land on which the armories at Cohoes, Malone and Geneva are to be built, the purchase of which has not yet been completed. These values added to the above amount would raise it to about $6,000,000. The annual appropriation of the State is $400,000. The quota from the general government is $34,173.72, and the annual rental paid by counties, exclusive of the $15,000 paid on the Seventh Regiment armory bonds, is $59,000.

This investment and annual outlay is wise, if it disseminates military knowledge and keeps alive the military spirit of the State. The National Guard is worth the money expended, provided it is well-disciplined and well-instructed in the fundamental details of the soldier's profession. With such generous support the State is entitled to the best of troops.

THE SUPERNUMERARY LIST.

I respectfully recommend that the supernumerary list, when a constitutional amendment is deemed necessary, be abolished, and that all officers who are borne on it be mustered out of the service.

Such a list affords the means in the case of certain ex-staff officers of avoiding the duties of citizenship without doing military duty. It has no practical utility.

RECOMMENDATIONS, ETC.

I respectfully recommend instruction in bayonet exercise and the fostering of athletic sports.

A command called upon for duty in case of civil disorder should be familiar with the use of its rifles with fixed bayonets, in addithereby be greatly increased.

The careful elementary training of the soldier is of greater importance than more advanced tactical instruction. The first requires time, patience and care; the latter the practice of easily acquired principles.

I respectfully recommend that some simple distinctive mark by which regiments could be at once known, be adopted.

I respectfully recommend that the general staff officers be permitted to wear the present braided coat and forage cap when on duty with troops, and when not accompanying the Commander-in-Chief, instead of the present full-dress uniform. requires much room for transportation, does not permit the use of the overcoat, and is entirely unsuited for modern conditions.

The obligation assumed by enlistment or by commission is not great enough, and its violation is not seriously enough considered or punished.

The progress of many commands is not encouraging.

I respectfully recommend that in addition to the present term of five years, shorter terms of enlistment be allowed, two years for the first term and three years for the second.

A deposit should be required from the recruit in case of the shorter term, to cover the expense to the State for his uniform, said sum to be forfeited in case of failure to re-enlist for the second term of three years, or in case of a failure to perform a certain fixed percentage of duty for the first two years. In case of re-enlistment and the required performance of duty, the money to be refunded at the expiration of five years. Many conscientious men are unwilling to assume the unknown responsibilities of military duty for five years, who would enlist for a shorter period and finding the work attractive and instructive, would continue in the service. Hope of promotion is the proper ambition of every soldier; it develops interest, stimulates energy and leads to prog-Every vigorous and intelligent young man who enters the military service looks for advancement, yet many excellent captains and lieutenants leave the State forces after years of faithful work without obtaining their just reward.

I therefore respectfully recommend that all general and field officers be retired after fifteen (15) years' service, all captains after ten (10) years' service, and all lieutenants after seven (7) years' service, the length of service to be counted only in the same grade.

I also respectfully recommend that such officers be placed on a non-active list, so long as they report yearly to the Adjutant-General, and that they be not eligible to re-election in any command until they have remained out of the service for two years. This list to be composed only of officers of the line, said officers to be regarded as qualified for staff appointment at once. All staff officers whose functions cease to be mustered out immediately.

I respectfully recommend that, in addition to the election of regimental company officers by the company, they should have a two-thirds favorable vote of the board officers of the regiment before being eligible for examination. This would give additional security for the selection of good officers.

THE CAMP OF INSTRUCTION.

The messing, sanitary arrangements, location and accessibility of the Camp of Instruction are excellent.

The tents are floored for cleanliness and in order not to subject men to unnecessary exposure. A week in camponce in two years can not inure men to the hardships of an actual campaign. The object is to maintain health, and that no service be lost through illness.

The Chief of Ordnance provides ample and wholesome food.

It is necessary that troops should be able to prepare their own rations, but the multiplicity of regimental and separate company messes which this would involve, together with the temporary presence of refuse, the liability to bad cooking and consequent illness, the large details for the kitchens and police, and the transportation of provisions to various points, would all tend to lessen the utility of the camp for other military instruction. It is, moreover, believed that with the well-known adaptability of the American soldier, the enlisted men would soon become competent to perform this duty in case of necessity. The modern preparations of food render it a much simpler matter than formerly.

In cleanliness last year's camp was beyond adverse criticism.

Military courtesy is willingly but often crudely extended.

Roll-calls are often carelessly conducted; talking, pushing, gazing about and general unsteadiness are observed.

Formations are habitually slow. Companies are slow in getting on the drill ground. Many company officers present at the formations either have no knowledge of their duties or are derelict in their performance.

Field officers should be in the company officers' street to superintend the officers in charge of company formations, and to instruct them when necessary.

Every command should be perfect in military ceremonies before going to camp. This is work to be accomplished in the armory.

I would respectfully recommend that the drills for each organization be prescribed by the post commander. Time would not then be spent on the Minor Operations of War that could in some cases be better employed otherwise.

I also respectfully recommend that on a portion of the ground not utilized, be constructed all form of temporary field fortifications, as an object lesson, and a small frame building be erected for such military appliances as are obtainable.

The details for the accomplishment of this suggestion have already been submitted orally.

In view of the probable early adoption of the new drill regulations, and of the number of questions that may arise concerning the construction of minor points, and also in view of the importance of having uniform instruction throughout the State, I have the honor to recommend that a company of company officers be formed for two weeks' voluntary service in camp under competent command. In addition to strictly tactical questions, useful elementary information might be imparted in the details of camp life, which, in many organizations, are not understood. Lectures could be given in the afternoon on important military subjects. This camp to be established at some distance from the regular camp detail.

During the camp of 1890, the excellent behavior of the enlisted men and their almost universal obedience to orders in spite of great facilities for their infringement, was most remarkable. They showed a degree of self-respect worthy of high praise. Officers and men as a rule are subordinate, and anxious to do their duty and to learn.

Judicious criticism does much good; careful handling and personal supervision by experienced officers of judgment would do more.

DISCIPLINE.

The discipline in some of the organizations is poor.

The determination of the present State authorities to have an efficient military force, together with the facilities for instruction which are being put within reach of every command, guarantee a rapid improvement in this particular.

DRILL-GROUND.

The portion of Van Cortland Park set aside for military purposes is admirable.

There should also be some ground near enough to the organizations of the First Brigade to involve little or no time or expense for transportation, which could be used for out-of-door inspections, drills, etc., during the day, and possibly by night, aided by the electric light.

I respectfully suggest that the site of the present old reservoir between Fortieth and Forty-second streets and Fifth avenue be reserved for such a purpose when the structure therein is removed. When not occupied for military purposes it could be used as a public park. Some such place is most necessary.

I also suggest should it ever be deemed advisable in order to meet the views of the general government to organize a heavy artillery regiment, that Castle Garden, now available, would be the best site for its purposes.

CONCLUSION.

At the termination of the Civil War, and on the return of the army to its peaceful vocations, the men who had served with honor were held in high esteem. This led many unscrupulous persons to the unwarranted assumption of military rank, and many State governments to the wholesale creation and consequent prostitution of military titles. A natural revulsion of feeling followed, and the military profession suffered. A reaction has taken place. The prominent journals of the country devote much space to military affairs, and especially to the State troops. Some of the ablest correspondents of the daily newspapers visit the annual camps, and their technical reports on the efficiency of the troops are eagerly looked for and read by a large proportion of the people. The State of New York has been foremost in this change.

This department finds much to censure, but more to commend. The people of the State should be well satisfied with the continued improvement in their military establishment.

Very respectfully your obedient servant.

THOMAS H. BARBER,

EXTRACT FROM THE REPORT OF THE ASSISTANT INSPECTOR-GENERAL.

Books and Records.

"The books and records throughout the National Guard are not uniformly kept, and in many instances are so incorrect as to be of no value as a record.

"In the Third Brigade the best results are attained, which is to be attributed to the careful supervision from brigade headquarters.

"It will soon become necessary to issue new morning report and descriptive books to replace those issued some five years ago.

I. would recommend that the forms for both these books be revised, as the ones now provided are in many respects imperfect or not adapted to National Guard uses.

"ARMORIES.

"Twenty-three armories owned by the State are now occupied by troops.

"All are in good condition and well-adapted, except the armory at Buffalo occupied by the Sixty-fifth Regiment.

"In this building the floor of the large drill-hall is in very bad condition. The floor planks and timbers are decayed and should be entirely taken up and laid new.

"The part of the building occupied for administration purposes is very old and dilapidated. The floors in the main hall should be made new, and other repairs made throughout."

REPORTS OF THE CHIEF OF ORDNANCE FOR 1890.

STATE OF NEW YORK:

OFFICE OF CHIEF OF ORDNANCE, NEW YORK, December 15, 1890.

The Adjutant-General, State of New Yoak:

Sir.—I have the honor to report the following purchases and expenditures, account of State Camp for season of 1890. Detailed abstracts of same have been previously forwarded to you, viz.:

Blank cartridges, fifty caliber, cartridge bags, powder,
primers, sponges, repairing gun carriages, etc	$1,338	70
Candles, candle-sticks, oil, lanterns, etc	385	20
Cots, mattresses, camp and mess stools, etc	1,801	50
Pails, brooms, rakes, sickles, wheelbarrows, tables, coffee		•
pails, etc	903	05
Iron and sewer piping, steam fitting, cooking utensils, labor, etc	849	36
Coal for pumps	94	00
National, State, storm and hospital flags	231	60
Hardware, nails, paint, labor, etc	250	77
Hay, oats, straw and seed	462	38
Repairs to buildings, lumber, carpenter and mason work, etc	1,864	95

Medical supplies, disinfectants, assistance in medical	•.
departments, hospital supplies, etc	775	32
Transportation camp equipage, stores, etc	548	50
Carting camp and equipage, stores, baggage of troops from dock to camp grounds and return, services engineer, watchman, labor, express charges, freight, disinfector, scavenger, stationery, telegrams, boatman hire, ambulance, etc	6,985	70

Transportation of troops to and from camp	$19,453	73
Subsistence of troops	42 384
Hire of horses for use of field officers	735	00
Electric lighting of camp	1,500	00
Model 1
Total	$80,700	85

During the past year a commodious mess hall, kitchen and icehouse have been erected which necessitated the moving of several minor buildings.

The point of rocks has been further cut away, thus adding more area to the parade ground which together with other parts of the camp ground should be graded.

The need of a permanent guard-house and increased accommodations to the bath-houses and sinks were never more urgent than in the season just terminated.

The road on south side of the camp and leading to Roa Hook requires to be raised above high-water mark.

I am, sir, very respectfully yours.

J. M. VARIAN,

Brigadier-General and Chief of Ordnance, S. N. Y.

STATE OF NEW YORK:

REPORT OF THE GENERAL INSPECTOR OF RIFLE PRACTICE FOR 1890.

STATE OF NEW YORK:

DEPARTMENT OF RIFLE PRACTICE, No. 18 COENTIES SLIP, NEW YORK, December 13, 1890.

The Adjutant-General, State of New York:

SIR.—I have the honor to forward herewith the annual report of this department for 1890, as well as the report of the condition of the various ranges throughout the State.

I am, sir, very respectfully yours.

CHAS. F. ROBBINS,

Brig.-Gen. and Gen. Insp. Rifle Practice S. N. Y.

STATE OF NEW YORK:

DEPARTMENT OF RIFLE PRACTICE, OFFICE No. 18 COENTIES SLIP, NEW YORK CITY, December 31, 1890.

The Adjutant-General, State of New York:

SIR.— In making the annual report of this department for the year 1890, increasing interest can be claimed, notwithstanding the number of marksmen is not so great as in 1889. Following somewhat the plan initiated in 1889, changed only to meet necessities arising from varying locations, the practice of all the troops was this year upon an equal basis and all figures of merit were computed from results obtained upon one day's practice—this being preceded by preliminary practice enabling officers so inclined to thoroughly instruct their men and without expense to the members personally.

Preliminary practice was very generally availed of by the separate company organizations, each upon its own range, and at Creedmoor, Rensselaerwyck and Bay View ample opportunity was given for troops near by.

At Creedmoor 954 individuals practiced between April twenty-eighth and May tenth, and with good results from the following organizations.

Seventh Regiment	318
Eighth Regiment	99
Ninth Regiment	84
Twelfth Regiment	79
Thirteenth Regiment	39
Fourteenth Regiment	58
Twenty-second Regiment	31
Twenty-third Regiment	55
Thirty-second Regiment.	•••
Forty-seventh Regiment.	51
Sixty-ninth	69
Seventy-first	65
Fourth Separate Company.	3
Eleventh Separate Company	Ū
and coperate company	3
Total	954
	002

By my request the commanding officers, First and Second Brigades, directed the attendance of an officer each day from each organization and a surgeon each day from one brigade.

I desire to note the general attention to duty of the officers. But one surgeon failed to report.

- Following the general practice came a series of so-called free days at which the attendance was very good, the total at Creedmoor being 1,246 individuals divided among all the various regiments as follows:

Seventh Regiment	70
Eighth Regiment	82
Ninth Regiment	145

REPORT OF THE ADJUTANT-GENERAL.	365
Twelfth Regiment	113
Thirteenth Regiment	22 8
Fourteenth Regiment	26
Twenty-second Regiment	118

Forty-seventh Regiment	142
Sixty-ninth Regiment	38
Seventy-first Regiment	130

Fourth Separate Company	30
Eleventh Separate Company	2

At Bay View and Rensselaerwyck a fair attendance was had, but the interest in either place was not what it ought to have been. I opine, however, as each year affords greater armory facilities and an increase of practical knowledge, the results will be more apparent. In lieu of free days a series of competitions were held at various points under my own supervision, thus enabling members of separate companies to have a similar opportunity to that afforded by matches at Creedmoor, Bay View and Rensselaerwyck.

At Whitehall, for members from the Ninth, Eighteenth and Twenty-second; at Newburgh, the Fifth, Tenth, Fifteenth and Nineteenth; at Hudson, the Fourteenth, Sixteenth and Twenty-third; at Oneonta, the Third, Twentieth, Thirty-third and Sixth Battery; at Binghamton, the Twentieth Separate and Sixth Battery and Third and Thirty-third Separate Companies; at Auburn, the Second and Thirty-fourth; at Elmira, the Twenty-sixth and Thirtieth Companies.

It was found these competitions excited much interest and the opportunities afforded were appreciated. The present method of practice and of computation of results for comparison meets with general approbation, and I can but believe that ample provisions for preliminary, followed by general and free practice, will be beneficial, and prove the best means toward general marksmanship.

First Brigade, Company B, Seventh Regiment	76.12
Second Brigade, Company F, Twenty-third Regiment	68.01
Third Brigade, Twenty-seventh Separate Company	81.09
Fourth Brigade, Forty-second Separate Company	82.32
Fourth Brigade, Forty-second Departure Company

Notable mention should be made of Companies A, C, F, H, I and K, Seventh Regiment, the Sixth Battery and the Second, Ninth, Twentieth, Twenty-third, Thirtieth, Thirty-third, Thirty-ninth and Forty-third Separate Companies, each of which has a figure of merit of over sixty-six per cent.

I think I can truly say that this year, for the first time, all organizations made an effort to practice, though some were prevented by lack of range facilities, and in some the attendance was painfully light, showing lack of interest, particularly in officers.

RANGES.

I would respectfully refer to accompanying exhibit "A." I am, sir, very respectfully, your obedient servant.

CHAS. F. ROBBINS,

Brig.-Gen. and Gen. Insp. Rifle Practice, S. N. Y.

"A."

STATE OF NEW YORK:

DEPARTMENT OF RIFLE PRACTICE, OFFICE No. 18 COENTIES SLIP, NEW YORK CITY, December 31, 1890.

The Adjutant-General, State of New York:

SIR.—In accordance with the law (Sec. 83, M. C.) the various ranges throughout the State have been inspected.

CREEDMOOR.

Used by First and Second Brigades and Fourth and Eleventh Separate Companies. About 2,300 men competed in preliminary and free practice, and about 5,100 under General Orders. The range proper is in good shape. Butts on each side in bad order, pit on west range nearly gone, fence on top of east butt nearly rotted down.

RENSSELAERWYCK.

Albany.—Used by the Tenth Battalion and Sixth, Seventh, Twelfth and Twenty-first Separate Companies, has been fairly well kept up but needs extensive repairs, and for economy's sake they should be undertaken at once.

BAY VIEW.

Buffalo.— Used by the Sixty-fifth and Seventy fourth Regiments. This range was put in fair condition early in 1890, but the long time since the pit and fence on top of mound was built makes it probable that still more work will be needed before it is used again.

PENN YAN.

This range was abandoned at the disbandment of the First Separate Company. Targets, etc., belonged to the company.

Second Separate Company.

Auburn.—Range in fair shape.

Third Separate Company.

Oneonta. - Good condition, well cared for.

Fourth Separate Company.

Yonkers.—Practices at Creedmoor.

Fifth Separate Company.

Newburgh.—Shows signs of decay; a little work will be needed next season; ought to be done by the two companies using it.

Sixth Separate Company.

Troy. - Practices at Rensselaerwyck.

Seventh Separate Company.

Cohoes.—Practices at Rensselaerwyck.

Eighth Separate Company.

Rochester.—Range not properly cared for.

Ninth Separate Company.

Whitehall.—In good shape.

Tenth Separate Company.

Newburgh.— See Fifth Separate Company.

Eleventh Separate Company.

Mount Vernon.—Practices at Creedmoor.

Twelfth Separate Company.

Troy.—Practices at Rensselaerwyck.

Thirteenth Separate Company.

Jamestown.—In good order.

Fourteenth Separate Company.

Kingston.—Has been fixed this year; in good order.

Fifteenth Separate Company.

Poughkeepsie.—In excellent shape, as far as pit and target are concerned; firing points need looking after.

Sixteenth Separate Company.

Catskill.—Requires a little overhauling about the mound in the spring.

Seventeenth Separate Company.

Flushing.—Practices at Creedmoor.

Eighteenth Separate Company.

Glens Falls.—Fairly good shape as to range; targets poorly kept.

Nineteenth Separate Company.

Poughkeepsie.—See Fifteenth Separate Company.

Twentieth Separate Company.

Binghamton.—New targets issued; new pit, and now in good shape.

Twenty-first Separate Company.

Troy. - Practices at Rensselaerwyck.

Twenty-second Separate Company.

Saratoga.—In good order.

Twenty-third Separate Company.

Hudson.—In good order.

Twenty-fourth Separate Company.

Middletown.— No grounds yet selected.

Twenty-sixth Separate Company.

Elmira.—Repaired last spring; now in first-rate condition.

Twenty-seventh Separate Company.

Malone.— Use old range; should get new one.

Twenty-eighth Separate Company.

Utica.—A range selected here but not in time to erect butt this year.

Twenty-ninth Separate Company.

Oswego.—Range condemned as unsafe; new location not yet selected.

Thirtieth Separate Company.

Elmira.—See Twenty-sixth Separate Company.

Thirty-first Separate Company.

Mohawk.— See Twenty-eighth Separate Company.

Thirty-second Separate Company.

Hoosick Falls.—New range selected but not yet accepted as there are difficulties about the location.

Thirty-third Separate Company.

Walton.—In excellent shape except at the 300-yard firing point, but little work needed there.

Thirty-fourth Separate Company.

Geneva.—Has new range located on line of railroad to Lyons—just completed, butts used once only.

Thirty-fifth Separate Company.

Ogdensburg.—No change in the range, target system poor.

Thirty-sixth and Thirty-seventh Separate Companies.

Schenectady.—Butt and targets fair, firing points should be rebuilt; small expense to each company.

Thirty-eighth Separate Company.

Oswego. - See Twenty-ninth Separate Company.

Thirty-ninth Separate Company.

Watertown.—In good order.

Fortieth and Forty-first Separate Companies.

Syracuse.—No ground yet secured.

Forty-second Separate Company.

Niagara.—In fair order but a railroad is soon to cross it which will necessitate new location.

Forty-third Separate Company.

Olean.—Should have firing points looked after.

Forty-fourth Separate Company.

Utica.— See Twenty-eighth Separate Company.

Forty-fifth Separate Company.

Cortland.— New range, targets and butts, etc., in good shape.

Forty-sixth Separate Company.

Amsterdam.—Ground selected not suitable; have another lot not yet passed upon.

Following is list of amounts allowed towards sustaining and repairing ranges used by the State in 1890:

CHARLES F. ROBBINS,

General Inspector of Rifle Practice, S. N. Y.

REPORT OF THE SURGEON-GENERAL.

54 West Thirty-sixth Street, New York, January 2, 1891.

The Adjutant-General, S. N. Y.:

SIR.—The time for the presentation of my eighth annual report as Surgeon-General, finds the matters of the medical department of the State, that have been considered in the past, in a satisfactory degree of advancement and of completion. However, new questions, the offspring of general advancement of the service, and those also having a more special bearing are forcing themselves to the front constantly. It was remarked in the last annual report that "the sanitary status of the camp is established," and yet still another year has emphasized this statement by adding to the nine preceding successful encampments another one free from death, and free from disorder dependent in any manner on the presence of unsanitary associations. The construction of a new and commodious mess hall and kitchen has removed permanently the threatening and unsavory associations of the older structures. The present sanitary state of nearly every camp association has now attained that standard of excellency that approaches almost the rank of idealism, at least in There are, however, several subsidiary matters practical utility. yet connected with the camp, an improvement in the conduct of which will do more to prevent the prospective possibility of disease than to arrest any immediate impending danger of its occurrence.

SERVANTS' QUARTERS.

The area devoted to quartering the servants of Messrs. Yale and Windholz should be (as it is) located conveniently for their observation and control in the interest of good service and discipline of these people. It requires no statement of mine to convince you of the facts that these people, while irresponsible, are nevertheless necessary; while naturally cleanly, yet they are slothful and disorderly. A combination of irresponsibility, slothfulness and disorder on the part of aggregated persons, predisposes to disturbance and disease. Discipline prevents and quells disturbance; scrubbing hinders and subdues disease. The area occupied by the tents of the servants, together with that surrounding them for some distance, should be graded and asphalted, so as to permit frequent flushing and scrubbing of the surface, and a free discharge of all liquids into the camp sewer. An arrangement of this kind will make it possible to exercise a cleanly supervision over the belongings of the servants of this The long continued, efficient and satisfactory department. manner in which Messrs. Yale and Windholz, the caterers of the State Camp, have performed the delicate and onerous duty of feeding the troops without a well-based animadversion on the part of anyone, is alike a matter of surprise and commendation. To the indefatigable labor and untiring courtesy of these gentlemen, as much as to any other persons, the success of the State Camp is due. THE DUMP.

I am of the opinion that a wise discretion dictates that another than the present place for "dumping" the "camp policings" should be selected. It has frequently happened during the time of the present dump, that odors of a foul and offensive character have arisen, caused by the fermentation and decomposition of the organic matters that must of necessity be deposited there. The constant use of fresh earth and disinfectants has been necessary, heretofore, to suppress foul odors; and it is not at all remarkable that relaxed vigilance on the part of the help in immediate charge of it, should cause an occasional nuisance. The medical officers of the camp during the past season have frequently commented unfavorably on both the contiguity and occasional offensiveness of this dump.

GRADING AND ASPHALTING.

The grading and asphalting of the company streets will add much, indeed, to the dryness of the camp, by causing the prompt escape of surface water into the main sewer. I am of the opinion that the planting and cultivation of numerous trees between the tents will soon add much to the comfort and salubriousness of the camp, to say nothing of the picturesque effect that it will cause. Also the earth surfaces contiguous to the rear of the kitchen, and the walks connected with it, ought to be so graded and asphalted as to convey all slops and surface water directly into the main sewer.

SCHOOL-SINKS.

The school-sinks or latrines are thought by many to be improperly flushed and also not well attended. As to the former complaint, the large amount of water at the command of the attendant offers him no excuse for failure in respect to proper flushing. The known faithfulness of the attendant would seem to indicate that he lacked the physical strength to properly perform the duty, or that the special senses of the complainants were attuned to conditions of a higher and more ethereal nature than is altogether consistent with the practical workings of terrestrial matters. I can see no advantage in the introduction of an automatic flushing apparatus, in fact I think I can see serious objections to it. It can in no manner cause the removal of the ordure specially objectionable to sight and smell, as this can be accomplished only by scrubbing; and, moreover, the presence of automatic mechanical appliances, blunt the sense of responsibility of human agencies, which is always to be deprecated. Faithful human intelligence is a more trustworthy sanitary servant than the most ingenious inanimate mechanism. An increase in the capacity of the building, together with more frequent cleansing and the liberal use of disinfectants, will make this structure cleanly and inoffensive.

BATH-HOUSES.

The introduction into the State Camp some years since of well-appointed bathing apartments, at a convenient distance from the quarters of the men, has proven a boon of comfort and sanity. The capacity for bathing purposes should be increased, not only for the better convenience of habitual bathers, but also for the encouragement of experimental ones. It will add much to the comfort and convenience of the bathers if the flow of the water in the respective apartments be properly controlled by the bather through the agency of a movable platform, upon which he may stand during the act; also this plan will reduce to a minimum the amount of water used for bathing.

AFFAIRS OF THE MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

The scope of this expression is comprehensive, and its proper consideration at this time will require that much be said of a somewhat radical nature, and that recommendations be made of an unusual though consistent character.

The further elaboration and advancement of matters bearing on "prompt aid to the injured," and the consideration of the advisability of adopting a standard of physical requirement for admission to the guard, are, in my opinion, the most important needs now before the medical department for thought and action. With but few exceptions, indeed, instructions in "prompt aid to the injured" is now given in each of the commands in the State. Some of the separate companies have failed, as yet, to begin the instruction, a few for good and sufficient reasons, others for reasons of a somewhat problematical nature. Commands having no medical officers can not, of course, meet this demand, and such commands as these ought not to be allowed beyond the precincts of their own armories. In fact, no command should be permitted the leave the quarters for duty, except it be accompanied by proper medical officers. It is not enough that a commandant assume that "no emergencies will occur" simply because none have occurred; on the contrary, his duty requires that he utilize all the legal means afforded by the State for the safety of those in his charge, and also such other discretionary means as may be suggested by the unwritten laws of experience and care. Certainly no member of the guard should be exposed at any time to greater dangers than when at home, except proportionately greater care be taken to meet the requirements bred of those dangers. The example of a command, seen not long since, marching into the district of a disturbed and distrustful populace, without the support of a medical officer or the presence of medical supplies, is suggestive of that variety of valor that courts glory at the expense of humanity and sense. There is no need of such instances as this, as each commandant of an organization is permitted, and ought to be required, to procure the services of a suitable medical officer at once. When this is done, there will be no good reason why suitable instruction can not be given, and proper care of the sick and injured of a command will not receive the attention due them from the Empire State, whose laws for peace and protection they uphold.

The boards of examination appointed to test the knowledge of the applicants for the insignia bestowed by the State, labor earnestly and faithfully to perform the duties of their important trust. It often happens, however, that in the enthusiasm born of commendable zeal, these examiners exact too much knowledge of the pupils, and expect greater things of them than is often required of students for a medical degree. During the it came to my notice that questions on season anatomy were asked, such as those propounded by the members of the Royal College of Surgeons to those who aspire to its degree. A course of this kind is suggestive of impracticability or pedantry on the part of the examiner, that can but tend to demoralize the service, even if these "knotty" questions be answered correctly. It has been often suggested that the Surgeon-General ought to indicate the exact line of instruction, even to the extent of stating the questions bearing on the matters that should be inculcated. In General Orders No. 96, bearing the date of December 22, 1887, of which the following is a true copy, the Surgeon-General clearly indicated, as he thought and now believes, the general scope of the plan of instruction:

"The course of instruction, given by the medical officers of the command, shall include, for the present:

"Rudimentary instruction in anatomy and physiology.

"Rudimentary instruction in the diagnosis of the common accidents and diseased conditions to which national guardmen are exposed, and the common means for the prevention of the same.

"Instruction as to the common means employed for the urgent relief of the sick and injured, including stretcher drill and matters pertaining to transportation of the sick and injured.

"Instruction in individual and camp hygiene."

To do more than this, the Surgeon-General considers an impugnment of the fitness and intelligence of the medical officers of the guard, on his part. Surely a physician in general practice should be able to meet the emergencies of this practice, the great majority of which are similar with those of civil military life. Indeed, if he be able to meet them properly, then should he be also competent to inculcate the simple precepts that will enable an intelligent layman to properly bridge the interval between an accident on the one side and the presence of proper medical or surgical skill on the other. As before remarked, the emergencies of civil military experience differ but a little from those of civil life. At all events, they run so nearly parallel with each other that ignorance or failure in the former is strongly suggestive of the result of experience in the latter. No! Comrades of the medical staff, do not utter such self-discrediting reasons for non-action as "the instructions are not sufficiently "I do not know what is required," and such as "questions should be prescribed," and similar other expressions, indicative of - no matter what. The question for you to consider is: What emergencies are to be expected in connection with the service of the guard, the temporary treatment of which can be safely intrusted to intelligent and well-informed laymen. Your knowledge of the recognized relationship existing between cause and effect under these circumstances, ought to make it easy for you to anticipate the time and nature of these emergencies, while the knowledge of your profession should lead you to be able to impart sufficient of its practical workings to others, that they may employ it to the advantage of mankind and to the credit of their instructors. If one were to give a stereotyped set of questions with answers, that you were to teach the pupils of this service, without regard to careful thought on your part, then, indeed, would you become as one who views a field of action through a pin-hole, with mental anathy and inefficiency, rather than through a port-hole, with energy, efficiency and self-reliance. Your own worth to the guard demands that you begin work at once, and that while you rely principally on your judgment and your professional knowledge, still you should gain from the many books devoted to the subject such information as there may be to offer. Major Henry, in his admirable report, calls attention to many such books, any one of which, will be found teeming with important and instructive matters.

The introduction into camp this year of all the medical officers of the commands, served a wise and important purpose. It is hoped that these gentlemen were there fully impressed with the importance of their trust, and with the immediate necessity of a full compliance on their part with the demands of the occasion.

THE PROMPT AID BADGE.

Your close attention and careful consideration of the remarks of Major Henry, in respect to this matter in his report, are earnestly invited. In a manner, both just and judicial, he calls attention to the abuse that may follow if the present method of issuing the badges be continued. There is no one thing connected with the management of the medical department that has caused me so much misgiving, of late, as the unrestricted issuance of these badges to those who are, for the time being at least, well qualified for the performance of the duties their possession implies. While I am certain of the fact that the adoption of any new plan that contemplates the wearing of the badge by those only who are active members of a military organization, and the placing of the permission to wear it at the disposal of the commandant of the organization, will meet with disfavor; still, I am quite as certain that the dignity and proficiency of the service demands that some measure be adopted that will cause a marked distinction to be made between those who continue proficient and worthy of this trust and those who by inattention, indifference or personal unworthiness, belittle or debase the service. The justly worthy ones can find no fault with such a measure, since it will enhance the virtue of this insignia and increase proportionally their importance in connection with it. Those who value personal decoration and personal ease more than personal proficiency and personal effort, will naturally oppose a measure which conflicts with vanity and pomp. The language of Major Henry, on the importance of this course, is singularly expressive and can not be improved. says:

"There is no restriction placed upon the wearing of this insignia, and it can readily be seen that the powers testified by the State may be sadly lacking after a lapse of time, or the same may be misused and bring condemnation upon the service.

"The decoration is certainly highly appreciated by the wearer, and to place the holding of it at the pleasure of the regiment would certainly meet with earnest objection and perhaps, under the present system, jeopardize the securing of good details; nevertheless, the State having granted and certified certain power and ability to the wearer of the badge, must protect this responsibility, and has the right to place such restrictions upon this authority as it deems judicious."

Farther along in the report of Major Henry will be found a rough draft of a professed law regulating the acquirement, the continued qualification and final bestowal of the badge. The aims which it seeks to secure are proper ones, and such as can but commend themselves to all those who value the decoration on account of what it should represent—honesty and efficiency. It is not necessary, it seems to me, to speak of this insignia as one to be governed by the rules regulating the control of others found in the guard; for, if it be misappropriated or ill bestowed, not only are its objects defeated, but suffering and disaster are courted, the State's money unwisely spent, and a confiding public imposed upon in times of dire emergency. I am constrained to advise you that a proper order or law should soon be made for the better regulation of the bestowal and the custody of these badges.

The wearing of the bassard by those who are not specially detailed for the duty which its presence demands, has grown to become an inexcusable abuse. Only such as are specially detailed should be permitted to wear it at all, and those only when obvious duty is present or apprehended.

RESTRICTIVE USE OF THE RED CROSS.

The following true copy of a bill recently introduced to the Senate of the United States, explains itself:

FIFTY-FIRST CONGRESS — FIRST SESSION.

S. 4262.

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES.

July 24, 1890.

Mr. Sherman introduced the following bill; which was read twice and referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

A BILL

To incorporate the American National Association of the Red Cross.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That Clara Barton, George Kennon, J. B. Hubbell, Doctor of Medicine, Albert Gleason, Mrs. Omar D. Conger, all of the city of Washington, District of Columbia; Joseph Sheldon, of the city of New Haven, State of Connecticut; Walter P. Phillips, of the city and State of New York; Miss M. E. Almon, of the city of Newport, State of Rhode Island; Mrs. Enola Gardner, of the town of Bedford, State of Indiana, and their associates and successors, be, and they are hereby constituted a body politic and corporate in perpetuity, with the right to appoint their successors and associates in such manner and on such terms as they may see fit.

§ 2. That the name of this organization shall be The American National Association of the Red Cross, and by that name it shall have perpetual succession, with power to sue and be sued in courts of law and equity within the jurisdiction of the United States; to have and to hold such real and personal estate as shall be convenient and necessary to carry out the purposes of this corporation hereinafter set forth; to adopt a seal and the same to alter and destroy at pleasure, and to have the right to have and use, in carrying out its purposes hereinafter designated, the emblem and badge, a Greek red cross on a white ground, the same as has been described in the treaty of Geneva, of August twenty-second, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, and adopted by the several nations acceding thereto; to ordain and establish by-laws and regulations not inconsistent with the laws of the United States of America or of any State thereof, and generally to do all such acts and things as may be necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this act and promote the purposes of said association; and the corporation hereby created is designated as that association authorized to act in matters of relief under the said treaty.

§ 3. That the purposes of this association are and shall be:

First. To furnish volunteer aid to the sick and wounded of armies in time of war, in accordance with the spirit and conditions of the treaty of the Red Cross, or the treaty of August twenty-second, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, to which the United States of America gave its adhesion on March first, eighteen hundred and eighty-two.

Second. And for said purposes to perform all the duties devolved upon a national society by each nation which has acceded to said treaty.

Third. To succeed to all the rights which have been hitherto held, and to all the duties which have heretofore been performed by the American Association of the Red Cross as a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the United States relating to the District of Columbia, which organization is hereby dissolved.

Fourth. To act in matters of voluntary relief and in accord with the military authorities, as a medium of communication between the people of the United States of America and their armies, and to act in such matters between similar national societies of other governments through the "Comité International de secours" and the government and the people and armies of the United States of America.

Fifth. And to continue and carry on a system of national and international relief in time of peace, and apply the same in mitigating the sufferings caused by pestilence, famine, fire, floods, and other great national calamities.

Sixth. And to devise and carry on measures for preventing the same.

Seventh. And generally to promote measures of humanity and the welfare of mankind.

§ 4. That from and after the passage of this act it shall be unlawful for any person, or association of persons, within the jurisdiction of the United States of America, to give, sell, distribute, or display the symbol of the red cross hereinbefore designated, or any colorable imitation or semblance thereof, or to assume or use as a trade-mark, or as a designation or part of a designation of any organization, the words "red cross," or any expression liable to be mistaken for the words "red cross;" and every person so offending shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished for each and every offense by a fine of not less than fifty dollars and not more than five hundred dollars, or by imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, or such fine and imprisonment both; and one-half of the amount of the fines so collected shall be paid to the complainant, and the other half shall be paid into the treasury of the United States; provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be held to apply -

First. To the officers and agents of the United States of America specially authorized by law to use the same.

Second. The officers and agents of the American National Association of the Red Cross in carrying on the work for which said association was incorporated by the government of the United States.

Third. The agents of the Red Cross society of any foreign State acting with the knowledge and consent of the government thereof, and of the President of the United States of America first had and obtained; provided further, that nothing herein contained shall be held to affect any masonic degree, rite, or emblem as existing prior to the first day of March, eighteen hundred and eighty-two, in the conduct of the affairs of said degree or rite.

§ 5. That this charter may be amended or revoked at the pleasure of the Congress of the United States of America.

It will be noticed that this bill contemplates the exclusive use of the red cross by the society in question, except for the purposes of the exceptions made in the bill. I am decidedly of the opinion that a further exception should be made to entitle the National Guard of the respective States to the same privilege in the use of the red cross, as is accorded in the bill to the army of the United States, because the purposes are similar and the systems of instruction are not essentially different in their practical application and outlook. The enlistment of a special corps whose only duty shall be directed to affairs associated with "prompt aid to the injured" is quite strongly advised by many influential members of the guard. Still, I am, as yet, far from being convinced that this is a wise suggestion, for the following reasons: It would introduce into the personal of the service of the guard a certain number of men, whose duties would be largely of a perfunctory character only, the result of which would be, in my judgment, derogatory to harmony and good discipline, to say nothing of the additional expense without an immediate prospect of a satisfactory quid pro quo, so far as the State service itself is concerned. Moreover, this plan would reduce to a minimum the number who could be qualified to render aid to unfortunate individuals and taxpayers in civil life. This latter class is certainly entitled to this forethought in their behalf, in consideration of the liberal and uncomplaining manner with which they contribute to the maintenance and support of the guard in other respects. While it is true, no doubt, that a corps thus constituted would, as a whole, so far as the guard is concerned, become better qualified for this special duty, still if a proper record be kept in each organization of those who are best qualified, and if to this be added the qualification to be gained by placing advanced restrictions on the bestowal of the insignia, then, indeed, a sufficient number of the well qualified will be ever at hand for the service of the guard in times of civil strife.

The suggestion that the details of organizations be consolidated for the purposes of instruction has nothing to commend it to a favorable consideration, except, perhaps, the advancement of the personal comfort of those medical officers who find it inconvenient or impossible to devote to their individual details the necessary time for proper instruction of the men. The answer to this is obvious at once, for medical officers can not consistently be thought worthy of the trusts imposed by their commissions who are unwilling or unable to give the necessary time for the proper attention to the duties of the post they occupy. change of the present plan would limit the opportunities for practical instruction in direct proportion to the increase of the numbers present for that purpose, and thus would cripple the corps in one of the most important features, its practical knowledge when called into active duty. Moreover, this plan can in no way increase the worth of the medical corps; but, on the contrary, its efficient men will not be benefited and the inefficient ones will be made the worse. Major Henry very properly calls attention to the necessity of the adoption of a properly-equipped haversack for company use, and, in the near future, this desideratum should command your earnest attention. It is the practice of not a few of the medical officers of commands to accompany troops to posts of danger, without even providing adequate means for the treatment of those who might be injured in the service. If those officers will but consult the regulations, they will find there that ample provisions are made to enable them to meet all the requirements that a well-judged anticipation of personal danger can suggest.

Physical Qualification of the Men.

Not infrequently, in preceding annual reports, the Surgeon-General has called attention to the vital importance of the establishment of a more definite and higher standard of physical requirement for admission to the service of the National Guard of this State. Although the necessity of this requirement has been urgently emphasized in the past as being the only sure means of securing serviceable men, and also as a just means of protecting those already diseased from deepening their infirmities by unwarrantable exposure in the guard, yet, thus far, no active steps have been taken to establish these purposes by the State authorities. In creditable instances the commandants of organizations have caused physical examinations of recruits to be made for admission to their respective commands. Less now than formerly there are instances of rejections of men for well-marked physical defects by one organization, who, at once thereafter, are admitted to another without a physical interrogation of practical worth. I will not dwell further on this abuse from a retrospective standpoint, but will beg to call your attention at once to the increased importance of a higher standard of physical requirement, especially in view of the fact that now the State grants pensions to such as become permanently incapacitated as the result of their military service. Unless some safeguard be thrown at once around this just and generous provision, the pension roll of the State will soon form no small part of its fiduciary obligation. Surely infirm recruits who are permitted to enlist unquestioned are justly entitled to proper recompense for any increase of physical infirmity that may result from their association with the service. If the State accepts unquestioned the services of men who are physically crippled at the time of admission, then truly it should recompense these men for the donations they unwittingly make to it, from their limited store of vitality. At the best this recognition will be inadequate for the loss sustained, as one willingly and knowingly will rarely take on one's self duties or burdens that rob one of health or life, for the sake of military pomp and the prospect of a pension. It is proper to say at this time, I think, that the Surgeon-General can with propriety do no more than to point out the need for action in this matter, and to express himself ready to indicate the scope of the requirements, when it may be deemed wise to initiate the reform.

Permit me to again renew my assurances of the appreciation on my part of the continued manifestations of confidence and respect so uninterruptedly extended to me by all with whom I am officially connected in the National Guard of the State.

Respectfully submitted.

JOSEPH D. BRYANT,
Brigadier-General and Surgeon-General.

NEW YORK, October 1, 1890.

The Surgeon-General, State of New York:

SIR.—I have the honor to submit the following report of a tour of duty at the State Camp of Instruction at Peekskill, N. Y., from July 12 to August 23, 1890, inclusive:

Under Special order, A. G. O., dated Albany, July 7, 1890, I proceeded to State Camp on Saturday, July twelfth, and reported to the commanding officer.

I have had the honor, during this tour of duty, of meeting and consulting with medical officers from each of the respective brigades and to them I am indebted for many valuable suggestions, and take this opportunity of thanking them one and all for their uniform co-operation and assistance.

The medical officers of the following commands reported accordding to their respective orders: First Brigade, Ninth and Sixth Regiments; Second Brigade, Thirteenth and Fourteenth Regiments; Third Brigade, Major Herman Bendell, Surgeon of Brigade, and those of the Third, Fourth, Seventh, Fourteenth, Fifteenth, Sixteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-fourth, Thirty-first, Thirty-second, Thirty-third, Thirty-sixth, Thirty-seventh, Thirty-ninth and Forty-sixth Separate Companies; Fourth Brigade, Sixty-fifth Regiment, and those of the Second, Thirteenth, Twenty-sixth, Twenty-ninth, Thirtieth, Forty-first, Forty-second and Forty-fifth Separate Companies.

The surgeons of the following commands were absent: Third Brigade, Eleventh, Eighteenth, Nineteenth, Twenty-third and Twenty-eighth Separate Companies; Fourth Brigade, the Forty-third and Forty-fourth Separate Companies.

There were existing vacancies in the following commands: Third Brigade, Tenth, Twenty-first and Twenty-seventh; Fourth Brigade, Eighth and Thirty-fourth Separate Companies.

As one result of my tour of duty, I am most happy to inform you, from my observation and intercourse with company commanders as well as medical officers, that there exists, almost without exception a most hearty and uniform indorsement for the instruction of the national guardsmen in "prompt aid to the injured."

It is unnecessary for me to speak of the progress made, under the present existing system, in this department by the First and Second Brigades. The Third and Fourth Brigades, I can assure you, fully appreciate the importance of this service, and their failure to secure the State decoration in large numbers must not be taken as evidence of lack of interest; this has been rather due to the wider distribution of the commands composing the brigades and the resulting difficulty of mutual consultation and of interchange of views between the medical officers.

· I found most efficient examining boards existing in both the Third and Fourth Brigades, and the standard of proficiency demanded at the examination of candidates in order to secure the red cross, was in some respects higher than that demanded in either of the First or Second Brigades.

I felt it my duty, however, to caution examiners and others against the frequent mistake of exacting too far-reaching, technical and theoretical knowledge at the expense of time, which could be better spent upon what is practical and absolutely indispensable to the rendering of efficient prompt aid to the injured.

In order to secure the necessary uniformity of instruction in prompt aid to the injured throughout the National Guard, I endeavored to impress upon the medical officer such interpretation and understanding of G. O. No. 36, G. H. Q., series of 1887, as has been followed in the First Brigade.

There was a frequent demand for an authorized text-book; this I could only satisfy by recommending some of the best books thus far published. I can foresee, however, that for the future successful extension of such knowledge, it would be much wiser to adopt some recognized work, or formulate a system of instruction for the National Guard.

The books most widely in use and others which I recommended were as follows: Bowditch Morton, First Aid to the Injured; Alvah H. Doty, Prompt Aid to the Injured; George R. Fowler, Syllabus First Aid to the Injured; Smart's Handbook for the Hospital Corps; Esmarch's lectures and works upon Military Surgery; the English works of Martin, Raye and Robert.

This is by no means a complete list of works already published as aids to methods of imparting such knowledge; some containing questions and answers are of great value; nevertheless, the work to meet the many requirements of a national guardsman's text-book has yet to be published.

In order to secure a proper uniformity of requirement throughout the four brigades, I would recommend that the respective brigade examining boards forward to you for inspection an exhaustive list of questions covering the ground-work laid out in G. O. No. 36, G. H. Q., series of 1887. These could be revised and amended if found necessary, and could then undoubtedly become the basis of a future work.

In regard to methods of transportation of wounded and a system of stretcher drill, I found the majority of the commands already exercised in that recommended by Major Charles Smart, Surgeon U. S. A.

This system can be found either in Smart's work or in Doty's, and I would recommend its adoption by this State.

While the present system of special instruction in prompt aid to the injured, of annual details from the companies, can now be said to be thoroughly inaugurated and complied with in most commands, there are many questions regarding the present plan of work which demand careful consideration.

At present, after a single course of instruction, the individuals appear before an examining board, and, if found proficient, secure the State decoration. This badge becomes the property of the individual, and is supposed to testify that the wearer is competent to render prompt aid to the injured.

There is no restriction placed upon the wearing of this insignia, and it can readily be seen that the power testified by the State may be sadly lacking after the lapse of time, or the same be misused and bring condemnation upon the service.

The decoration is certainly highly appreciated by the wearer, and to place the holding of it at the pleasure of the regiment would certainly meet with earnest objection and perhaps, under the present system, jeopardize the securing of good details; nevertheless, the State having granted and certified certain ability and power to the wearer of this badge, must protect this responsibility and has the right to place such restrictions upon such authority as it deems judicious.

At present the badges are numbered as issued to the individuals, and the name and number are registered by the Department; in this way the status and position of the wearer can at any time be readily ascertained.

I would recommend the passage of a law by the next Legislature governing the authority and use of the State Red Cross Decoration of Prompt Aid to the Injured.

First. Members of the National Guard of the State of New York of more than one year service, who, after a course of instruction in prompt aid to the injured, shall have proved themselves proficient before a properly authorized board, shall receive from the State, and be authorized to wear, a decoration indicative of their efficiency to render such aid.

Second. All authority to wear, display and make use of such decoration is annulled at the expiration of two years from the time of first examination, unless the individual again prove his proficiency before a properly authorized board.

Third. An individual having received the State decoration of prompt aid to the injured, in order to secure authority to wear or make use of the same, shall at the expiration of two years again appear before a board of examiners and prove his proficiency; upon failure his badge shall be canceled and all authority annulled; if successful, he shall receive a parchment properly recognizing his status.

Fourth. The authority of this parchment or diploma shall only extend two years; at such time and every successive two years the holder must secure another and further indorsement from a medical board of examiners.

Fifth. The non-fulfillment of the above requirements by the holder of a badge or parchment shall be sufficient cause for the cancellation of the same.

Sixth. The Surgeon-General shall have authority at any time to cancel any badge or diploma.

Some such course as the above is certainly indicated and justified, if alone in consideration for the expenditure of the money of the State for the decoration.

Some complaints have been presented to me by medical officers, suggesting the necessity of enforcing the attendance of members detailed for instruction, by more stringent measures.

At present, according to the reading of the order, members detailed for instruction are not exempt from company duty. It therefore necessitates such individuals performing duty upon two evenings for a period of ten or twelve weeks, and is not strictly a detail, but rather extra duty. The objection is raised that under such circumstances failure to perform such duty can not be treated as a delinquency.

I will say that these objections come more from the smaller commands, where there generally exists some difficulty in securing a full detail, and the resulting small class is a discouragement to the surgeon.

In some cases, however, I believe the failure of attendance is due in equal part to the medical officer's either making the subject too theoretical, and carrying it beyond the necessity of the service, or in failure to interest his listeners.

I have found the best method of holding the interest and attendance of your class to be to present as much diversity of subject at each instruction. The first meeting might cover some anatomy, the application of the Esmarch triangular bandage, the posture indicated by pallor of countenance, loosening the clothing of one exhausted or faint, and methods of carrying an individual. By such division of matter, ground can be as rapidly covered and greater impression made.

I do not think the cause would be assisted by resorting to the usual methods of disciplining delinquents; those best fitted will probably volunteer and attend. The service is such that only those who become interested will achieve success and secure the decoration.

Some have suggested that where details are small the commands might be united, and the resultant interest from a larger number in the class would be enhanced. The respective surgeons could divide the subject.

Our military commanders have now arrived at the opinion that the care of the sick and wounded is of important consideration. The selection of medical officers is no longer a trifling matter; we have the nucleus, men properly instructed and drilled in each command in prompt aid to the injured, for the formation of an ambulance corps service in each brigade, should the requirements demand it. Until such time arrives the formation of a distinct brigade ambulance corps is unnecessary, and would accomplish comparatively small results.

It is time there was some authorized equipment for this service, and some regulations governing the same.

I would recommend the selection of a surgical haversack, water bottle and knife, as adopted by the United States Army. Two complete equipments should be allotted to each company, and placed in charge of the medical officer of the respective command.

I would also recommend the purchase of two well-constructed and equipped ambulances. One of these could be stationed at the Peekskill Camp of Instruction during the season, both for service and instruction, with great benefit.

Troops should not leave their home station for any reason, or the performance of any military duty unless prepared to properly care for themselves; medical officers should always feel the important responsibility of their positions, and be ready to meet any emergency or casualty that may arise.

My observation, during the past season, resulted in finding ample ground for criticism.

Commands arrived in camp, after many miles of travel, some passing through regions of existing disturbances, conscious of possible danger and accident; but while they were in many cases well provided with ball cartridges, in many, medical assistance, if required, would have been found wanting.

Some were without a medical officer; some medical officers were entirely unprepared even to dress the most simple wound; surgical emergency cases or supplies were difficult to find.

One command, however, deserves especial commendation for its compact and complete outfit; the Twentieth Separate Company, Binghamton, Daniel S. Burr, surgeon; other separate companies can safely learn a lesson from this command.

I would recommend that whenever troops are called upon for duty of any kind, one man, preferably a member who has qualified in service to prompt aid to the injured, be detailed for such duty and be properly equipped; for every battalion or regiment four men be detailed.

It should be more clearly understood that qualified men of this service, shall only wear the red cross brassard when actually performing such services, having been so detailed by the commanding officer at the request of the medical officer.

The innovation, ordering the medical officers of separate companies to report with their respective commands at the Peekskill Camp of Instruction during the past season, was well indorsed; and I have no doubt but that the results attained from such services, will not alone be of the greatest service and assistance to the officers individually, but will increase the efficiency of the medical service.

I endeavored during my service to secure a uniformity of standard and method in the instruction of the ambulance corps details.

When possible, and without interfering with the regular military routine, litter squads gave instructive exhibits in the management and transportation of wounded.

The surgeons were instructed in regard to their military and professional duties.

Every officer should take pride in his organization, and post himself in regard to matters of dress, and the manual of the sword, in order to avoid criticism detrimental to his command.

Sick call and the sanitary inspections were attended by the more recent commissioned medical officers, and they are prepared to efficiently perform such duty when called upon.

I found many medical officers who had scarcely ever performed any military duty, but anxious to acquire the requisite knowledge; these should be given an opportunity and if the plan adopted the past season is not to be repeated in the case of the remaining commands, I would advise that all surgeons who have not already performed such service be ordered to report with their respective companies when so ordered, and in the future medical officers be ordered to report with their respective commands at the Camp of Instruction upon the tour of duty succeeding the receipt of their commission.

There was very little sickness in camp during the past season, the larger percentage occurring in commands containing the larger percentage of recruits, and being due to indiscretion in diet.

Another source, which I shall refer to later, was lack of care in some organizations in the selection of candidates for enlistment.

The sanitary condition of the Post, the supply of water and food were excellent.

The capacity of the latrines and bath-houses should be doubled; could some automatic system of flushing the sinks be adopted, there would exist no ground for criticism. Some time in the future the method of disposal of refuse as well as drainage from the camp will demand consideration. The location of the dump is in too close proximity to the quarters.

The sinks and quarters of the colored help have always required constant attention and medical supervision in order to maintain an orderly and sanitary appearance.

I would suggest that the location of these quarters be laid in asphalt or concrete; perforated floorings to which, if necessary, the guy ropes of tents could be attached could be laid.

The whole area beneath the tents could under these conditions be thoroughly flushed every morning.

The road between the mess hall and commissary stores should be better graded and drained and paved with concrete or asphalt.

A new cooler is urgently required.

Excursions and other pleasure parties should not be allowed to land or enter the camp without permission from the Post Commander.

During the week extending from August sixteenth to twenty-third, inclusive, I acted in the capacity of Post Surgeon; the report of Major Kelly the medical officer of the Sixty-ninth Regiment which was doing duty during this period, will be found attached to this communication.

The Sixty-ninth is a superb body of men, and the majority are of splendid physique; but men should not be carried on the rolls indefinitely, and no soldier should be brought to camp unless physically capable of the full performance of the duty required.

I consider that there would be many advantages should there be a thorough medical inspection of the troops during their time of service at the State Camp.

This inspection could take place Sunday morning, without interfering with the military order of the camp.

The result of such inspection on my part during the past season has forcibly demonstrated the necessity that a regulation be adopted which will direct a uniform system for the examination of all recruits for admission to the National Guard.

Many of the best organizations already demand a physical qualification.

The following were some of the physical defects noticed: Members incapacitated by reason of age; from alcoholism; from epilepsy; from constitutional disease; two men had recently been inmates of insane asylums; three or four cases of spinal curvature; cases of hernia; one apparently recent recruit with only one arm; three with power of vision in only one eye.

A circular recommended by you, presenting the necessary requirements and causes for rejection of candidates for enlistment, would be heartily welcomed by all having the interest of the National Guard at heart.

I recommend the "Epitome of Tripler's Manual on the Examination of Recruits," by Major Chas. R. Greenleaf, U. S. A., to medical officers in search of instruction in this matter.

I append a modified United States Army regulation form for the physical examination of a recruit:

REPORTS OF COMMANDING OFFICERS.

HEADQUARTERS FIRST BRIGADE, NATIONAL GUARD, EQUITABLE BUILDING, No. 6 PINE STREET, NEW YORK, November 30, 1890.

The Adjutant-General State of New York, Albany, N. Y.:

SIR.—In accordance with P. 591 R., I have the honor to submit the following report of the First Brigade, N. G. S. N. Y.:

MOVEMENT OF TROOPS.

On May thirtieth, the brigade made the usual Memorial Day parade, as escort to the Grand Army of the Republic, and afterwards participated in the ceremonies incident to the laying of the corner-stone of the Washington Memorial Arch.

On May thirty-first, the brigade paraded on short notice for field exercise at Van Cortlandt Park, New York, a detailed account of which has been made the subject of a separate report. Special mention, however, may be made of the promptness with which the troops assembled, the admirable manner in which they were transported, and the efficiency of the officers and men under, in some cases, trying circumstances, and which made the occasion a creditable one to all concerned, and a memorable one in the annals of the National Guard.

The following regiments of the brigade were present at the State Camp, in accordance with G. O. No. 13, G. H. Q.: Ninth Regiment, from July fifth to July twelfth; Sixty-ninth Regiment, from August sixteenth to August twenty-third; Troop "A," from July fifth to July twelfth; details from First Battery, from July twenty-sixth to August second, and from August sixteenth to August twenty-third; details from Second Battery, from July fifth to July twelfth, and from August second to August sixteenth.

The Second Battery (Gatlings) was changed April 17, 1890, to a Light Battery, by S. O. No. 31, A. G. O.

THE STRENGTH OF THE BRIGADE.

The aggregate strength of the brigade by the quarterly return dated September 30, 1889, was 5,552. The strength of the corresponding quarter this year is 5,457; a loss of ninety-five. By S. O. 99, G. H. Q., dated Albany, October 10, 1889, Companies "F" and "I," Twenty-second Regiment, were mustered out of the service of the State, causing a reduction of 142 in the numbers of the brigade. Subsequently, Company "F" was reorganized and mustered into the service, adding fifty-three to the aggregate for duty.

Very respectfully.

LOUIS FITZGERALD,

Brigadier-General.

FIELD EXERCISES AT VAN CORTLANDT PARK, MAY 31, 1890.

Headquarters First Brigade, N. G. S. N. Y., No. 6 Pine Street, N. Y., June 15, 1890.

To the Adjutant-General, State of New York:

SIR.—I have the honor to report that on Saturday, May 31, 1890, the several regiments, batteries and troops comprising this brigade were ordered for field instruction at Van Cortlandt park.

It being desirable to test the readiness and efficiency of the command, the orders for the movement were not published till the day before, and the details were not made known to the commanding officers till the formation of the several commands on the morning of the thirty-first of May. The main object of the movement was to instruct the officers and men in the simpler operations involved in the transportation and concentration at a given point by different routes of the command, an advance by different routes, an attack upon a strong position, the defense of such position, and an orderly and intelligent retirement from it.

The brigade was divided into two commands, one composed of the Seventh, Twelfth, Twenty-second and Sixty-ninth Regiments, the First Battery and parts of Troop "A" and of the Signal Corps, under the command of Colonel James Cavanagh, Sixty-ninth Regiment, with Lieutenant-Colonel Olin A. A. G. as his Chief of Staff. The other was composed of the Eighth, Ninth and Seventyfirst Regiments, Second Battery and parts of Troop "A" and the Signal Corps, under command of Colonel George D. Scott, Eighth Regiment, with Major Greene, Brigade Engineer, as Chief of Staff.

An Ambulance Corps was organized for each command under the supervision of Major McKim, the Brigade Surgeon, the ambulances having been loaned by the Roosevelt hospital.

The first named command was designated the "Eastern Force," and was instructed to advance on parallel roads from Williamsbridge and Woodlawn stations on the New York and New Haven railroads, disposed as if in an enemy's country with advance guards, flankers and skirmishers, deployed through fields and across Tibbett's brook to take by assault a position on Vault hill in Van Cortlandt park.

The other command was designated the "Western Force," and was instructed to take position to defend Vault hill and its approaches on the north, east and south.

The object being to practice the commands in the movements necessary to an advance and a retreat, including the skirmishing of infantry, the placing and management of artillery and the building of bridges together with the movement of an isolated flanking column, the troops were instructed when to advance and retreat so as to avoid as far as possible any unnecessary collision.

The commands responded promptly to their orders, the numbers of the men being small owing to the shortness of the notice, but a very full attendance of officers was noted. All the details were carried out exactly in accordance with the accompanying orders and instructions, and great credit is due the several commands for their promptness and efficiency. The Seventh deployed, advanced, crossed the Mosholu bridge and attacked with intelligence and spirit. The Sixty-ninth advanced through close woods, built a bridge over the creek and advanced with too much impetuosity perhaps but still with an earnest desire to carry out their orders as they understood them. The absence of their commanding officer, Colonel James Cavanagh may account for the failure to carry out the orders exactly. In the absence of Colonel Cavanagh, Colonel Camp, Twenty-second Regiment, commanded the "Eastern Force." The Twenty-second Regiment advanced as directed, but being led on a wrong road were somewhat delayed, but arrived in time to complete the line and to make the assault. The Twelfth Regiment moved by other roads to the south, coming in at Van Cortlandt station, with a view to flanking the defensive force, and after driving in the pickets found posted along that approach, moved slowly across the parade ground in time to join the line of attack on the left of the Twenty-second Regiment. The detail of Troop "A," which had been observing and skirmishing on the left flank, dismounted and joined the attack on the left of the Twelfth Regiment, making the line complete from right to left. In the meantime the First Battery, Captain Wendel, had been posted by Captain Roosevelt, A. D. C., on the aqueduct at a point commanding the Mosholu bridge and the artillery of the other side, and during the whole advance kept up a steady and unremitting fire, which, in real service, would have been extremely effective.

On the part of the defense, the Seventy-first Regiment, Colonel Kopper, had thrown out pickets on the Mosholu road, covering every point of approach from that direction, and when struck by the advance of the Seventh retired in perfect order, and giving due notice to the column in rear. This regiment was handled very efficiently, and guarded the approaches with great care. Ninth Regiment was posted on its right, and guarded the point known as Vault hill with energy and determination. The Eighth Regiment, Lieutenant-Colonel Schilling, had a more arduous duty to perform. Being posted at and near Van Cortlandt station, it slowly and steadily retired before the advance of the Twelfth Regiment in such a manner as to form itself on the right of the Ninth Regiment, and completed the line of defense encircling Vault hill. The Second Battery, Captain Wilson (Gatling guns), executed their part of the duty with energy and persistence. Trees were cut down and the pieces were hauled by hand up to almost inaccessible places, and they effectively assisted the Seventyfirst and Ninth Regiments in resisting the advance.

The Signal Corps, Captain Gallup, established five stations, so as to command all points of the field, and made themselves extremely useful in various ways.

I desire to call special attention to the very efficient service rendered by Colonel Olin, Chief of Staff, and Major Greene, the Brigade Engineer, both in the preparation of the details and in the carrying out of the plan, which, by reason of the nature of the ground and the novelty of the situation to most of those engaged, was very difficult. The other members of the staff, in their respective spheres, deserve high commendation for their energy and devotion throughout the entire day.

At the close of the exercises the command was dismissed for dinner, after which a Brigade dress parade was held, and all the troops returned to their armories by the routes they had taken, at not later than half-past 4 o'clock.

In conclusion I commend in the highest degree the First and Second Batteries, who marched from the city the night before and bivouacked in the neighborhood of Jerome park. I visited these bivouacs during the night and found them to be properly formed, guards alert, horses well taken care of and everything in good and proper order.

On the whole the exercise was beneficial and instructive. It developed a willingness upon the part of officers and men much to be commended, and created an earnest desire for further instruction in field duty.

I forward herewith copies of maps, orders and reports.

Very respectfully.

LOUIS FITZGERALD,

Brigadier-General.

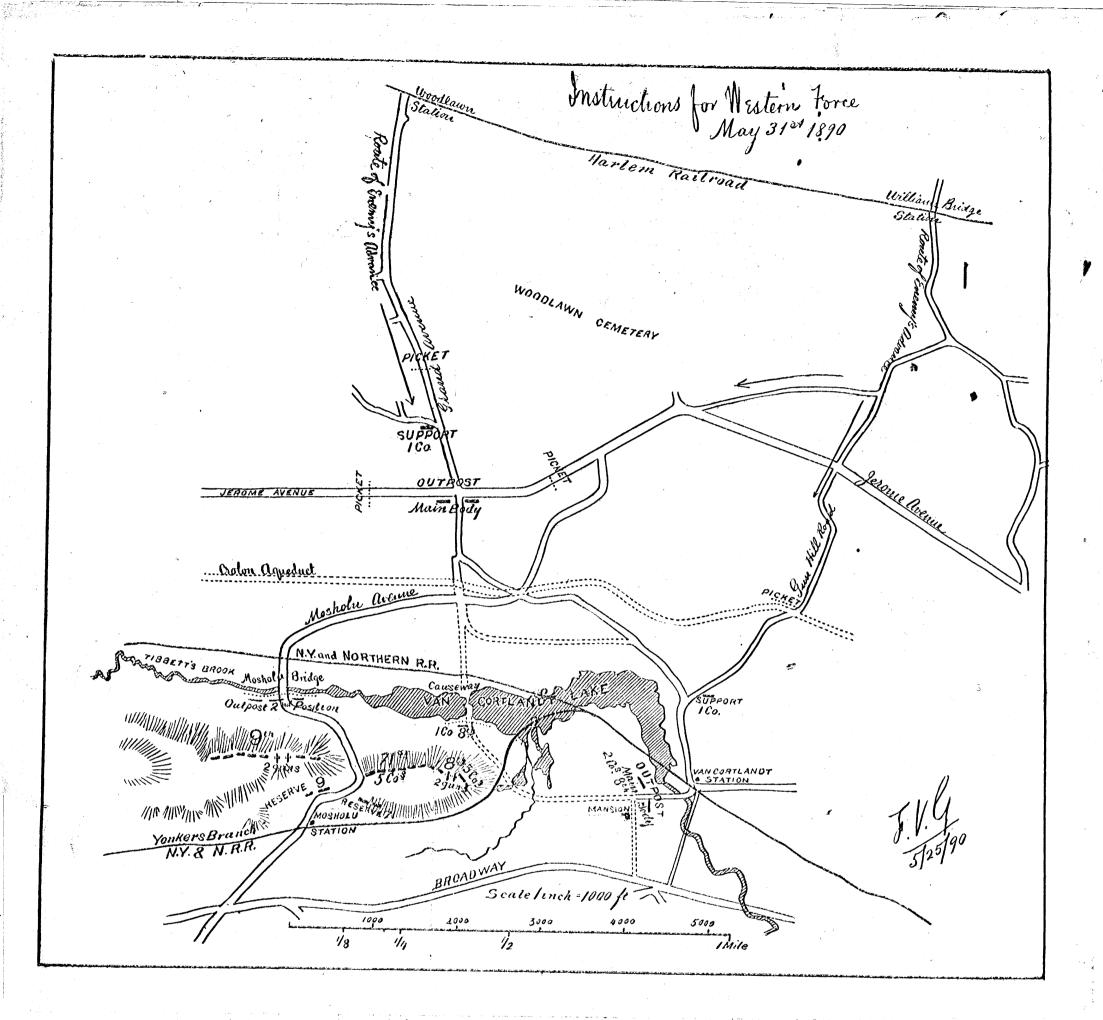

Headquarters First Brigade, N. G. S. N. Y.,
6 Pine Street, New York City, May 28, 1890.

I. The Brigade will assemble for field exercise on Saturday, May thirty-first, as herein directed.

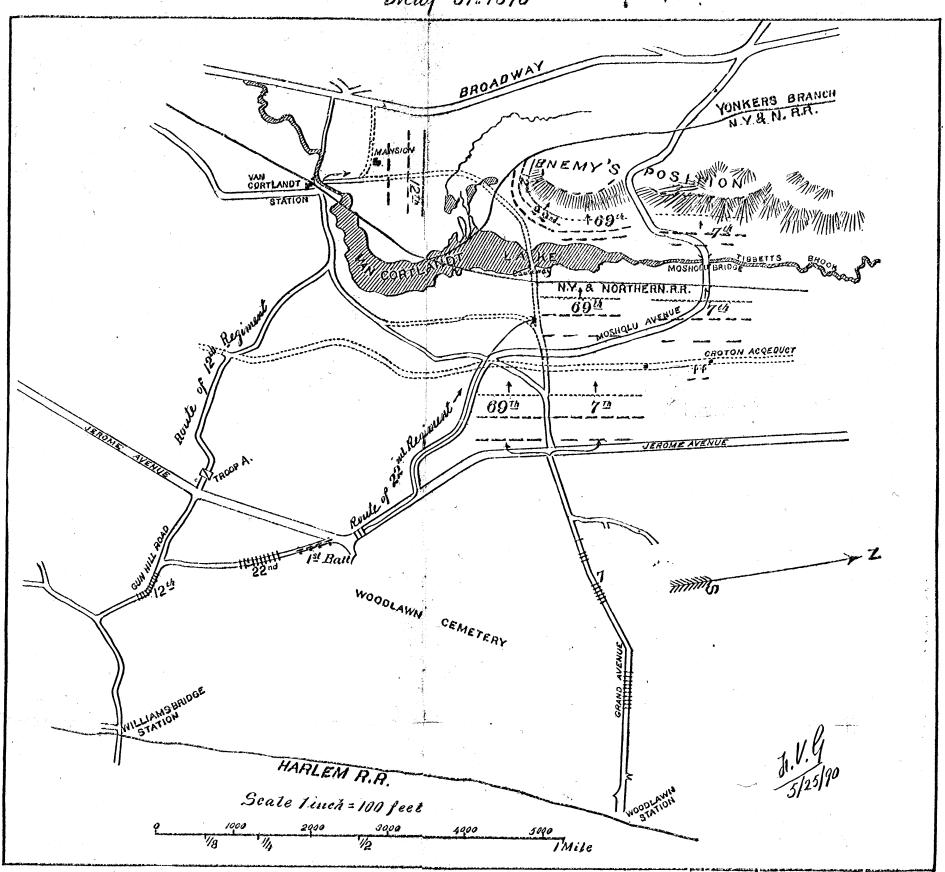

II. The Seventh Regiment will proceed via Third Avenue Elevated and Madison avenue bridge to the Harlem railroad station at One Hundred and Thirty-eighth street and take a train at 8.10 A. M.; the horses for the field and staff to be at Woodlawn station.

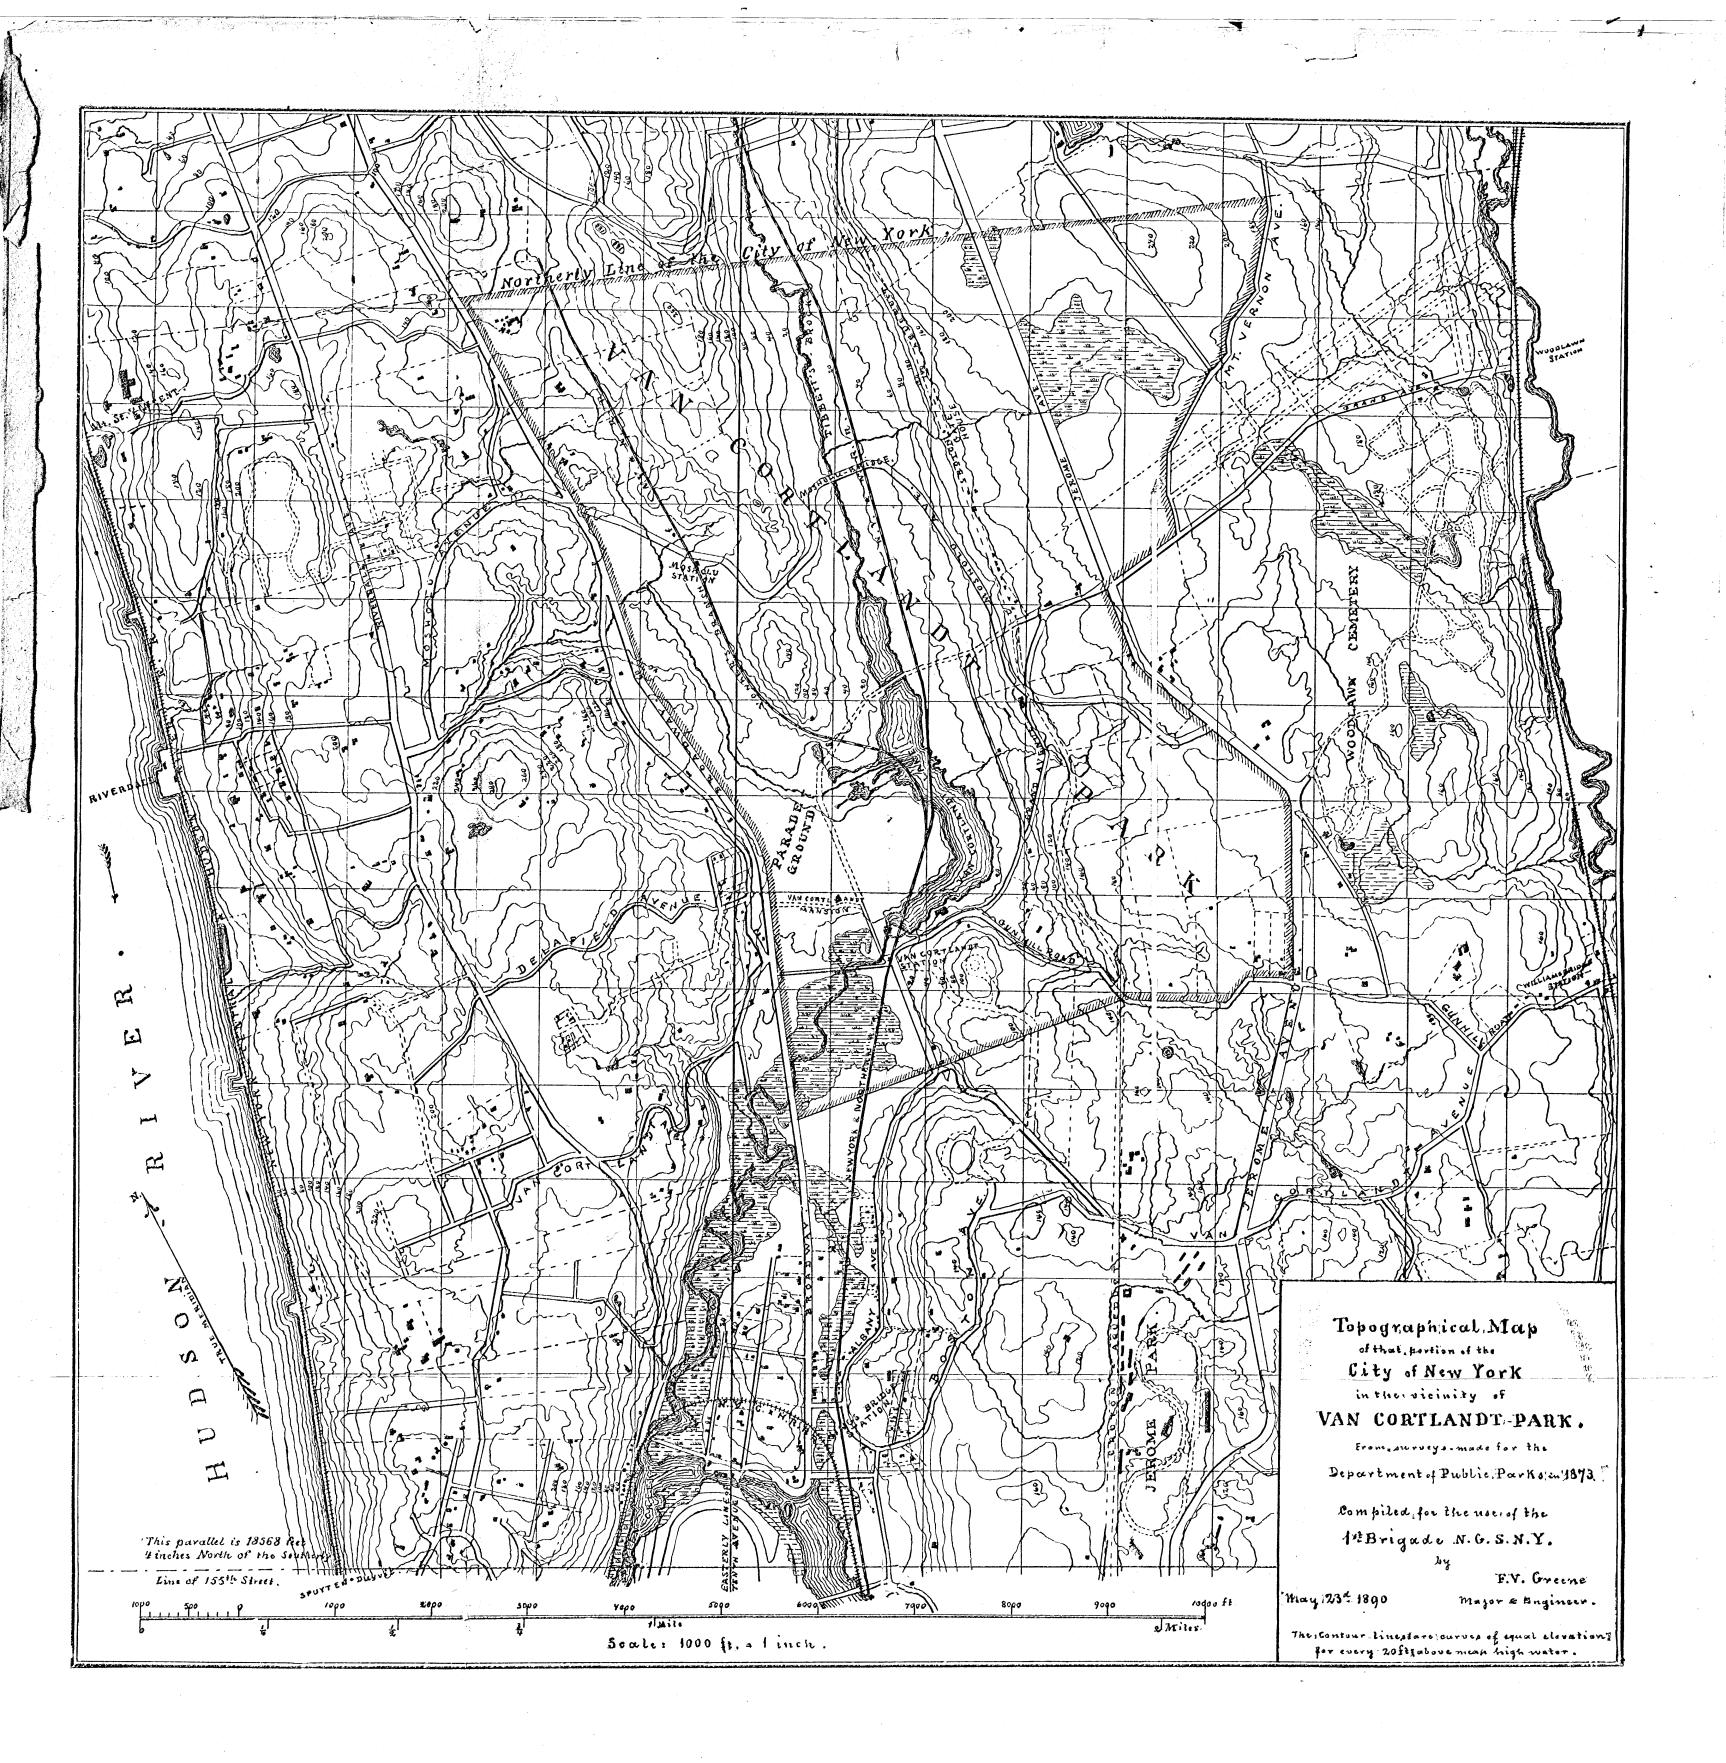

The Eighth Regiment will take a train on the New York Central and Hudson River railroad at Eighty-sixth street at 8.45 A. M.; horses to be at Kingsbridge station.

The Ninth Regiment will take the Ninth Avenue Elevated railroad at Thirty-fourth street station at 8 A. M., and take a train on the New York and Northern railroad; horses to be at Mosholu station.

Instructions for Eastern Force. May 31. 1890

The Twelfth Regiment will take the Harlem railroad at Forty-second street station at 8.40 a. M.; horses to be at Williamsbridge station.

The Twenty-second Regiment will take the Harlem railroad at Forty-second street station at 8.40 A.M.; horses to be at Williams-bridge station.

The Sixty-ninth Regiment will proceed via Third Avenue Elevated and take the Harlem railroad at Forty-second street at 8.15 A. M.; horses to be at Woodlawn station.

The Seventy-first Regiment will take the Sixth Avenue Elevated railroad at Forty-second street, at 8 A. M., thence by New York and Northern railroad; horses to be at Mosholu station.

III. Fatigue uniform will be worn; haversacks with cooked food for dinner, and canteen filled with water, will be carried. Overcoats may be worn across the shoulders if the regimental commanders, at the time of leaving the armories, deem best. Each man will carry twenty rounds of blank cartridge.

The Eighth, Ninth and Seventy-first Regiments and Second Battery will wear fatigue caps; the Seventh, Twelfth, Twenty-second and Sixty-ninth Regiments and First Battery will wear helmets. Bands will not turn out, but field music only.

One-half of the Signal Corps will accompany the Seventh Regiment, and one-half will accompany the Ninth Regiment.

The commanding officers of the Twenty-second and Seventy-first Regiments will each detail four men to act as Ambulance Corps under direction of the surgeon or assistant surgeon of their regiments, respectively.

IV. Punctuality in arriving at station is required.

The regiments are likely to return to their armories before 6 o'clock P. M.

V. Regimental quartermasters will report to the Brigade Quartermaster at Brigade Headquarters, No. 6 Pine street, on Thursday, May twenty-ninth, at noon.

VI. The Second Battery will report to Major F. V. Greene, at the corner of Broadway and Mosholu avenue, in Van Cortlandt park, at 9 o'clock A. M., with twenty rounds of blank cartridge. The First Battery will report at Williamsbridge at 9 A. M., with twenty rounds of blank cartridge for each gun.

VII. Troop "A" will report at 9 o'clock A. M., as follows: Ten men to the Brigade Commander, at Van Cortlandt station; ten men at the corner of Mosholu avenue and Broadway, Van Cortland park, to Major F. V. Greene; ten men at Woodlawn, to Lieutenant-Colonel Olin; and the remainder of the Troop at Williamsbridge, under the Troop Commander. The detachment reporting to Major Greene will wear fatigue caps; all others helmets. Ten rounds of blank cartridge will be carried.

By command of Louis Fitzgerald, Brigadier-General.

HEADQUARTERS FIRST BRIGADE, N. G. S. N. Y.,
6 PINE STREET, NEW YORK CITY, May 31, 1890. Separal Orders No. 3.

I. During the movements hereinafter ordered, the brigade will be divided into two bodies, as follows:

A "Western Force," consisting of the Eighth, Ninth and Seventy-first Regiments of Infantry; the Second Battery of Artillery, and a detachment of Troop A. All under command of Colonel Scott, Eighth Regiment.

An "Eastern Force," consisting of the Seventh, Twelfth, Twenty-second and Sixty-ninth Regiments of Infantry; the First Battery, and a detachment of Troop A. All under command of Colonel Cavanagh, Sixty-ninth Regiment.

II. The Western Force will detrain at Kingsbridge station, on the Hudson River railroad, and Mosholu station on the New York and Northern railroad, and will take position to defend the heights west of Tibbett's brook, in Van Cortlandt park, from an enemy advancing from the eastward.

The Eastern Force will detrain at Williamsbridge and Woodlawn, on the Harlem railroad, and maneuver to force the passage of Tibbett's brook.

The Western Force being outnumbered will gradually fall back. The Eastern Force will not advance beyond the crest of the hill to the west of Tibbett's brook.

III. Lieutenant-Colonel S. H. Olin will act as Chief of Staff to Colonel Cavanagh, commanding Eastern Force, and Major F. V.

Greene will act as Chief of Staff to Colonel Scott, commanding the Western Force. Majors Perkins, Dana, Van Duzer, and Captain Roosevelt of the brigade staff, will report to the commander of the Eastern Force for duty as aides-de-camp; and Majors McKim, Montant and Goodwin will report to the commander of the Western Force for the same purpose.

IV. After leaving the cars, and before beginning the maneuvers commanding officers will carefully inspect pieces, cartridge-boxes and ammunition-boxes, to see that no ball-cartridge is in possession of the men. Bayonets will not be fixed.

V. The maneuvers are intended to test the efficiency of the Brigade under conditions resembling those of active service. Commanding officers will handle their men as if in the actual presence of an enemy, and will make such tactical disposition as will enable them to carry out the instructions given with the least possible loss of time and exposure of their men.

Commanding officers will make report of the operations, on or before June fifth, to the Brigade Commander, who will act as umpire.

VI. At the end of the maneuvers commanding officers will reform their commands and march to the Van Cortlandt Park parade ground, when the Brigade will be formed in column of regiments facing south. The men will be dismissed for dinner. Commanding officers will report to the Brigade Commander at the Van Cortlandt mansion.

By command of Louis Fitzgerald, Brigadier-General.

Instructions for the Offensive—"Eastern Force."

May 31, 1890.

Seventh, Twelfth, Twenty-second and Sixty-ninth, Regiments, First Battery, detachment of Troop "A," Colonel Cavanagh, Commanding; Lieutenant-Colonel Olin, Chief of Staff.

This force is marching westward along the roads from Woodlawn and Williamsbridge, and encounters the enemy occupying a strong position on the rocky hills behind Tibbett's brook and Van Cortlandt lake. Its object is to dislodge this force and carry the heights.

Seventh.

The Seventh and Sixty-ninth Regiments will detrain at Woodlawn station and move west along Grand avenue, throwing out an advanced guard of three companies from the Seventh Regiment. If it meets the enemy's pickets at the junction of Grand avenue and Jerome avenue, the advanced guard will deploy and attempt to drive in these pickets. If not strong enough for this purpose it will hold its ground until re-enforced by the rest of the Seventh Regiment. After driving in these pickets the Seventh Regiment will turn northward along Jerome avenue, form line to the left, and immediately deploy forward as skirmishers on the left of the Fifth Company (Tactics, § 332). The company reserves will be half companies, and the battalion reserves will consist of three companies (one company will be left on the aqueduct as a support to the battery and as a rear guard, which will post sentinels to keep vehicles from Mosholu avenue). The front of the line will be about 400 yards, giving an interval of about two yards between skirmishers. The distance of the company reserves will be about 100 yards, and of the battalion reserve 200 yards, in rear of the skirmishers. The regiment will advance in this formation down the slopes towards Mosholu avenue, the left of the line moving along Grand avenue. The skirmishers will not fire unless greatly annoyed by the fire of the enemy, but will move rapidly from one position of cover to another. On arriving at Mosholu avenue, under shelter of the thick growth of timber, the skirmish line will move by the right flank until its center is opposite the Mosholu bridge, being careful to keep the line under cover of the edge of the timber. Arrived opposite Mosholu bridge, the line will face to the left and open a vigorous fire on the enemy's position, and then advance rapidly across the open space in its front, halting under shelter of the timber between the railroad and Tibbett's The reserves will follow the skirmish line, taking advantage of any shelter and keeping their approximate dis-When the skirmish line reaches the tances. companies of the reserve will proceed at double time in column of platoons and force the passage of the Mosholu bridge. After passing the bridge the leading company will deploy as skirmishers on the left four, and the next company on the right four. The other company of the reserve will follow these in a similar manner, and deploy to the right. The two flank companies of the original skirmish line will then be assembled, pass the bridge in the same manner, and deploy to the right and left, thus bringing five companies into the skirmish line. The four remaining companies will then be assembled, pass the bridge and constitute the battalion reserve. The obstacle of Tibbett's brook being passed in this manner, the Seventh Regiment will gain ground slowly to the front, keeping up a vigorous fire upon the enemy's position, until the Sixty-ninth and Twenty-second Regiments have passed the causeway and formed on its left. It will then make a vigorous assault against the hill on the north of the Mosholu road.

Sixty-ninth.

The Sixty-ninth Regiment will march from Woodlawn, and on reaching Jerome avenue will deploy as skirmishers left front into line (Tactics, § 338), and advance with a front of about 300 vards in the same manner as the Seventh Regiment (but with battalion reserve of four companies), the right of the line moving along Grand avenue. After crossing the aqueduct and Mosholu avenue, it will move forward in the same formation until it approaches the further end of the woods. The line will then move by the right flank in rear of a stone wall on the edge of the timber, until its left or rear has passed the lane leading to the causeway. It will then face to the left, deliver a vigorous but well-aimed fire on the enemy's position (about 600 yards range), and under cover of this fire rush forward across the open space, and halt between the railroad track and the timber along the brook, the left of the line being opposite the causeway. Three companies of the reserve will then be sent forward to carry the causeway and make it practicable for infantry. This will be done under the direction of Major Perkins, Acting Engineer. As soon as the western side of the causeway is gained these three companies will deploy forward as skirmishers on the left four of each company. The next three companies will, in succession, cross the causeway at double time in column of fours left in front, and inclining to the right will deploy as skirmishers, the right flank of the last company joining the left flank of the Seventh Regiment. This line will assault the position on the hill just south of the Mosholu road. The four remaining companies will constitute the battalion reserve, and will follow the company reserves at a distance of 100 yards. The company reserves will consist of half companies, and the distance from the skirmish line will be 100 yards.

The advance will not take place until the Seventh and Twenty-second Regiments are in position.

Twenty-second.

The Twenty-second Regiment will march along the Gun Hill road from Williamsbridge station, with an advance guard of three companies. Should it meet the enemy's pickets at the junction of Jerome avenue it will drive them away and then move along Jerome avenue, with flankers to the left, to the junction of Mosholu avenue, thence along Mosholu avenue and down the lane to the causeway, taking its place in the rear of the Sixtv-The Twenty-second Regiment will act as reserve, and will not be brought into action until the Sixty-ninth Regiment is engaged in a struggle to gain possession of the causeway. When . the Sixty-ninth Regiment crosses the open space on the east of the railroad track, the Twenty-second Regiment will deploy as skirmishers by the right flank, behind the stone wall above spoken of; and from this position will keep up a vigorous fire on the enemy, over the heads of the Sixty-ninth Regiment, while the latter is clearing the causeway. As soon as the causeway is cleared and a portion of the Sixty-ninth Regiment has crossed it, the Twenty-second Regiment will rush across the open space in the same formation as above prescribed for the Sixty-ninth Regiment. Its skirmish line will halt between the railroad and the brook, and the reserve companies will first pass the causeway, followed in succession by the other companies. As each company emerges from the causeway it will deploy as skirmishers on the right four, the first company joining the left flank of the Sixty-ninth Regiment, and the other companies extending the line to the left. The battalion reserve will consist of four companies, and the company reserves of half companies, the front of the line covering about 200 yards. Distance between lines about seventy-five yards. The regiment will assault the more southerly portion of the hill south of the Mosholu road.

The ground between Tibbett's brook and the base of the hills is entirely open and affords only slight cover. The line of skirmishers will form rapidly and when the three regiments are in line advance rapidly, stopping to kneel and fire about every forty (40) yards, and then run forward again. Company officers will see that the men adjust their sights, take careful aim at the enemy, and do not fire recklessly. In the advance the line of company reserves will gain rapidly on the line of skirmishers, and while both lines are delayed in forcing their way under fire up the hills, the battalion reserves will forward at double time, so that when the final rush is made to carry the enemy's position the three lines will have merged into one which will fall upon the enemy and carry the position.

Twelfth.

The Twelfth Regiment will march from Williamsbridge station along the Gun Hill road, in rear of the Twenty-second, until the latter turns off along Jerome avenue. It will then continue its march along the Gun Hill road, throwing out an advance guard of three companies. On arriving at Van Cortlandt station it will force a passage of the bridge, driving in or, if possible, capturing the enemy's picket at that point. It will then form front into line, deploy as skirmishers with a battalion reserve of four companies and company reserves of half companies. It will advance towards the hill held by the enemy and on reaching the marsh, just south of the railroad track, will pass this obstacle, and thence under the railroad bridge, in the same manner as prescribed for the passage of the Mosholu bridge by the Seventh Regiment. skirmish line will be formed on the north side of the railroad track and will advance against the southern part of the hill, the right of its line joining the left of the Twenty-second Regiment, and the left of its line outflanking the enemy's right and taking him slightly in the rear. The connection with the Twenty-second Regiment will, however, be carefully maintained.

Battery.

Two pieces of artillery with supports, from the Seventh Regiment, will be moved along the aqueduct to the gate-house, about 700 yards north of Grand avenue, at which point they can take a a position infilading the road across the Mosholu bridge and facing any guns of the enemy posted to infilade this road. The distance from this gate-house, over the heads of the Seventh Regiment to the hills in possession of the enemy, is about 700 yards. These guns will throw shells to dislodge any out-post that may be posted at the bridge, and then silence any guns of the enemy posted to infilade this bridge. They will continue to fire against the enemy's line over the heads of the Seventh Regiment until that regiment has advanced so close to the enemy as to be endangered by further firing. Two guns will take position on the high ground above the aqueduct and fire on the enemy's right and center, especially endeavoring to silence his artillery. When the infantry attack approaches the crest of the hill the guns will cease firing, limber up and move out by the left flank until they reach Mosholu road, when they will follow this road until they rejoin their command. The artillery fire will be slow.

Troop "A."

Detachment with Eastern Force under Captain Roe. The main body of Troop "A" will precede the advance of the Twenty-second Regiment from Williamsbridge by the Gun Hill road to the junction of Jerome avenue. It will then precede the Twelfth Regiment and after crossing Tibbett's brook will cover the left flank of the advancing force. The cavalry will retire when in contact with the infantry of the Western Force, but at the crossing of Tibbett's brook, the Troop Commander may, if it seems advisable, dismount a portion of his men to aid in the attack on the bridge.

A smaller body of Troop "A" will form the advance of the column from Woodlawn, and will, after passing Jerome avenue, cover the right of the advancing force.

In case the hills are carried the regiments will be halted and reformed on the top, and the command will then be marched to the south in the direction of the Van Cortlandt mansion, and the commanding officers will report to the brigade commander for further instructions.

To avoid accident, care will be taken not to bring opposing forces nearer together than a distance of fifty yards.

By command of Louis Fitzgerald, Brigadier-General.

Instructions for the Defensive — "Western Force."

May 31, 1890.

Eighth, Ninth and Seventy-first Regiments, Second Battery, detachment of Troop "A," Colonel Scott, Commanding; Major Greene, Chief of Staff.

This force is posted to hold a line of hills behind Tibbett's brook and Van Cortlandt's lake against a force advancing from the east and south. Its outposts will watch the principal roads in these directions at a distance of about one mile in advance.

Ninth.

The Ninth and Seventy-first Regiments will detrain from New York and Northern railroad at Mosholu station, and march along Mosholu avenue to the point between the two hills. Two companies of the Ninth Regiment will remain at this point in reserve, and the remaining eight companies will deploy to the left and take position on the crest of the heights, facing east, its right about sixty yards from the road and its left resting on the broken country to the north, the entire front being about 500 yards. As the regiment can not cover this front in line, the different companies will be disposed in such manner behind rocks and other cover as to bring a cross-fire on every point of approach, and two companies being posted so as to enfilade the approaches to the Mosholu bridge.

Seventy-first.

The Seventy-first Regiment will leave two companies as a reserve, send three companies as an outpost on Mosholu avenue, and deploy the remaining five companies to the right, and take position on the crest of the heights, occupying a front of about 200 yards, its left about fifty yards from the road, and its right joining the Eighth Regiment. The outpost will march along Mosholu avenue and Grand avenue, and take post at the junction of Grand avenue and Jerome avenue. It will throw out pickets of ten men each to the north and south, about 200 yards on Jerome avenue, and a similar picket about 400 yards to the east on Grand avenue, where it can watch the valley on the north of Woodlawn cemetery. This latter picket will have the support of one company about 100 yards in its rear behind a stone wall on the north of the road.

These pickets will watch for the advance of the enemy, and as soon as he approaches will give the alarm by firing their pieces.

The main body of the outpost will then proceed at double time to the support of whichever picket gives the alarm, and will deploy on each side of the road behind stone walls or any other cover available, and will check the advance guard of the enemy as far as possible. When the main body of the enemy comes to the support of its advanced guard and arrives within 300 yards, the outpost will retire in good order, stopping at every favorable position to turn and fire on the enemy's advanced guard and check its advance as much as the strength of the outpost will permit. It will finally retreat by Mosholu avenue, and after crossing the bridge will deploy on either side along the creek and keep up a fire on the enemy as he advances across the open ground east of the creek. When overpowered by the superior strength of the enemy, or if shelled by the enemy's artillery. it will retire in double time along the Mosholu road and rejoin its regiment, taking such position in the line of defense as may be assigned to it.

Eighth.

The Eighth Regiment will detrain from the Hudson River railroad at Kingsbridge and march up Broadway to the Van Cortlandt mansion. It will detach one company to post a picket of ten men at each of the three lanes leading from Broadway into the parade ground, and a similar picket at Mosholu avenue and Broadway, with instructions to allow no carriages to pass from Broadway into the park. It will detach a rear guard of three companies at the mansion, with instructions to hold the bridge at Van Cortlandt station to the last minute, and to throw out a picket to or in advance of the aqueduct and Gun Hill road, with one company in support at Grand avenue and Gun Hill road. In case of attack by a superior force this outpost will rejoin its regiment in position in the line of defense on the hills. The remainder of the regiment will march across the parade ground, and five companies take position on the hill overlooking Van Cortlandt lake, their left joining the right of the Seventy-first Regiment, and the right being refused so as to face south and enfilade the road from the mansion. One company will be posted as skirmishers in the timber on the west side of the causeway. and will prevent this being repaired by a small body of the enemy. At the approach of a large force, it will retreat around the southern point of the hill, and rejoin its regiment.

Second Battery.

Two guns will be posted on the left of the line in the Ninth Regiment, so as to enfilade Mosholu bridge, and two guns on the right in the Eighth Regiment, so as to enfilade either the causeway across the lake or the road from the mansion, as may seem necessary when the enemy attacks.

The guns will fire slowly.

As the enemy's attack is developed, the four companies in reserve on the Mosholu road, in the hollow between the two hills, will be ordered to that part of the line where they are most needed. A sharp fire will be kept up upon the enemy's columns whenever they appear on open ground within 800 yards range, but ammunition will not be wasted by firing at the enemy when partly concealed by woods. The artillery will reserve its fire to enfilade the crossings of Tibbett's brook, unless it is attacked by the enemy's artillery, and in that event it will respond and endeavor to silence the enemy's guns. The position is one of great natural strength, being protected by water-courses which can be crossed only at three points on narrow causeways, and between these water-courses and the hills the ground is entirely open, and every point of it can be reached by the defender's fire. The position also affords excellent cover in the form of rocks, trees and stone walls. The principal fire will therefore be reserved until the enemy's heads of column appear at the causeways, when it will be delivered by company volleys, deliberate and well aimed. Should the enemy succeed in emerging from the causeways and form a skirmish line to assault the position, the firing will be "at will," but the company officers will exercise the utmost care to see that the men adjust the sights, fire slowly, and in every case with deliberate aim. Wasting of ammunition in reckless, rapid firing will not be permitted, and company commanders will be held responsible for this.

In case the enemy, by means of superior numbers, shall be able to force his way through this fire up the slopes, then the command will retire by the Mosholu road. The artillery will first be withdrawn, then the infantry from each flank; each regiment posting two companies to hold their position while the remaining companies pass in rear of them, and under shelter of the reverse slope of the hill, to Mosholu avenue; the rear guard of each regiment will then retire, and finally the center of the line will be withdrawn. Six companies of the Ninth Regiment will act as rear guard and will hold the enemy in check in case pursuit is attempted, by halting and firing upon the enemy's advance guard at every favorable position. The command will then march via Mosholu avenue and Broadway to the vicinity of the mansion, and the commanding officer will there report to the brigade commander for orders.

To avoid accident, care will be taken not to maintain a position attacked by forces who have approached nearer than fifty yards. By command of Louis Fitzgerald, Brigadier-General.

REPORT OF COLONEL JOHN T. CAMP, TWENTY-SECOND REGIMENT, COMMANDING "EASTERN FORCE."

HEADQUARTERS TWENTY-SECOND REGIMENT, N. G. S. N. Y., NEW YORK, June 24, 1890.

The Assistant Adjutant-General, N. G. S. N. Y.:

SIR.—I have the honor to report the movements of the "Eastern Force" under my command on the morning of May 31, 1890.

On arriving at Williamsbridge station at about 9.20 A. M., I was informed that Colonel Cavanagh was not present with his regiment. I thereupon rode to Woodlawn and assumed command of the "Eastern Force."

At 9.38 a staff officer, sent out with a detachment of Troop A to reconnoiter, reported the enemy to the eastward of Jerome avenue.

At 9.40 I ordered both columns of the Eastern Force to move, the Seventh and Sixty-ninth Regiments from Woodlawn, and the Twenty-second and Twelfth Regiments, First Battery and detachment of Troop A from Williamsbridge.

The advance guard of the Seventh met an outpost of the enemy on Central avenue and Jerome avenue, and after a brisk skirmish drove him across Jerome avenue.

On arriving at that point, the Seventh and Sixty-ninth Regiments deployed to the right and left of the road respectively and advanced, skirmishing with the enemy's outpost and under occasional fire from the Gatling guns on Vault hill.

As soon as the skirmish line passed the aqueduct two guns of the First Battery went into position near the gate-house and two guns on the high land above the aqueduct, and opened fire upon the enemy's artillery.

The advance guard of the Sixty-ninth Regiment drove away a force which was defending the causeway, and with fascines made the causeway practicable for infantry. They then advanced in skirmish order against Vault hill without awaiting the order to do so. Although I sent a staff officer to recall them, it was too late, and they became separated from the rest of their command.

As soon as the Seventh Regiment carried the Mosholu bridge, the main body of the Sixty-ninth crossed the causeway and deployed to the right, the Twenty-second deployed to the left where they joined the right of the Twelfth Regiment, which had marched by Van Cortlandt avenue and carried the bridge below the Van Cortlandt mansion after a sharp engagement with a force somewhat less than their own.

Troop A was dismounted and prolonged the skirmish line to the left.

Within a few minutes after the heads of columns crossed the bridge and the causeway, the entire command advanced in line up against the heights occupied by the enemy.

A sharp engagement took place on the western slopes of the hill where the retiring force was fired upon by the Twenty-second and Sixty-ninth Regiments from the crest, and by the Twelfth and Seventh Regiments, which pressed on and enveloped both flanks of the enemy.

I sent staff officers to check the firing on both wings, and I ordered the Sixty-ninth and Twenty-second Regiments to cease firing.

I then ordered the different commands forming part of the "Eastern Force," to march to the parade ground.

In conclusion I have the honor to say that in my opinion the field maneuvers so auspiciously begun in the First Brigade form a long stride in the right direction, and if continued will open an avenue of practical instruction to the National Guard, the importance of which can hardly be estimated.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant.

JOHN T. CAMP, Colonel Twenty-second Regiment. REPORT OF LIEUTENANT-COLONEL STEPHEN H. OLIN, ACTING CHIEF OF STAFF "EASTERN FORCE."

To the Commanding Officer of the First Brigade:

SIR.—I have the honor, as directed by you, to report concerning the field maneuvers of May thirty-first.

As to visits to Van Cortlandt park made with you and officers of the staff and as to other preliminary work I have already reported.

G. O. No. 3 was issued to commanding officers on the morning of May thirty-first; and at the same time each commanding officer was furnished with the instructions for the movements required of him, with maps of the ground and with sketch maps showing the position of his command.

On the morning of May thirty-first I assumed the duties of Chief of Staff of the "Eastern Force." The Seventh and Sixty-ninth Regiments reported to me at Woodlawn promptly and in good order. I informed Colonel Camp at Williamsbridge, by telegraph, of Colonel Cavanagh's absence, and he assumed command and came at once to Woodlawn.

The Twelfth and Twenty-second Regiments, the First Battery and Troop A reported their arrival at Williamsbridge by telegraph.

Prior to Colonel Camp's arrival at Williamsbridge I sent Major Perkins, with a small detachment from Troop A, to reconnoiter in the direction of Jerome avenue. At 9.40 A. M. he reported the enemy in sight, and Colonel Camp then directed a forward movement, the incidents of which are set forth in his report.

The movements of the "Eastern Force" were in substantial compliance with G. O. Nos. 2 and 3, and the instruction for field movements, so far as they came within my observation. The deployment and advance of the Seventh and Sixty-ninth Regiments were well directed and in compliance with orders until Tibbett's brook was reached. Having passed the causeway the skirmish line of the Sixty-ninth pressed on without waiting for the other troops of the command.

The Twenty-second Regiment, in moving from Williamsbridge, marched by Van Cortlandt avenue instead of the Gun Hill road. This led to a delay in the junction of the regiment with the right column and induced Colonel Camp to modify the general instructions and to let the regiment advance to the causeway in column instead of in the formation prescribed. As the enemy's line had, at this time, left the crest of Vault hill, this change did not infringe the order directing commanding officers to handle the men as if under actual fire.

The First Battery was kept close to the skirmish line, so that the guns might open fire at the earliest possible moment. This led to a brief exposure of the battery in column on Grand avenue to the fire of the Gatlings on Vault hill. The alternative would have required the destruction of several fences to enable the guns to go into battery without leaving the cover of the woods, and this alternative seemed unreasonable under the circumstances.

The general conduct of the troops was excellent. The fire was, during the first part of the movement, carefully directed.

Captain Gallup, with a detachment of the Signal Corps, established signal posts with promptness and rendered service in communication between the Twelfth Regiment and the remainder of the "Eastern Force."

Reports have been made by all the commanding officers and are herewith submitted to you.

I take the liberty of saying, that in my judgment the maneuvers were successful, and that it will be to the interest of the brigade that they shall be hereafter renewed, and that Van Cortlandt park affords an excellent opportunity for instruction in field movements, to which much variety can be given. In my opinion, the limitations of our drill ground require that the plan adopted this year shall be hereafter substantially followed. The tactical instructions being issued at the last moment, abundant opportunity can be afforded to commanding officers to exhibit their control of their men and their capacity to meet emergencies, although the park is not large enough to permit movements to be made in the uncontrolled discretion of the commanders of the forces engaged.

I have the honor to be, your obedient servant.

STEPHEN H. OLIN, Lieutenant-Colonel and A. A.-G. REPORT OF COLONEL DANIEL APPLETON, COMMANDING SEVENTH REGIMENT, "EASTERN FORCE."

HEADQUARTERS SEVENTH REGIMENT, N. G. S. N. Y., NEW YORK,, 1890.

The Assistant Adjutant-General, First Brigade, N. G. S. N. Y.:

SIR.—In compliance with paragraph V, G. O. No. 3, c. s., Headquarters First Brigade, N. G. S. N. Y., I have the honor to submit a report of the participation of this regiment in the operations at Van Cortlandt park on the thirty-first ultimo.

The regiment assembled at the armory at 6.45 A. M., in fatigue uniform (summer helmets), haversacks and canteens, and one day's rations, and was equalized in ten commands of twenty files front. The field, staff and non-commissioned staff and field music were present. Two non-commissioned officers and six privates were detailed from the Ambulance Corps to report to the surgeon. They were equipped with two stretchers, surgical knapsack and hospital stores, and during the subsequent operations were stationed with each wing of the battalion.

As ordered, the regiment proceeded via Third Avenue Elevated railroad and Harlem railroad to Woodlawn station, where it detrained and moved to a point about a quarter of a mile west on Grand avenue, reported to Lieutenant-Colonel Olin, Chief of Staff of the "Eastern Force."

Receiving instructions to attack, the regiment advanced west along Grand avenue, preceded at a distance of about 300 yards by an advance guard, consisting of Company C, First Lieutenant J. W. McDougall; Company I, Captain Harper, and Company A, Captain Conover—all under command of Major Kipp.

Just east of Jerome avenue the advance guard came upon the pickets of the opposing force, deployed and drove them west of Jerome avenue. The regiment following, turned north on Jerome avenue, formed line to the left, and the advance guard having assembled, deployed to the front with three companies constituting the battalion reserve; the left of the skirmish line resting on Grand avenue. The line was advanced to the aqueduct, where Company B, First Lieutenant Merritt, was detached and ordered to remain in support of the First Battery just coming into position. The line then advanced to Mosholu avenue, moved by the right flank until the center was opposite Mosholu bridge, and again moved to the front to the cover afforded by the timber west of the New York and Northern railroad track. Preparations were made to carry Mosholu bridge, which it was understood was to be strongly defended.

The battalion reserve, consisting of Company E, Captain Rhoads; Company F, Captain Rand, and Company G, Captain Abrams, under command of Lieutenant-Colonel Smith, was formed in column of platoons, and in double time advanced across the bridge, deploying to the right and left on the west side of Tibbett's brook. The passage of the reserve over the bridge was covered by a strong fire from the battalion skirmish line. No serious opposition was encountered at the bridge. The reserve having crossed, the flank companies on the skirmish line were assembled and crossed, deploying on the flanks of the companies which had preceded them. The remainder of the battalion was assembled, crossed the bridge in column of fours, and took position as a reserve to the companies then deployed.

The left flank of the skirmish line was extended until it joined the right flank of the Sixty-ninth Regiment. A general assault of the heights occupied by the opposing force was then ordered. The reserve companies, advancing to the summit by Mosholu avenue, discovered the enemy in force drawn up across the road. The leading company formed line to the front and delivered several volleys, with the result of driving the enemy back. The remaining companies of the reserve were successively brought to the front and fired volleys, gradually pressing the enemy back to the top of the heights, where a final stand was made in the woods to the left of the road. The reserve companies formed line along the fence and underbrush to the left of the road and delivered volleys, while the skirmishers closed in from the right and left At this point, the summit of the heights having been reached, the operations were suspended, the regiment assembled and marched over Vault hill to the Van Cortlandt parade ground Company B, returning from detached service, rejoined the regiment at the parade ground.

During the final assault, one officer and two enlisted men were injured by gun wads, owing to the failure of men of the opposing force to observe the instructions as to firing. In the case of one enlisted man (Private J. N. Taylor, of Company F), a painful and possible serious injury to the left eye was sustained.

In submitting this report, I feel that I would be remiss in my duty should I fail to notice the zeal with which all details were carried out by every officer and man in this command; and I particularly desire to commend those experienced officers, Lieutenant-Colonel Smith and Major Kipp. I also desire to acknowledge the courteous and efficient manner in which Captain Roosevelt, of the Brigade Staff, performed his important duties, and to express my appreciation of his valuable services.

I have the honor, sir, to be your obedient servant.

DANIEL APPLETON, Colonel Seventh Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y.

REPORT OF LIEUTENANT-COLONEL JAMES MORAN, COMMANDING SIXTY-NINTH REGIMENT, "EASTERN FORCE."

NEW YORK, June 5, 1890.

Assistant Adjutant-General, First Brigade, N. G. S. N. Y.:

SIR.—I have the honor to report that on the morning of May thirty-first, ult., I arrived at the armory of my regiment at 6 o'clock, A. M., and commenced preparations for the transportation of the Sixty-ninth Regiment to Woodlawn by issuing the following orders:

Headquarters Sixty-ninth Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y. New York, May 31, 1890.

I. Company commanders will make requisition for twenty rounds of blank cartridges to be carried in cartridge boxes. It is forbidden to load without orders from the company commanders, or the commanding officer. Any violation of this order will be treated with the instant arrest and court-martial of the offender.

II. At the command "fall in" all talking must cease, and each man will take his place promptly.

III. Straggling or falling out of ranks will not be allowed.

IV. The battalion will embark in the following order: It will halt in column of twos on a line parallel to the train and embark by the right of companies. Each company will enter rear entrance of car to be occupied. The command to embark will be given before entering. To disembark companies will fall in column of twos in car, head of column on rear entrance, and disembark by changing direction towards the engine and halting when last man leaves the car.

V. The car next engine will be reserved for officers and non-commissioned staff, in which they will report for instruction.

JAMES MORAN,

Lieutenant-Colonel Commanding.

Major Perkins of the brigade staff, arrived in the armory at 6.10 A. M., and furnished me with orders and maps.

At 7.25 musicians' call was sounded, at 7.30 the assembly, and two minutes afterwards the regimental line was formed, after which the orders for the day were published. At 7.35 the command to march was given, arriving at Harlem depot at 8.05 A. M. At 8.08 the regiment was safely embarked on special train provided. At 8.15 the train left Grand Central depot, arriving at Woodlawn station at 8.45.

During the trip the officers assembled in the front car and received valuable instruction and information from Major Perkins.

Reports from company commanders made the total present for duty, 242. The details for the day were: Officer of the day, Captain Luke C. Quinn; officer of the guard, Lieutenant Edward T. McCrystal, and one man from each company for guard duty.

The following officers reported for duty: Field, Lieutenant-Colonel James Moran, Major Edward Duffy; staff, Major Kelly, surgeon; Lieutenant James J. Ward, quartermaster; company officers, First Lieutenant John McCauley, Company A; Captain James Conlon, First Lieutenant Paul O. Leonard, Company B; Captain Denis C. McCarthy, Company C; First Lieutenant William Desmond, Company D; Captain Hugh Coleman, First Lieutenant J. E. O'Brien, Company E; Captain Thomas Mortimer, Lieutenant J. J. Scanlon, Company F; First Lieutenant William Hagan, Company G; First Lieutenant William McLoughlin, Company H; Captain Luke C. Quinn, Second Lieutenant James Healy, Company I; Captain John Kerr, First Lieutenant Thomas Kerr, and Second Lieutenant Edward McCrystal, Company K. First Lieutenant James Mahoney reported at 12 M. in park.

First Lieutenant Paul O. Leonard was detailed as Acting Adjutant. Train arrived at Woodlawn at 8.45. Regiment disembarked and took position in rear of Seventh regiment, on road leading to battlefield.

A study of the instructions to the Sixty-ninth Regiment, after detailing four companies as battalion reserve, showed me that I could not cover 300 yards with half the force remaining. I decided, "with the approval of the Commander of the Eastern Force," to deploy the whole at two yards interval. I was impelled to this decision by two considerations: Firstly, to give each soldier the benefit of the experience which the advance in skirmish order presented; and, secondly, the absence of officers and non-commissioned officers would make the detail with reserve commanders nearly impossible. The intervals in the line of advance were fairly kept. The men showed very good discipline but a lack of training for field movements as their eagerness to advance without assuming the stealthy gait of a trained skirmisher showed.

The reserve, commanded by Major Duffy, carried the causeway and built bridge under direction of Major Perkins. I noticed the reserves deploying when my main column was crossing the bridge, after which I deployed to the right to connect with the left flank of the Seventh Regiment. Shortly after the line commenced to advance I noticed a commotion on top of the hill and saw a soldier waving a guidon belonging to the Sixty-ninth. The command to cease firing was given and, on reaching the hill-top, I found the reserves received orders to fix bayonets and charge. In order to ascertain by what authority such order was given without my knowledge I forwarded, through regimental head-quarters, the following communication to Major Duffy:

NEW YORK, June 1, 1890.

Major EDWARD DUFFY,

Sixty-ninth Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y.:

SIR.—In order to complete my report of yesterday's operations I respectfully request that you forward me, through regimental headquarters, the name and rank of the officer who gave you orders, if any were given you, to cause the battalion reserves, then employed as skirmishers, to fix bayonets and rush on the position of the Seventy-first Regiment on a run.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant.

JAMES MORAN,

Lieutenant-Colonel.

And received the following reply:

NEW YORK, June 2, 1890.

Lieutenant-Colonel James Moran,

Sixty-ninth Regiment:

SIR.—In reply to your request of the first instant I desire to state that the reserves were detached from the regiment to carry out special instructions from Major Perkins. Any orders to execute the same were given by me.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant.

EDWARD DUFFY,

Major, Sixty-ninth Regiment.

After the battle I received orders to proceed to parade ground and report at brigade headquarters for instructions. In the absence of the Adjutant-General I reported personally to the brigade commander at 11.35 A. M., who directed me to stack arms and have line reformed at 1 o'clock P. M.

HEADQUARTERS FIRST BRIGADE, VAN CORTLANDT PARK, May 31, 1890.

GENERAL ORDERS

I. The brigade will form in line of masses for dress parade at 1.30 p. m., facing southward.

II. The field music will be consolidated.

III. After the parade the commands will return to their armories as directed.

By order of Brigadier-General Fitzgerald.

S. H. OLIN,

Lieutenant-Colonel and A. A.-G.

The above order was complied with, the regiment reaching Woodlawn station at 3.15 p.m., and took train at 4.30 p.m., and arrived at armory at 5.40 p.m., when the regiment was dismissed.

I consider the experience gained by the day's operations of incalculable value to officers and men. I am in favor of having at least three days in each year devoted to field operations and brigade drill.

I am not in favor of keeping the plan of operations concealed from commanding officers and their field officers until the date of execution. I am in favor of having at least three weeks of each drill season set apart for instruction in skirmishing and field operations, the same to be ordered by and under the supervision of the brigade commander.

I was pleased with the discipline and conduct of my command. Very respectfully, your obedient servant.

JAMES MORAN,

Lieutenant-Colonel, Sixty-ninth Regiment.

REPORT OF LIEUTENANT-COLONEL WILLIAM V. KING, COMMANDING TWENTY-SECOND REGIMENT, "EASTERN FORCE."

HEADQUARTERS TWENTY SECOND, REGIMENT, N. G. S. N. Y., NEW YORK, June 5, 1890.

The Assistant Adjutant-General, First Brigade, N. G. S. N. Y.:

SIR.—In compliance with General Orders No. 2, Headquarters First Brigade, this regiment assembled at its armory on Saturday, May thirty-first, ultimo, at 7.35 o'clock A. M., and marched to the Harlem railway station, Forty-second street and Vanderbilt avenue, reaching there at 8.31 o'clock A. M. The command was then conveyed by train to Williamsbridge, arriving at 9.18 o'clock A. M., where it awaited orders from Major Van Duzer to move forward, which it did at 9.45 A. M., via Gun Hill road to Jerome avenue, and thence to Mosholu avenue to the lane leading to the causeway, which we found cleared by the Sixty-ninth regiment, that regiment having deployed in skirmish line, and were then advancing upon the enemy at the time of our arrival.

By order of Colonel Camp, commanding the Eastern Force, the Twenty-second Regiment was immediately deployed as skirmishers by the right flank, and supported the Sixty-ninth Regiment in the advance upon the enemy, taking position upon the left of the Sixty-ninth.

By order of Colonel Camp the assembly was sounded, and I was ordered at 12.15 o'clock P. M., to withdraw my command from the position then held and assemble the battalion, following the Sixtyninth Regiment to Van Cortlandt park, where we took part in the brigade dress parade at 1.30 o'clock P. M., after which the command returned home via Harlem railroad, reaching its armory at about 4.45 o'clock P. M.

No casualties occurred in the command, and for the report of attendance attention is called to the official report which has been sent forward.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant.

WILLIAM V. KING.

Lieutenant-Colonel, Twenty-second Regiment.

REPORT OF COLONEL HEMAN DOWD, COMMANDING TWELFTH REGIMENT, "EASTERN FORCE."

Headquarters Twelfth Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., New York, June 10, 1890.

The Assistant Adjutant-General, First Brigade:

SIR—I have the honor to make the following report of the operations of this regiment in the field on May 31, 1890:

This command reached Williamsbridge at about 9.20 A. M., via the Harlem railroad from Forty-second street, New York, where I reported to Colonel Camp of the Twenty-second Regiment, and soon took up the line of march in rear of his command. When we reached Jerome avenue the Twenty-second Regiment turned off to the right, and I pushed on across the avenue in the direction of Van Cortlandt station, but soon found that through some error of the Twenty-second Regiment I had, in following their rear, been lead into the wrong road. I ascertained, however, that I could reach the station by the road I was following sooner than by retracing my steps, and for fear of being late pushed on, having detached two of my six companies as an advance guard under command of Major Leonard, with instructions to throw out men to the right and left as flankers, and to send a small detachment along the road some 300 yards in front of the advance guard.

On reaching a point near the old mill at the foot of Van Cortlandt lake, Major Leonard discovered a force about equal to his own posted on the northerly side of the bridge. He sent a small detachment under command of a sergeant to cross the brook at the dam and open fire on the rear and flank of the enemy. Assoon as Major Leonard saw his detachment about to cross the dam, he advanced and opened fire on the bridge; as the enemy fell back, the advance guard charged across the bridge, deploying after crossing and following the enemy toward the railway embankment. In the mean time, upon receiving word from Major Leonard of his discovery of the enemy at the bridge, I marched rapidly on, closing up on the advance guard and capturing a few prisoners of the Eighth Regiment, part of the force at the bridge which had been somewhat scattered by Major Leonard's command in its capture of their position.

When we reached the plain by the mansion, I deployed three of my companies to the east of the house, holding one company in reserve and the various company reserves, and advanced across the plain to the swamp near the railroad crossing. The first line of skirmishers under Major Leonard had meanwhile engaged the enemy which had taken up a position behind the railway embankment using it as a parapet, their fire being so hot and doing so much damage that Major Leonard decided that he must either charge under the railway crossing and take them in their rear or fall back on the main body, which were now close behind. decided to advance, which he did in column along the road in double time, passing under the railroad and deploying quickly on the north side of it, opened fire on the rear of the enemy, who quickly retired, making but a feeble defense. Major Leonard's command was closely followed by the main body of the regiment which had been assembled from the line of skirmishers, and moved in double time along the road and under the bridge, where both bodies of troops were deployed as skirmishers at the foot of Vault hill, my right extending to and joining the left of the Twenty-second Regiment, while a body of dismounted cavalry were formed on my left. We then moved up the hill, but much crowded by want of space, as the Twenty-second Regiment kept gaining ground to the left and their line finally lapped mine, passing in rear of it, and firing was kept up by them through the intervals in my line or over our heads, or in some cases right at us. During the march up the hill we gained ground to the left as far as possible, crowded on to the dismounted cavalry, who were finally doubled around facing up, when they opened fire on us; as soon as possible I sent word to Captain Roe, who stopped the firing. During the last part of the action we captured a few more prisoners, making ten in all.

At the close of the engagement, I marched my command to the neighborhood of the Van Cortlandt mansion and stacked arms.

I desire to call attention to the able way in which Major Leonard handled the advance guard, to the gallant charge of his command which resulted in the capture of the railway embankment near Vault hill.

We suffered no casualties of any moment, a few scratches being inflicted by wads.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant.

HEMAN DOWD,

Colonel Commanding, Twelfth Regiment.

REPORT OF CAPTAIN LOUIS WENDEL, COMMANDING FIRST BATTERY, "EASTERN FORCE."

FIRST BATTERY, FIRST BRIGADE, N. Y. S. N. Y., NEW YORK, June 3, 1890.

SIR.—I herewith have the honor to give the following report about my battery for May 30 and 31, 1890.

Pursuant to G. O. No. 2, Headquarters First Brigade, and instruction received from Captain Roosevelt, this battery left its quarters from the armory in West Forty-fourth street on Friday, May 30, 1890, at 3 o'clock P. M. It consisted of four guns, four caissons, one portable field stove, one forage wagon, fifty-two horses, five officers, five sergeants, five corporals and forty-seven enlisted men (privates). It proceeded by easy and slow marches to Jerome park, where the battery went into quarters for the night. Horses were very tired, but men were in good condition. Arrived at Jerome park at 7.30 o'clock P. M., where Lieutenant Schmidt, as officer of the guard, posted four sentries as soon as the cannoneer's were dismounted. These sentries were relieved every two (2) hours. Supper consisting of bean soup, beef stew, coffee and bread was served at 8 P. M., all men relishing the same. After supper, horses having cooled and rested, were watered and fed. Tattoo sounded at 9.30 o'clock P. M.; taps at 10 o'clock P. M. During the night everything was quiet and orderly. Reveille sounded at 5 o'clock A. M.; coffee and bread served ten minutes later; horses were groomed and breakfast was served to the men at 7 o'clock A. M.; after breakfast, horses were harnessed and saddled and hitched, and camp broke at 8 o'clock A. M. We marched to the road leading to Williamsbridge station, arriving at the station at 8.35 o'clock A. M. From there, after reporting. we marched to the position. Two (2) guns, under command of Second Lieutenant Theodore F. Schmidt to the gate-house road, and the other two guns under my personal command on the high ground above the road. Forage wagon and kitchen were left in the rear. The firing was executed as per orders, the officers and men acting and obeying, and with great credit to themselves. It was rather hot and heavy work, but no complaints of any kind were heard from the men. Horses suffered more than men. Four pieces fired 102 rounds. After firing, returned to Mosholu road, crossing Mosholu bridge and down Broadway into the parade ground. Here the horses were watered and fed and the men given their dinner, which consisted of beef stew. hot coffee and bread. The battery took part in the brigade dress parade, and fired three salvos in honor of the day. At the close of the parade the march for home was accomplished in the same manner as the march out on the previous day, the battery and men arriving at armory at 7.50 p. m. Horses as well as men were well tired out, but the men all feeling good, and anxious and also willing to go through the same again. In fact the men enjoyed the field day very well, and I am positive that the experience given to both officers and men was of great value.

I have the honor to be your most obedient servant.

LOUIS WENDEL,

Captain Commanding, First Battery.

To the Assistant Adjutant-General, First Brigade.

REPORT OF COLONEL GEORGE D. SCOTT, EIGHTH REGIMENT, COMMANDING "WESTERN FORCE."

Headquarters Eighth Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., New York, ——, 1890.

The Assistant Adjutant-General, First Brigade, N. G. S. N. Y.:

Sir. — In compliance with G. O. No. 3, c. s., Headquarters First Brigade, N. G. S. N. Y., I have the honor to submit the following report of the operations of the "Western Force," on May 31, 1890:

The Eighth Regiment was formed at the Armory at 7.45 A. M., under command of Lieutenant-Colonel Schilling, who will report the operations of the regiment. I accompanied the regiment via New York Central and Hudson River railroad to Kingsbridge station. and from there rode to the field. I arrived at Vault hill about 9.45 A. M., and assumed command of the "Western Force." Major Greene reported to me at that time as Acting Chief of Staff, and stated the Ninth and Seventy-first Regiments and the Second Battery were already posted in the position prescribed by the instructions. The Eighth Regiment took position about 10 A. M.

At that time the heads of column of the eastern or attacking force could be seen deploying to the right and left of Grand avenue, on the summit of a ridge about three-quarters of a mile to the east of us. While this deployment was being made careful shots were fired by sharpshooters in my command, and whenever the enemy's line was exposed in passing from one piece of woods to another, the two Gatling guns under Captain Wilson were used against them with good effect. But no general firing was ordered until the whole of the enemy's line approached the Mosholu creek, about 250 yards distant. The company of the Eighth Regiment defending the causeway was driven in by superior force about 11 A. M., and soon afterward the three companies of the same regiment, which had been left to defend the bridge near Van Cortlandt mansion, were similarly overpowered. These companies all retreated in good order and, on arrival at Vault hill, took position on the extreme right of the line facing south and southwest, the right being refused.

As soon as the enemy had gained possession of the causeway, a small portion of his force charged up the hill in face of a fire which would easily have annihilated them. In order to prevent accidents, the Eighth and Seventy-first Regiments were directed to retire, which they did for a short distance, when noticing the small size of the attacking force, these regiments turned with a cheer and drove this force back over the crest. Shortly afterward, however, the attack was renewed with a larger force from the east at the same time that a similar attack was made from the south. I, therefore, ordered a retreat to the Mosholu road, and directed Major Greene to cause the withdrawal of the Ninth Regiment from the left of the line. The retreat was made in good order down the reverse slope of the hill, but on arriving at the base the road was found to be in possession of the Seventh Regiment which, largely outnumbered the Ninth, had turned the right flank of the latter and driven them south of the road and towards the railroad until their retreat was stopped by a barbed-wire fence which the troops could not break. Seventy-first Regiment and the Second Battery had already made their retreat by the Mosholu road, but the retreat of the Eighth and Ninth Regiments was cut off in the manner above stated. sharp encounter at arm's length, in which a few casualties were inflicted by gun wads, took place at this time, the Eighth and Ninth Regiments being hemmed by largely superior numbers on the north, east and south, while their retreat to the west was cut off by the stout barbed wire fence above mentioned. siderable effort, in which I was assisted by the officers commanding the attacking force, I succeeded in causing the firing to cease. The Eighth and Ninth Regiments then resumed their retreat by the Mosholu road, joined the rest of the "Western Force" at Broadway, and marched in good order to the park. Arms were then stacked and the men given a rest and dinner.

In the afternoon the Eighth Regiment took part in the dress parade of the brigade, and after its conclusion returned via Kingsbridge and the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad to its armory.

In conclusion, I beg leave to express my opinion of the great importance and value of field exercises such as those of the thirty-first of May, in completing the training of the National Guard.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant.

GEORGE D. SCOTT,

Colonel Eighth Regiment, Commanding Western Force.

REPORT OF MAJOR F. V. GREENE, ACTING CHIEF OF STAFF, "WESTERN FORCE."

No. 1 Broadway, New York, July 8, 1890.

Lieutenant-Colonel S. H. Olin, Assistant Adjutant-General, First Brigade, N. G. S. N. Y.

Sir.—I have the honor to submit the following report concerning the field exercises at Van Cortlandt park on May 31, 1890:

During the month of May I made several visits to Van Cortlandt park, sometimes in company with yourself and sometimes alone, for the purpose of thoroughly studying the topography. I procured from the department of public parks a map showing the results of their surveys of 1873, and added to the portion of this map referring to Van Cortlandt park and vicinity, such data as was necessary to bring it down to date, and this map was then lithographed for the use of the brigade. It shows very accurately the railroads, common roads, water-courses and contour of the country. Unfortunately it does not show the woods, and these could not be put on the map without an additional survey at large expense. After examining the ground, and in compliance with the instructions from the brigade commander, I submitted a project for the field exercises which, after correction by you, was incorporated into the "instructions for the offensive" and "instructions for the defensive," dated May thirty-first. Small sketch maps were drawn up to accompany these instructions showing the position and route of each regiment and battery, and blue prints were made of these sketches for the use of commanding officers.

My duties on May thirty-first were to act as Chief of Staff to Colonel Scott, commanding the Western Force, as prescribed in General Orders No. 3 of May thirty-first. I arrived at the junction of Mosholu avenue and Broadway at 8.45 A. M., and found the Second Battery, Captain Wilson, already on the ground. Captain Wilson reported promptly to me at 9 A. M., as required by his instructions. The Seventy-first Regiment, Colonel Kopper commanding, arrived on the ground from Mosholu station about 9.10 A. M., and the Ninth Regiment, Colonel Seward commanding, arrived about fifteen minutes later. In the absence of Colonel Scott I superintended the placing of these regiments and of the Second Battery in position. The regiments and battery were posted as prescribed in the instructions for the defensive. The ground to the north of Mosholu road was covered with a dense underbrush, and it was necessary to cut a road for the Gatling guns and to move them by hand into position. The ground on the south of the Mosholu road was more open and the troops were posted without difficulty. The Eighth Regiment, Lieutenant-Colonel Schilling commanding, arrived about 9.45, after leaving a detachment of three companies near the Van Cortlandt mansion and one company at the causeway. The balance of the regiment was posted on the right of the Seventy-first, its right flank being refused and facing south. Colonel Scott arrived with the Eighth Regiment and took command of the Western Force.

The exercises were carried out in the manner prescribed in the instructions, with a few exceptions, which will be hereafter noted. The strength of the regiments on the defense was so small that the defensive line was very thin. The total force of the three infantry regiments was only men, occupying a line about 800 yards long. The firing of the men at first was very careful and deliberate, and the sights were carefully adjusted; but after the attacking regiments crossed Tibbett's brook and Van Cortlandt lake the firing was comparatively reckless. The two Gatling guns on the right of the line were very well served, and used all their ammunition, but without wasting any of it. The two on the left of the line were unable to do as much execution, owing to the broken and wooded nature of the country. A detachment of the Sixty-ninth Infantry charged up the hill entirely without supports, in the face of a fire that would have annihilated them. order to prevent actual collision, the right of the Seventy-first Regiment was withdrawn in the face of this detachment; but after retreating a short distance, the regiment turned and drove back this detachment of the Sixty-nixth a short distance down the hill. About this time the Twelfth and Twenty-second Regiments began assaulting the defensive position on the southeast and south, and orders were therefore given to withdraw the entire force, which was done in good order. Word was also sent to Colonel Seward to withdraw the Ninth Regiment, and this order was complied with, and the regiment was formed in the Mosholu road. arriving there a few minutes later, I learned from Colonel Seward that his regiment had not been seriously attacked, and on riding forward I discovered several companies of the attacking force drawn up in column of platoons on the Mosholu road. requested Colonel Seward to face his regiment_about, and not to retreat until compelled to do so by the force just mentioned. very brisk and well-contested skirmish thus took place along the Mosholu road between the Seventh and Ninth Regiments, firing by platoons in volleys. The Ninth Regiment was gradually being forced back when the skirmish line of the Seventh Regiment came in upon its left flank and rear. It was thus evident that owing to the premature action of the Sixty-ninth Regiment the defensive force had been withdrawn too soon, and that the skirmish line of the Seventh had arrived on the position of the Ninth without finding any enemy, and had then swept forward inclining to the left and thus taking the Ninth Regiment in flank and rear. The Ninth Regiment formed front faced to the left in very good fashion to meet this new attack, in connection with the Eighth Regiment. The Seventy-first Regiment and the battery had already retreated along the Mosholu road. A very sharp hand-to-hand fight ensued, lasting fifteen or twenty minutes. the noise being so great that the officers could not make their commands heard to cease firing. Several of the men on opposing sides fired at each other at arm's length, and a few men were burned with powder and wads. The Ninth and Eighth Regiments gradually retreated before the Seventh, which far outnumbered them both, until they were stopped by a very stout barbed-wire fence along the line of the railroad track. The men endeavored to break this down with the butts of their muskets, but were unable to do so, and, as it was impossible to pass this fence, all retreat was cut off. Meanwhile the Sixty-ninth and Twelfth Regiments followed the Eighth in its retreat and kept up a sharp fire on the right flank, while the Seventh Regiment continued its fire on the front and left flank. Hemmed in in this manner, the Eighth and Ninth Regiments might properly be considered as having been taken prisoners. Finally the officers succeeded in making their commands heard, and the firing ceased; whereupon the Eighth and Ninth Regiments were reformed and continued their retreat along the Mosholu road, joining the Seventy-first Regiment and the Second Battéry at the intersection of Broadway. The entire command was then slowly moved along Broadway and into Van Cortlandt park, where arms were stacked and the men given an hour for dinner. After this the brigade dress parade was held under the orders of the Brigade Commander.

The sharpest part of the fight was the portion just described on the Mosholu road, which was not on the programme at all, but the disposition taken to meet the unexpected turn of affairs was entirely proper, and I think this experience was full of valuable instruction to the men. There was a certain lack of discipline, which can only be corrected by constant practice in such exercises, and it is probable that the officers would have a better control of the men if bugles or whistles were used in place of verbal commands to cease firing.

I venture to suggest that, as the object of all drill is to accustom men to perform certain prescribed movements from the mere force of habit, even in the presence of danger, so the object of these exercises should be to drill the regiments in skirmish drill and in formations for attack and defense, and to make them thoroughly familiar with such drills and such formations, so that the situation would not be novel in case the regiments should ever be actually engaged. The principal test of the efficiency of the men in these drills, is the control which the officers have over the skirmish lines. This can only be secured by constant practice: and in any future exercises of this kind, it would be well to have umpires at different parts of the line to stop regiments or detachments from doing things which would be suicidal in actual battle. The skirmish line should also be halted during the advance, moved by the flank, and in retreat the skirmish line should be relieved by the reserves and itself be assembled as reserve and finally for practice in the control of the men, the instructions should prescribe a defeat for the attacking force. An unsuccessful assault would test the discipline very thoroughly and would be excellent instruction for both officers and men.

In spite of the mistakes which were committed in these exercises (as mistakes are committed in every battle). I can not but think that the experience of the day was of the utmost value in giving the men some practical ideas of marching, of outposts, of skirmishing and of formations for attack and defense. All of the experience was of a character which can not be acquired in the armories, in street parades, or in the State Camp; yet all of it is as essential to military training as the book drill, the camp routine, or target practice. Van Cortlandt park, with its large area, easy accessibility by rail, diversified surface and absence of crops or farm improvements, which would be injured by such exercises, offers facilities for such exercises which, it is believed, are not possessed by any other body in the National Guard or in the regular service; and I submit for the consideration of the Brigade Commander the advisability of continuing the field exercises, so successfully inaugurated, at least on one day of every spring and autumn.

I have the honor to be, sir, very respectfully,
Your obedient servant.

Major and Engineer.

REPORT OF LIEUTENANT-COLONEL F. A. SCHILLING, COMMANDING EIGHTH REGIMENT, "WESTERN FORCE."

Headquarters Eighth Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., New York, June 4th, 1890.

To the Commanding Officer, First Brigade, N. G. S. N. Y.:

Sir.—In compliance with General Orders No. 2, c. s., Headquarters First Brigade, dated May twenty-eighth, this command assembled at the armory on Saturday morning, May thirty-first, at 7.45 o'clock. After distribution of ammunition, the command was formed, and left the armory about 8.30 o'clock; arrived Eighty-sixth street station of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad at 8.45 o'clock. After a delay of a few minutes, owing to the non-arrival of the train, embarked on the cars and arrived at Kingsbridge station about 9.25 A. M., then took up the march, via Broadway, to and through the lane to the Van Cortlandt mansion. At the corner of Broadway and the lane, detached Company B, Captain Young, with instructions to put a picket of ten men at each of the three lanes leading from Broadway to the parade-ground, and not to allow any carriages to pass into the park. On arrival at the Van Cortlandt mansion, detached Companies E, Captain Oothout; D, Lieutenant Heilner, and C, Lieutenant Cammann, as a rear guard, under the charge of Major Chauncey, with instructions to hold the bridge at Van Cortlandt station to the last minute; also to throw out a picket in advance of the aqueduct and Gun Hill road, with one company in support at Grand avenue and Gun Hill road; and, in case of an attack by a superior force, to make a show of resistance and then retire and rejoin the regiment in the line of defense on the hills. The remainder of my command, consisting of Companies F, Captain Neftel; G, Captain Oates; H, Captain Cunningham, and I, Captain Dewar, took position on the hill overlooking Van Cortlandt lake, facing south, the left of my command joining the right of the Seventy-first Regiment, and then reported to Colonel Scott, commanding the brigade. I then ordered Captain Oates, Company G, to deploy his command as skirmishers at the foot of the hill, about 300 yards in advance of the line of defense, and covering the front and right flank of the regiment, with instructions to hold the position as long as possible, and when too hard pressed to fall back on the main body. About 10.30 A. M., the skirmish line was attacked by the Sixty-ninth Regiment in force, and Captain Oates withdrew his line slowly and in good order, and continued the firing in retreat until he found the main body, rallied his company and took position on the right of the regiment. As soon as uncovered by the skirmishers, the enemy being within 500 yards, the regiment commenced firing, which was kept up until the attacking force was within fifty yards of my position. Then the battery, which was stationed on my left, having retreated, I withdrew my right wing and then fell back over the brow of the hill to within 250 feet of the tracks of the New York and Northern railroad, when I was rejoined by the companies previously detached under Major Chauncey, who had been attacked by the Twelfth Regiment in force at the Van Cortlandt bridge and Gun Hill road, and forced back on the main body. I then, by order of Colonel Scott, commanding the brigade, took up the line of march to the parade ground via Mosholu avenue to Broadway, through the lane, and took position on the parade ground south of the Van Cortlandt mansion, arriving there about 12 o'clock, noon, then dismissed my command for dinner. Was joined on Broadway by Company B, Captain Young, who had been detached as previously stated.

In accordance with General Orders No. 4, c. s., Headquarters First Brigade, assembled and took part in brigade dress parade, at the conclusion of which we immediately took up the line of march to Kingsbridge station, over the same route we had taken in the morning, when we embarked on a train of the New York Central and Hudson River railroad, and proceeded to our armory, arriving there at 4.45 o'clock P. M. I have no cases of sickness to report, and but one accident, and that a member of Company F, who fell on the track as we got off the train in the morning, and was sent home in an ambulance. Nine of our men were taken prisoners by the Twelfth Regiment at the outpost, and reported back to us under charge of an officer of the Twelfth Regiment on the parade ground.

I desire to express my thanks for the courtesy and assistance rendered me in the discharge of my duties by Major Montant.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant.

F. A. SCHILLING.

Lieutenant-Colonel Commanding, Eighth Regiment.

REPORT OF COLONEL WILLIAM SEWARD, JR., COMMANDING NINTH REGIMENT, "WESTERN FORCE."

Headquarters Ninth Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., New York, June 11, 1890.

The Assistant Adjutant-General, First Brigade, N. G. S. N. Y.:

Sir.—I have the honor, in compliance with paragraph V, G. O. No. 3, c. s., Headquarters First Brigade, N. G. S. N. Y., to make report of the operations and movements of the Ninth Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., ordered in G. O. Nos. 2 and 3, c. s., Headquarters First Brigade, on the occasion of field exercises on Saturday, May 31, 1890, at Van Cortlandt park.

G. O. No. 2, c. s., Brigade Headquarters, dated May twenty-eighth, were received late on that day. Orders No. 40, c. s., Regimental Headquarters, were issued May 29, 1890.

The regiment assembled at 7 o'clock A. M., at its armory, No. 221 West Twenty-sixth street, New York city, May 31, 1890, and proceeded, as ordered, to the Ninth Avenue Elevated railroad station at Thirty-fourth street, arriving there by way of Twenty-sixth street and Ninth avenue at 7.50 A. M.

Major McKim, of the brigade staff, arrived early at the armory and delivered full printed instructions of the movements of the day, with complete maps of the country of operations. He accompanied the regiment and remained with it during its entire tour. He was most attentive and considerate in the performance of his duties, for which the commanding officer desires to express his appreciation.

Train was taken at Ninth avenue and Thirty-fourth street to One Hundred and Fifty-fifth street, and there the regiment transferred, together with the Seventy-first Regiment, and boarded train on the New York and Northern railroad, and proceeded thence to Mosholu station, north of Van Cortlandt, where the regiment arrived at 8.45 A. M.

'On embarking at Mosholu station, the regiment was at once equalized and the battalion formed in seven commands of twelve files front.

The regiment was at once marched along Mosholu avenue to the point between the two hills. Two companies, F and D. were posted at this point to act as a reserve, and the remaining five companies were deployed to the left and took position on the crest of the heights, facing east, its right about sixty yards from the road and its left resting on the broken country to the north, the entire front being about 500 yards. As the number present were fewer than was expected, the companies were disposed, without covering the entire front, behind rocks and trees so as to bring a cross-fire on every point of approach. Two companies under the direction of Lieutenant-Colonel Rand were posted so as to enfilade the approaches to Mosholu bridge, where it was expected the attacking or Eastern Force would make its passage.

Two guns of the Second Battery, Lieutenant Pasco commanding, were posted on the left of the line so as also to enfilade Mosholu bridge. The commanding officer wishes to express his admiration of the manner in which the members of the Second Battery under Lieutenant Pasco carried the guns over the rugged and hilly country and placed them in position.

The Seventh Regiment was the attacking force which the Ninth opposed. The direction of the attack was along Mosholu avenue over Mosholu bridge, where a passage was made in solid platoon fronts, notwithstanding the guns of the Second Battery and the fire of the two companies of the Ninth Regiment, under Lieutenant-Colonel Rand, were enfilleding the bridge.

As the enemy's attack was developed, the companies in reserve on the Mosholu road were ordered to the front and assisted in repelling the advance up the Mosholu road. A sharp fire was kept up by the guns of the Second Battery and the Ninth Regiment. As the enemy emerged from Mosholu bridge and formed a skirmish line and were making headway upon our position, their force being much superior in numbers, the artillery was withdrawn to the Mosholu road. Being unable to check the advance, the Ninth Regiment was also withdrawn to the Mosholu road, where it was found that the enemy had made a halt. The Ninth was marched back eastward to the Mosholu road and held the enemy temporarily in check. The regiment retired slowly upon the railroad to the west. A stand was made again in the woods south of the Mosholu road, where a sharp fire was kept up, the two forces fighting almost hand to hand. The attacking force decided to rest from the assault and moved south to the Van Cortlandt mansion.

The Ninth Regiment was then reformed and marched by the Mosholu road and Broadway to the Van Cortlandt mansion, where, under the shade of the trees, a halt was made for dinner.

At 1.30 P. M. the regiment assembled and took part in the brigage dress parade, after which the regiment marched north up Broadway to Mosholu road, where a halt was made and a rest taken for an hour while waiting for a train. Train was taken at Mosholu station at 4 P. M., and the regiment proceeded by the same route to its armory, where it arrived at 5 P. M.

The regiment performed its duty without a casualty or a breach of duty of any kind. No man was sick or affected by the heat or injured.

The tour was beneficial to the command, of great interest to the men, adding much to their military enthusiasm and content for the service.

I am sir, with great respect, your obedient servant.

WILLIAM SEWARD, JR., Colonel Commanding, Ninth Regiment.

REPORT OF COLONEL FREDERICK KOPPER, COMMANDING SEVENTY-FIRST REGIMENT, "WESTERN FORCE."

Headquarters Seventy-first Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., New York, September 18, 1890.

The Assistant Adjutant-General, First Brigade, N. G. S. N. Y.:

SIR.—In compliance with paragraph V, G. O. No. 3, Brigade Headquarters, dated May 31, 1890, I have the honor to report that, in accordance with instructions contained in G. O. Nos. 2 and 3 (Brigade Headquarters, May 28 and 31, 1890), this regiment assembled at its armory, in fatigue uniform, with cooked rations, at 7 o'clock in the morning of May thirty-first for field exercises at Van Cortlandt park.

General Order No. 3, with maps of the country to be occupied, and special instructions were delivered to the regimental commandant by Major Goodwin, of the staff of the brigade commander, on the departure of the regiment from the armory.

Transported by train from Sixth avenue and Forty-second street at 8 o'clock A. M. to Mosholu station on the New York and Northern railroad, the regiment joining the "Western Force" to which it had been assigned for duty, with the Eighth and Ninth Regiments of Infantry, the Second Battery of Artillery and a detachment of Troop "A," all under command of Colonel George D. Scott, to whom I reported.

All pieces were inspected and ammunition examined, twenty rounds being issued to each man.

Two companies were advanced on the road leading into the enemy's country, an outpost established and pickets thrown out, the entire detachment under command of Lieutenant-Colonel Dennison.

One company was left near the railroad as a reserve.

The balance of the regiment occupied a bluff on the south of the Mosholu road, with the Ninth Regiment on its left and the Second Battery and Eighth Regiment on its right.

The enemy advanced in force from the east along the main road, driving in our pickets.

A stand was made at the bridge, which was vigorously defended by the detachment at the outpost, against a spirited attack of the Seventh Regiment.

This small force maintained its position well in the face of vastly superior numbers until, by direction of Colonel Scott, I ordered it to retire on the main body, deployed as skirmishers, thus checking the advance of the opposing forces until the reserves were brought up and the position on the bluff strengthened.

The retreat of the advance guard was well covered by the fire of the Second Battery (Captain Wilson), whose well directed and rapid fire was very effective.

In the meantime, the Sixty-ninth Regiment, which appeared to be on the left of the opposing forces, and thus on our right, was discovered advancing under cover of a small copse, apparently with the object of turning our right flank.

The Eighth Regiment having been withdrawn towards the road I formed line of battle a little to the south of my original position and drove the Sixty-ninth Regiment down the hill three times.

I was then ordered by Colonel Scott to retreat to the road.

Being pressed by the Sixty-ninth Regiment I again formed line with the right wing to cover the retreat of the left, and then withdrew the right wing, forming line on Mosholu avenue with the entire regiment, first making a feint of resistance with the left to enable the right to reach the road.

Having formed the regiment in column of companies for the return march in retreat, in compliance with orders from Colonel Scott, we were attacked from the opposite side of the road by the Seventh Regiment.

Our ammunition running low, I could make no formidable resistance, and deployed two companies as skirmishers to engage the attacking forces while the balance of the regiment was withdrawn to Broadway, and joined the main column of the Western Forces.

The two companies left as rear guard soon reported. Arriving on the parade ground, the regiment was dismissed for dinner.

The troops were again assembled, and a brigade dress parade held, with the Brigade Commander in command, after which the regiment returned to New York by New York and Northern railroad from Van Cortlandt station to Forty-second street, arriving at the armory about 6 o'clock P. M.

I desire to express my appreciation of the courtesy and assistance of the members of the staff of the Brigade Commander, and of the benefits I derived from the ripe experience of Major F. V. Greene, whose advice was doubly acceptable from its value and the manner of its bestowal.

I also wish to make particular and grateful acknowledgment of the very great aid rendered by Major Goodwin, to whose untiring efforts, patience and promptness the regiment is indebted for the comfort with which it was enabled to perform its duty.

A very noticeable feature of the day's maneuvers was the horsemanship of members of Troop "A," acting as bearers of orders, and the alacrity and precision with which they performed their duties.

I have the honor to remain, very respectfully.

FREDERICK KOPPER,

Colonel.

REPORT OF CAPTAIN DAVID WILSON, COMMANDING SECOND BATTERY, "WESTERN FORCE."

SECOND BATTERY, FIRST BRIGADE, N. G. S. N. Y. NEW YORK, June 4, 1890.

The Assistant Adjutant-General, First Brigade, N. G. S. N. Y.:

SIR.—In compliance with G. O. No. 3, c. s., Headquarters First Brigade, I have the honor to report the movements of this battery in connection with the field exercises of the brigade at Van Cortlandt park May thirty-first.

After the parade on the thirtieth, the battery remained on duty (with the exception of the second lieutenant and thirty-one enlisted men, who were excused). The command consisted of three commissioned officers and forty-six enlisted men, with four Gatling guns, one battery wagon and fifty-six horses. Men and horses were fed at the armory, after which, at 2.40 p. m., the march was taken up for Jerome park.

The route of march was Broadway and Fifty-ninth street, Fifth avenue, St. Nicholas avenue, Seventh avenue and Jerome avenue, arriving at 5.25 P. M. The battery was parked, horses fed and stabled, park and stable guards established and the men fed, excellent arrangements for subsisting the men having been provided in the battery wagon, "lights out" at 10 P. M. Gave the men needed rest to "revielle" at 4.45 A. M. on the thirty-first. Stables followed, horses and men fed. Left Camp "Fitzgerald," named in honor of our brigade commander, at 8 A. M., arriving at the prescribed rendezvous, Broadway and Mosholu avenue, Van Cortlandt park, and reported promptly at 9 A. M. to Major F. V. Greene. Were instructed to proceed along Mosholu avenue to a shady place, where the battery halted. I proceeded with Major Greene to locate the point of defense where the battery was to be posted. An orderly was detailed to Major Greene, who was afterwards relieved as soon as the detachment of Troop "A" arrived.

I resumed command of the battery, and as soon as the infantry had passed us, I detailed Lieutenant G. E. Pasco with two guns to take position on the left of the Ninth Regiment, posted so as to enfilade the Mosholu bridge.

The position occupied by the guns was excellent, and good and efficient work was the result; but owing to the Gatlings becoming clogged the pieces were withdrawn.

The other two guns I commanded myself, assisted by Lieutenant Farquahar; they were posted on the right of the Eighth Regiment, so as to enfilade the causeway across the lake or the road from the mansion. As the enemy's attack was developed, the raking fire of the Gatlings threw consternation into the ranks of the attacking party.

As soon as the enemy's artillery was located, a sharp concentrated fire was kept up, the position of the pieces being changed so as to more effectually silence them. The two guns in this position working remarkably well. The ammunition having been expended, the pieces were withdrawn and the battery reunited on the Mosholu road.

To locate the guns in the positions designated was not an easy matter. Axes were used in felling trees, fences pulled down, and cannoneers' duties were laborious in the extreme. Orders were cheerfully obeyed, the men working with alacrity. There were no casualties to report. When the labors of the morning were ended, the battery formed in rear of the troops and marched to a location near the mansion house where the horses and men were fed. Here Sergeant J. C. Brady succumbed to the heat, but was promptly cared for by the Brigade Ambulance Corps. He reported for duty a few hours later.

The battery participated in the brigade dress parade, after dismissal. A short rest followed. The homeward march was taken up at 3 P. M., and arrived at the armory at 6.30 P. M., horses and men in good condition.

The officers and men of my command, who were present for duty, I commend for their devotion, patience and soldierly bearing. The service was a pleasure, and rich experience and beneficial results must follow.

My thanks are due to Dr. Ramon Guiteras (although not yet commissioned), who was present with the battery and attended to his important duty with celerity.

Personally, I am indebted to the Commanding General and staff for many courtesies extended.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant.

DAVID WILSON, Captain. REPORT OF CAPTAIN CHARLES F. ROE, COMMANDING TROOP A, "WESTERN FORCE."

TROOP A, 130 W. FIFTY-SIXTH STREET, NEW YORK, June 2d, 1890.

Assistant Adjutant-General, First Brigade, N. G. S. N. Y .:

SIR.—In compliance with G. O. 3, c. s., Headquarters First Brigade, No. 6 Pine street, New York, I have the honor to submit the following report of duty performed May 31, 1890. The troop left Fifty-sixth street at 6.30 a. m., marched, via Fifth avenue, Seventh avenue and Jerome or Central avenue, to Williamsbridge, arriving on time (9 a. m.). While en route, detachments were sent as follows: Sergeant Badgley and nine privates to report to Major Greene at Mosholu avenue and Broadway; Corporal Williams and nine privates to report to Lieutenant-Colonel Olin at Woodlawn station; Corporal Goff and nine privates, with the brigade flag, to report to the Brigade Commander, General Fitzgerald, at Van Cortlandt station. These detachments all reported on time. They were instructed to obey willingly and cheerfully, and to do whatever they were called upon. I have been informed that they performed their part well.

The troop, about forty strong, remained at Williamsbridge until the arrival of the infantry at 9.40 a. m., when the order for the advance was given. I sent forward an advance guard of a sergeant and four privates by the Gun Hill road, following with the troop; crossed Jerome avenue and halted about half a mile beyond. The advance guard reported three soldiers in front. immediately sent a courier to inform the Twenty-second and Twelfth Regiments of the supposed picket of the enemy. The courier returned and reported no troops whatever on the Gun Hill road except ourselves. The three men supposed to be a picket advanced, and were found to belong to the Twenty-second Regiment, coming from Van Cortlandt station to look for their regiment. I rode back to Jerome avenue and found that both the Twenty-second and Twelfth had taken a road to the left, called Van Cortlandt avenue. I sent a courier to both regiments to inform them of their error. The Twenty-second turned to the north on Jerome avenue, and when they passed me at the crossing of the Gun Hill road I told them of their position to the left of the First Battery. The Twelfth Regiment kept on their march, via Van Cortlandt avenue, to Van Cortlandt station. I proceeded with troop, via Gun Hill road, very slowly, so as not to get in the way of the Twelfth, and neither pickets or scouts of the enemy were found on that road at any time. I arrived at Van Cortlandt station bridge shortly after the Twelfth had crossed it, proceeded to the foot of the hill held by the enemy, dismounted the troop to fight on foot, formed a skirmish line joining on to the left of the Twelfth Regiment, worked around through the rocks and trees till we got a position on the left flank of the enemy, forcing the Eighth Regiment (I believe) back, and engaged the enemy. The position gained was an excellent one, and undoubtedly good work would have been done at that point by the troop skirmish line if it had been business. The line was withdrawn when the conflict ceased.

The troop took part in the brigade parade, and marched back to Dickel's, about fourteen miles, in three hours, arriving at 5.10 P. M., men and horses in good condition.

The strength of the troop present for duty was seventy.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant.

CHARLES F. ROE,

Captain Commanding.

REPORT OF CAPTAIN A. GALLUP, COMMANDING SIGNAL AND TELEGRAPH CORPS.

SIGNAL AND TELEGRAPH CORPS, FIRST BRIGADE, N. G. S. N. Y., 166 WEST FORTY-FIFTH St., NEW YORK, June 5, 1890.

The Assistant Adjutant-General, First Brigade, N. G. S. N. Y.:

SIR.—I have the honor to report concerning the part taken by this company in the exercises on May thirty-first last, as follows:

All the men were present but two. Stations were established on Vault hill, on the aqueduct overlooking the south end of the pararde ground, on Grand avenue, near Jerome, overlooking the valley at the mansion, and on a hill to the southeast of the railroad station.

The signals sent, and the conduct of the men, encourage me to believe that the company is in an efficient condition.

The work was done correctly, and constant communication in the way of conversation was kept up, thus giving them much practice. I respectfully and most earnestly suggest that had any emergency arisen requiring quick communication, and had the officer to whom the message was sent been at a distance from the receiving station, a dismounted signal man would not have been able to carry the message with promptness. I was obliged to do several miles of hard riding, both in establishing the stations and in carrying a dispatch, because mine was the only horse. I, therefore, respectfully request that this corps may be ordered out mounted upon other similar occasions.

Very respectfully.

A. GALLUP,

Captain and Signal Officer.

EXTRACTS FROM REPORTS OF STAFF OFFICERS.

REPORT OF CAPTAIN W. EMLEN ROOSEVELT.

In compliance with orders, I reported at the armory of the Seventh Regiment, at the hour of assembly, 6.45 A. M. was sounded promptly, the regiment quickly formed and left the armory at 6.55, and marched to the Sixty-seventh Street station of the Third Avenue Elevated, taking the train in two sections to One Hundred and Twenty-eighth Street station, thence marched to the Mott Haven station of the Harlem railroad, arriving at 8.04, and taking a train at 8.10, it proceeded to Woodlawn station and was detrained and formed within three minutes. After reporting to Colonel Olin, acting Chief of Staff, the Seventh moved out on Grand avenue and I remained to communicate with Colonel Camp at Williamsbridge, who, in the absence of Colonel Cavanagh, took command of the attacking force. Failing to meet him, I reported to Colonel Olin at the junction of Grand and Jerome avenues, and by his direction placed the First Battery of Artillery in position, posting two guns on the aqueduct and two on the mound behind and above it. I next saw the guard had been properly posted at the railroad near the Mosholu bridge, and then reported to Colonel Olin at the ruined causeway from which he had just dislodged the enemy. As soon as the passage had been effected and line had been formed on the other side I was sent to order the advance of the Seventh Regiment. I accompanied them in their attack, the skirmishers proceeding directly to the heights while the main body proceeded by the Mosholu road, meeting very little resistance and firing by companies. Meanwhile our skirmishers on the right met with very little resistance and swarmed rapidly to the crest of the hill, and then swinging to the left descended on the Mosholu road on the flank of the enemy, driving them from the road and cutting off their retreat by the railroad. At this point, the forces having approached very close, the order was given to stop firing, and after a rest the troops took up the march to Van Cortlandt parade ground. Throughout the day the efficiency and care of the officers and the promptness and military bearing of the men left nothing to be desired.

REPORT OF MAJOR H. S. VAN DUZER.

Pursuant to instructions I went to the armory of the Twentysecond Regiment on the morning of May thirty-first, at 7.07 A. M., and reported to Lieutenant-Colonel King, the senior officer at the armory, upon my arrival. Colonel Camp arrived at 7.11, and I delivered to him the maps and instructions as directed. The call for assembly was given at 7.18, the adjutant's call at 7.23. First sergeants reported at 7.28. The regiment was formed at 7.35. Cartridges were then examined and distributed to the command. The condition of the arms, equipment and clothing of the men was in good order. The adjutant reported the following present: Field officers, two; staff, four; officers, twenty-one; field music, twenty; rank and file, seventy-six and a half files; total enlisted The regiment left the armory at 7.50, and arrived at Harlem station, Grand Central depot at 8.31. The cars were loaded in two minutes and thirty-four seconds, and left the station at 8.44. The time occupied in transit to Williamsbridge station, thirty-four minutes. A short delay was made at Ninety-fourth street in order that the train containing the Eighth Regiment should go ahead. I went through the train during the trip, and observed nothing to criticise as to the behavior of the regiment. and the men were most orderly. Arrived at Williamsbridge at 9.18 and unloaded in three minutes and five seconds, being delayed by the forward cars resting against an embankment, so that the companies had to pass through the rear to unload. Here I received orders from Lieutenant-Colonel Olin notifying Colonel Camp of the absence of Colonel Cavanagh and that he, Colonel Camp, was in command. I at once delivered the order to Colonel Camp and by telegraph notified Colonel Olin of the arrival of the Twenty-second Regiment and the delivery of the above order. The command of the Twenty-second Regiment was then turned over to Lieutenant-Colonel King. In pursuance of instructions I then delivered maps and instructions to Captain Louis Wendel, commanding First Battery, who had left his command and come to the station for orders. The order for advance having been given, I transmitted it to the commanding officer of the detachment of Troop "A," and they advanced at 9.50 followed by the Twenty-second Regiment, who detailed three companies as an advance guard and one company under Captain Maidhof deployed as skirmishers on each side of the road. I advanced with the troop. The advance guard of the Twenty-second Regiment after passing the reservoir passed the road on which it should have turned to the right as directed, but believing that still further delay would be caused by turning the regiment back because of the Twelfth Regiment following in the rear I took the Twenty-second straight forward to Jerome avenue, thus increasing the march one-half mile and causing a delay of fifteen minutes in arriving at Mosholu road. The highest praise is due the officers and men of the Twenty-second Regiment. Orders were given promptly and obeyed implicitly. While waiting for trains excellent order was observed, and there was no firing of blank cartridges.

REPORT OF MAJOR PERKINS.

I have the honor to make the following report in regard to the movements of the Sixty-ninth Regiment: Regimental orders for assembly, 7 a. m. At 6.45 a. m. many of the men were at the armory, and the rest assembled quickly. Each man was then served with twenty rounds of blank cartridges, which were inspected by commanding officers of companies as the shells were put in the cartridge boxes or after they had been put in. The general condition of arms, equipment and clothing was good. I saw no soldier who was not properly clad in fatigue uniform with haversack and canteen; time of departure from armory, 7.35 a. m.; time of arrival at Third avenue elevated station, 7.40; time of loading train, two minutes; time of arrival at Grand Central Depot, 7.58 A. M.; time of taking train 8.06; time occupied in loading train, three minutes; loading and unloading cars was prompt and by column of twos; time occupied in transit, thirty minutes; time of arrival at Woodlawn, 8.47; time occupied in unloading, four minutes. behavior of the troops, both going and returning, was excellent. Their condition after the day's work was good; they did not seem in the least done up, and all appeared to have enjoyed it. After my report to the commanding officer, I was ordered to the front along Grand avenue, to see if the outpost of the enemy was visible either beyond or this side of Jerome avenue. The enemy's outposts were discovered on the other side of Jerome avenue. Cautiously crossing Grand avenue above the aqueduct, and getting under cover of a stone wall, the Sixty-ninth then followed the Seventh Regiment along Grand avenue. On reaching Jerome avenue, the Sixty-ninth Regiment deployed as skirmishers with the right on Grand avenue, and advanced with battalion reserve of four companies across the aqueduct to Mosholu avenue, halting and firing during the advance at intervals of about sixty to seventy-five yards. After reaching Mosholu avenue, the Sixtyninth proceeded through a lane in column of twos to the edge of the woods, and then along a stone wall, and under cover of a vigorous fire rushed across the open and halted on the other side of the railroad track, under cover of the bushes. Three companies of the reserve, under Major Duffy, then went forward to carry the causeway. About twenty men from these companies were detailed under my direction to lay and fix the bridge across the causeway. The three companies of the reserve carried the causeway, and reached the western side; then, instead of deploying forward as skirmishers on the left, and waiting for the rest of the regiment and the Twenty-second to cross the causeway, in accordance with orders, they charged up the hill alone and drove the enemy from their position thereon. The rest of the Sixty-ninth shortly after crossed the causeway, and the Twenty-second and the Seventh being then in position, the general attack on the heights was made. I am informed that some of the reserve fixed bayonets when they charged up the hill. I am not able to report as to this, for at that time I was superintending the work at the causeway.

REPORT OF MAJOR DANA.

In accordance with instructions, I submit a report of the Twelfth Regiment, Colonel Dowd, during the day of May 31, 1890. Assembly was sounded at 7.30 A. M., at which time Colonel Dowd arrived at the armory. It was observed with moderate promptness only. The second assembly being sounded ten minutes later, 200 men were reported by the adjutant, which was afterwards increased to 239. Regiment left the armory at 8.09; arrived at the Grand Central station at 8.35. Time loading, four minutes. Loading was done quietly and in perfect order. Train left the station at 8.47 and arrived at Williamsbridge at 9.26. Behavior of troops excellent. Unloaded in two minutes. Reported arrival by telegraph to Woodlawn, and at 9.50 advanced, taking Van Cortlandt avenue by mistake instead of the Gun Hill road. Advance was made in excellent order with skirmishers properly deployed. The enemy were met at Van Cortlandt station, the advanced guard at once opening fire rather wildly. On arrival of main body an assault was made, driving the enemy from the station. The regiment then formed line and slowly drove the enemy back past the Van Cortlandt mansion to the railroad track, where the Sixty-ninth was seen advancing from the east. and the Twelfth Regiment formed on its left and made the attack on Vault hill. The general conduct of the regiment was excellent, but on their return I am obliged to note that at Williamsbridge station, while waiting for the train, several of the men fired off their remaining cartridges, which was of much annoyance to passers-by. The commanding officer made every effort to stop the firing, but it continued at intervals during the transit.

REPORT OF MAJOR GOODWIN.

The assembly of the Seventy-first Regiment was as prompt as could be desired, 184 men reporting for duty. The condition of the arms, equipment and clothing was good. The command left the armory at 7.50; arrived at Forty-second Street station at 7.59. Time occupied in loading train, one and one-half minutes. Manner of loading train prompt and orderly. Time in transit, forty minutes. Condition of troops during transit most orderly. Arrived at One Hundred and Fifty-fifth Street station at 8.42. Time loading train on the New York and Northern, two minutes.

Time occupied in transit, eighteen minutes. Time of arrival, 9.02. Time occupied in unloading, two minutes. Manner of unloading, orderly. The arrival of the command was reported to the commanding officer at 9.05. The details connected with the movement were faithfully carried out. The men were a little overzealous in their defense, and the order that no firing be done at less than fifty yards was not always complied with. The manner of firing was good, and in a general way the defense was of a proper character. I have to report that a detail of the Sixtyninth of the attacking column, contrary to orders, charged over the hill with bayonets fixed. I heartily commend the action and bearing of the Seventy-first Regiment.

REPORT OF MAJOR MCKIM.

I reported at the armory of the Ninth Regiment at 7 A. M., the hour of assembly, and delivered the instructions, orders and maps to Colonel William Seward, Jr., the commanding officer. Assembly fairly prompt. Numbers, 162. General condition of arms, equipment and clothing good. The regiment left the armory at 7.40 and took elevated train at Thirty-fourth street. occupied in loading, two minutes. Condition and behavior of troops during transit, good. Arrived at Mosholu station at 9 A. M. Time in unloading train, four minutes. At Mosholu station I delivered to Captain Wilson, commanding Second Battery, his instructions, maps and orders. The Ninth Regiment was formed in seven companies and marched in column of fours along Mosholu avenue to the rear of Vault hill. Here one company was left in reserve and the remaining companies deployed to the left and took position on the crest of the heights, facing east, the right of the regiment about sixty yards from the road and its left resting on the broken country to the north. The men were so disposed behind rocks and other cover as to bring a cross fire on every point of approach. Two companies and the Second Battery were posted here so as to enfilade Mosholu bridge. The Ninth Regiment was attacked by the right wing of the Seventh Regiment in force and, after a stubborn defense, was ordered to retire. The retreat was made in good order down to Mosholu road, four companies acting as rear guard. I have also to report that the Ambulance Corps did most effective service to both sides, and in their zeal to show their skill dressed and bandaged many men whose injuries were so slight that they needed little or no attention. There were no serious casualties, with the exception of Private J. H. Taylor, Company "F," Seventh Regiment, who was injured in the left eye by the fire of a comrade in the rear, and Private Martin Burns, Company "D," Sixty-ninth Regiment, who was injured in the lower lip by a blank cartridge. Two ambulances, fully equipped with all appliances for caring for the sick and wounded, were provided for the use of the troops.

REPORT OF MAJOR MONTANT.

I reported to the commanding officer of the Eighth Regiment, at its armory, at 6.50 A. M. Assembly at 7.51. Regiment left armory at 8.19, 176 men reporting for duty. Regiment took station Hudson River railroad at Eighty-sixth street. Took train at 8.45. Time of loading, four minutes. Arrived at Kingsbridge at 9.18. Time of unloading, two minutes and forty-two seconds. Marched thence to Van Cortlandt park, throwing out pickets at each of the three lanes leading from Broadway to the park. Three companies were detailed at the Van Cortlandt station, and the remainder of the command marched into the park. At this time I left the command and reported to Colonel Scott, commanding the "Western Force," and remained as his aide-de-camp throughout the engagement, returning to the Eighth Regiment and accompanying it back to its armory, where it arrived at 3.55 p. M. The condition of the men was exceptionally good.

FOURTH BRIGADE.

Headquarters Fourth Brigade, N. G. S. N. Y., Buffalo, N. Y., August 25, 1890.

Adjutant-General, S. N. Y., Albany, N. Y.:

SIR.—I have the honor to make report of movement of troops in this brigade during the present month.

On the ninth inst. the sheriff of Onondaga county made requisition, pursuant to section 79, Military Code, upon Captain Auer, Fifth Battery, for twenty-five men from the Fortieth Separate

This requisition was promptly filed and I was informed, of which I made due report by wire to you at Albany, subsequently learning that you were in Camp of Instruction at Peekskill, further communications upon this subject were sent there. Upon the ninth, twenty-five men of the Fortieth Separate Company were ordered by the sheriff to East Syracuse to assist He found, however, that the force was insufficient, and made further requisition for the entire company. He accomplished a part of his plan, but in order to clear the railroad yard at that point of the persons other than the employes of the New York Central and Hudson River railroad, he made requisition for ten companies. Anticipating this, I had ordered commanding officers Second, Eighth, Twenty-sixth, Twenty-ninth, Thirtieth, Thirty-fourth, Thirty-eighth and Forty-fifth Companies to hold themselves in readiness to move on Captain Auer's orders. Upon receiving the above requisition Captain Auer ordered the Twenty-sixth, Twenty-ninth and Thirty-eighth Companies to move to Syracuse, these being the nearest commands, and ordered the Fifth Battery to be in readiness. Commendable promptness on part of all concerned, enabled Captain Auer to consolidate these commands on Sunday, the tenth instant. The sheriff then ordered Captain Auer to move his entire command to East Syracuse in the early morning of the eleventh. But the movement was not effected, owing to telegraphic order of the eleventh, 1.35 A. M., which was promptly communicated to Captain Auer. The troops being no longer needed, they were sent to their respective stations on Monday, the eleventh instant.

I desire to express my admiration of the ability and promptness displayed by all concerned in the movement. Both officers and men were tireless in their duty. The only collision with the mob occurred on the morning of the ninth, and but for the coolness of commanding officer, Fortieth Separate Company, and the men under his command, serious results might have occurred. I desire to emphasize this by special mention. All responses were prompt and cheerful.

The entire movement shows conclusively that the present status of this brigade is high in efficiency and all that goes to make a desirable citizen soldiery. I am confident I could have placed 1,200 men in Syracuse within eighteen hours, despite the fact that the Second, Thirtieth, Thirty-fourth, Forty-first, Forty-second and Forty-fifth Companies, all of this brigade, were in Camp of Instruction, as I have since ascertained.

I have the further honor to inclose copies of reports made me by the commanding officers, Fifth Battery, the Twenty-sixth, Twenty-ninth, Thirty-eighth and Fortieth Separate Companies. Also all correspondence referring in any way to the above movement.

I have, sir, the honor to be your obedient servant.

PETER C. DOYLE,

Brigadier-General, Commanding Fourth Brigade, N. G. S. N. Y.

STATE ARMORY,
SYRACUSE, N. Y., August 13, 1890.

Adjutant-General S. N. Y.:

SIR.—I have the honor to make the following report:

In pursuance of an order delivered to me by the sheriff of the county of Onondaga, through his under sheriff, at 4.30 p. m. August 9, 1890, I ordered the Fortieth Separate Company, N. G. S. N. Y., located in this city, to report for duty at the armory forthwith.

At 8.45 P. M. Lieutenant Myall commanding the Fortieth Separate Company was directed by me to proceed to East Syracuse by way of N. Y. C. R. R. with twenty-five enlisted men, and there to report to the sheriff for duty in maintaining order, and to protect public property.

At 3.15 A. M., August tenth, after urgent appeals from Lieutenant Myall for assistance, I sent to him of his company who were then at the armory twenty-six enlisted men in command of Lieutenant Chatterton; this detachment disembarked two miles this side of its destination, and marched there. At 4 A. M. the sheriff wired that he had plenty of troops. At 10 A. M. Lieutenant Myall reported trouble with the strikers and requested immediate help, but that he was holding his ground. I immediately ordered him to withdraw from the railroad yard to an open field; there to hold his position, if possible, without bringing on an engagement or causing bloodshed, until further orders. Not having any troops at my command to help him without leaving the arsenal in this city wholly unprotected, I did not re-enforce him.

At 10.30 A. M., August tenth, the sheriff, through his deputy, verbally demanded of me more troops, and in compliance therewith the Fifth Battery, with six officers and fifty-six men; the Twentysixth Separate Company, with three officers and fifty-eight men; the Twenty-ninth Separate Company, with three officers and fifty-four men, and the Thirty-eighth Separate Company, with one officer and forty-five men, commanded respectively by Lieutenant A. D. Hayes, Captain R. P. Bush, Captain H. H. Herron and Lieutenant D. H. Tifft were ordered to report without delay at the armory in Syracuse. The Twenty-ninth and Thirty-eighth Separate Companies arriving at 5.30 P. M. from Oswego and the Twenty-sixth Separate Company at 6.30 P. M. from Elmira. And by direction of the sheriff I immediately commenced preparation to place my command in position at East Syracuse before daylight on the coming morning. The Fortieth Separate Company at the eastern end of the freight yard at East Syracuse was ordered to quietly leave their position at 3 a. M., August eleventh, and march to the West Shore crossing one mile west of East Syracuse, there to await further orders. A light breakfast was given to the men occupying the armory, between 2.30 and 3.30 A. M. and at 3 A. M., in a drenching rain, two sections of artillery of the Fifth Battery left the armory under command of Lieutenant A. D. Hayes with order to march to the West Shore crossing, there join Lieutenant Myall and await the arrival of the troops.

At 4 A. M. the troops were ready to embark on the train, but here a delay was caused by the railroad managers refusing to leave the city before daylight. During this delay I received instructions from general headquarters, through General Doyle, commanding the Fourth Brigade, directing me to await the arrival of General Farnsworth, who was ordered to Syracuse to investigate and report as to the situation there, and to be governed accordingly.

I immediately countermanded marching orders and obtained a locomotive and coach, personally proceeded to West Shore crossing, ordered the return of the artillery, embarked the Fortieth Separate Company in the coach and returned them to the armory in Syracuse, where the entire force remained until the evening of August 12, 1890, being then dismissed by order of the sheriff; the Twenty-sixth Separate Company leaving at 5 P. M., and the Twenty-ninth and Thirty-eighth at 7.45 P. M.

I inclose herewith, for your information, the report of Lieutenant Myall, commanding the Fortieth Separate Company, giving a detailed account of his doings while on duty at East Syracuse. Credit is due him and his command for the able manner in which they conducted themselves at a critical time, when more experienced troops would have, perhaps, brought on a serious conflict.

Credit is also due to all the officers and men of the different companies ordered to report for duty; for the very prompt manner in which they responded to the call; for the strict discipline which they maintained, their soldierly appearance and the efficiency they displayed in obeying with alacrity all orders issued to them.

In conclusion, I tender my sincere thanks to Brigadier-General Doyle, commanding the Fourth Brigade, N. G. S. N. Y., for his valuable aid and assistance in tendering to us the use of all the troops necessary.

I have the honor to remain, respectfully,

Your obedient servant.

MICHAEL AUER, Captain Fifth Battery, Commanding Troops.

TWENTY-SIXTH SEPARATE COMPANY, INFANTRY, N. G. S. N. Y., ELMIRA, N. Y., August 14, 1890.

Lieutenant-Colonel Charles Clifton, A. A. G., Fourth Brigade, N. G. S. N. Y., Buffalo, N. Y.:

SIR.—I have the honor to report that at 5.15 A. M. Sunday, August tenth, I received the following dispatch: "August 10, 1890, Buffalo, N. Y., 9 via Elmira, N. Y., 10, to Dr. R. P. Bush, Commanding Officer, Twenty-sixth Separate Company, Horseheads, N. Y.: Be prepared, if called upon by Captain Auer, to go to Syracuse to his assistance, take sufficient ammunition. Peter C. Doyle, Brigadier-General."

The messenger reported that he was requested to deliver on receipt of same at 1.40 A. M., but having no messenger, he himself delivered the dispatch as soon as possible. I at once proceeded to Elmira and ordered company to assemble at armory at once. This order was served by chiefs of squads, very promptly, every man in Elmira being notified responded by 9 A. M., at which time I sent the following dispatch: "Brigadier-General Peter C. Doyle, Buffalo, N. Y.: Company notified, transportation arranged for by Elmira, Cortland and Northern if wanted. R. P. Bush, Captain, Twenty-sixth Separate Company."

Not receiving any order from Brigade Headquarters at 10 A. M. I sent the following: "Elmira, N. Y., Major M. Auer, Syracuse, N. Y.: What is the outlook? Do you need the Twenty-sixth? All ready, answer. R. P. Bush."

At 10.46 received the following: "Syracuse, N. Y.: Come at once. Captain Auer."

Putting Private Davis of the Thirtieth Separate Company in charge of the armory, I at once went with the command to Elmira, Cortland and Northern depot, and as soon as train was ready telegraphed Captain M. Auer: "Major M. Auer, Fifth Battery, Syracuse, N. Y. Twenty-sixth Company started 12.15 p. m. R. P. Bush, Captain."

On arriving at Cortland, the first opportunity, I reported to this effect: "Company en-route to Syracuse by request of Captain Auer."

I telegraphed to Captain Auer: "Where do you want us? Which way shall we come from here?"

I received the following: "Syracuse, August 10, 1890, 4.30 p.m. Be sure and come on first train, I will meet you at the depot in Syracuse. From the depot you will take the men to armory. Major Auer."

On arriving at Syracuse took quarters at State armory under the directions of Captain Auer, where we remained, going through the usual routine of duty, guard-mounting, etc., until Tuesday at 4.55 p. m., when it was intimated that the services of the company was no longer required. The company was immediately assembled and took the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western train at 5 p. m., for Elmira, where they arrived and were dismissed at 10.15 p. m.

Commanding officer of the Twenty-sixth Separate Company congratulates the military authorities for having in its National Guard a company which responds as readily and universally when called upon for real duty. The officers in charge of the commissary department, during our stay in Syracuse, deserves credit for the efficient manner in which they provided for the troops who were called there so unexpectedly.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant.

R. P. BUSH,

Captain, Twenty-sixth Separate Company.

QUARTERS OF THE TWENTY-NINTH SEPARATE COMPANY, N. G., OSWEGO, N. Y., August 18, 1890.

The Assistant Adjutant-General, Fourth Brigade, N. G. S. N. Y.

SIR.—I have the honor to report that on Sunday, August 10, 1890, I received a telegraphic order from the commanding general Fourth Brigade, to be prepared to go to Syracuse to assist Captain Auer if he called upon me. About 3.45 p. m., August tenth, I received a telegram from Captain Auer to report at the Syracuse armory as quick as possible with both Oswego companies. The Twenty-ninth and Thirty-eighth Companies were assembled as quickly as possible and left for Syracuse on the Rome, Watertown and Ogdensburgh Railroad at 5 p. m.

I immediately reported to Captain Auer on my arrival, and both companies remained on duty in and about the Syracuse armory until August twelfth, when we were relieved from duty by Captain Auer and ordered to return home, arriving in Oswego at 9.35 p. m., August twelfth.

I have the honor to be,

Very respectfully your obedient servant.

(Signed,) HUGH H. HERON,

Captain Com'ing Twenty-ninth Separate Co., N. G. S. N. Y.

Quarters Thirty-eighth Separate Company, Fourth Brigade, N. G. S. N. Y. Oswego, N. Y., August 14, 1890.

Assistant Adjutant-General, Fourth Brigade.

SIR.—In compliance with your request of August twelfth, I have the honor to forward the following report:

On receipt of order from Brigadier-General P. C. Doyle, Fourth Brigade, N. G. S. N. Y. (by telegraph), dated Buffalo, August 10, 1890, 11.16 a. m. my command was assembled at State armory, and by order from Captain Auer I left for Syracuse at 4.03 p. m. by special train via Syracuse, Phænix and Oswego division of the Rome, Watertown and Ogdensburgh railroad, arriving at Syracuse 5.15 p. m. The company was quartered in the State armory while in Syracuse. On our arrival guard was established in and about the armory. Monday, August eleventh, the company was ordered to assemble at 4 a. m. and proceed to East Syracuse where the trouble was supposed to be, but the order being countermanded the company was held in readiness to move if required during the remainder of the eleventh and twelfth. At 7.40 p. m., August twelfth, the company was dismissed and returned home via the above-named route, arriving at State armory, Oswego, at 9.15 p. m. During the stay of the company in Syracuse, the meals were secured at the Dixon House. The only duty performed during our stay was guard duty at the armory.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant.

DE SOLVO H. TIFFT,

First Lieutenant Commanding, Thirty-eighth Separate Company.

QUARTERS OF THE FORTIETH SEPARATE COMPANY, N. G. S. N. Y., SYRACUSE, N. Y., August 13, 1890.

Captain Michael Auer, Commanding Fifth Battery and Military Station:

SIR.—I have the honor to report that in accordance with your orders of August ninth, received at 6.30 p. m., requesting me to assembly my command at the State armory at 7 p. m., ready for active service, I immediately placed myself in communication with my non-commissioned officers to warn their men.

At 8.45 P. M., I was ordered, by you, to proceed to East Syracuse to report to the sheriff of Onondaga county. I immediately marched to the special train provided, with twenty-five men and one officer (myself) in command. On arriving at DeWitt about 9.15 P. M., in accordance with orders from the sheriff, I held my men on the train until further orders, placing a guard on the train to protect it from any surprise.

After examining into the state of affairs I was satisfied that there would be trouble in the morning, and wired you to send me more men as I had not enough to cope with the strikers; you responded by sending me Lieutenant Chatterton with twenty-six men, making in all fifty-one enlisted men and two officers, they arrived at about 4 A. M; as soon as possible I made arrangements at the different hotels to feed my men, having to divide them up into four squads to accommodate them; after breakfast returned to the train awaiting orders.

About 8.30 a. M., Under Sheriff Austin ordered me to guard a train of freight cars standing on the track above our position, there being then two freight and two passenger trains on the tracks bound east; in order to protect these trains I had to deploy my men as skirmishers so as to protect the whole train.

I guarded one freight train and two passenger trains, passing them through without any serious opposition on the part of the strikers, but when we returned for the second freight train we met with considerable opposition from the strikers, they numbering about 400 and seeming to be determined that that train should not be moved by me or any one else without their consent, and the latter they did not appear to be inclined to give.

Upon reaching this train we found three men standing on the deck of one of the box-cars watching us. As we took our position and halted, one of the men set a brake, whereupon Deputy Sheriff Hotaling immediately mounted to the deck and ordered them all off. They complied at once, with some reluctance. As the train began to move the strikers began to get wrathy and threatened a point about midway of the train, some of them picking up stones and threatening to brain a non-commissioned officer; some endeavored to wrest the pieces from the men; others cursing and threatening the guards with their fists.

My men were perfectly cool and self-possessed, paying little heed to the threats of the strikers.

Several times a number of strikers tried to force their way through my line, guarding the north side of the train, at this point, but were forced back by men at each attempt. It was here that Criminal Sheriff Kratz came to our assistance and, drawing his revolver, ordered the assailants back.

Soon the engine reached the switch, where another serious attack was made upon the train, this time to derail it. Several strikers attempted to open the switch but were repulsed by several guardsmen and the yardmaster and assistant yardmaster. When they saw how futile their efforts were to open the switch in time to derail the engine a number of them made an attack from the opposite side of the train throwing a timber in front of the drivers; the obstacle was quickly removed by my men on that side while others forced the strikers back. Several attempts were then made to open the switch and throw the rear cars off, but, like the others, proved futile, and the train passed safely to the east end of the yard. I did not deem it advisable to pass the other passenger train which was in the yard at that time, as I was confident that in the state the strikers were then in, there would have been bloodshed had we attempted it with what they contemptuously considered a "handful of mere boys," so to prevent any possibility of bloodshed or injury to the troops or strikers I returned to the special cars I was occupying, broke ranks, posted guards and sent a dispatch to you for reinforcements.

At noon I marched to the hotels with my men, where an attempt was made by the strikers to induce the landlords to refuse us food. One of the proprietors was inclined to comply with the committee's request, when I demanded that he furnish us food, which he accordingly did; after finishing our meal we again repaired to our cars, where I caused ranks to be broken, and we made ourselves as comfortable as possible. Nothing of note occurred during the afternoon except that the number of people in the yard was swelled to large proportions, I should judge between two or three thousand, a large part of them being spectators.

About 8 o'clock guard was mounted. About 1.30 a. m., on the eleventh, I received a dispatch from you ordering me to leave my position quietly about 3 o'clock and meet you at Thompson's crossing. (Soon after this several stones were thrown against and toward the car from the wagon road on the south side of the train. By whom thrown could not be determined as the sentries could not see anyone in the dark; neither can it be told whether they were aimed at the sentinels or the cars occupied by the troops.) I did so, leaving the yard at 3 o'clock, without our movements being known to the strikers, reaching the crossing, where I waited until 5 o'clock in a drenching rain, when Lieutenant Hayes came up with one platoon of your battery. From that time you are well aware of our actions, as we were under your immediate command at our quarters in the State armory, Syracuse, N. Y.

I have, sir, the honor to be, very respectfully,

Your obedient servant.

JAMES MYALL, First Lieutenant Commanding.

REPORTS ON THE RESULT OF TARGET PRACTICE OF THE SECOND BATTERY.

NEW YORK, December 15, 1890.

The Adjutant-General State of New York:

SIR.—I have the honor to report the result of target practice by my battery at Fort Wadsworth, New York harbor, October 30, 1890.

The command consisted of four commissioned officers and fifty enlisted men, one platoon of the battery (without caissons), and a battery wagon reported, fully horsed and equipped, at the armory at 5.15 a. m. I commanded the mounted platoon, assisted by the junior lieutenant (Cable). We proceeded by the shortest possible route to Fort Wadsworth, arriving at 8.15 a. m.

The remainder of the battery reported at the armory dismounted at 7 A. M., and under command of Lieutenant Farquhar, reported at the firing point at 9.15 A. M.

The pieces were placed "in battery," the teams being unhitched, unharnessed and stabled.

The firing was delayed until 10.50 A. M., owing to a battery of the First United States Artillery occupying the range to complete their annual practice.

The ranges used by us were at 1,710 and 2,802 yards. We labored under a very serious disadvantage, in not having the full service cartridge of three and three-fourths pounds of powder. That issued averaged two pounds nine ounces, and was irregular in weight.

Upon receipt (issue) of the cartridges, I immediately communicated with Captain Greer, O. D., U. S. A., and my suspicion in regard to the weight of powder was correct, as his letter (inclosed) indicates; but his communication did not reach me until the evening of the day of practice. Even had I known before, the cartridge-bags were not at hand.

Since our practice I have been informed by officers of the O. D., U. S. A., that the cartridges issued were for saluting purposes only—not weighed—and they were astonished to learn of the fair result attained.

I inclose a record of the firing, and a diagram with the shots plotted.

While it may seem apparent that the firing was somewhat wild, yet I am of the opinion that under the circumstances the firing was to be commended. The shots are nearly all line shots, with an occasional hit. Had the targets been stationary, better results would have been recorded.

In all thirty-five shots were fired; I reserved fifteen rounds for future practice. I am well satisfied with the work of the gunners and also of the entire organization, who, by their conduct and bearing, upheld the reputation of the Guard of the State of New York.

Appliances for cooking were carried in the battery wagon and hot rations were furnished and cooked by our own men; forage for the horses was also carried with us.

The several "calls" were sounded and strict attention to duty observed.

The battery returned to the armory at 8.15 p. m. In conclusion, I desire to thank Colonel Lodor for the courtesy extended in granting permission for the practice, and to the other officers of the Post for their kind attention to us.

To First Lieutenant R. H. Patterson, First United States Artillery, we are deeply indebted for his painstaking efforts in caring for our comfort and convenience. He was specially detailed by Colonel Lodor to report upon the results of the firing condition of the battery, and to supervise the arrangements for firing to the avoidance of danger to passing vessels.

Lieutenant Patterson was with us from our arrival to our departure from the Post and left nothing undone to make our practice successful. I take pleasure in forwarding a copy of his report regarding the practice.

Major Wallace F. Randolph, Third United States Artillery, did us the honor in being present during our practice, and gave us beneficial instruction. The entire day was well spent and a rich experience in artillery practice was the result. The new 3.2-inch breech-loading rifle certainly merits all that is claimed for it, and I promise that with the experience already gained, that our next practice will be all that can be desired.

I remain, very respectfully, your obedient servant.

DAVID WILSON, Captain.

THE ORDNANCE BOARD, U. S. A., NEW YORK ARSENAL, GOVERNOR'S ISLAND, N. Y. H., Oct. 29, 1890.

DEAR CAPTAIN. — Your cartridges are blank, the powder weighing two and a half pounds. These are not suitable for practice with projectiles. They are for firing salutes, etc. If you use them I would not fill the shells with sand; at any rate not more than enough to make them all weigh as much as the heaviest one unfilled. You must have them all of the same weight.

If you can get the service charge of three and three-fourths pounds in time, your practice would be much more satisfactory to you.

Very sincerely yours.

JOHN R. GREER,
Captain, Ordnance.

FORT WADSWORTH, N. Y. H., October 30, 1890.

 ${\it To the Post-Adjutant:}$

SIR. — In obedience to instructions contained in letter from your office, dated October 29, 1890, I have the honor to report that Captain David Wilson, Second Battery, N. G. S. N. Y., with three commissioned officers, fifty-four enlisted men, two 3.2-inch breach-loading rifle field guns, properly manned and horsed, arrived at this post at 8.15 A. M., and proceeded to the "Practice Battery," where every preparation had been made for their convenience and comfort that the facilities of the Post and location afforded. The pieces were placed "In Battery," one on each side of the four and one-half-inch siege gun platform. Firing was commenced at about 10.50 A. M., the delay being caused by Battery D, First Artillery, not having completed its practice with the fifteen-inch single-barrel gun. The two ranges used by the Second Battery were approximately 1,710 and 2,802 yards. The battery labored under a serious disadvantage in not having the full service charge for their practice, that furnished them averaging two pounds nine ounces, in spite of which they made a creditable number of line shots, and discouraging as it must have been to them, the practice was, nevertheless, of some benefit in many ways, and gave them an experience that they had not been able to avail themselves of since coming into possession of these new field guns. I am of the opinion that had they been supplied with proper ammunition that their practice would have shown them capable of earning a high figure of merit. I desire to state, in conclusion, that I was particularly struck with the soldierly bearing of both officers and men, their strict attention to their several duties and to all points of military etiquette.

The battery left the Post at about 5.20 P. M., after having fired in all thirty-five rounds.

I am, very respectfully, your obedient servant.

R. H. PATTERSON,
First Lieutenant, First Artillery.

REPORT OF GENERAL J. G. FARNSWORTH

ON THE

Condition of the War Claims of the State against the United States, December 31, 1890.

ALBANY, N. Y., December 31, 1890.

To the Adjutant-General, State of New York:

SIR.—In presenting my report on the condition of the war claims of the State against the United States for your consideration, I have the honor to submit a brief history of that particular class that grew out of the late civil war, the circumstances under which they originated and the conditions that have prevailed, and that still prevail, attending their prosecution.

At the very outbreak of hostilities, and in less than forty-eight hours after the national flag had been fired on at Fort Sumter, the Legislature of the State passed an act authorizing and directing that 30,000 men should be raised, armed, clothed and equipped for the United States service; appropriated $3,000,000, to be expended for that purpose, and levied a tax to pay the whole expense. Although at that time no military clothing, tents or equipments could be procured in the country, the State authorities were equal to the emergency and at once commenced operations. Money was borrowed in anticipation of the tax levied. arms were purchased and imported from Europe, other articles were manufactured at home, and the whole work was transacted so expeditiously that within eighty-five days the last of thirty-eight regiments raised, armed, clothed, equipped, subsisted and mustered into the service of the United States, under the provisions of the above-named act, left the State and was on its way to join its companions in the field. At that date, July 12, 1861, there had been placed in the United States service by this State, 37.688 volunteers, and including the militia sent for three months' service, over 46,000 officers and enlisted men.

Throughout the whole war the State acted with the same patriotic ardor and vigor, and poured forth its sons and treasures for the defense of the Union, complying with every demand of the general government and responding promptly to every call of the President, raising over 500,000 men for the United States service, and expending over $5,000,000 in enrolling, arming, equipping, transporting, subsisting and supplying their wants, not including amounts paid for bounties for which no claim has been made by the State. It may be proper to state in this connection a fact not generally known, that the State paid for bounties during the war, $35,000,000; that the amount paid by counties, towns and municipalities added to this would swell the sum to $86,000,000. Still further than this, an estimate recently made by Colonel Phisterer and published in his valuable work, "New York in the War of the Rebellion," establishes the entire cost to the State and its citizens during the war, including bounties, fees, expenses, interest on loans and contributions for the support of soldiers' families, at over $150,000,000, and if to this is added the voluntary subscriptions, contributions and other expenditures not absolutely ascertained, there is scarcely a doubt that the cost of the war in actual outlay of money to the State and its people was $200,000,000 (two hundred million dollars).

Compared with this vast sum, how insignificant seems the amount for which claims have been filed by the State, $5,110,940.46, for the expenditures made under pledges of prompt payment by the United States and provisions of acts of Congress that the State should be reimbursed.

On the 27th day of July, 1861, an act of Congress to indemnify the States for expenses incurred by them in defense of the United States was approved by the President and became a law, to wit:

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby directed, out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, to pay to the governor of any State, or to his duly authorized agents, the costs, charges and expenses properly incurred by such State for enrolling, subsisting, clothing, supplying, arming, equipping, paying and transporting its troops employed in aiding to suppress the present insurrection against the United States, to be settled upon proper vouchers, to be filed and passed upon by the proper accounting officers of the treasury."

In 1862, Congress passed a joint resolution providing that

"Whereas, Doubts have arisen as to the true intent and meaning of an act numbered eighteen, entitled "An act to indemnify the States for expenses incurred by them in defense of the United States," approved July 27, 1861, be it

"Resolved, By the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, that the said act shall be construed to apply to expenses incurred, as well after as before the date of the approval thereof."

In addition to this legislative action of the government, the Governor of the State was not only endowed with extraordinary power by the President but was most persistently urged from time to time to organize and forward troops as fast as possible. and instructed to use at his discretion the best means to affect that object, also to supply them with arms, clothing, subsistence, equipments and transportation; and that there might be no possible question as to his full authority and powers in prosecuting the work, the State of New York was constituted a military department, and he was commissioned a major-general of the United States Volunteers and placed in command thereof. was repeatedly assured that the United States would pay all expenses incurred by the State in raising troops. Communications and telegrams from the President and the Secretaries of State and War in the strongest and most absolute terms to that effect are filed with the records of the State, and certified copies thereof accompany the claims and accounts presented to the accounting officers of the treasury for settlement.

On the 5th day of August, 1861, Congress levied a direct tax upon the people of the United States of $20,000,000, apportioned to the States respectively. The proportion for the State of New York was $2,603,918.67; the act levying the tax provided that each State could assume the payment of its proportion and apply toward it the indebtedness of the United States to such State, or in effect, that the amount found due to a State upon the settlement of its war claim or any portion thereof, might be used as an offset to an equal amount of the direct tax. In order to procure an early settlement of the claims of the State under the provisions of the act of Congress of July 27, 1861, so that the amount found due from the United States might be applied toward the payment of the direct tax, the Hon. Lucius Robinson, then Comptroller of the State, in February, 1862, forwarded to the Treasury Department at Washington the accounts and vouchers for expenditures made in raising the first thirty-eight regiments United States Volunteers, amounting to nearly $3,000,000. These expenditures had been rigidly scrutinized by the State authorities, supervised by a board of State officers appointed for that purpose, assisted by General Patrick, an officer of great experience in the regular army, and the accounts have been certified as correct both by him and the Governor and carefully prepared for presentation to the accounting officers of the treasury before they were forwarded.

It should be stated here that the United States had advanced to the State, in December, 1861, $1,100,000, leaving a balance due to the State, taking into account the claims filed as above stated, of $1,800,000, to be applied to the payment of the direct tax, and to cover any deficiency that might occur, the State paid to the United States $400,000 in June, 1862; thus promptly fulfilling all its promises and obligations. Meantime more calls were made by the President and more troops were raised, and large additional expenditures incurred for that purpose.

It would seem that under all these circumstances prompt settlement would have been made by the United States, but such was not the case. Delay and procrastination were the order of the day from the very outset. Nothing was done after the accounts had been forwarded as above stated, in February, 1862, until the month of May of that year, when the Comptroller visited Washington in person to urge speedy action. It appears that his efforts were so far successful that the accounts were officially received and filed for examination by the Third Auditor, under date of May 22, 1862. The agent that was sent to Washington with them in February remained to attend to their settlement. A payment was made by the United States to the State in September, 1865, of $262,763.17. With this exception, very little, if any, progress seems to have been effected, notwithstanding the acts of Congress and reiterated pledges of the United States that prompt settlement would be made, and in December, 1865, the Comptroller reported that after a trial of three years and four months to obtain a settlement of the claims of the State against the United States for moneys paid in raising and equipping troops in 1861, the effort had been abandoned. He also speaks of the obstacles encountered and other embarrassments, as follows:

"The difficulty and delay in settling the accounts have arisen from the fact that the accounting officers have applied to them and to the vouchers all the technical rules applicable to regular army accounts. They probably could not do otherwise, having no discretion in the matter. But the money was expended by the State under circumstances which rendered it impossible that regular army vouchers could in all, or even in most cases, be procured. The war had suddenly burst upon the country, finding it wholly unprepared. Everything had to be done hurriedly, without officers or organizations which had any knowledge of army business or army accounts. That the money was all honestly and faithfully spent, and that it accomplished more than any similar amount has ever since accomplished, there can be no doubt. To disallow the accounts, therefore, because they or the vouchers are not in proper form, may be in accordance with army rules, but it is of course unjust to the State. It could not afford to have its accounts settled in that way, and as the appropriation was exhausted, I withdrew the agent."

Four years later prosecution of the claims was resumed, and the Hon. Thomas Hillhouse, Comptroller of the State, reported that the vouchers and claims had been subjected to a thorough examination by the Quartermaster-General, for the purpose of meeting the objections heretofore made, and supplying the additional evidence required, as far as possible, and that it was proposed to make a final attempt at effecting a settlement. It appears that this effort met with partial success, for on the 4th of June, 1867, a settlement was made, and there was allowed and carried to the credit of the State, on account of the direct tax, $879,058.22, less than one-third of the amount of the first installment forwarded to Washington in February, 1862.

On the second of December of the same year, the third installment of the war claims was filed with the Third Auditor of the Treasury.

During the next three years efforts were made to procure congressional action to facilitate the settlement of these claims, but without success. Meantime Quartermaster-General E. A. Merritt, accompanied by Colonel S. W. Burt, Assistant Inspector-General, proceeded to Washington and urged the allowance of such portion of the accounts that had been prepared to meet the objections of the accounting officers of the treasury. Considerable progress ensued, but no farther settlements were obtained nor allowances made and passed to the credit of the State until September, 1870, after an interval of over three years since the former settlement in 1867.

In December, 1869, under the instructions of the Governor and the Adjutant-General, the Assistant Adjutant-General of the State, General J. B. Stonehouse, was sent to Washington to confer with the Secretary of the Treasury with a view to the settlement of the He was accompanied by Captain F. M. Butler of the Adjutant-General's department, who remained in Washington to attend to the details of the work. They entered upon the work of systematically putting into shape the suspended and disallowed vouchers and items, so that they might, as far as possible, conform with the stringent requirements of the department and also prepared accounts of expenditures made since the first three installments had been filed, with vouchers and proper evidence to support them, and presented them for settlement. These, in turn, were examined, and in the years 1870, 1871, 1872 and 1873, several settlements were made, but a large number of items as in former examinations were suspended and disallowed. these again, those that could be most easily adjusted were naturally taken up first, and prepared for representation, leaving the remainder, the vouchers that required much labor, time and perseverance to put them into shape, to overcome the objections of the accounting officers.

The imperfect methods of keeping the records of the State in its several departments during the early part of the war, the incomplete manner in which the accounts were originally prepared and presented to the Treasury Department as viewed from the standpoint of the United States officials, the loss of many vouchers and the filing of many others of which neither duplicates or copies could be found, the vast number of items, the complications arising from causes above named, tended to render the prosecution of the work tedious, difficult and embarrassing. It was of great magnitude, over 20,000 vouchers and statements on file with the claims at Washington, required critical examination and constant reference was and is necessary to be made to them. The objections of the accounting officers cover over 5,000 pages of foolscap and, though many have been obviated, the most difficult still remain at this date, December 31, 1890, to be overcome.

In March, 1875, the term of General Stonehouse, as Assistant Adjutant-General, expired, and he was placed personally in charge of the war claims of the State and continued in the prosecution thereof until his death in December, 1885.

In January, 1886, I took charge of the work and respectfully refer to my yearly reports for a record of the progress made.

During the past year the work has been unremittingly carried forward, new proofs and explanations have been prepared, a revision made of the accounts, so far as practicable, a new, the tenth, installment of claims, prepared and presented to the accounting officers of the treasury, and another installment is in the course of preparation.

Examinations now being made in the office of the Third Auditor, although not yet completed, have already resulted in allowances of a considerable amount, and as soon as these are confirmed by the Second Comptroller, they will be placed to the credit of the State and included in the estimates of the Secretary of the Treasury forwarded to Congress for appropriation.

Claims for the expenses of State agents appointed by the Governor during the war to supply the wants of soldiers of the State, not provided for by the United States, for the care of the sick and wounded, for harbor defense, for interest on Comptroller's bonds, for sanitary supplies and other items that have been totally disallowed and suspended by the accounting officers under the stringent regulations of the treasury, require prosecution in other channels, and in view of that, applications have been made to Congress for the modification of the rules governing the settlement of accounts, and bills have been introduced and are pending for appropriations for direct settlement with the State for some of these expenditures. In the matter for the claim for interest paid by the State on Comptroller's bonds issued in 1861 for expenses incurred in raising troops which, on my application, was referred by the Secretary of the Treasury to the United States Court of Claims. the evidence has been completed and filed, examinations have been made of the Comptroller's books and records and testimony taken before a properly appointed official, by the Hon. I. H. Maynard, Deputy Attorney-General, on the part of the State, and by the Hon. H. M. Foote, an assistant to the Attorney-General of the United States, on the part of the general government, briefs of both claimants and defendants have been filed and the case set down for argument during the present term of the court and will probably come on in a few days. The principle involved, that the interest paid on these particular bonds, was a part of the cost to the State of raising troops, seems to be so well established that a favorable decision is anticipated.

A bill for refunding duties paid on arms imported by the State in 1863, a claim originally filed with the Third Auditor, has been introduced, favorably reported upon and is awaiting action in the House of Representatives.

A bill for the readjustment of interest on expenditures made by several States in raising troops during the war of 1812, has passed the Senate and awaits the action of the House. If it becomes a law the State will receive something over $100,000. I have strong hope that this measure will pass, not only because persistent efforts are being made to have it brought up for consideration and to put it upon its passage, but because of the greater part of the amount involved is due to the States of Virginia and South Carolina, whose claims are more than offset by their indebtedness to the United States on account of moneys loaned to them from the Indian Trust Fund and the proposed settlement will relieve the general government from making annual appropriations to meet the defaulted interest on the bonds of the said States given to secure said loan.

The direct tax levied in 1861, and assumed by the State has for years been a matter of congressional legislation. The Forty-ninth Congress passed a bill to reimburse the States who had paid their proportion of the tax and to remit the amount due from the States that had not paid it. It was vetoed by President Cleveland. Last session a similar bill passed the Senate, is now pending in the House of Representatives, and if it passes, will undoubtedly be signed by the president who advocated and spoke in favor of a like measure when he was a United States Senator. The amount due the State under its provisions is $2,213,330.86.

At my request last session, the Hon. Charles Tracey introduced in the House of Representatives a bill for repayment of the moneys paid by the State upon certificates issued to the soldiers of 1812, and their representatives, which was referred to the committee on claims. I have appeared before the committee and endeavored to secure favorable action, but the pressure of its business and other reasons have so far interfered and prevented any report from being made. The attention of the Senators and Representatives from this State was called to the matter by the Legislature last session, and a copy of the concurrent resolution adopted, urging them to secure the passage of an act similar to the bill introduced by Mr. Tracey, was forwarded to each and every one of them.

The concurrent resolution adopted at the same time regarding the examination of the muster and pay-rolls of the soldiers from this State, that served during the war of 1812, and the collection of evidence to corroborate the proofs taken by the commission who issued the certificates for contingent expenses incurred by said soldiers and the presentation of the claims to the proper officers of the United States for settlement, which you referred to me has not been overlooked; each year since I have been in charge of the war claims of the State, I have endeavored to accomplish something in the direction indicated in the resolution. The muster and pay-rolls of the soldiers of 1812 are on file in the office of the Third Auditor of the Treasury at Washington, and are now and have been for the past year or more undergoing alphabetical classification, which has prevented their use for other purposes, but has so far progressed that a portion of them are now accessible for the examination necessary to obtain the data contemplated by the terms of the resolutions, this examination has commenced and is progressing. It is a work requiring time, perseverance and patience to complete, for the rolls are very old, worn, dilapidated, and in many instances in tatters and almost, if not quite, illegible.

The foregoing statements of the facts connected with the history of the indebtedness of the United States to the State on account of expenditures for the defense of the Union must make it evident to those who read them, as it certainly is to those who have any experience in obtaining settlements of claims against the United States, that the only method by which the State can recover the moneys that it advanced, or any portion thereof, and obtain its just dues, is by persistent and vigorous prosecution.

The obstacles encountered and inequitable ruling on the part of those who consider their first duty is to protect the treasury, and that in order to do so they must follow the rulings and precedents based upon technicalities, and in many instances unjust, established during or just after the war when the government was struggling under the load of an immense debt, was short of funds and ready to adopt any measures that would curtail the output, are hard to overcome, and delays, postponements and disappointments in obtaining settlements are of constant occurrence. Yet progress is made, now and then modifications favorable to the State are conceded, old rulings set aside and vouchers admitted. But it is only by persistent and unremitting application that anything can be accomplished.

If the State should rest and rely upon the United States carrying out their own laws, paying their debts or redeeming their pledges, the result would be equivalent to abandoning its claims.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant.

J. G. FARNSWORTH.
