COMMUNICATION

FROM THE GOVERNOR, TRANSMITTING THE FIRST ANNUAL REPORT OF THE CHIEF OF THE BUREAU OF MILITARY STATISTICS.

STATE OF NEW YORK:
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,

To the Assembly:

I transmit herewith the First Annual Report of the Chief of the Bureau of Military Statistics.

REPORT.

STATE OF NEW YORK:

BUREAU OF MILITARY STATISTICS,
ALBANY, January 26, 1864. }

SIR: The act of April last, "in relation to the Bureau of Military Statistics," requires that an abstract of the statistics collected by this Bureau shall accompany your report.

The continuance of the war renders it impossible to furnish full abstracts, as the materials are necessarily incomplete. I can, therefore, give only a summary, for which you are referred to the appendix to this report. I also deem it proper to briefly present the objects of the Bureau, with the hope that they may meet with more attention from the army and the public.

The specific duties imposed by the act are:

First. To collect and preserve in permanent form an authentic sketch of every person from this State who has volunteered into the service of the General Government since April 15, 1861.

Second. A record of the services of the several regiments, and an account of their organization and subsequent of the aid afforded by the several

To these objects the chief attention of the Bureau is directed; but, incidentally, every fact relating to the rebellion, and especially to the part which New York has taken in the war, whether now recorded or printed, or still existing only in memory, is sought for. No event connected with this epoch is insignificant; hence no fact should be omitted, for each has its value in modifying or coloring every other, and, collectively, they would be infinitely valuable for official uses, and to the historian surely they will not be less useful. As it has been well said, 'the record should not omit the battles, the sieges, the seditions, but with these should be interspersed the details, which are the charm of history. "At Lincoln cathedral there is a most beautiful painted window, which was made by an apprentice out of the pieces of glass which had been rejected by his master. Thus a great author has often used with marked effect those fragments of truth which others have scornfully thrown behind them." In preserving the leading facts, minor matters need certainly not be lost; and thus without appreciable expense, if the thousands who can aid in reclaiming and recording will assist in the good work which this enlightened State has projected, the collections of this Bureau can be enriched in all that concerns the military, the material, the moral, and the religious interests of this remarkable period. Much that is of value is already obtained, and more has been promised, but the aid of all is requisite to produce a complete collection.

. On the passage of the Act, blanks for obtaining the required facts were prepared and widely distributed, but active operations in the field had already begun, and the War Department did not deem it proper to send agents to visit the armies for statistics.

in other directions, however, and the efforts of the Bureau have been attended with success.

BIOGRAPHIES.

Materials for several thousand biographies have been received, and a large number of completed sketches deposited. In many instances the ancestry of native born volunteers is traced in these sketches to Revolutionary stock and to soldiers in other American wars; while those of foreign birth are shown to have descended from soldiers in the great European wars, and often to noted military men. Biographies have also been secured of individuals who have come hither from abroad expressly to take up arms for a cause that enlisted their sympathies. No distinction is made between the native and the foreign born, and hence many valuable facts in relation to the nationality of our volunteers are being secured. Photographs have been invited from officers and privates, and the collection made is already large and valuable. There have been distributed over one hundred and twenty-five thousand forms for personal sketches, which are being returned duly filled.

REGIMENTS AND OTHER ORGANIZATIONS.

Histories of regiments and other organizations are in progress. Full statistics of several have been received, and incomplete records of many more have been deposited, while a partial account is possessed of all. The importance of obtaining a minute history of the services of our volunteers is the more manifest when it is remembered that as soon as they are mustered into the service of the Government, all further official knowledge of them, so far as their military service is concerned, is almost entirely at an end. For all purposes but promotion, this Bureau, only a meagre account exists of them in the Military Departments of the State.

TOWNS AND COUNTIES.

An account of the aid afforded by towns and counties is being obtained through prominent citizens of the several localities, acting as Correspondents of the Bureau. Their names were principally furnished by members of the Legislature of 1863. The inquiries call for the following facts: Number of men furnished between given dates—statistics of local taxation for war purposes—donations for bounties—aid to soldiers' families, and to those in the field, or in hospitals—donations to the sanitary and other commissions, and as to the effect of the war on labor, agricultural and other interests, upon pauperism, crime and litigation, and details about war loans and patriotic meetings. The public spirit of the correspondents, and the just pride they feel in placing the patriotic action of their towns or counties on record, induces thorough work, while the high character of these gentlemen is an earnest of the reliability of their reports. A rich store of facts has been already received. I have the gratifying fact to add that these correspondents serve gratuitously. Their names—some of the best of the State—are given elsewhere.

HOW STATISTICS HAVE BEEN OBTAINED.

Until the period of winter quarters, the soldiers in the field could not be visited, nor the record of regiments there examined. Efforts were therefore mainly directed to regiments whose terms had expired; to the friends of discharged soldiers, and the relatives of those still in service. Opportunity has been lost to put blanks in the hands of individuals in the State; individuals have been approached by personal and appeals made to the public spirit of the agents for the care of sick and wounded soldiers, appointed by the Governor at New York, Baltimore and Washington, have interested themselves. All postmasters in the State have been addressed, and invited to place conspicuously in their offices the card issued by the Bureau, briefly presenting its objects, and announcing that blanks for personal facts would be found in every post-office. Medical officers in charge of the United States military hospitals were likewise applied to for their records of New York soldiers. The principals of male academies, and other educational institutions, were asked for lists, as well as for the record, civil and military, of volunteers who were at any time connected with those establishments; and boards of supervisors have also been personally visited or addressed, inviting their co-operation. It is gratifying to say that, in a multitude of cases, these various requests have been cordially responded to, and it is believed they generally meet with favor. The clergy throughout the State are being solicited for sketches of those belonging to their churches who have volunteered, and also for accounts of church action in behalf of soldiers, their families, and aid for hospitals. The foremen of fire companies are likewise asked for similar information. Public-spirited individuals, in different parts of the State, are also aiding in the work of collecting personal and other statistics. Friends of officers and of soldiers, so far as their post-office address could be obtained, have been solicited, and are engaged in preparing biographies, and in writing out the history of regiments and other organizations. No effort has been taken to secure the earliest sketches of regiments and soldiers.

The Bureau have made short visits to of the State for statistics, and for the purpose of engaging the attention of prominent citizens to the objects of the Act. The small sum that could be spared for traveling expenses precluded an extended canvass, but the advantages of a personal visit to all parts of the State have thus been shown.

GENERAL STATISTICS.

The State furnished 292,982 men between April 15, 1861, and December 31, 1863. Of this number 230,442 were mustered for three years; 30,131 for two years; 2,516 for nine months; 29,893 for three months. Reduced to a common term, the State has furnished the equivalent of 253,649 three years men. This ratio applied to the loyal States should produce an army of 1,439,500, or one soldier for every thirteen persons in the loyal States. The Bureau will soon be able to give the number furnished by each town, and the companies and regiments to which they were assigned.

The appropriations made by Boards of Supervisors and by Common Councils of cities for bounties, support of soldiers' families, &c., and by the Legislature for raising men, care of sick and wounded soldiers, and other objects incident to the war, are given below. Returns from towns are still too incomplete to be included in this exhibit.

1. By Boards of Supervisors,* exclusive of action by towns :

In 1861	$562,700 00
In 1862	2,667,871 98
In 1863	11,633,201 05

Total

$14,863,773 03

* The Boards of Supervisors for ten counties made no appropriations, but the amounts were paid by towns entirely. In several counties bounties were paid by towns in addition to the county.

2. By Common Councils :

In 1861	$2,307,248 33
In 1862	1,824,032 12
In 1863	2,579,668 50
Total	$6,710,948 95

3. By the Legislature :

In 1861	$3,505,048 00
In 1862	1,216,351 00
In 1863	8,841,098 00
	13,562,497 00

Total appropriated.....$34,637,309 86

Paid by counties and cities to Dec. 31, 1863.....	13,795,217 27
Paid by State Treasurer to Sept. 30, 1863.....	9,932,276 31

Total paid

$23,727,523 58

Town reports to July 1, 1863, and supplemental returns to the first of January instant, are coming in. Those to July 1, are tabulated. They represent a few villages and rural districts, and number 205 towns, with a population of 446,815, and afford the following, among other facts :

Amount of money raised by tax to promote enlistments,	$679,019 14
Amount by individual subscriptions,	339,094 57
Amount of aid furnished by churches, schools, and individuals, for families of volunteers,	56,056 22
By churches, schools and academies, for soldiers in hospital or in service,	6,290 04
Aid sent to hospitals, to sanitary commission, &c., by associated effort,	101,736 94
Total,	$1,182,196 91

These amounts, especially for bounties, have been largely increased since July 1.

The statistics uniformly show that the people have not become weary in giving for the war. Appropriations are made and disbursements continue unintermitted. Each town daily with its part of the labor, property and its share of hospital supplies. The prosperity of our material interests and the patriotic pride of localities, provide the way, and the will is not wanting to meet the obligations of the period. Coercion seems no where necessary, for all is in advance of requirements of law. But little difficulty has resulted from scarcity of labor, machinery, in a great measure, supplying its place. The aggregate productions of the State have been largely enhanced; the usual staples increased in amount, and new ones added, and the markets have been high and active. Pauperism has diminished, crime decreased and the business of courts lessened.

The courtesy of District Provost Marshals has placed the Bureau in possession of details of the enrolment and draft ordered by the President. The statistics by districts appear in the appendix. The more general facts are as follows: Whole number of persons enrolled of the first class, 427,469; of the second class, 199,485; number examined about, 78,000; number exempted for physical disability and other causes, about 53,150; number that passed the medical examination, 23,249; number that entered the service personally and by substitute, about 9,176; number that paid commutation, about 14,100.

The Assessors of internal revenue (with the exception of the 32d Dist.,) have furnished the material for the following summary of taxation under the United States laws, viz:

Income tax, one year, in 31 Districts,	$4,655,610 30
Internal revenue, including income tax, viz:
12 Districts, one year,	6,370,679 11
19 Districts, fifteen months,	11,683,765 25
 Total	 $18,050,448 08

The public correspondence of the Government by telegraph and mail, commencing in 1849, relative to public defence and military affairs generally, orders, proclamations, messages and formal actions of State authorities, boards and commissions, so far as accessible, are being arranged in the order of their dates, with such brief and valuable explanations, obtained from the living actors, as are often requisite to their clear understanding. This collection will have an index, and be deposited in the Bureau under the title of "The Executive Record."

Files of the daily and weekly newspapers of this State and leading journals published elsewhere, have been collected with care. The value of these chronicles of current events, these records of all shades of public sentiment, for official uses and as sources of history, is beyond estimate. The Bureau already possesses a large number of files, many of them running back to January, 1861, including papers of nearly every county, of several of the States and Territories, military and illustrated papers, and also journals devoted to specialties. They are equally divided, politically. Many of the files were obtained at a nominal cost, at reading rooms and editorial offices, others have been donated by publishers, who have placed the Bureau on their free lists. The names of these publishers are given in the list of patrons.

Messages, documents, orders, circulars and other printed matter relating to military affairs, published by Congress and by the several State governments, since 1860, are being collected. Through the courtesy of members of Congress and State officials, these efforts will be successful.

Orders, issued by Union commanders of the several military departments, have been obtained. So far as possible, the original documents responded to my request for back numbers, and in several instances, the original manuscript copies, the printed editions being exhausted. The value of these important documents is fully appreciated by you.

Collections of proceedings of Boards of Supervisors and of Common Councils are being made, and will be indexed, so far as their contents relate to national affairs.

The formal action of religious bodies, having reference to the present crisis of the country, has been carefully sought for, and with considerable success. In addition to printed proceedings, a volume of manuscript and newspaper reports of denominational meetings is in course of perfection. Sermons of the period, and accounts of the organized aid afforded by churches, are being collected.

Sixty-six flags and guidons have been deposited with the Bureau. Six of these are rebel trophies, and fifty-six are Union flags, representing thirty-one different organizations of this State. So tattered and wasted are some that they could no longer be used to lead the way of duty and danger; their record, fraught with intense interest, stirs the patriotism, and their sight quickens the blood of the most thoughtless. They are precious now—who will estimate their value in the future? The officers of several returned regiments have engaged to place their flags in the Bureau. In some instances, they are retained only for recruiting purposes, in others a natural reluctance to part with these cherished mementos has not yet been overcome; but, sooner or later, it is believed, that most of the flags carried by our regiments will find their way into our collection. A public presentation to the Legislature is expected to take place during the present session of the flags received since April last. It is much to be desired that suitable means be granted for the careful preservation and display of the flags now and hereafter placed in the keeping of the Bureau.

The liberality of publishers has put the Bureau in possession of sheet music of a patriotic or military character, to the extent of two or three volumes. Several hundred patriotic ballads have also been procured at a trifling cost.

Posters and hand-bills, with their varied devices and staring capitals, and military placards used by recruiting agents and others, are being collected. They briefly present the special advantages claimed for the several regiments, and show the amount of bounties paid at different periods. Many of them already possess no little interest. Several hundred have been obtained.

Multitudes of local and special publications, mostly of limited editions, have appeared. They embrace diaries and personal narratives connected with the times, biographies, public addresses, sermons, opinions and arguments on the great variety of topics presented by the civil war. Many have been secured, and a collection, as perfect as the nature of the case will admit, is contemplated.

Scrap-books have been begun for each volunteer regiment and each county, and will be filled from cuttings of newspapers not kept for files. A volume of a thousand pages, devoted to the draft and riot in New York city, has been prepared in this manner. Suitable space has been left for correcting errors in date, names, and other statements occurring in the printed page. A copious index will form a part of each.

Relics of the war in great variety are being collected. The first of these was the gun with which the rebel Jackson shot Colonel Ellsworth, which was presented by Lieutenant Marshall, who so promptly avenged his commander's death. Other guns, captured from the enemy, swords, cutlasses, and various military trappings, have been deposited. The collection is now at the West Point Military Academy, an interesting collection of shot and shell has been received, and from Mr. R. P. Parrott, of the West Point Foundry at Cold Spring, samples of the several projectiles used in the Parrott guns: Additional contributions have been promised from the Watervliet Arsenal, and other sources. Samples of primers, fuses, powder, fixed ammunition, and rebel trophies have been deposited. From different points in the field other specimens are promised.

Dr. Tripler, late medical director of the army of the Potomac, has generously presented photographic copies of several of the valuable maps ordered and used by General McClellan on the Peninsula. In all, over fifty war maps have been contributed.

Mr. M. Knœdler, the publisher, has presented two fine engravings of loyal prisoners at Richmond, and at Salisbury, N. C. Several elegant photographs have also been furnished, and photographs of barracks and of recruiting depots have been collected.

It is understood that the colonels of Pennsylvania regiments make duplicate reports to the Adjutant General of that State of all services performed by them. I would respectfully request you to take such action as will obtain a similar privilege for the commandants of New York regiments. These reports would possess great practical value.

A partial examination of the places of nativity of western soldiers has been made, and it is gratifying to say that New York is the birthplace of many of them. The military reports of Iowa, to December, 1862, give the names of 48,814 volunteers. Of these 5,647, or more than eleven per cent., are New York men by birth. This proportion will hold, it is believed, throughout the war.

The collections of the Department are being preserved for official uses, and their value is being ascertained.

increasing. Persons who have applied, have had their questions answered from the Bureau in respect to volunteers, when they failed of answer at Washington and elsewhere. Our records may be made so complete as to give information about every man that has volunteered from this State.

It would be a matter of great convenience to this Bureau if muster rolls were required to contain the places of residence of volunteers at the time of their enlistment, and the advantages of this addition to other departments of the State service, as well as to localities in obtaining proper credits on their quotas, are obvious.

It is certain that the war will entail a great amount of legislation; hence it is desirable to preserve all that conduces to a clear understanding, not only of what has been done, but the manner and motive for doing it. There has been raised a vast number of men—their terms of service various—some will make claims upon the State. Bounties, constantly changing in amount, have been paid by individuals, towns, cities, and counties, which the State may be called upon to refund. The support of soldiers' families has been largely pledged, and, unfortunately, these promises have not always been performed. Other pledges have been respected. Ultimately the State may be called upon to make good everybody's promise; but there is a limit to its equitable liability in this regard, and unless now, when men's minds are fully charged with all the facts, and no motive exists for misstating them, they are collected, the whole subject will become confused—a labyrinth of difficulties. Those who have aided by home efforts with money, or pen, in providing means for upholding the equitable record made of their labors, and the labors of the women of the State deserve especial commendation. Each town, city and county has some special reason for pride, and the whole account will redound to the lasting honor of the State and the generation.

It is becoming that I should express my great obligations to His Excellency Governor Seymour; to the Honorable Edwin D. Morgan; to yourself and the several members of the Governor's Staff; to the Honorable Lucius Robinson, Comptroller, and other State officers, and to Doctor John Swinburne, for the uniform encouragement extended to this Bureau; and also to the Atlas & Argus and Evening Journal, and Editors of newspapers throughout the State.

Our regiments have won imperishable names. Their designations, even now, are synonyms of heroism. They have asked little from the State they have so greatly honored. Their record, at least, should be collected and preserved with a sacred care.

To the men who peril their lives in the war the promise that a faithful record of their services shall be kept, is grateful—its effect cannot fail to make them better soldiers.

CONCLUSION.

The expressions of pride and gratitude to the State for the organization of this Bureau have been hearty and general. No plan so comprehensive and simple as this, has been formed elsewhere. The officers of several of the States have asked for copies of our act of organization, and for complete sets of our blanks, circulars, &c., accompanying their requests with cordial praise of the enterprise. Friends of the dead, especially, are excited to thank for the opportunity thus afforded them of doing it in the State's keeping records of heroic deeds, and of being fraught with interest. The plan is...

rank. Says a mother, mourning her son fallen in the ranks: "I did not know that the State regarded the services of those in so humble a position as worthy of its attention, and I cannot sufficiently express my thanks that through your Bureau the memory of my son shall not perish." An officer writes: "I feel deeply interested in the subject, and deem it well worthy the greatest effort of all who cherish a feeling of pride for the honor and glory of the Empire State. Though my history may be uninteresting, posterity will look with admiration upon others—the gallant living and heroic dead—whose noble deeds have clothed American arms with imperishable renown."

No State has sent its sons more freely to the conflict for the integrity of the nation, nor has any State been represented on so many battle-fields as has New York. From the going out of the Seventh Regiment to the present time, they have been found in every post of danger. At Antietam and Gettysburg—at Hatteras and Port Hudson—on every field of battle, the flag of the State has been borne in triumph, and "above the clouds" on Lookout mountain the Star of Empire led the embattled hosts to victory. Those fields have become doubly dear to us as a people for having in their embrace all that was mortal of thousands of our noblest sons. The pages of the State's history will be enriched with the story of the deeds of our fallen brave. Appropriately, then, may the Legislature say of those who have entered the Federal service from this State: "We will preserve the memory of their virtues—we will lament the early deaths of all who fall in their country's cause. Their names are known, and will grow brighter with the passing years. Their memories will be defended as men love liberty, or rivers run into the sea. They could die no nobler deaths—they could shed their blood in no better cause.”

Here at the capital of the State, should these records of the war be collected. The preliminary work is already well advanced, and what has been so favorably begun should be carried to completion. It is hoped that the objects and the plan of the Bureau will commend themselves to the continued favor of the Legislature, and that they will early provide further means for prosecuting a work which cannot fail of the noblest results.

I have the honor to be,

Your obedient servant,

LOCKWOOD L. DOTY,

Chief of Bureau.

To Brig. Genl.

JOHN T. SPRAGUE,

Adjutant General.

APPENDIX.

GENERAL STATISTICS.

BIOGRAPHIES.

The biographical blank, issued by the Bureau, embraces the following points of inquiry, viz:

First. Name (in full); date and place of enlistment; regiment, company and rank; promotions or transfers; previous military service in militia or regular army, or the navy, or in military organizations in Europe; service in the present war, including battles and skirmishes in which engaged; an account of wounds or injuries, condition of health, period during which detained from service by sickness, wounds, or as prisoner; date of discharge, of decease, or of resignation, and cause.

Second. Date and place of birth, names of parents and nationality; degree of education; if married, name of wife and number of children; residence at date of enlistment, and present postoffice address of family or nearest relative; profession or occupation prior to entering the service; inquiries in relation to service of relatives in war of revolution, war of 1812, or in European wars; relatives engaged in the present war, with regiment and rank; remarks in reference to general character, if blank is filled for one deceased; request for photographic or other likeness, and name of person furnishing information.

Upon the margin of each blank is printed the object in view in making the inquiries, viz.: "That they are designed for reference by themselves or their friends and to preserve a record of the services which each man has performed, that the future may award to our volunteers the meed of praise to which they will be so eminently entitled."

Over 250,000 of these blanks have been issued, and in several instances requests have been supplied. The restriction placed upon the visit of agents to the army, however, has prevented that access to our volunteers which it was expected would be afforded, and hence other sources of information have been appealed to, prominent among which has been the surgeons of the several U. S. hospitals, from whom reports have been received as follows:

Harewood hospital, by F. M. Marshall, hospital steward.

Jews' hospital, N. Y., by Dr. S. Teller.

Marine hospital, New Orleans, by Jacob Bockee, surgeon in charge.

General hospital, Philadelphia, Pa., by Wm. V. Keating, surgeon in charge.

City hospital, Indianapolis, by John M. Kitchen, surgeon, per R. H. Barnes, clerk

General hospital, Parkersburg, by Wm. P. Marr, surgeon in charge.

Chase hospital, Columbus, by R. M. Barr, surgeon in charge.

Officers' hospital, Memphis, by J. M. Strudy, surgeon in charge.

General hospital, Mound city, by C. M. Crocker, Co. A., 33d Ill. volunteers.

Corps hospitals, at Gettysburg, Pa., by H. C. May, assistant surgeon, and also from Rev. E. M. Welling, of sanitary commission.

Camp Letterman hospital, Gettysburg, Pa., by H. C. May, surgeon in charge.

General hospital, Annapolis, Md., by G. A. Wheeler, surgeon in charge.

General hospital, Annapolis, Md., by G. B. Parker, surgeon in charge.

General hospital, Camden street, Baltimore, by Jesse Johnson.

Fairfax seminary hospital, Washington, by George S. Bennett.

Lincoln hospital, Washington, by J. C. McKee, surgeon in charge.

Convalescent hospital, Philadelphia, by B. Knickerbocker, surgeon in charge.

Grace church, branch hospital, by T. H. Stilwell, surgeon in charge.

Campbell hospital, by Dewitt C. Peters, surgeon in charge.

Stanton hospital, by Chas. J. Osborne, surgeon in charge.

Second Division hospital, Alexandria, by T. Rankin, surgeon in charge.

Mount Pleasant hospital, Washington, by C. A. McCall, surgeon in charge.

Lovell hospital, Portsmouth Grove, by J. W. Merriam, surgeon in charge.

Mason hospital, Boston, by W. E. Townsend, surgeon in charge.

Island hospital, New York, by B. B. Sibell, steward.

Army hospital, Islington Square. Philadelphia, by J. V. Patterson, surgeon in charge.

Newton University hospital, Baltimore, by C. W. Jones, surgeon in charge.

Christian Street hospital, Philadelphia, by John J. Reese, surgeon in charge.

Hampton U. S. hospital, by H. B. White, surgeon in charge.

Complete lists of deaths in Baltimore and Philadelphia hospitals, from J. M. Redfield, State agent, Baltimore.

Complete list of New York men buried at Alexandria, Va., from T. H. Stilwell, of Grace Church hospital.

Saterlee hospital, West Philadelphia, Pa., by Chas. H. Thomas, hospital steward.

These returns include lists of deaths of New York volunteers, and also names of those discharged, from date of organization of hospital. In several instances competent persons have been detailed by surgeons in charge to fill up the personal blanks, and I take great pleasure in acknowledging the services of this class of correspondents. The value of an abstract of all the hospital registers cannot be too highly esteemed, and I have the most sincere hope that complete reports will be received.

It is also proper to acknowledge the services of town correspondents in collecting biographical sketches and materials for biographies, as well as the aid afforded by gentlemen who have volunteered their services as biographical correspondents. As the public shall become more acquainted with the work of the Bureau, the latter class will be, I am confident, rapidly augmented.

A favorite feature in the work recently inaugurated, is to secure a record of the contributions, in men and money, of the several Fire Companies in this State. The men engaged in this important branch of the public services, have no general depository in which records are preserved, and it is believed to be due to them that some special recognition of their patriotism and valor should be made.

The returns received from colleges and academies are interesting and valuable, and it is confidently expected that a similar result will attend the effort to enlist the assistance of pastors of churches of all denominations.

The following sketches are introduced as showing the general character of the biographical materials collected by the Bureau, and are given without other change than the omission of several interesting letters and papers deposited with them, which are reserved for use when the sketches are finally prepared for publication. The selection has been made with reference to locality rather than for superiority of interest, but will be found of merit in the latter respect.

CHARLES OSBORN GRAY, Colonel 96th Regiment. N. Y. S. V., was born at Warrensburgh, county of Warren, New York, on the 24th day of March, 1839. Enjoying unlimited educational advantages, his youthful days were but a routine of scholastic duties. In his 14th year, he was placed under the instruction of Colonel Kinsley, near West Point. The regulations and exercises of the school were strictly military, and being located in the immediate vicinity of the West Point Academy, the students were favored with the privilege of seeing the practical instructions there taught. Thus the early habits and military bearing contracted whilst under the instruction of Col. Kinsley, were retained and fostered by Col. Gray in after years.

In 1857, he entered the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute at Troy, became a member of the Troy Citizens' Corps, and was selected by the professors and students as captain of the Institute cadets. He graduated with the class of 1861, and received his diploma as civil engineer.

Deferring a trip to Europe, for which he had made arrangements, he decided to enter the service of his country, for which he was so well qualified by his previous habits and education, and, with others of his immediate acquaintance, was active and influential in successfully raising the 96th regiment, N. Y. V., which was quartered at Plattsburgh barracks. The regiment was organized and received marching orders about the 1st of March, 1862, and Col. Gray, although quite young, "being in his 23d year," after a strict examination, was commissioned its lieutenant colonel.

The appearance of the regiment, on its march through the cities of Albany and New York, under the command of its lieutenant colonel, gave evidence that it had been disciplined by an ignorant mind, and trained by no unskilful hands.

the seat of war it was immediately brigaded, and attached to the division under Gen. Casey, in the army of the peninsula, and at once embarked for its destination. On the arrival of the regiment at Fortress Monroe, the command devolved on Lieut. Col. Gray, by reason of the disability of the Colonel. It was first stationed at Young's Farm, where it was frequently harassed by the rebel gunboat Teazer; and, subsequently, was in the siege of Yorktown. In the battle at Williamsburgh, however, the regiment was called, for the first time, to struggle in the realities of war; and it was in this battle that Lieut. Col. Gray gave evidence of ability to command, and established himself in the full confidence of the regiment. Covering the battery of Major Robirson of the regular army, while being shelled from Fort Magruder, he displayed the coolness and resolution so essential in a commanding officer, and for which he received the verbal compliments of Gen. McClellan.

The 96th was in the advance during the arduous march on the peninsula, with the rear of the retreating enemy in front, and who were driven across the railroad bridge near Richmond. It was then placed in the advanced picket guard of Casey's division, four and a half miles from Richmond, where it was engaged in frequent skirmishes with the enemy, in one of which Major Kelly was killed, and was subsequently in action at Seven Pines and at Fair Oaks. After the battle at Fair Oaks, Lieut. Col. Gray, borne down by the long and arduous marches on the peninsula, and suffering with typhoid fever, was carried from the field and sent to the State Hospital at New Haven, Conn.; but, while only partially recovered, he rejoined his regiment at Harrison's Landing, and on the final retreat, led the advance to Williamsburgh, marching his regiment thirty-two miles in eleven hours. By order of Major Gen. Peck, the following battles were inscribed upon the banner of the regiment, viz.:

Chickahominy Swamp,

Railroad Bridge,

Jones' Ford,

White Oak Swamp,

Bottom's Bridge,

Harrison's Point,

Charles City Cross Roads.

After the withdrawal of the army from the peninsula, the 96th was attached to Weasel's Brigade, Peck's Division. It was stationed at Suffolk, Va., and was occupied in frequent reconnaissances in vicinity of the Blackwater. While stationed here, Lieut. Col. Gray made himself especially useful as a topographical engineer, in which branch of engineering he was quite proficient.

Lieut. Col. Gray was promoted and commissioned colonel of the regiment on the 25th day of September, 1862. He was then in his 24th year, and was probably the youngest colonel in the service. On the 5th of December, following, the regiment left Suffolk to join an expedition under Gen. Foster at Newbern, N. C., and on this expedition Col. Gray was killed (Dec. 14), while gallantly and splendidly leading his regiment to a successful charge upon the enemy at the bridge over the Neuse river at Kinston. Referring to that battle, the chaplain of the regiment writes:

"On the morning of the 14th, the sun rose broad and bright over that field, so soon to be the scene of deadly strife. At half past seven we were on the advance, our young and gallant colonel, mounted on his favorite black charger, leading the way; and never did he appear more calm and self-possessed, or give his commands with easier dignity and grace than on that memorable morning. All had faith in his courage and ability, and followed him with a confident step. Never did a colonel possess more fully the respect and affection of his men; his word was law, and his commands needed but to be heard to be obeyed. Moving forward some distance, while occasional rifle shots in the advance gave earnest of approaching battle, the order came for the regiment to halt. Having done so, we here received the first cannon-shot. It tore up the ground but a few feet from our colonel, baptizing him for the conflict in dust, while he remained undisturbed as if nothing had happened. Our artillery now opened from a field on our left, the rifle-shots became more frequent, until volley answered volley, and battery replied to battery. The fight had commenced. Receiving orders to advance, we moved a short distance on the direct road, and formed in line of battle on the extreme right. On our left, for a distance of half a mile along the line, was heard a continuous roar of artillery and rattle of small arms.

"Col. Gray rode along the line of the regiment, his evident coolness imparting courage to his men. Occasional firing of skirmishers, but slightly advanced, gave evidence that the enemy was before us. The colonel dismounted, (pursuant to an order from the commander of the department,) and ordered his regiment forward. We had advanced but a short distance when we came upon the enemy at the edge of the woods, and after a sharp engagement, succeeded in totally routing them and driving them across an open field in the direction of the bridge. Our regiment was ordered to feel its way cautiously along the edge of the woods at the right of the open field, to a road leading from the bridge directly down the river. Col. Gray led the advance, and on reaching the road we marched within some three hundred yards of the bridge. It was then filled with the enemy passing over, and a large body on this side were waiting their opportunity to cross. At the same time their forces in the earthworks on the other side kept up a most terrific fire on our troops. This bridge was now their last hope, and they were prepared to defend it with desperation.

"At this moment, colonel Gray, seeing the situation, ordered a "charge," with a voice that inspired new courage, and he, leading the way, musket in hand, the regiment charged with irresistible impetuosity, though exposed to a galling fire from the opposite bank. They reached the bridge, cutting off five hundred of the enemy, who surrendered. Our gallant colonel, the color-bearer, and two other officers, were first upon the bridge, and planted the regimental colors upon it amidst a most severe fire by the enemy. At this moment of victory, the colonel was struck in the left breast by a ball from the enemy; turned instantly, walked a few steps, and fell into the arms of some of his officers, who assisted him, with sad hearts, to the rear. He lived two hours, then closed his eyes on the scenes of battle, but not without the assurance that his own intrepid bearing had contributed largely to the brilliant success that crowned the day. Brave officers and men, whose hearts were as steel in the presence of the foe, wept as though their "hearts were waters, and their eyes a fountain of tears." In his fall, his country has to lament the loss of one of her most talented, brave, and self-sacrificing officers."

With Col. Gray, war was a reality. In his last letter to his parents, dated Dec. 5, 1862, he wrote: "I leave to-day for North Carolina, expecting active and arduous service. If the course of war favor me, I shall hope to have leave to visit you sometime. If I should fall, remember me kindly as having endeavored faithfully to discharge my duty to my country." He did fall, nobly and honorably, and his country will remember him.

The remains of Col. Gray were conveyed from Kinston to Newbern, under escort, and were received at the latter place with more than usual attention. A lady, writing from Newbern, under date of Dec. 17th, says: "All officers of any distinction remaining in Newbern, came as mourners and pall-bearers, together with five companies of infantry—all that could be spared from guard. It was a solemn sight when the procession passed with all that remained of the young hero, wrapped in his country's flag, borne by the loving hands of perfect strangers. The ceremony on the boat was very touching, the soldiers all in a line to receive the body. The chaplain of the regiment, who accompanied the remains, made a short address, thanking those in command, and all was over." The funeral at Warrensburgh was conducted according to the ancient rites of the masonic order, of which the deceased was a member; and notwithstanding the unfavorable weather, a large concourse of people from the adjoining towns was in attendance.

JOSEPH ANTOINE VIGUIER DE MONTEIL, Lieutenant Colonel 53d Regiment N. Y. S. V., was born in France, at Toulon, department of Vas, on the 14th of June, 1818. His father, Vincent Barthelmy Viguier, was a captain in the marine artillery. His mother's name is Josephine de Monteil. Both families are very ancient and were once very wealthy; but, as were many others, were ruined during the revolution of 1793. Yet the lieutenant colonel's father was still in very good circumstances when he married. He had seen a great deal of active service, was made a prisoner of war at Trafalgar, and taken to England, from whence he managed to escape with several other prisoners. Returned to France, he married. He had thirteen children—the eldest was the lieutenant colonel. Two only are living now,—daughters; one is in Paris with her mother, the other in Toulon.

The education of the lieutenant colonel was made in the colleges of Toulon and Lorient. He always distinguished himself in mathematics, for which he had a great taste. His father destined him for the navy, but he preferred artillery, and enlisted in his father's regiment. He crossed the Atlantic several times to go to the French colonies in the West Indies, where the battles artillery is usually garrisoned. In 1838 he went to Mexico with the expedition of Admiral Baudin and Prince de Joinville, and fought at the attack of San Juan d'Ulloa. He became first lieutenant, and was to be raised to the rank of captain when the revolution of 1848 broke out. Then, without thinking of his military career, he came to Paris and mixed with politics. An ardent and devoted republican—a lover of freedom, which he always advocated, he could not think that it would be considered a crime, and that a revolution, saluted by so many with tears of enthusiasm, would so soon be confiscated to the profit of one man; that under a government called republican, republicans would be hunted like enemies, imprisoned, exiled. When the "coup de etat" of 1851 broke out, Viguier de Monteil, who had been living in Paris ever since 1848, fought in the streets against the new despotism that wanted to stifle liberty again. Every one knows the history of that last revolution, when a handful of resolute men kept three days in check the armies of the President, who thought himself lost for a time, and whose carriages were in readiness to take him away from that city which dared to revolt against his good will. But even courage and enthusiasm have a term. Men are but men, and, when after three days of hard fighting, the heroes of the barricades found themselves abandoned by their friends, exhausted, and without ammunition, they had to give up in despair. Some were taken prisoners, and many of them were not seen afterwards; some, but very few, were happy enough to escape.

Lieutenant Colonel Viguier de Monteil, managed to hide himself at first, but was found and arrested; he would probably have paid with his life for his love of liberty, if, by dint of exertions, a friend had not found means to free him. The gaols were then so full of prisoners that it was almost impossible to know who they were, so great was the confusion. The friend in question, who was a lady, did so much that she had the good fortune to obtain his examination before the proofs of his culpability reached the judge, and he was set free. Two days after they tried again to arrest him, but this time he was safe, and three months later his friends succeeded in making him flee to Belgium, where he was not allowed to remain, and which he left for London. Then commenced for him the hard life of the exile, who finds himself in a foreign land, regretting for the loss of his country, of his friends, and of his home, who sees the beloved land of his birth the prey of the wicked, and its defenders slandered, ruined, exiled, murdered. No one can realize the bitter pangs, the dreadful sufferings which tear a man's heart at such a sight, when he is unable to fight any more against tyranny. The young girl who had been happy enough to secure the liberty of Viguier de Monteil, and who was then his betrothed, came to London to marry him, in spite of the unwillingness of his parents, and they were united in marriage on the 25th of December, 1852. Abandoned both by their families, they had to struggle against misfortune; but God and their mutual love sustained them. A brother of his wife, who had been living in New Orleans for a number of years, wrote to engage them to come to this country, where the exile finds a home—where all those who have intelligence and energy can live—where all are equal and free. They left London for New York on the 8th of May, 1853, and arrived on the 13th of June. Yellow fever was raging in New Orleans when they were ready to start for that place, and they decided not to go south before winter. They never went. It is then that began for Viguier de Monteil the real life of the poor emigrant. That man, who had never known manual labor, refined and accustomed to the best society, did not disdain to work with his hands; he worked at the Crystal Palace, then afterwards learned the trade of a printer, and was occupied in a printing office during a whole winter. At last he succeeded in finding a situation in a school; he subsequently went to Newport, R. I., where he stayed about two years as a teacher of French and mathematics. Bad days were over for him; when he returned to New York, he had enough of friends to be certain to make an honorable living by teaching, and when the rebellion broke out, he had a very fine position.

At the first news of the great rebellion, his old military spirit revived, for he was born a soldier. Moreover, he loved devotedly this country where he had found the realization of all his dreams of liberty. The position of lieutenant colonel of a regiment, then in formation, was tendered to him and he accepted it on the 8th of August, 1861. From that date he worked day and night for the welfare of that regiment. It is not necessary that an extended reference should be made to the officer commanding the regiment. There are differences of opinion in regard to his conduct in many particulars, and any statement that might be made in a sketch of this character would more properly belong elsewhere. It is believed, however, that no reproach has ever been attached to Lieut. Col. Viguier de Monteil. He felt too deeply the responsibility resting upon him as a Frenchman to do aught that would be a reproach to his nationality.

When General Burnside's expedition left Annapolis in January, 1862, the regiment was sent away, and the lieutenant colonel obtained leave to volunteer in the expedition. His old military spirit and sense of honor suffered of the shame inflicted on the regiment to which he belonged, and from that moment he resolved to die or to prove that he was not to be involved with those men who only sought money or military honors. His letters to his wife are full of regrets and hopes; regrets that a regiment regarded as French should be so disgraced; hopes of redeeming its honor by some action of eclat. Life was nothing to him; love for this country, enthusiasm for its cause, were the only sentiments that animated his soul. On the morning of the battle of Roanoke (February 8, 1862), he landed with the 9th regiment, N. Y. S. V. (Hawkin's Zouaves), armed with a carbine, and determined to fight as a private. He refused to serve in the staff, as Gen. Burnside wanted him to do, and declined to command the left wing of the 21st Regiment, Mass. Volunteers, whose lieutenant colonel commanding (A. C. Maggi) was his friend. "No," said he to him, "I hold my commission from New York State, I will go with a New York Regiment." He wanted to merit his grade and to show his disinterestedness. After having fought for some time at the first rank of the 9th, he fell dead, struck by a bullet which penetrated his brain, whilst urging his men to advance and to charge.

At the time of the death of lieutenant colonel Viguier de Monteil, the newspapers were full of his praises, and his widow received so many marks of sympathy that, if such a sorrow as the loss of a beloved husband could be healed, it would have been.

Lieut. Col. Viguier de Monteil was not only the good patriot, the sincere republican and the brave soldier I describe, he was an upright and a kind man, so honest that one might almost say that he exaggerated honesty, and so kind that he could write to a friend, to whom he was recommending his wife, in case he should be killed: "I never harmed any one, and I did good whenever I could. If I am to be killed in the next conflict, I shall die without fear, tranquil and hopeful, only regretting to leave my wife alone, and not to see the triumph of the good cause."

Many good men have sealed with their blood their love for this land, but none were more truly devoted to it. The country which can show to the world such heroes as those who died in this war, is a great country, and has nothing to fear from the tyrants of Europe, were they all to unite to crush this republic. Love of freedom is the greatest school for soldiers, and enthusiasm creates armies.

AMOS HUMISTON, Sergeant Co. C, 154th Regiment N. Y. S. V., was born in Owego, Tioga county, N. Y., on the 24th of April, 1830, and was the son of Ambrose and Mary (Bronson) Humiston. He received a common school education, and learned the trade of a harness maker, at which he was employed for some time at Candor, Tioga county, where he married Philinda B. Ensworth, by whom he had three children. Inheriting the blood of his grandfather, who was killed in the service of his country during the war of 1812, he volunteered as a private in company C, 154th N. Y. volunteers, at Portville, N. Y., on the 17th July, 1862. He was subsequently promoted fifth corporal and orderly sergeant; was with his company in the actions at Chancellorville and Gettysburg, and fell mortally wounded in the action last named. With barely sufficient strength for that purpose, he crawled to a friendly tree, and, taking from his pocket an ambrotype likeness of his three children, fixed his dying gaze upon them and passed from the field of carnage to the presence of his Creator. When found, the likeness of his children was still firmly grasped in his hand; but beyond that likeness there was nothing showing his name or that indicated that he had friends, or the number of the company or regiment to which he belonged. The picture, and the facts connected with it, came to the hands of Dr. Bourne, of Philadelphia, through whose exertions it was identified and the name of the noble dead ascertained.

ABRAHAM DENNISTON, private Co. G, 107th Regiment N. Y. S. V., was born on the 16th day of January, 1827, in the town of New Windsor, Orange county, N. Y., in that part of the town known as Little Britain, and adjoining the farm of the late Gen. James Clinton. His parents, who are both living, are Goldsmith Denniston and Fanny Denniston, the ancestors of which the father's side, came from the county of Longford, in Ireland, in the year 1735, in company with Col. Charles Clinton and John Young, who all settled in Little Britain, where some of their descendants now reside. Their maternal ancestors were English, and settled on Long Island soon after the occupancy of New York by that government, and from thence removed into that part of Cornwall, now Blooming Grove, which is adjacent to the village of Washingtonville.

Abraham Denniston resided with his parents at Little Britain, attending the common schools of that place, until the year 1838, when they removed to the village of Newburgh, where he attended the academy, then under the charge of the late Nathaniel S. Prime. He continued under the tuition of Mr. Prime for several years. After leaving the academy he entered the store of Charles S. Slauson, as clerk, in which capacity he remained until 1846, when he left Newburgh for the town of Prattsburgh, in Steuben county, to take charge of an estate belonging to his father in that town. Here he was joined by his parents in 1848, and continued to reside with them until he entered the service of the United States as a volunteer in the 107th regiment, N. Y. V. For two years previous he had been in ill health, and the winter of 1860 he spent in the city of Philadelphia, under the care of a physician from whom he received material relief, and returned in the spring convalescent, though not restored to good health.

The secession and the rebellion of the south, rendering it imperative on the north to appeal to arms in order to enforce the laws of the government and to preserve the Union, induced many patriotic young men to volunteer, and to aid, as far as in their power, the restoration of law and order in the insurrectionary districts. Among those who answered in 1862, the call of the government, was the subject of this memoir. Although he was not in rugged health, he felt under obligations to the government under which he had lived from childhood and been protected and educated, to join the army for its defence. Said he to his parents, "I can do something for my country in this time of her danger, and what little I can do, I do not feel at liberty to refuse." It being suggested that he could get an office—"No," said he, "I shall not wait for that—the country wants soldiers; I shall volunteer as a private, and do my duty there. There is no discharge of duty in the ranks, and my country can be better served there as in any other station." And in accordance with this resolution, he enlisted at Elmira, in the county of Chemung, N. Y., on the sixth day of August, 1862, to serve for the period of three years. At the time of his enlistment he was thirty-five years old, was 5 feet 10½ inches high, fair complexion, blue eyes, light hair, and of spare habit.

He joined company G, as a private, under the command of Captain John I. Laman, 107th regiment, commanded by Col. R. B. Van Valkenburgh. This regiment received orders to march to the seat of war, and left Elmira for Washington, August 9th, 1862. Upon the arrival at Washington it was ordered across the Potomac to Arlington, where it encamped for some time. It was here that the only drill and preparation for active service was afforded the men composing the regiment—a fitting place for such purpose. In sight of the capitol and surrounded by the heights of Arlington, they had sufficient incentives to learn and to perform the service before them. Their drill was of short duration. The tide of war rolled northward from Richmond; McClellan was driven across the peninsula to the James river; Banks was compelled to retreat towards the Potomac; Pope was forced back upon Washington, and the rebel hosts swept onward into Maryland, threatening Baltimore and Pennsylvania. A massing of the loyal forces became necessary, and every regiment was ordered to move for that purpose.

Abraham Denniston marched with the 107th from Arlington to Rockville, in Maryland, thence to Frederic, through Middletown to Antietam, where they arrived upon the battle-field with the Third Wisconsin regiment, and went immediately into the contest. For seven hours they lay in support of a battery, and when the rebels charged upon it, they were met with the bayonet and driven back, while the shot and shell screamed and whistled either way over their heads. Thus passed the day, until the rebels were driven back at all points, and our troops lay upon their arms all night, expecting to be ordered forward in the morning. But the order came not, and the retreating rebels, who were plunging across the ford at Antietam, running each other down, as in a stampede of cattle, effected their escape.

Laying upon the battle-field throughout the night, Abraham took cold and was afflicted with rheumatism for some time, but he continued in active service, in the night march, and the regiment encamped at Antietam Ford, guarding the retreat, being too much indisposed to march.

tailed as clerk and book-keeper for the brigade-surgeon, Dr. Flood. He went with the regiment to Maryland Heights, where he remained until the latter part of December, and then to Fairfax station. On the march to the latter place, he was very much troubled with "chronic dysentery" and "kidney affection," which reduced him so much that he was advised to apply for a furlough to return home and recruit his health. As the regiment was about marching to Aquia creek, he went to a hospital at Washington, and at the same time applied for leave to return home. This application was subjected to the usual official routine. It was made on the 31st Dec., approved by Capt. Laman, Jan. 8, by the colonel, Jan. 9, by commander of brigade, Jan. 10, by commander of division, Jan. 12, by major-general of corps, Jan. 13, referred to general hospital, Jan. 17, returned Jan. 18. The return was effected by transmission through all the officers named in succession, and took as many days as was consumed in forwarding it, and when it finally reached Capt. Laman, Abraham Denniston had taken leave of all things in the present world. He died in Odd Fellows Hall Hospital, at Washington, D. C., on 5th of February, 1863. His body was embalmed and placed in charge of Lieut. Harvey G. Denniston, of the same regiment (his brother), and conveyed to the residence of his father in Prattsburgh, where the funeral was held on the 19th of February.

In concluding this brief memoir, the testimony of Capt. Laman may not be inappropriate. Under date of Feb. 16, 1863, that officer writes: "His correct manner of doing business, his integrity, and his amiable deportment, rendered him indispensable to Dr. Flood, among the sick. While connected with my company, he was universally esteemed for his good qualities, and highly respected by his brother soldiers for his moral character. He was a brave soldier, passing through one of the bloodiest battles of the present war with the least apparent fear, and without harm. Beyond my expectations, he endured our long and weary march through Maryland without the least word of complaint, although I discovered it wore heavily on his too slender constitution. When his death was announced to my company it seemed to cast a gloom over all their spirits that another brave soldier had gone from us to his final rest."

WALTER HENRY, son of Thomas Murray, of Troy, N. Y., was killed on the 7th of March, 1842, and was brought to this country by his parents at an early age. At the outbreak of the war, he was a resident of Pittsburgh, Pa., where he was employed as a puddler in one of the iron foundries of that city. He enlisted in the 3d Pennsylvania cavalry, on the 8th of August, 1861, for three years; was made corporal on the 15th August, 1862, and has already faithfully served in thirty-five engagements with the enemy, viz.: at Lewinsville, Yorktown, Williamsburgh, New Kent Court House, Bottom's Bridge, Charles City Cross Roads, Malvern Hill, Antietam, Shepardstown, Upperville, Piedmont, Orleans, Waterloo, Amesville, Newman's Cross Roads, Hartwick Church, Kelly's Ford, Brandy Station, Stevensburgh, Aldie, Upperville, Poplar Springs, Gettysburg, Emmettsburg, Leitersburgh, Shepardstown, Hazel River, Culpepper, Rapidan Station, Occoquan Creek, and New Hope Church. He was taken prisoner at Hartwick Church, near Warrentown, Nov. 26, 1862, and was in Richmond fourteen days; but with that exception was never absent from duty until wounded in action at New Hope Church, Nov. 29, 1863, and the nature of this wound, and his wonderful endurance under its effects, are worthy of especial record. His story is a brief one, and was related to the writer with much modesty and diffidence.

"My army life was without other incident or adventure than that common to the service. Our regiment formed part of Averill's Brigade, and has been almost constantly on duty. Though exposed in many engagements, I escaped unhurt, although a ball passed through my cap at Chancellorville, and cut off a portion of my hair. At Hartwick Church, I was taken prisoner, and was on short rations in Richmond prison for fourteen days, when I was exchanged and returned to my regiment.

"In the engagement at Mine Run, on the 29th Nov., 1863, I was struck by a conical ball of about an ounce weight, which passed in on the left side of my nose and penetrated my skull. At the time I was struck I did not fall, but as soon as the blood gushed out I grew faint and laid down on the ground, where I lost a large quantity of blood. I was taken up and placed in an ambulance, and conveyed some eight miles to hospital of regiment, where my wound was dressed on the second day after receiving it. From thence I was taken to the U. S. Hospital at Fairfax Seminary, Va., where I arrived on the 5th of December. An examination of my wound was made, and it was found to attempt the removal of the ball. The ball was not removed.

and was effected with much difficulty. The surgeon put his finger in the hole and was able to touch the head of the ball and ascertain its location. Forceps were then inserted, but so firmly was the ball imbedded that the instrument repeatedly slipped off and came out with its grooves filled with lead. As a last resort the forceps were fixed and the handles wired firmly together, and by a strong pull the ball was removed.

"The ball in its course did not injure my teeth or my hearing, and the wound is now rapidly healing. I shall return to my regiment when my present furlough expires."

The case is thus attested by Geo. S. Bennett, Acting Assistant Surgeon, U. S. A., of Fairfax Seminary hospital:

"Allow me to introduce to you Corporal Patrick Murray, of Co. G, 3d Penn. Vols., who is a New York man, and has friends residing in Troy.

"Corp. Murray was wounded at the battle of Mine Run, Va., Nov. 29, 1863, and was admitted into this hospital Dec. 5, 1863. On the day following his admission, a council of surgeons decided that the ball (which was lodged very near the base of the brain, having entered at the left side of the nose and penetrated to the depth of five inches) must be removed. Accordingly he was placed under the influence of chloroform, and the operation performed by Surgeon D. P. Smith, our surgeon in charge. The operation was a very tedious and severe one, owing to the depth of the ball and its being so completely impacted in the bones at the base of the skull, and requiring great skill to avoid injury to important organs. After almost superhuman efforts the ball was extracted—the time occupied in the operation being one hour and a quarter. It was a Minie ball of the largest size. The wound has healed readily, and he is now able to go home on furlough. Another fact of interest in regard to this man is, that, according to entries upon his descriptive list, he has passed through thirty-five battles with his regiment."

Corp. Murray called at the Bureau of Military Statistics, on the 9th of February, 1864. His personal appearance is that of a true soldier. Courage and endurance predominate in his physique, while his conversation is that of a simple-minded and truthful man.

HISTORIES OF REGIMENTS AND OTHER ORGANIZATIONS.

At an early period in the organization of the Bureau, a blank form was prepared embracing inquiries upon every essential point connected with the origin, formation and services of regiments and other military organizations raised within the State of New York for service under the Federal Government. It was not designed to include in these inquiries the partial details already subjects of record in the military departments of the State, but rather to collect, in systematic form, an account of the formation of these organizations, together with their record after they had left the State, and were no longer under its control.

These inquiries embraced the number, synonym, place of organization, the name and location of the camp where organized, circumstances attending formation, and aid received as gifts or bounties, presentation of flags and testimonials, facts concerning inspection and mustering into the service of the United States, assignment to brigades, divisions and corps, with the names of generals commanding, services of officers acting by local or provisional appointment, by detail, or by virtue of rank, in positions to which they did not ordinarily belong, facts concerning supplies of arms, clothing and camp equipage, and a full account of the marches and services of the regiment or battery, the battles and skirmishes in which engaged, and statistical summaries of casualties by companies. The returns, if complete, would furnish the dates of all important events, the numerical strength at stated intervals; and, collectively, the aggregate force in service from this State, the number of recruits received and losses sustained, and the sanitary condition and general efficiency of regiments throughout their terms of service.

A blank was also prepared of similar scope, adapted to batteries and detached companies, to be used chiefly in obtaining the statistics of cavalry, artillery, sharpshooters and engineers, as these companies may severally have a history peculiar to themselves, from the fact that they often operate separately from the regiment to which they belong.

These blanks have been distributed, so far as the done, without infringing upon the rules that the War Department saw proper to make in reference to the collection of statistics. These rules of the war office were occasioned by a consideration of the risks incurred of the capture of the returns by the enemy during the period of active field operations, thereby affording them important intelligence. But no instance has occurred in which the General Government has, in the slightest degree, been embarrassed by this Bureau in this regard.

Quite a number of returns have been received from officers to whom these blanks were sent, while the care and labor involved in their preparation have delayed others that are known to be in course of preparation. Histories of several of the returned regiments have been written out from material furnished the Bureau, and it was intended to present a number of these in this report, but upon reading them carefully over, with persons familiar with the subject, with a view to entire accuracy, points were raised upon which further information was desirable, and the intention of including them now was, with one exception, reluctantly abandoned.

Circulars were prepared to be issued to regimental surgeons and chaplains, embracing inquiries upon subjects of historical interest naturally coming within the sphere of their professional observations, and have been used to some extent.

In several instances the returns have been sufficiently exact to enable us to trace the route of the regiment from day to day upon a map throughout its whole term of service. And it is proper to add that the inquiries are made with the view of obtaining the movements of all the regiments from this State with this same degree of fullness. A series of maps representing the marches, encampments and battles of the several regiments would possess great historical interest, and there is every reason to believe that the materials now being collected will afford data for such a volume.

The following history of the 18th Regiment, is inserted in this report, not on account of any merit which it may possess over other regiments, but because it was most convenient, as presenting a concise and full narrative that might be advantageously followed by officers about to prepare similar histories of their regiments. With the exception of the statistical summaries not included, it may be regarded as a fair average of detail that may be expected of other regiments and organizations:

HISTORICAL SKETCH OF THE EIGHTEENTH REGIMENT, NEW YORK STATE VOLUNTEER MILITIA.

This regiment was formed at Albany, from companies previously organized in the localities where they were enlisted, and chiefly in the following places :

Company A, at Schenectady, Schenectady county.

Company B, at Albany, Albany county.

Company C, at Fishkill, Dutchess county.

Company D, at Middletown, Orange county.

Company E, at Schenectady, Schenectady county.

Company F, at Albany, Albany county.

Company G, at Canandaigua, Ontario county.

Company H,† at Albany, Albany county.

Company I, at Albany, Albany county.

Company K, at Ogdensburgh, St. Lawrence county.

The regiment was accepted on the 11th as a rifle regiment, and the field and staff were elected and commissioned on the 14th of May, 1861. They were mustered into the service of the United States on May 17th, at Albany, by Captain (now General) Frank Wheaton. The regiment was not first sworn into the State service, although several of its companies were accepted between April 22d and the time of mustering into the Federal service. When accepted, the regiment numbered 834 officers and men.

A stand of colors was presented to the regiment at the Industrial School barracks, on the afternoon of June 1, 1861, by Jacob L. Werner, on behalf of the ladies of Albany. Their expense was largely defrayed by Mrs. Franklin Townsend. This standard, which was the national flag, bore the inscription—"Bally-weed them," and upon the staff was a silvered plate engraved with sented to the 18th Reg't, N. Y. S. Vols., Col. Wm. A. Jackson, by his lady friends of Albany, June 1, 1861." The staff and the red stripes were replaced, after being some time in the service, but the white and blue portions of the original, remain in the flag that was brought home with the regiment, and deposited in the Bureau of Military Statistics.

Before leaving Albany, the regiment received its clothing and outfit, with the exception of its arms. The quality of the first lot of clothing was very poor, but subsequent issues from the State were superior to the average issued by the United States government. The first overcoats of the men were grey and of superior quality, but this was exchanged for the kind prescribed by regulations.

On the 18th of June, the regiment went down to New York, landed at Jersey city; received its arms, and at once continued on to Washington by way of Philadelphia and Baltimore. The arms first issued were Enfield rifles, which were exchanged subsequently at New Bridge, on the peninsula, for Springfield rifles. (Cal. 58.) No further changes of arms were made while in the service, except to supply deficiencies.

Arriving at Washington late in the evening of June 20, they reported to Gen. Mansfield, and the next day were assigned a site for a camp on Fourteenth street, on Meridian Hill, opposite Columbian college. They here received tents of the common "A" pattern, and began their first lessons of field life. Their first encampment was named "Camp Harris," in honor of Senator Ira Harris, of Albany.

On the 4th of July, all the New York troops were reviewed by the President and Gen. Scott.

They remained in camp until July 12, when the regiment was ordered to proceed to Alexandria, by way of the Potomac river. Embarking upon the steamers they arrived at their destination, and the same night encamped on the flats near Hunting creek, in front of Alexandria. On the day following they were brigaded with the 16th, 31st and 32d New York regiments, as a part of the 2d brigade of the 5th division, the brigade being commanded by Col. Davies, of the 16th, and the division by Col. Miles, of the regular service. Their first location in Virginia was named "Camp Miles," in honor of the Attorney General of New York. For an advance against the enemy, who were encamped near Manassas Junction, were then in an advanced stage, and on the 16th of July the army marched from their camps, near Alexandria. The division under Col. Miles followed the Little River turnpike and old Braddock road, and bivouacked the first night near Anandale.

On the 17th, the regiment resumed the march, four companies (A, B, G and K) being thrown forward as skirmishers, under Lt. Col. Young. They had advanced in this manner but a short distance, when a dropping fire was opened upon them, and a sharp skirmish ensued, which continued at intervals for about four hours. The enemy proved to be the 5th Alabama regiment, who retreated before the advancing columns of our troops, but kept up a constant and harrassing fire upon our skirmishers. The 18th lost two killed and three wounded. The killed were Sergeant John Waterson, Co. A, and Sergeant John Allen of Co. K. Upon arriving at Fairfax Court-house, it was found that the enemy had been driven out, and the regiment bivouacked for the night.

On the 18th of July, resumed the march at daylight, and reached Centerville in the afternoon. The division here bivouacked, and remained until daylight of the 21st, when it was ordered forward, and took a position near Blackburn's ford. The 2d brigade was posted on the left, supporting Green's and Hunt's batteries, (2d U. S. artillery,) with the view of checking any advances of the enemy in that direction. Four companies, of which two were from the 18th, and the others from a Massachusetts regiment, were deployed under Lt. Col. Young, and remained in front while the command held this position.

The battery opened fire about 7 A. M., and the troops remained on this ground about two hours, when orders were received to recall the skirmishers and proceed back upon the road in the vicinity of a building used as a hospital, and there take a position to prevent a flank movement on the left. They were soon afterwards ordered still further back to the crossing of the roads, where they remained until about 4 P. M. Several regiments passed the 18th at this point, followed by the battery, Col Green informing Col. Jackson that he had been left upon the field without a support of any kind. The battery was then nearly out of ammunition, having kept up an incessant fire from the time of taking its position in the morning. The regiment was generally ordered to follow the battery, which it did, and moved back about a mile, where it took up a position on the road.

and to the rear of the battery. This was on the crest of the hill in Centerville, where earthworks were subsequently thrown up by the enemy.

Lieut. Green in reporting an account of the events of the day, says: "I chose a position on the crest of a hill, which, from its shape, gave command of the ground to our left, and also of the road along which our division was retiring. From this position I could perfectly sweep with my fire 180° front, right and left, down a gentle slope. Four regiments were placed as my support, and the force at this point could have stopped double its number.

At this point, an unauthorized person gave orders to retreat. I refused the order, but all my supporting regiments but one (Col. Jackson, 18th N. Y. V.) moved off to the rear. Col. Jackson most gallantly offered his regiment as a support, saying 'that it should remain by me as long as there was any fighting to be done there.' The above mentioned person again made his appearance at this time, and again ordered me to retreat, and ordered Col. Jackson to form column of division on my right and retreat with me, as all was lost. The order was of course disregarded, and in about two minutes the head of a column of the enemy's cavalry came up at a run, opening out of the woods in beautiful order. I was prepared for it, and the column had not gone more than a hundred yards out of the woods, before shells were burst at their head and directly in their midst; they broke in every direction, and no more cavalry came out of the woods."

At Centerville, Col. Richardson, acting as brigadier-general of the 4th Brigade, 1st Division, assumed command of affairs. An attempt was made to rally the scattered regiments which was in a measure accomplished. This ground was held quietly until 11 P. M., when orders were received to proceed to Fairfax Courthouse. This place was reached at 3 A. M., and after a halt of thirty minutes the march was again resumed, and the regiment arrived at its old camp on Hunting Creek at 11 A. M. of the 22d.

The return march was conducted in good order, and the 18th regiment lost no men on the expedition, excepting those killed and wounded in the skirmish when making the advance, and three prisoners lost on the 21st. A detail of nine men was made from the 18th, who assisted in bringing off two brass howitzers that had been abandoned by a part of their men, and left with a lieutenant short of help. These pieces were safely brought in to

On the 23d, the regiment crossed Hunting Creek to protect the camp of the Garibaldi guard and 27th Pennsylvania, and on the 25th they were ordered to report to Col. W. B. Franklin in Alexandria. A new arrangement of regiments was made on the 4th of August, and the 18th was brigaded with the 15th, 31st and 32d N. Y. Vols., under Brigadier-General (late Colonel) Franklin.

On the 23d of August, the camp was removed to the Leesburgh turnpike, under Fort Dalhgren, and on the 27th a new site was selected on the Leesburgh turnpike, and near the toll-gate southeast from Fairfax Seminary, which was named "Camp King."

Brigadier-General Newton assumed command of the brigade on the 25th of September, and Gen. Franklin became commander of the division. The regiment was not transferred from the brigade in which it was now placed, during its two years term of service. At a later period, and during the active field service of 1862-3, it formed a part of the 3d brigade, 1st division and 6th corps.

Newton's brigade constructed Fort Ward in the autumn and early part of the winter of 1861, with aid derived from the 5th Maine regiment, who were temporarily assigned to duty in this brigade. The 15th (engineers) were on the detached, and their place was filled by Col. Goslin's Zouave regiment, known as the 54th, and afterwards as the 95th Penn. Vols.

Towards the end of October, Col. Jackson was seized with an illness, which assuming the form of a bilious intermittent fever, proved fatal on the 11th of November. He had been removed about a fortnight before his death to Washington, and eminent professional aid was called, but without avail. His remains were sent home in the care of Major Myers, and buried at Schenectady on the 14th. They were escorted to the cars at Washington by the regiment, and at Albany were received by the military of the city. Lieut. Col. Young now succeeded to the command.

On the 11th of February, 1862, the regiment removed its camp half a mile north to the Dangerfield premises, the buildings being occupied as head-quarters. The camp was pitched in a peach orchard fronting the house, and the location was, in many respects, an improvement upon the old one, which had become unhealthy from long occupation. It received the name of "Camp Jackson," in honor of the late colonel. While here, "shelter tents" were issued for the first time to the army.

On the 10th of March, 1862, occurred the storming of the towards Manassas, and the 18th, on this day, marched to Fairfax Court House, where it remained till the 14th, and then returned to its old camp, which had been left standing. Arrived at noon on the 15th, and remained till April 6th, and then took cars at Springfield Station for Manassas Junction, the division of Gen. Franklin having been originally assigned to Gen. McDowell's command (1st army corps), for an advance against Richmond by the interior route. The train arrived at Manassas Junction at 8 p. m., but not without accident. When about three miles from that place, the fourth car from the rear ran off the track, and those behind ran into it, killing one man of the 95th Penn. regiment, and wounding about a dozen of the 18th, but not seriously.

On the 7th of April, the command marched five miles to Bristow Station, arriving at noon. While here a most inclement storm of rain and snow occurred, from which the men suffered severely, as they were short of fuel and supplies, and they had as yet not become accustomed to the vicissitudes of field service. Some found shelter in houses, but with the greater part, the experiences on this occasion justified the name of "Camp Misery," which they applied to this cheerless bivouac. These discomforts continued till the 10th, when it came off clear and pleasant, and the troops marched along the railroad five miles, but before reaching Catlett's Station orders were received to countermarch and return to Alexandria, to follow the expedition that had mostly sailed for the peninsula. The regiment marched to a mile beyond Broad Run, near Bristow, and encamped.

On the 12th, they marched to Fairfax Court-house, and the next day returned to their old camp near Fairfax Seminary. Here their deficiencies of clothing were supplied, and on the 17th they bade a final adieu to Camp Jackson, and embarked at Alexandria, the right wing, under Col. Young, on board the steamer "Nantasket," and the left, under Lieut. Col. Myers, on the steamer "Louisiana," with the 31st regiment. They sailed the same evening, and at 9 a. m., on the 19th, arrived at Ship Point, south of the mouth of York river, where, after a few days, they disembarked and encamped till May 4th. While here the regiment was paid.

Preparations for the siege of Yorktown were terminated by the evacuation of that place by the rebels on the night of the 3d, and the command embarked on board the steamers "Nantasket" and "Louisiana," and steamed up the York river to opposite Yorktown, from whence, at noon on the 5th, they proceeded to West Point, under convoy of three gunboats. Arriving at 2 P. M., on the 6th, the division of Gen. Franklin landed on the south shore, and took up a position for meeting the enemy, who were known to be in that vicinity in force.

Companies A, D, F and K, of the 18th, were thrown out as pickets, in the woods on the extreme left of the line of battle, under Major Maginnis. They continued on this duty during the ensuing day, and suffered no loss. The battle of West Point occurred on the 7th, and lasted from 7 A. M. till 2 P. M., with scarcely an interruption. The six companies of this regiment who were not out as skirmishers were engaged in supporting batteries on the right of the line for some time, when they were ordered to advance into the woods and support the 5th Maine regiment who were making a forward movement. The latter received a desperate volley and broke. The 18th advanced and drove the enemy from the woods.

The 18th met with no losses on this occasion, but their steady bearing was complimented the next day by General Newton, the general who had immediate command in this battle. Every other regiment in the brigade suffered loss, the heaviest being upon the 32d.

The enemy opposed to the division on this occasion was "Hampton's Legion" and the "Louisiana Tigers." The gunboats on York river did effective service, and drove away a battery of field artillery which the enemy had posted in a commanding position.

May 8th, moved about one mile to the front to support Upton's battery. On the 9th, marched to Brick House Point, about two and a half miles, and went on picket. On the 11th, marched to Eltham, three miles, where the division was met by Gen. McClellan and the main body of his army, which had advanced by land from Yorktown. The only divisions that passed up the York river were those of Franklin and Sedgwick.

On the 13th, marched 12 miles to Cumberland and immediately formed a line of battle, expecting an attack, but no enemy appeared, and the regiment was ordered into camp in a plowed field near the river.

On the 15th, marched nine miles in a storm to White House Point, on the Pamunkey, and encamped. The supplies for the army were mostly brought up by the river, and this point became a base for future operations.

this place Colonel Young was obliged to leave for home, as exposure and hardship brought on a severe disease, which rendered him entirely unfit for service. The command devolved on Lieut. Col. Myers, who, from this time forward, with the exception to be presently noticed, continued at the head of the regiment until its term of service expired.

On the 19th of May, the regiment marched to Tunstall's Station (six miles), and the next day marched at 3 p. m., and encamped, at 6 p. m., at Coal Harbor, distance five miles. On the 21st, they marched nine miles, arriving at a point 10 miles from Richmond and three from New Bridge, which was destroyed by the rebels. The advance of the army was made by Gen. Stoneman, with his cavalry and flying artillery, and the reports obtained from scouts and balloon ascensions appeared to indicate that the enemy were retreating upon Richmond.

On the 25th, marched to New Market Bridge, and encamped on a beautiful spot on the banks of the Chickahominy, near Gaines' Mill, which has since become so celebrated for the battle fought there about a month afterwards. The rebel pickets were in sight upon the arrival of troops at this place, and from the adjacent hill-tops the spires of churches in the rebel metropolis were plainly visible, at a distance of six and a half miles.

From this time till June 18, the regiment was engaged on fatigue and picket duty. Roads and bridges were built across the Chickahominy, and others were constructed leading from the railroad at Dispatch and Savage's stations to the camps. The battles of Hanover Court House and Fair Oaks were fought during this period, but the corps with which it was connected took no part in these encounters. The Enfield rifles first received, were on the 3d of June exchanged for Springfield rifle muskets.

While employed in this vicinity, the 18th had frequent skirmishes with small parties of the enemy, in which a man was occasionally wounded.

June 18. The division marched at 10 a. m., crossed the Chickahominy at Woodbury bridge, and after marching about ten miles in a circuitous line, to avoid the observation of the enemy, arrived on the battle field of Fair Oaks, which had a few days before been the scene of an engagement. The army was here formed in line of battle, again expecting an attack, but no enemy appearing, they advanced just beyond, on Golden's farm, and were there engaged. From the same evening the regiment was called to arms, but as often the alarm appeared without serious cause. They remained in this locality building roads and bridges for artillery across the swamps, until the 20th. The proximity of this point to Richmond, (four or five miles,) rendered constant vigilance necessary, and frequent skirmishing between pickets occurred.

This condition of affairs could not continue long without leading to important events. The daily cannonade indicated active movements as in progress, and on the 25th and 26th, the heavy firing to the right gave notice that Porter was engaged with the enemy at Mechanicsville. The near prospect of an early and decisive conflict occasioned great enthusiasm among the troops in the vicinity, and the military bands of the several regiments increased this ardor by playing spirited national tunes.

On the 27th of June, the division of Gen. Franklin was ordered across the Chickahominy to support Porter's corps at Gaines' Hill, but was soon after remanded back to their camp, a distance of four miles. Upon regaining camp, the regiment was shelled out by the enemy, who had brought a battery to bear upon this position. One man was killed and four wounded by this artillery firing, all of them belonging to Company I. At 2 p. m. the division again received orders to cross the Chickahominy, to support Porter's corps, and reached the scene of engagement about 4 o'clock, but too late to retrieve the fortunes of the day, already lost before the overwhelming forces of the enemy.

The 18th regiment fought till half-past six o'clock, losing 180 officers and men in killed, wounded and missing. Many of the wounded fell into the hands of the enemy, with all our dead. Lieut. Col. Myers, who had up to this time commanded, was now so ill that Gen. Newton directed him to be sent North, leaving the care of the regiment to Major Maginnis. The brigade in this battle was led by Col. Matheson, of the 32d N. Y. Vols., and the division by Gen. Newton.

After expending its ammunition, the regiment fell back, followed by the victorious enemy, about half a mile, when they were checked by the Irish brigade and Rush's lancers. (5th Pa. Cav.,) and about midnight the 18th again crossed to the south bank of the Chickahominy.

In the battle of Gaines' Hill, the 18th was to the left of the center of the line of battle, with the 32d N. Y. to the left, the 31st and 95th Pa. to the right. Honorable mention is made was in the rear, and is believed to have done injury to our own troops while throwing shell over their heads.

During the heat of the engagement, an incident worthy of notice occurred. An officer, mounted on a white horse, rode up to this regiment and ordered it to cease firing. His appearance was much like that of a well-known field officer of an associated regiment, and he was by some mistaken for him, but upon his coming within fifty yards, he was recognized as a rebel officer, and shot dead by Corporal Kearnes, the color guard. As he fell, his foot caught in the stirrup, and his frightened horse dragged his lifeless body back into the rebel lines.

The 18th was the last to cross the bridge, which was destroyed behind them. On the 28th, the troops were busily employed barricading the roads, destroying camp and garrison equipage, extra baggage and commissary stores, by order of the Commander; and this task having been effectually performed, the troops began their retreat at 2 o'clock A. M., June 29th, and the same day reached Charles City Cross Roads and encamped.

The battle of White Oak Swamp was fought on this day by the troops under Kearney and Sumner.

On the 30th of June, was fought the battle of Charles City Cross Roads, in which the division which Gen. Franklin had hitherto commanded, was under Gen. Slocum, and was employed in supporting batteries in a cornfield, near the cross roads. These opened on the enemy, and kept up a continual firing till after dark. The loss was slight, and the 18th met with no casualties. The battery immediately in front of the regiment was Upton's, Co. D, 2d U. S. artillery.

The troops lay in this position till an hour after midnight, and then silently withdrew, and by a quick march reached Turkey Bend, on the James river, from whence, after a short halt, they marched to Malvern Hill, a little beyond which they encamped. The battle of Malvern Hill began soon after the division passed, and was fought with determination and with immense disparity of loss to the enemy.

On the 2d of July, the division marched to Harrison's Landing, early in the morning, and encamped in a wheatfield, where the whole army of the Potomac were soon assembled with its baggage trains, artillery and herds of cattle. The weather at this time was rainy, and the mud soon became knee deep, almost rendering the march impracticable. On the following day, the enemy brought a battery into position to shell the camps, but this annoyance was soon abated by the capture of the battery and several hundred prisoners. The 18th regiment and other troops took up a position two miles distant, on the spot which the battery had occupied, and again encamped. On the 6th, the regiment again moved its camp half a mile to the front, and near the entrenchments that were being thrown up, and two days later to still another site on the bank of a creek. The army was here reviewed by President Lincoln.

On the 20th of July Col. Young returned to the regiment, but he remained only a few days, as the exposures of the camp brought on a return of disease in a grave form, rendering it necessary for him to again leave for the North. He subsequently resigned and did not rejoin the regiment.

The Eighteenth continued to perform fatigue and picket duties until the 15th, when the tents were struck for a march to Newport News. The extra baggage had been sent off some days before, and the trains of teams and artillery were filing past all day of the 15th and the night following, until 2 A. M. The regiment then got under way and marched six miles, where it halted till the morning of the 17th. It then crossed the Chickahominy, near its mouth, upon a pontoon bridge, under cover of the gunboats, and continued on the most fatiguing march it had yet encountered, a distance of 16 miles. The dust and heat were almost intolerable, and the delay from trains obstructing the road was very annoying.

The 18th of August was pleasanter, and the regiment this day passed through Williamsburgh. On the 19th, at 2 P. M., they arrived at Yorktown, greatly fatigued by the hardships of the forced march, under which many fell out, and several cases of sunstroke occurred. On the 20th, marched through the village of Warwick Court House, and on the 21st arrived at Newport News, where they were met by Lieut. Col. Myers, who had been absent sick, but who from this time forward, remained in command of the regiment as its Colonel.

On the 22d of August, the regiment embarked on the Daniel Webster, in company with the 52d, and in the evening started for Alexandria, where they arrived on the morning of the 24th. They then landed and marched up the Little River towards the Seminary and encamped. On the 25th, moved to the front, and encamped at Anandale, distance from the 30th they again marched, arriving at Centerville at 4 P. M., where they halted, but were soon ordered to proceed towards the battle field, and arrived at the Stone bridge just before dark. Here the troops under Gen. Franklin formed a line of battle across the fields on each side of the road, covering the retreat of Pope's defeated army. Late in the night they fell back to Centerville, where a stand was again made, and the artillery planted in the old fortifications. This position was held during the 31st and the day following, but the enemy in the meantime having gained the right flank of Pope's army, a retreat was ordered to Fairfax and Alexandria, and the 18th encamped on the site of "Camp King," one of their earliest places in Virginia.

The respite of the troops from active service was brief, and on the evening of the 6th, the division took up its line of march to meet the invasion into Maryland. Crossing the Long Bridge, it marched through Washington and Georgetown in the night, and by morning had reached Tenallytown.

On the 8th they passed through Rockville, Md., where the transportation of the army was greatly reduced, and every article of camp equipage that could possibly be spared, was sent back to Washington, leaving with the men nothing but shelter-tents, blankets and arms.

On the 9th they marched through Darnestown, on the 11th passed Downesville, and on the 12th through Urbana, five miles from Frederick city.

Their march continued on the day following towards Burkettsville, at the foot of the South Mountain, at a crossing known as Crampton Pass, where, on the 14th of September, the troops of Gen. Franklin valiantly won one of the most brilliant victories of the war.

The enemy held the crest of the mountain with their artillery, while their lines of infantry, on the slope and near its foot, were sheltered by parallel stone walls and thickets of trees, from behind which they had ample opportunities of resisting the advancing lines of our troops.

The part performed by the 18th in this battle, is clearly set forth in the report of Col. Myers, who commanded upon the occasion.

OFFICIAL REPORT OF THE 18TH N. Y. VOLS., OF THE BATTLE
OF CRAMPTON GAP, SEPT. 14, 1862.

HEADQUARTERS 18TH REG'T, N. Y. VOLS., }
NEAR BAKERSVILLE, MD., Sept. 24, 1862. }

To Lieut. William Russell, Jr., A. A. A. G.:

Lieutenant—I have the honor to make the following report of the part my regiment took in the battle of Crampton Gap, Sept. 14, 1862.

About 3 o'clock p. m., on Sept. 14, 1862, I received orders, from Gen. Newton, to advance my regiment across the fields and silence a battery that was stationed upon the road about half way up the hill. I advanced my regiment, under a heavy fire from the enemy's artillery and sharpshooters, to within fifty yards of the line of Col. Bartlett's brigade (who was engaging the enemy), when I was ordered to halt, and a few moments after received an order to form on the right of Col. Bartlett's Brigade. I moved my regiment by the right flank to the position indicated, and engaged the enemy from behind a stone wall.

The whole line was then ordered forward, we going through corn-field and orchard at a double quick, to the road at the foot of the mountain, where I halted and reformed my regiment, which had become somewhat broken. I then gave the order to charge the hill, the 32d New York being on my left, and the 16th New York on my right flank. On rising the hill to the road which ran along the side of the hill, I received a terrific volley from the enemy. It was here that I met with my heaviest loss, the fire of the enemy being well-directed and fatal. At this point, Capt. Horsfall was killed, while gallantly leading his men to the charge, and Lieuts. Daley and Ellis were severely wounded while at the heads of their companies in the same charge. The men staggered for a moment, but at the command rushed upon the enemy, killing and wounding many and entirely routing them. I then reached the crest of the hill, when I halted and reformed my regiment. I then sent my adjutant back for orders. He received instructions from Major Rogers, of Gen. Slocum's staff, to rest the regiment where it was until further orders. After remaining there about an hour, I was ordered by Col. Calk (who was in command on the hill), to take my regiment down the hill to the gap, where the division was being formed. I marched up regiment to the point indicated, and bivouacked on the left of the road.

It gives me great pleasure to state to you that my entire command behaved with the greatest coolness and bravery, the men receiving the enemy's fire and charging his position with the steadiness of veterans.

I would particularize among the line officers, Capt. A. Barclay Mitchell and Lieut. Daniel Daley, as being brave and courageous to a fault, rallying and encouraging their men under the heaviest fire. The field and staff were of great assistance to me, and behaved with great gallantry. Major John C. Maginnis displayed at all times the greatest coolness and energy, and deserves the highest commendation. My regiment lost, in the action, one captain and ten men killed, two lieutenants and forty men wounded and two men missing, being a total loss of fifty-eight. All of which is respectfully submitted.

E. NOTT SCHERMERHORN, Lt. A. Adjutant.

* The troops opposed to our army were McLaw's division of North Carolina troops, forming a part of D. H. Hill's division. The 18th took about 100 prisoners and one flag.

Upon gaining the crest of the mountain, the regiment halted and formed for a bivouac, and here, the same evening, before midnight, they were visited by agents of the Sanitary Commission, with their supplies for the sick and wounded, all of whom, of both belligerent parties, received attention before morning.

The troops of this command rested on the mountain on the 15th and 16th, but marched at daybreak on the 17th towards Keedysville, and across the fields to the right of the turnpike leading from Sharpsburgh to Hagerstown, where they arrived about 1 P. M., on the day of the battle, and took a position in front of the Dunker church by the woodside. The command of Gen. Sumner had retired before their arrival. The position to which they were assigned was exposed to a heavy fire of grape and canister, which was answered by the batteries of Porter, Hazamer and Upton, attached to Slocum's division.

The 18th lay supporting a battery during the remainder of the day, and had only two men wounded. After remaining two days on the ground they marched to the Potomac, near a point where the river crossed, and on the night of the 21st, moved by way of the turnpike, to within a mile of Williamsport. The corps, under Gen. Franklin, on the 29th, moved down the river again to near Bakersville, where they remained about a month, engaged in supplying the losses of the late active campaign, and guarding the banks of the Potomac.

On the 29th of October, the 6th corps followed the principal part of the army, which had advanced for another march into Virginia, and encamped at Downsville. On the 31st, they crossed the mountain at Crampton Pass, and the day following arrived at Berlin. They crossed, on the 2d, on pontoons, to Lovettsville; on the 3d, passed through Perceyville; on the 4th, they reached Union, near Moore's Mills; on the 5th, they passed Upperville, and on the 6th, reached White Plains, on the Manassas Gap railroad, where they encamped.

On the 9th, they crossed the Bull Run mountains to New Baltimore, leaving Thoroughfare Gap to the left, and at this place, on the 10th, they were reviewed, for the last time, by General McClellan, and came under the orders of Gen. Burnside.

On the 17th, they marched to Catlett's Station, and on the 18th, to Stafford Court House, where the division remained ten days. Bartlett's brigade was then sent out about eight miles in the direction of Warrentown, with Hexamer's battery, to guard against a raid threatened from that quarter, but the apprehension of an attack passed away without incident, and on the 30th, they returned to Stafford Court House.

On the 4th of December, Brook's division (late Newton's) marched to a point three miles from Belleplain Landing, near Fletcher's Chapel, where it remained doing ordinary field duties until the morning of the 11th, when it marched to the Rappahannock at the lower pontoon bridges, which they crossed at daylight on the 12th. The 2d Rhode Island and 7th Massachusetts had crossed the night before to protect the bridges, and the 18th New York was the first regiment to cross in the morning. The whole regiment was deployed as skirmishers, and were supported by the 95th Penn., the 31st and 32d New York and battery D, 2d artillery, lately commanded by Capt. Upton, but now by Willetson. This line of skirmishers advanced across the road and Deep Run and extended about 500 yards beyond the railroad, being near the railroad. They held this position all day, the morning of the 13th, and suffered much from the cold, as no fires could be allowed.

by the 15th New Jersey, and fell back into Deep Run Valley, where they were held in reserve during the battle of that day, and through the day following. The division was not much engaged in the battle with the exception of the New Jersey troops. On the 15th, the 18th was sent out on picket, and a little after midnight recrossed the Rappahannock, without having suffered any casualty beyond that of two men wounded. They went into camp back from the river on the 16th, and on the 19th moved to the vicinity of White Oak Church, King George's county, where they formed a winter camp.

On the 20th of January, 1863, the regiment marched at noon to a point three miles above Falmouth, and halted in a pine grove, where they spent the night in a cheerless rain. The next day they marched to Bank's Ford, and went into camp without fires. There all further advance was checked by the mud, and after spending two days assisting to draw pontoons and artillery out to the turnpike, they regained their old quarters at their winter camp, much exhausted by the severity of their late fruitless labors.

Picket duties were resumed, and continued till near the close of April, with occasional reviews, among which were one by Gen. Hooker, April 3d, one by the President, April 8th, and by the Swiss General Fogliardi on the 18th of that month.

Preparations for a forward movement were in the meantime progressing, and on the 14th the tents were turned in to the quartermaster's department, and rations for an eight days' march were issued. Delays, however, occurred, and not until the 28th did the troops finally leave their camp, with sixty rounds of ammunition and eight days' provisions. Their route led as before down to the Rappahannock, near the spot where the lower pontoon bridges had been laid in December. At ten o'clock in the evening, the colonels of the several regiments constituting Russell's brigade (119th Pa., 18th and 32d N. Y., 95th and 49th Pa.), were called to his tent, and the part assigned to them on the morrow was explained.

This brigade was ordered to cross the river in boats at midnight, and cover the building of the bridges. The specific duty of each regiment was stated, and the manner of landing and the position of the rifle-pits of the enemy which lined the banks were explained. Forty boats were to be launched, their sterns resting upon the bank, and to each of these, four men of the 15th N. Y. Vols. was assigned to manage the boats, return for another load, and finally bring them to their proper place in the bridge. A delay occurred in getting the boats to the bank, and all things were not ready for the crossing before daylight. These movements had not probably attracted particular notice on the part of the enemy, as for two weeks previous it had been the practice every night to launch boats and then draw them out again. The enemy had learned to regard the movement as a feint, and upon this occasion were probably not aware of our real intentions.

The arrangements being completed, the brigade embarked, the general and his staff being in the centre, and the colonels with their colors, in the boats assigned to their regiments. The boats afforded standing room for fifty men each.

It was just beginning to dawn as Gen. Russell gave the word to shove off, and the fleet of boats simultaneously began a rapid flight towards the south shore. It was a moment of intense interest to every man, yet nothing occurred to indicate a watchful enemy until they approached within ten yards of the bank, when a terrific volley of musketry opened upon them, wounding the colonel of the 49th Pennsylvania regiment, one captain and about 25 men, of whom three belonged to the 18th regiment. None were killed. The boats kept on their course, and the moment they touched land, the men sprang out, some of them into the water, and rushed up the bank with fixed bayonets, firing a volley as they advanced.

The rifle pits were at once cleared and occupied, and the enemy scattered and fled, leaving arms, blankets and equipage behind them. One lieutenant-colonel of a Georgia regiment was captured. The boats quickly returned for Bartlet's and then for Torbet's brigade, and in less than an hour the whole division had crossed, and the bridge was under a rapid course of construction.

The movement at this point was itself only a feint to draw attention from the main crossing of the army at the fords several miles above Fredericksburgh. The 18th went on picket soon after it crossed, and remained till evening, when a part of them were detailed as a working party, to change the front of the enemy's works and adapt them for defence against any attack which might be threatened. The six Napoleon guns of the 1st Artillery were brought over and placed in position. This was the only artillery that crossed the river.

1st of May Pratt's light brigade crossed and took position on the picket line; on the 2d the brigade advanced half a mile; and on the 3d the 18th and 32d New York regiments lay in position, supporting battery D, near the ruins of the Barnard House,* where they were shelled four hours by the enemy, with the loss of one man killed in the battery and several wounded, of which four belonged to the 18th. On the morning of this day, Newton's division, composed of Dutton's, Wheaton's and Cochrane's brigades, with the independent brigade under Gen. Pratt, advanced and stormed the heights back of the city and a little below, taking the position with heavy loss. At 1 P. M. the 18th and 32d marched into the city and bivouacked in the streets till 5 P. M., when they advanced out about four miles on the plank road towards Chancellorville, the remainder of the brigade having preceded them while these two were with the battery. The brigade were got together on the same evening at Salem Church, near which an active engagement had been fought, and a heavy loss had occurred to the 16th New York and 95th Pennsylvania regiments.

The 18th were sent out on picket on the night of the 3d, relieving the 49th Pennsylvania. They brought in many wounded who lay near the line, and the night passed without much firing. They remained in this position on the 4th, and during the day were attacked by skirmishers, but this movement proved to be only a feint, as the main attack was made on the left at 4 P. M. The regiment met with no losses, and the enemy opposed had but few casualties. At dark the whole of the Sixth Corps retreated to Banks' Ford, a distance of five miles, and crossed in the night under fire from the enemy's batteries. Col. Myers had a horse mortally wounded under him, but the regiment crossed to the north bank without injury. Co. D had been left in the city to guard a division hospital, and also withdrew with its wounded and without loss.

The Sixth corps in this engagement took 1,100 prisoners and 17 pieces of artillery, but lost very heavily, the total in killed, wounded and prisoners being reported as 5,000.

On the 5th, 6th and 7th the troops rested near the ford, and on the 8th returned to their old camp near White Oak Church.

* The Barnard House, near the present site of the battle, had surroundings laid out on the plan of an English town. It was built by a British officer who was killed at the first battle of Fredericksburgh. It was the only building of the kind in the army. The following inscription was found on the wall of the house: "The first of North Carolina troops to Virginia."

The term of service of the 18th had now come to a close, and Col. Myers on the 9th received orders to transfer to the 121st New York regiment all its three years' men, about thirty in number. The recruits received into the 18th before the Peninsular campaign were mustered in for the unexpired term of service, and returned with the regiment.

On the 11th of May all the government property of the 18th, except arms, was turned over to the brigade-quarter-master.

There remained now nothing further but to bid adieu to their companions in arms, and on the evening of the 12th all the officers paid a parting visit to Gen. Russell at his quarters.

On the morning of the 13th the regiment marched to Falmouth Station, from whence they went by railroad to Aquia Creek, and by the steamer Metamora to Washington, where they arrived at P. M., and took quarters at the Soldiers' Rest. At noon on the 14th they took passage for home, passing Baltimore in the afternoon and Philadelphia early the next morning. Halting here several hours for refreshment, they arrived at Jersey City by railroad in the afternoon, and reached Albany by railroad at 5 A. M. on the 16th of May, and met with a generous welcome from the city authorities. The regiment had lost but 15 men from sickness, but the casualties of war had reduced their ranks to 425 men; yet they returned with a most honorable record of arduous and faithful service.

AIC AFFORDED BY COUNTIES.

Complete reports to July 1, 1863, have been received from six counties. The correspondents for many other counties are busily engaged in preparing their returns.

So far as complete, the county reports are given next following:

CAYUGA COUNTY.

(To July 1, 1863.)

The able report of Doctor Sylvester Willard, county correspondent, furnishes the following information:

VOLUNTEERS RAISED.

19th Regiment, N. Y. S. V., Infantry, (except Co. C, which was raised in Seneca Falls,) volunteered from the county of Cayuga.

This regiment afterward changed its organization to the 2d N. Y. V. artillery, and about 420 recruits were added to the Cayuga county.

75th Regiment, N. Y. S. V., mostly from Cayuga county—a small number from Wayne and Seneca counties. No data for greater definiteness.

111th Regiment, N. Y. S. V., Companies C, F, G, H, I and K, were raised in Cayuga county, with the exception of 20 men in Co. C, which, with the balance of the regiment, were recruited in Wayne county.

138th Regiment, N. Y. V., Infantry, now 9th Artillery, companies C, E, F, I, K, were raised in Cayuga county, with the exception of 38 men in Co. K, who, together with the balance of the regiment, were raised in Wayne county.

160th Regiment, N. Y. S. V.—In companies A, B, C, E, H, I and K, were 48 men from Cayuga, balance of A, B, C, and Co. D, from Wayne county, Company E from Ontario and Wayne counties, Company K from Erie county, Company G from Allegany and Wyoming counties, Company I, from Allegany county.

There were raised by Cayuga county, under the President's calls of July and August, 1862, for 600,000, that is from July 1, 1862, to July 1, 1863, sixteen hundred and seventy-seven men.

BOUNTIES TO SOLDIERS.

The sum of $41,050 was paid out to volunteers under the calls of the President in July and August, 1862, for 600,000 men. The rate of bounties paid to each volunteer who enlisted between August 4th and September 4th, 1862, was $50, and after September 4, it was $100. In addition to this, individuals have contributed freely for bounties to soldiers in their respective towns, which latter sums would probably amount in the aggregate to $10,000.

A further sum of $2,294.85, was loaned between July 25th, and November 4th, 1862, and paid from money provided by the board of supervisors at their regular session in 1862. This money was used to defray expenses for recruiting, which were not properly chargeable to the government, and was expended under direction of the military committee of the Senatorial district.

Amount appropriated for war purposes by the Legislature July 1, 1862	$44,766 67

WAR LOANS.

The first series of bonds were dated respectively September 6, 29, 30, and October 7, 1862, having six months to run, interest at the rate of seven per cent., which have all been paid, together with the ten thousand dollars above mentioned.

Bonds now outstanding:

Second series, dated between September 22, 1862, and December 4, 1862, amount $8,000, payable, with few exceptions, in eighteen months from date, with interest at seven per cent., semi-annually. The bonds are fifty-seven in number, and issued to various persons in sums of $100 and upwards, and were issued previous to the act of the Legislature.

The third series were issued under the act of the Legislature, and are dated May 11 and 12, 1863, and payable March 1, 1864, at the rate of interest hereinafter mentioned, and purchased by individuals, &c., as follows:

William Alexander, $800 at 6 per cent.

Abner Gifford, $1,800 at 6 per cent.

Auburn Savings Bank, \$5,000 at $6\frac{1}{2}$ per cent.

Auburn Savings Bank, \$12,000 at $6\frac{1}{2}$ per cent.

Auburn Savings Bank, \$22,000 at $6\frac{3}{4}$ per cent.

B. B. Roseboom, $500 at 6 per cent.

E. P. Haskells \$2,000 at $6\frac{1}{2}$ per cent.

This series of bonds were the only ones for bidders. The amount required to be borrowed was $24,300, the amount of bids received was $61,300.

Temporary loans were made by the county treasurer with which to pay bounties, upon notes, under authority given him by the board of supervisors, before the act of the Legislature was passed, conferring such authority; and this third series of bonds were in part issued to pay such loans, all of which temporary loans have been paid. Cancelled specimens of each of the three series of bonds issued, are herewith sent.

COUNTY WAR MEETINGS.

County conventions were held in Auburn, and general meetings for patriotic purposes in nearly or quite every town in the county; at all of which, so far as was manifest, perfect unanimity existed in regard to opposing the stupendous iniquity perpetrated by the rebels against the authority of the General Government, as expressed in resolutions to contribute arms and money to the and men to put down the Rebellion at whatever cost and sacrifice. Public speakers volunteered to hold meetings in all parts of the county, and in all such public assemblies resolutions most determined and patriotic were passed, and passed without opposition. In these popular demonstrations, if there were no religious or literary organizations separate and apart from the masses of the population, there has been an immense and persevering influence emanating from the pulpit and from literary men, showing that those who ministered at the altars of religion were nearly an unit in pleading with the Sovereign of worlds for the continued integrity of our nation. In all the exercise of clerical patriotism the laity and congregations have fully sustained the ministers, and there is no recollected instance where a clergyman has from this cause given offence to his hearers.

The liberality of the Supervisors was only excelled by their patriotism, in both of which their acts harmonized with the previously expressed will of the masses, who had furnished such indisputable testimony that the entire population were aroused to a sense of the flagrant and unparalleled enormity of an effort at national suicide.

At their special session in July, 1862, the Supervisors resolved "that our country demands men at once, and he is doubly a traitor who would discourage, or in any manner interfere with those who propose or who can be induced to volunteer;" they resolved unanimously "that a fund of $26,950 (provided a bounty is not offered by the Governor or State Legislature) be raised, from which a bounty of $50 shall be paid to each volunteer;" they resolved "that a committee of three be appointed from this board in each town, to secure the names of volunteers and assist the recruiting officer in obtaining them."

At their special session in September, 1862, they further resolved "that a bounty of $100 be paid to each volunteer of this county who shall enlist into the service of the United States after this date."

PAUPERISM.

The officers having charge of the poor of our county are unanimous in their opinion that there is no perceptible alteration in this regard since the commencement of the war.

CRIME.

The records in the county clerk's office show that the number of complaints and convictions are at least 50 per cent less than in any former period.

BANKS AND BANKING.

Loans, discounts, deposits and circulation all increased in nearly equal proportions, say about 25 per cent.

BUSINESS INTERESTS.

The business of this county has seldom been more prosperous than at present. Agricultural, mechanical, and commercial interests have not suffered for lack of laborers or employés. Laborers have not been as plenty as formerly, but enough to perform the amount required, and the practical effect of the diminished number of workmen has been to create a more steady demand for services at higher wages. The increase of wages has been 25 per cent. This enhanced cost has been added to the price of the article sold, thereby sustaining the profits, and the increased cost is ultimately borne by the consumer.

The class of business persons most affected by the war is the capitalist, whose income is derived from loans. The ease with which money can be obtained has the effect to reduce the rate of interest and lessen the opportunities for investment, while taxes and other expenses have increased.

RETURNED VOLUNTEERS.

The 19th regiment, enlisted for two years, is the only body of men returned to the county seat, and the intelligence of the time of their return was received so nearly in advance of their arrival, that no extended preparation could be made for the reception.

Hasty entertainments were provided in abundance, however, the bells were rung, addresses, most cordial and welcome, were made, to these gallant defenders of their country, and ample assurances were given them upon that occasion that their patriotic services were fully appreciated.

COUNTY REPORTS.

CATTARAUGUS COUNTY.

The valuable report of WILLIAM A. MELOY, Esq., county correspondent, furnishes the following information:

NUMBER OF VOLUNTEERS.

It is estimated that this county has furnished about 3,000 volunteers, under the various calls, to Dec. 31, 1863. Of these, 200 were for the first thirty-eight (2 years) regiments, and 1,500, three years men, furnished between July 1st, 1862, and July 1st, 1863.

REGIMENTS, BATTERIES, &c.

No organizations were formed for 3, 6 or 9 months. Companies H and I, of the 37th (2 years) regiment, and the 64th and 154th (3 years) regiments, were recruited mainly in this county. Many recruits were also furnished for the 6th, 9th and 12th N. Y. S. V. cavalry; the Signal Corps, the McClellan Dragoons, the 72d, 85th and 100th infantry.

A large number of volunteers have gone from the county to enlist in regiments formed in other counties or other States.

One company for the 64th regiment, and two companies for the 154th regiment, were from the county of Chautauqua.

No action was taken by the county to raise money for any purpose connected with the war. The entire expense has been met by the respective towns as such.

PAUPERISM AND CRIME.

Pauperism has not been materially affected in any way by the war; nor has the war had any noteworthy influence on crime, as compared with statistics of the courts of the county of former years.

BANKS.

A slight increase is noticed in the business of banks and banking establishments.

GENERAL BUSINESS INTERESTS.

No suffering has been felt in the general business of the county, nor by the laboring class for want of employment. Wages have advanced, and no work has necessarily been left undone.

LIVINGSTON COUNTY.

(Statistics generally to July 1, 1863, only.)

The very valuable report of Doctor WALTER E. LAUDERDALE, county correspondent, furnishes the following information:

VOLUNTEERS RAISED.

The county of Livingston raised for the first thirty-eight two 600 volunteers.

Between June 1, 1861, and July 1, 1862, for two years.....	750	volunteers.
Under the President's calls of July and August, 1862, that is from July 1, 1862, to July 1, 1863, for three years.....	1,500	do
Total number raised in county to July 1, 1863	2,850	do

These men were organized as follows :

In Thirteenth Regiment, N. Y. S. V., 2 years.

One full company, (Co. B, 77 men,) was recruited in Dansville, and placed in command of Captain Carl Stephan. On promotion of Captain Stephan, Lieutenant George Hyland, Jr., was raised to the captaincy. Captain Hyland was soon commissioned major and Lieut. Mark T. Bunnell was made captain.

From the towns of Avon, Lima, Livonia, Geneseo and Caledonia, enough volunteers were raised for another company, but they were distributed into different companies of this regiment.

In the Twenty-seventh Regiment, N. Y. S. V., 2 years.

Lima furnished Co. G, 85 men, under command of Captain James Perkins.

Mount Morris furnished Co. H, 77 men, under Captain Charles E. Martin.

Thirty-third Regiment, 2 years.

Geneseo furnished a full company, (Co. E, 74 men,) under command of Captain Wilson B. Warford. This company left Geneseo May 15, 1861.

Nunda furnished Co. F, 77 men, under Captain James M. McNair.

While the above regiments were forming, a large number of young men from this county enlisted into the early cavalry and artillery regiments. After the 13th, 27th and 33d regiments entered the field, Dansville recruited an additional company for the Thirteenth regiment, and Geneseo and Nunda sent forward recruits for their depleted companies then in the service.

The One Hundred and Fourth Regiment, 3 years.

The order for raising this regiment was granted September 24, 1861, by Governor Morgan to Col. James Wood, Jr., who was appointed to the command of the depot located at Geneseo. He resigned, and Col. John Borbach was appointed in his place.

took the regiment to the field on its completion. A sufficient number of men for seven full companies, were raised for this regiment in Livingston and Wyoming counties, viz :

Co. A,	Captain Henry G. Tuthill.....	99	men
Co. B,	do Lehman D. Day.....	100	do
Co. C,	do Stephen L. Wing.....	99	do
Co. D,	do Zophar Simpson.....	92	do
Co. E,	do Hugh C. Lattimore.....	87	do
Co. F,	do Gilbert G. Prey.....	93	do
Co. G,	do James A. Gault.....	96	do

This regiment was in barracks at Geneseo from October, 1861, to February 26, 1862. It was then removed to Albany, N. Y., and consolidated with a skeleton regiment recruited at Troy, by Col. John J. Viele. The 104th is now in the field; subsequently recruits were sent to it from this county.

On July 25, 1862, Gov. Morgan authorized the senatorial committee to raise a regiment in the thirtieth senatorial district, with head-quarters at Geneseo. Brigadier-General Wm. S. Fullerton, was appointed to take command of the depot. By order dated the 1st of August following, the head-quarters were changed to Portage, in this county. Barracks were there erected, and the work of raising men progressed rapidly. The regiment was designated as the One Hundred and Thirtieth N. Y. S. V., and was ordered to the seat of war on September 6th, with 1,044 men. It was raised in five weeks. It has since been changed to the First Regiment Heavy Dragoons. As the 130th approached completion, initiatory steps were taken for raising another regiment in the same district, and Col. James Wood, Jr., was appointed to take the command. This regiment was also rapidly filled. From the date of the order for raising the regiment until it was mustered into service, a period of only — days intervened. It left for Washington on October 3d, 874 strong, under command of Col. Wood, and was designated the One Hundred and Thirty-Sixth N. Y. S. V. For these two regiments the county of Livingston furnished about 1,200 men.

The three regiments formed in and sent from this county were mostly composed of a superior class of men, and how well and faithfully they have performed their duty, the history of many hard-fought battle fields fully attest.

After the departure of the 136th regiment, the volunteers from Livingston generally went to Rochester, and enlisted in the Eighth Cavalry, the Heavy Artillery, and in Barnes' and other Batteries. It is impossible to give the exact number of men who left the county in this manner; but there must have been at least two hundred of them between the 1st of October, 1862, and the same date in 1863.

It is believed that 350 volunteers from the county had enlisted into regiments formed or forming in other counties, prior to July 1, 1863, and that very few volunteers from other counties joined the companies distinctively belonging to this county.

Under the call of the President of October 17, 1863, for 300,000 men, and stimulated by a county bounty authorized by the supervisors, of $300 for each volunteer, enlistments were rapidly made, and most of the towns had filled their quotas by the first day of January, 1864. The quota of the county under the above call, was 537, three years men. There have been no separate companies organized in this county since the departure of the 136th regiment. The new recruits have either enlisted into regiments raised wholly or partly in this county, and already in the field, or attached themselves to the new ones organizing at Rochester.

SUPPORT OF SOLDIERS' FAMILIES.

There was paid by the county for the support of families of volunteers to July 1, 1863 :

By subscription.....	$15,000
By town authorities.....	10,000
By private donations.....	8,000
		$33,000

In 1861, the citizens in nearly every town subscribed thus liberally to the fund for the relief of families of volunteers or those dependent on them for support. This fund was paid out by instalments; but as no county record was kept of the action of the several towns in this respect, it is impossible here to arrive at the exact amount contributed. It is safe to say, however, that not less than $15,000 was contributed in this way.

BOUNTIES TO VOLUNTEERS.

There was raised by tax and paid by the county for bounties to volunteers, between August 11th, 1862, and December 31st, 1862..... $10,000.00
 By subscription in 1862..... $10,000.00
 Authorized by supervisors in Dec. 1863..... $10,000.00

The rate of bounties paid in 1862, was from $50 to $125 in hand. In 1863-4, the rate was $300—each down in cash or bond. Some of the towns paid an extra bounty of from $10 to $123. The money for the bounties paid in 1862, was borrowed by the county treasurer on the bonds of the county, authorized by the board of supervisors, at a special session called for that purpose.

From the 1st day of January, 1863, to the 11th day of December of the same year, no local bounties were paid.

The $300 bounty was authorized by the supervisors on the 11th day of December, 1863. From that time to the 31st of the same month, there was borrowed by the treasurer on the bonds of the county, and paid to volunteers, the sum of $40,515.

From the above, it appears that the amount of money appropriated by the supervisors, and payable by the county for war purposes, was $260,729.

ISSUE OF BONDS.

The first issue of bonds was in 1862, for six months. They were taken by the people of the county in sums of from $50 to $7,500. A portion of them were renewed for one year longer at seven per cent. interest.

The next issue, in December, 1863, was for one, two and three years at 7 per cent., and were taken by citizens of the county, as in 1862. Copies of these bonds accompany the report.

COUNTY WAR MEETINGS.

On July —, 1861, a county meeting was held at Geneseo for the purpose of encouraging enlistments. At this meeting the Hon. Charles H. Carroll presided, and James T. Norton and Wm. M. White, Esqs., were secretaries.

COUNTY COMMITTEES FOR WAR PURPOSES.

The board of supervisors acted as a committee for the county, and the supervisors as a committee for their towns respectively.

PAUPERISM.

The pauperism of the county has not been materially affected by the war.

CRIME.

Crime has decreased to some extent, though not largely, since the commencement of the war.

BANKING AND BANKING ESTABLISHMENTS.

The effect of the war upon the business of banks and banking establishments has been to decrease loans and to increase deposits.

GENERAL BUSINESS INTERESTS.

All branches of business in the county have suffered to some extent for want of laborers.

GENERAL OFFICERS FROM THE COUNTY.

Hardly had the sound of the first traitorous gun at Fort Sumter died away, ere Major James S. Wadsworth, of Geneseo, tendered his services to the Government. He was appointed a brigadier-general, and the country has had few more energetic and efficient officers. He has taken an active part in all the principal battles in Virginia, except in the Peninsular campaign, and also bore a conspicuous part at Gettysburgh. For several months he held the position of Military Governor of the District of Columbia.

THE RECORD.

The record of Livingston county is one of which all her citizens may justly feel proud. She has responded promptly to every call, and her citizens have given generously of their means in aid of the volunteers and their families.

PUTNAM COUNTY.

The valuable report of the Hon. Saxton Smith, county correspondent, affords the following information :

VOLUNTEERS.

Putnam county has sent no full regiment nor battery into the field, but has contributed men to the 38th, the 59th, the 95th Infantry regiments, and the 4th and 6th Artillery, and Serrell's Engineers.

There was furnished by the county under the President's calls of July and August, 1862, four hundred and thirty-two men.

SOLDIERS' FAMILIES.

No aid has been paid by the county for the support of families of volunteers, but it has been extended through towns and by private subscriptions.

BOUNTIES TO VOLUNTEERS.

Bounties were paid by towns as follows:

Carmel	$3,000 00
Kent	4,000 00
Patterson	5,000 00
Philipstown	6,000 00

Putnam Valley	$836 00
South East	8,000 00
Total	$38,525 36

The towns were taxed, and the sums above given were collected.

The bounties paid by the towns under the calls for 600,000 men were $100 per man.

HOW MONEYS WERE RAISED.

No bonds were issued. The money was advanced by individuals and banks, and has been raised and repaid by tax. In Carmel the advances were made by Chauncey R. Weeks, John G. Miller, and Ambrose Ryder, who acted as a committee, and borrowed the money upon their joint note. In Kent, the money was advanced by the Bank of Kent, and in other towns by individual loans, often in small sums.

AID TO HOSPITALS, &c.

The amount of aid furnished by the county to hospitals, through the Sanitary Commission, and otherwise, cannot be ascertained. Cold Spring and its vicinity furnished $800.

WAR MEETINGS.

No county conventions, but several large general meetings have been held.

PAUPERISM.

Pauperism has not been particularly affected by the war.

CRIME.

The influence of the war has been rather favorable than otherwise on crime.

BANKING INTERESTS.

Banking interests have not been affected materially.

GENERAL BUSINESS INTERESTS.

For want of laborers, especially upon farms, there has been some embarrassment. Mechanical employments have also been short of laborers.

Putnam county claims the honor of having furnished several generals for the war. Major-General Couch is a native of the town of South-East, and went from thence to West Point. Generals William H. Morris and Gouverneur K. Warren are residents of Philipstown, and the latter is a native of the county.

WARREN COUNTY.

The interesting report of Mr. FREDERICK A. JOHNSON, Jr., county correspondent, affords the following information:

VOLUNTEERS.

The county of Warren has furnished 1,225 men for the war, of whom 270 were enlisted for two and the remainder for three years. Of the latter, 330 men enlisted between July 1, 1863, and January 1, 1864.

The regiments into which these men entered were as follows:

In Twenty-second regiment, (2 y'rs) from Washington, Warren, Essex, Clinton and Rensselaer counties, Col. Walter Phelps, Jr., had two entire companies from this county, viz:

Company E, capt. George Clendon, Jr., 140 men.

Company F, capt. A. W. Holden, 130 men.

In Seventy-seventh regiment, chiefly from Saratoga county, and known as the "Bemis Heights Regiment:"

In companies not known, 25 men.

In Ninety-third regiment, raised in Washington, Warren, Essex and Clinton counties, included three companies from Warren:

Company A, capt. Orville L. Calvin, 100 men.

Company H, capt. Hiram S. Wilson, 100 men.

Lieutenant P. P. Eldredge, 25 men.

In One Hundred and Eighteenth regiment, from Clinton, Essex, Warren and Franklin counties, (chiefly of the 16th senatorial district.):

Company A, capt. J. H. Norris, 110 men.

In One Hundred and Twenty-third regiment, (raised chiefly in 12th senatorial district.):

Company A, capt. Geo. B. Warren, 50 men.

Coleman, 50 men.

In One Hundred and Fifty-third regiment, from Washington, Saratoga, Warren and Hamilton, (15th senatorial district.)

Company K, capt. V. J. P. Chitty, 50 men.

In One Hundred and Sixty-ninth regiment, (12th senatorial district chiefly.)

Company —, James Brice, 50 men.

In Independent Cavalry, District Columbia, Wm. H. Orton, 50 men, enlisted since July 1, 1863, in the Second Veteran Cavalry.

Company A, capt. D. Cameron, 100 men.

Company F, capt. J. S. Fassett, 100 men.

Company K, capt. W. H. Arlins, 100 men.

Other companies, 50 men.

SOLDIERS' FAMILIES.

The county has left to the towns the matter of support of the families of volunteers. (Reference is made to the reports of the town correspondents for an account of this.)

WAR LOANS.

A loan of $15,000 was raised on notes negotiated by the county war committee. The notes were assumed by the county and the amount was raised in instalments by the board of supervisors. The following was the occasion:

On the 2d of July, 1862, the county of Warren was called upon to furnish three companies of volunteers for the 118th regiment. A large and spirited mass meeting of the citizens of the county was called to take into consideration the manner of effecting this object, and the supervisors who met at that time in special session, resolved to loan $15,000 for the purpose of paying a county bounty of $50 to each volunteer. This action was endorsed and approved by the meeting. The money was borrowed from Alvan Wing, of Queensburg, and all of this, excepting a balance of $206, was expended for the specific object thus authorized. This loan was subsequently arranged to be refunded by tax assessed under a general law. In addition to the above loan, several of the towns offered bounties. The amount of private subscriptions in all the towns except Bolton, was $15,575, chiefly for the support of families.

PAUPERISM.

Pauperism has somewhat increased since the commencement of the war.

CRIME.

The statistics in this respect show about the same condition as before the war.

BANKS AND BANKING ESTABLISHMENTS.

The effect of the war upon the business of banking has been to decrease loans and discounts, and to increase deposits and circulation.

THE GENERAL BUSINESS INTERESTS and prospering. Labor bears a high price.

RETURNING REGIMENTS.

On the return of the Twenty-second regiment, a public reception was extended to them at Glens Falls. It was an occasion of good feeling. About four hundred members of the regiment partook of a public dinner.

Quota under call of October, 1863.

The county of Warren has furnished its quota of men under this call of the President. The several towns have raised and paid a bounty of $300 to each enlisted man, which will increase the amount raised in the county for war purposes about $100,000. Town bonds have been issued for the money required to pay bounties.

YATES COUNTY.

(To July 1st, 1863.)

The excellent report of the Hon. DARIUS A. OGDEN, county correspondent, affords the following information:

VOLUNTEERS FURNISHED.

There was raised by the county of Yates, between April 15, 1861, and July 1, 1863, volunteers as follows:

For the first thirty-eight two years' regiments.....	100
Between June 1, 1861, and July 1, 1862, for 3 yrs.	100
Between July 1, 1862, and July 1, 1863, for 3 yrs.	575

ORGANIZATION OF THIS FORCE.

No full regiments went from this county, but parts of several regiments and batteries, whose estimated numbers were as follows:

For the 33d regiment, (2 years,) one company.....	100 men
For the 44th regiment, nearly one company.....	70 "
For the 126th regiment, (26th Senatorial district,) two and a half companies.....	260 "
For the 149th regiment, (26th Senatorial district,) two and a half companies.....	245 "
In other regiments and batteries, including the 8th Cav- alry and Bowen's battery.....	100 "

Making total, as above, of about.....

Some others have gone from this county and enlisted elsewhere, probably one hundred or more. Very few have come from other counties to join organizations forming in this county.

FAMILIES OF VOLUNTEERS.

The amount raised by voluntary subscription in the first months of the war, for the support of families of volunteers, is estimated at $4,000. This was distributed by a committee in sums varying from $4 to $8 per month, to families.

BOUNTIES, &c.

The supervisors, by resolutions passed at the special session of the board held on the 26th day of July and 21st day of Aug't, 1862, directed two loans of $15,000 each, to be made on the credit of the county, for the purpose of promoting enlistments and aiding families. They directed that county bounties of $20 should be paid by the war committee to each person enlisting. Several of the towns, at town meetings, voted additional bounties of $100, in order to fill up their quotas. From the county fund the sum of $4 was to be paid per month to the wife of each absent volunteer, and $1 for each child, to the number of four. This county aid to families was a continuation of the relief begun by private subscription, and continues to the families of all, without regard to term of enlistment, to those who volunteered prior to August, 1862. This indebtedness against the county and towns, has been cancelled by taxation, excepting in the town of Torrey. The fund for families was continued through December, 1863, and the remainder was then distributed by the county treasurer among the towns, in the proportions drawn in December, for the use of the officers having charge of the soldiers' relief fund in the several towns. The following sums of money were ordered to be raised upon the several towns by tax:

Barrington volunteers' relief fund	$400 00
Benton do do	1,700 00
Italy do do	400 00
Jerusalem do do	2,000 00
Interest on county scrip	63 00
Middlesex volunteer relief fund	450 00
Milo do do	2,000 00
Potter do do	1,500 00
Starkey do do	1,000 00
Torrey, town bounty, scrip and interest	439 64
Total	$8,952 64

The number of volunteers who received the county bounty was 551. As will be seen, the whole amount of money raised by the board of supervisors to July 1, 1863, was $30,650.00.

WAR LOANS.

No bonds were issued, but scrip was given, in amounts of from $20 to $100, payable when the money was collected, with interest at the rate of seven per cent., and was freely taken by the citizens of the county and by the soldiers for bounty. A tax was levied for the full amount of county scrip, and in all the towns except Torrey, as before stated, for the sums appropriated for town bounties, and cheerfully paid, so that no debt was created, and a fund was provided which will be available for families of volunteers until the latter part of 1863.

WAR MEETING.

A general county meeting was held at Penn Yan, at which the initiatory steps were taken to raise funds for bounties and for families. All parts of the county were represented, and the action of the board of supervisors, above referred to, was in pursuance of the recommendation of this meeting. Other meetings were held in other quarters, from June to August, 1862, and in September the quota was full.

The county committee appointed to distribute the funds consisted of D. A. Ogden, C. C. Sheppard, E. B. Jones, and F. S. Holmes. The Governor appointed a war committee, consisting of D. A. Ogden, S. C. Cleveland, M. Brown, M. H. Lawrence, A. T. Whittaker, Wm. S. Briggs, H. C. Wolcott, J. F. Anderson, and Wm. Thomas.

PAUPERISM.

Pauperism has not increased during the war.

CRIME.

The war has not had a noteworthy influence on crime.

BANKING INTERESTS.

The effect, if any, of the war in the business of banking has been to increase business.

GENERAL BUSINESS INTERESTS.

The material interests of the county have not been unfavorably affected by the war; indeed, all kinds of business has been better. Farmers are thrifty, the business of villages good, and building increased.

RETURNED REGIMENTS.

Company I, 23d regiment, returned in June, 1863, and were mustered out of the U. S. service, they having served the full term of two years. About thirty of the original one hundred returned. They were in some twelve battles, including Yorktown, Williamsburg, Fair Oaks, Seven Days' battles before Richmond, Antietam, South Mountain, and first and second Fredericksburgh, under Burnside and Hooker.

MEMORANDA ACCOMPANYING REPORTS OF COUNTY TREASURERS MADE TO THE BUREAU IN JANUARY, 1864.

Albany County.—The board of supervisors at their session, in December, 1863, voted to pay $300 for each volunteer under the last call for 300,000 men.

Allegany County.—Board of supervisors, in December, 1863, voted to pay each volunteer the sum of $300, to be raised in one, two and three years, as each town saw fit.

Broome County.—Some of the towns are paying town bounties which will amount in the aggregate to $25,000.

Chautauqua County.—Large sums are being raised throughout the county to encourage volunteering, each town proposing to pay a bounty of $300 to each volunteer under the last call of the President. The aggregate number of men to be raised is 739, which, at $300 each would amount to $221,700.

Columbia County.—In addition to amount voted by supervisors, large bounties were paid by the several towns.

Clinton County.—The several towns, almost without exception, have also paid bounties, varying in amount from $150 to $300, in addition to those provided by the board of supervisors.

Delaware County.—The towns of Middletown, Tompkins and Walton paid their bounties by private subscription.

Essex County.—The several towns in the county have paid out quite an amount for supplies for families of volunteers and for raising men on the first call for 75,000.

Herkimer County.—The towns in the county have provided for volunteers' families, bounties, &c.

Kings County.—It will take about $1,000,000 in addition to what has been already expended, to fill up the quota under the President's call of October 1863.

Lewis County.—Some of the towns are paying $100 to each volunteer, in the expectation that the board of supervisors will legalize it.

Livingston County.—No appropriation was made by the supervisors in 1861, but large amounts were subscribed and paid by individuals in nearly every town in the county, to aid families of volunteers.

Montgomery County.—Large amounts were paid by towns for bounties.

Oneida County.—It is estimated that it will take $200,000 to fill the quota under the call of Oct. 1863. Most of this sum has already been paid out by the supervisors of the respective towns, the amounts having been loaned for that purpose in anticipation of an early appropriation to cover the same by the board of supervisors. Large amounts have been raised in various ways aside from amounts raised by tax.

Orange County.—December 3, 1863, the board of supervisors resolved to raise (subject to the approval of the Legislature) the sum of $300,000, or so much thereof as should be necessary, for the purpose of paying $300 to each volunteer under the draft directed to take place on the 5th of January, 1864.

Putnam County.—There has been raised, by private donation and subscription, at least $50,000.

Seneca County.—Several of the towns issued town bonds, and did not take the bonds issued by the county. Such was the case with two towns in 1863; and in 1862 all the towns issued town bonds.

Saratoga County.—In addition to amount raised by supervisors, twelve (12) towns raised by tax $52,289.43, which has been paid out.

St. Lawrence County.—In December, 1863, the towns paid town bounties to the amount of about $121,700.

Tioga County.—The town of Owego raised $4,000 for the support of soldiers' families; also some $2,500 was subscribed voluntarily under the call in 1862, to promote volunteering, and other sums by private individuals are now paid monthly to aid families.

Tompkins County.—In addition to amount raised by board of supervisors, the following sums have been raised and expended:

Voluntary subscriptions for relief of families of volunteers	$9,749
Raised by tax for relief of families of volunteers	892
Voluntary subscriptions to pay bounties	20,974
Raised by tax do do	47,876
	$79,491

Wayne County.—In 1862, the towns of Ross, Wolcott, Galen, Savannah, and Ontario filled their quotas by town or volunteer bounties. Every town in the county in 1862 contributed largely to volunteer funds, and only resorted to county bounties to make out quotas for the third regiment raised in this (the 24th) district.

Westchester County.—Wherever moneys have been raised to pay bounties, it has been by action of the people in town meetings.

Hudson.—The sum of $4,000 has been subscribed by citizens for relief of destitute families of volunteers, 40 per cent. of which has been expended. The ladies have also contributed largely in the way of hospital supplies, &c.

Oswego.—About $14,000 has been secured by private contributions.

AID AFFORDED BY TOWNS.

The following abstracts afford an incomplete summary of the reports of town correspondents, but it has been deemed unjust to the towns to attempt a more full account at thistime. The information afforded by the reports is so precise and varied that it cannot be condensed without losing much of its value. Another reason, but about one-fifth of the towns have reported, and no satisfactory plan can be adopted for presenting the details until at least a majority of the reports shall have been received.

LIST OF FLAGS

In the custody of the Bureau of Military Statistics, Feb. 1, 1864.

Efforts are being made to obtain a full account of every flag in the collection.

2D REGIMENT VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—National Flag—silk. Forwarded by express from Washington, by Capt. Wm. McConihe.

12TH REGIMENT VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—National Flag—silk. Faded and much worn. (State Library.)

13TH REGIMENT VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—National Flag of silk, in fine condition, presented by the ladies of Rochester, and carried only at the first battle of Bull Run, where it received several bullet holes in the upper edge of the union. The bearer on this occasion was Daniel Sharpe, since adjutant and major of the 105th.

Regimental banner, embroidered with U. S. arms upon one side and painted with the State arms on the other. The needle work is elaborate, and mostly by the hand of Mrs. Gen. Swan. This banner was presented by the ladies of Rochester, to Colonel Quinby and his regiment upon their departure.

National flag, of bunting, much worn.

These three flags were received from Col. Marshall, of Rochester, who last commanded the regiment.

14TH REGIMENT VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—National flag—silk. (State Library.)

17TH REGIMENT VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—National flag—silk. Much worn; name of the regiment embroidered in white silk. Presented to the regiment by eight lady friends of Col. H. S. Lansing.

Regimental banner, with New York city arms painted. Lettering and scrolls, gilt; much worn. Presented to the regiment by the city of New York.

Regimental banner, of white silk, with heavy tassels and fringe of baltica. Painted with the State arms on one side, and the American eagle on the other.

18TH REGIMENT VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—National flag—silk. Much faded. Inscription in silk embroidery—"Rally around it." Presented by lady friends in Albany to Col. Jackson, June 1, 1862, and delivered to the State by Col. Myers upon the return of the regiment upon the expiration of its term. Carried in the battle of Bull Run, West Point, Guinea's Hill, Charles City (Cross Roads, Malvern Hill, Crampton Pass, Antietam, Fredericksburg, (first and second battles,) and Chancellorville.

24TH REGIMENT VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—National Flag—silk, with gold lettering.

26TH REGIMENT VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—National Flag—bunting. Presented by the State, and carried by the regiment through all its battles. (State Library.)

27TH REGIMENT VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—National Flag—silk. Much worn. This flag was presented to company I by Mrs. Philip Church, of Belvidere, Allegany county, May 22, 1861, at Elmira, and the same day by the company presented to the regiment. They remained the only colors of the regiment through its term of service, and was carried in the battles of Bull Run (first,) West Point, Gaines' Hill, Chickahominy, White Oak Creek, Crampton Pass, and Second Fredericksburg. The bearer at Gaines' Hill was severely wounded. It has been struck many times by the enemy's shot, and fragments of shell.

Flag presented to company H, May 16, 1861, by the ladies of Mount Morris. Returned by the company to the donors May 21, 1863, and by the latter presented to the Bureau of Military Statistics January 9, 1864.

29TH REGIMENT VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—National Flag—silk. In fine condition.

Regimental banner with New York city arms painted. Lettering and scrolls in gilt.

National Flag—silk. Much worn.

Two guidons—silk, and in good condition.

30TH REGIMENT VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—National Flag—bunting. This flag was presented to the Legislature April 24, 1862, and its history is given on page seventeen, of the official report of the ceremony. (State Library.)

32D REGIMENT VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—National Flag—of silk. Presented to the regiment June 28, 1861, by Wm. Laimbeer, jr., of New York city, and bears on its staff a presentation plate. This regiment was engaged in the battles of Bull Run, (first,) West Point, Gaines' Hill, White Oak Swamp, Crampton Pass, Fredericksburg, and Chancellorville. (State Library.)

34TH REGIMENT VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—National Flag—bunting. Presented by Col. Byron Latta.

Designation flag—Headquarters 3d regiment, 1st Division.

37TH REGIMENT VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.—National Flag—bunting. This was received immediately after the regiment arrived in Washington while encamped at the foot of East Capitol street, on the east bank of the Anacosta, July, 1861. In camp or bivouack it was always placed in front of the Colonel's tent. It has been used in the following battles: First Bull Run, (in reserve,) Williamsburg, Fair Oaks, Glendale, Malvern Hill, second Bull Run, Chantilly, Fredericksburg and Chancellorville. It was also with the regiment in the siege of Yorktown, and in several skirmishes on the Occoquan, in front of Yorktown, Richmond, etc.

Regimental banner—green silk, with list of battles emblazoned. This flag was presented to the regiment by the city of New York, February, 1862, and has been with the regiment in front of Fredericksburg, and in the battle of Chancellorville. The battles inscribed are Williamsburg, Fair Oaks, Fredericksburg, Glendale, Malvern Hill.

National flag—silk, new and in fine condition; companion to the preceding. The staff bears an engraved plate recording the fact that it was presented by the city of New York. The original flag of this staff, just previous to the murderous midnight engagement between the third corps and Stonewall's division, near Chancellorville, was removed by Lloyd, the bearer, and wrapped around his body under his coat, lest it should be torn or lost in passing through the tangled jungle through which they were compelled to creep. But this brave and intelligent soldier was killed, and his body was buried by his comrades without suspecting that the flag was still around his person. Repeated efforts were made to find his grave, but without success.

Two guidons—silk. Presented by the city of New York. In fine condition.

Designation flag—Headquarters 3d brigade, 1st division.

Designation flag—Headquarters 1st regiment, 3d brigade, 1st division.

These are of bunting; the first in fine condition, and the second much worn.

38th REGIMENT VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.—National Flag, bunting; regimental banner, silk, much worn; the arms of the city of New York, painted. Designation flag, headquarters 1st regiment, 3d brigade, 1st division, bunting.

39th REGIMENT VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.—National Flag, silk,

"Mozart" inscribed in gold letters. This was presented to the regiment at Yonkers, July 3, 1861, by Hon. Fernando Wood, mayor of New York, in behalf of the Union Defence Committee of the city of New York. The flag has been through the siege of Yorktown, and the battles of Williamsburg, Fair Oaks, Robison's Field, Glendale, White Oak Swamp, Malvern Hill, Hay Market, second Bull Run, and Chantilly, besides minor engagements. A detailed list of the color bearers and guard accompanied the flag when returned to the custody of the State. Of these, 17 are honorably mentioned, of whom 5 were killed in battle, and 6 wounded, 2 died of disease contracted in service, and 5 were promoted for gallantry on the field. This flag was formally presented to the Legislature, April 24, 1863. (State Library.) From Col. F. W. Egan.

60TH REGIMENT VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.—Regimental Banner, silk, painted with the State arms. This was presented to the Legislature April 24, 1863, and is described in official report, page 10. (State Library.)

61ST. REGIMENT VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.—National Flag, silk, much worn. Presented by the city of New York, and used as a parade flag until the peninsular campaign, when it was laid aside until the spring of 1863. Since that time it has been used as the regimental flag. It was carried at the battles of Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Auburn, Bristow Station, and Mine Run. At Gettysburg the color bearer and two of the guard were severely wounded. The regiment in this battle lost one officer killed and five wounded. Sixty-eight enlisted men were killed or wounded. Sent to the State authorities by Col. Nelson A. Miles, commanding the regiment, through the hands of 2d Lieut. H. C. Williams, 61st N. Y. V., and received at the Bureau, January 7, 1864.

National flag, bunting. This was presented to the Legislature April 24, 1863, and is described in official report, page 21. (State Library.)

64TH REGIMENT VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.—National Flag, bunting, worn and without the staff. It is accompanied by a history of the flag.

71ST REGIMENT VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.—National Flag, silk. This was presented to the Legislature April 24, 1863, and is mentioned on page 23 of the official report. (State Library.)

77TH REGIMENT VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.—Regimental Banner, silk. Presented to the regiment November 29, 1861, by citizens of Saratoga county resident in New York city. The painting represents the surrender of Burgoyne, Saratoga county, and the design is peculiarly appropriate, from the fact that the regiment was chiefly raised in that vicinity. In the painting, a Union Jack of England, with the stripes of the American flag are on the right, and the national flag of the United States on the left. The former of these is understood to have been in use in the American army before the surrender of Burgoyne, and the latter is said to have been first displayed on that occasion. The resolution in Congress agreeing upon a flag was made public September 3, 1777, and we have the authority of Colonel Trumbull, that the new ensign was used at Burgoyne's surrender, on the 17th of October, 1777.

The banner of the 77th was carried through all the services of the regiment, and its bearers were Sergeant Isaac Bemis, and afterwards Corporal Michael McWilliams. The 77th was at Lee's Mills, the siege of Yorktown, Mechanicsville, Golden's Farm, Garnet's Hill, White Oak Swamp, Crampton Pass, Antietam, Fredericksburg, Mayre's Heights, and Gettysburg. In the charge up Mayre's Heights, one of the color guard was killed, and the flag torn into shreds by a shell.

80TH REGIMENT VOLUNTEER INFANTRY, (20TH N. Y. S. MILITIA.)—National Flag, silk, worn and without the staff.

Regimental banner, silk, embroidered with the State arms.

96TH REGIMENT VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.—National Flag, bunting. (State Library.)

97TH REGIMENT VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.—National Flag, silk, much faded and worn. Presented by the ladies of Boonville, from the proceeds of a series of ladies' fairs held for that purpose. The regiment was in the following battles under this flag: Cedar Mountain, Rappahannock Station, Thoroughfare Gap, Bull Run (second), Chantilly, South Mountain, Antietam, Fredericksburg, Chancellorville, and Gettysburg.

101ST REGIMENT VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.—National Flag, silk, much faded and worn. This was presented to the Legislature April 24, 1863, and is mentioned on page 24 of the official report. (State Library.)

102ND REGIMENT VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.—National Flag, silk. This flag was presented to the Legislature April 24, 1863, and is mentioned on page 25 of the official report. It is inscribed with the names of battles in which it was borne. (State Library.)

130TH REGIMENT VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.—Regimental Banner, silk.

146TH REGIMENT VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.—Regimental Banner, silk, with arms of United States painted; without the staff.

177TH REGIMENT VOLUNTEER INFANTRY, (10TH N. Y. STATE MILITIA.)—Regimental Banner, silk, much worn. National flag, silk, (part wanting.)

3D REGIMENT NEW YORK VOLUNTEER ARTILLERY.—National Flag, silk, inscribed, by authority, with the names of battles in which the regiment has been engaged, viz: Lovettsville, Fort Macon, Washington, N. C., South West Creek, Kinston, Whitehall, Goldsboro, Newbern, Rawl's Mills, and at the siege of Washington, N. C.

7TH INDEPENDENT BATTERY.—National Flag, silk; no staff. Presented by Captain Peter C. Regan.

11TH INDEPENDENT BATTERY, (Havelock Battery.)—Banner of yellow silk, with portrait of Gen. Havelock, painted; no staff. National Flag, bunting, much worn.

CAVALRY GUIDON.—This was received without a label.

DESIGNATION FLAG, 4th Regiment, 1st Brigade, 4th Division. (State Library.)

National Flag, bunting and flannel, the stars of cotton, belonging to the — regiment. This flag was brought from the battle field of Fair Oaks by the color bearer, who was wounded and found his way to the hospital at Savage's Station. He concealed it under his clothing from the observation of his captors, and finally gave it to a surgeon, who was allowed to return home without being searched. Presented by Dr. John Swinburne of Albany.

National Flag, bunting. This was the first flag displayed at Jamestown, N. Y., after the attack on Fort Sumter. Made by the ladies of Jamestown within six hours from the receipt of the news, and displayed from the office of the Jamestown Journal. Presented by C. E. Bishop, Esq., November 12, 1863.

REBEL FLAGS.

"Stars and Bars," cotton and woolen.

"Stars and Bars," cotton, nine stars, with initials of States. The blue field extends across the whole base of the flag.

"Southern Cross," bunting, eleven stars. These three flags were captured by Mix's Cavalry (3d N. Y. Cav.) (State Library.)

The one last named is mentioned in the following special order (No. 128, Headquarters Department of North Carolina), dated April 28, 1863:

* * * "The battle flag of the 7th Confederate (Claiborne) Cavalry, which was captured by companies A and E of the 3d N. Y. Cavalry, near Little Washington, on the 18th inst., in a gallant and successful charge against superior numbers of the foe, is presented to the regiment as a distinguished mark of the favor and appreciation in which Colonel Mix's command is had.

"By command of Major General Foster.

"SOUTHARD HOFFMAN, A. A. G."

"Stars and Bars," cotton, and much faded. Captured from a band of guerillas at Tullahoma, Tenn., by the 19th Illinois Vols., and deposited by C. E. Bishop, Esq., of Jamestown.

"Southern Cross," cotton, torn and stained with blood. This flag was captured at Antietam, by Stanislaus Berreaux, of Co. E, 35th Regt., N. Y. S. V., and presented by Capt. John A. Haddock.

Rebel Flag, white, red, blue and white bars, with a large white star in place of the union.
